WILL IT REMAIN A BOROUGH?

FANWOOD PEOPLE EXERCISED OVER THE SUPREME COURT DECISION.

It is Thought That the Opponents of the Borough Government Will Contest Its Legality in the Courts.

In connection with the recent adverse decision rendered by the Supreme Court in regard to boroughs formed under an act of the legislature of 1891, the following may be interesting as regards the borough of Fanwood:

The borough of Fanwood was formed under the law of 1891 by ten citizens of Fanwood, an election was held and the borough was carried. Application was made to Judge McCormick and he with difficulty found three freeholders in the proposed borough. However, W. R. Stanbery as clerk, Sheriff Kyte and W. L. Force as inspectors were appointed. W. R. Stanbery was authorized by the court to make arrangements to carry on a legal election. He thereupon proceeded to get the paraphernalia ready so as to have the election held at the proper time and in the proper place. It was decided by a majority of the people that a borough should be instituted. After the election was held it was a matter to be decided who was responsible for the debts incurred before the decision was arrived at as to whether it was or was not to be a borough. Mr. Stanbery, as clerk of the court, applied to Judge McCormick for authority. He was referred to Nicholas English, the attorney for the Committee of Ten, and at a meeting of this committee stated to them that Mr. English had told Mr. Force and himself that he had this same position as the clerk of a township, and that he had the latter behind him as a guarantee, and that he, Mr. Stanbery, should go to the Committee of Ten and get a guarantee from them that all bills contracted by him should be paid. This was done by Mr. Stanbery, accompanied by Mr. Force, and those present said that they would guarantee that such bills should be paid. The election was held and the borough carried. Mr. Stanbery as clerk first offered the bills to the Committee of Ten, and they advised that the same should be presented to the Council, composed of Thomas Young, Mayor, and Councilmen George Kyte, Mr. Beeken, Mr. McGowan, Mr. Christianson, and Harry Hall as clerk. This was done and they offered a motion which was carried, that all bills prior to October 2d, which was the time that Mr. Stanbery, as clerk of the court, delivered the returns of October 1st to the county clerk at Elizabeth, would not be paid by the borough. Mr. Stanbery then presented the bills to the Committee of Ten and they acted upon the same.

A Daily Press reporter had a great deal of trouble in ascertaining the facts of the case. Mr. Stanbery was merely willing to show the action taken in the matter, was as follows, signed by L. G. Ellis as secretary of the Committee of Ten:

"That they saw no reason why they should pay Messrs. Kyte and Force as inspectors and Mr. Stanbery as clerk of the court, but other bills presented by Mr. Stanbery as clerk of the court were considered as favorable and would be paid."

Later on a communication was received by Mr. Stanbery from Mr. Ellis stating that the committee of the whole had decided that they saw no reason why they should pay Mr. Stanbery, Sheriff Kyte and Mr. Force as an election board. However, they admitted that they had paid all other bills contracted by Mr. Stanbery as clerk of the court.

Mr. Stanbery was interviewed in the matter and stated that neither he nor Mr. Kyte are very much in need of $5.25 for services according to law, but are merely waiting to see whether the legality of the borough will be contested. Mr. Stanbery seems to be surprised that there should be so much difficulty in getting $15.75 for the services of three men.

The outcome of the whole matter is being watched with no little interest.

The Ridgefield Park case was taken to the Supreme Court in mandamus proceedings and was argued before Judges Dixon, Reed and Garrison, who decided that the power of deciding the questions of public policy which relate to the organization and extent of municipal corporations is one belonging, under the Constitution, to the legislative department of the Government, and could not be exercised by any person or persons belonging to or constituting either the executive or the judicial department. It would thus seem that the Court had long ago held that the power of incorporating municipalties was confined strictly to the legislative department, and could not be delegated.

UNCLE SAM'S MEN CHANGE ABOUT.

Transfer of Carriers in the Local Postal Service.

Several changes have been made in the postoffice, of this city, in the carriers department. Carrier William Demarest has been transferred from his Netherwood district to the Fourth ward district in place of James T. Mullen, resigned. Substitute P. J. Revelle has been assigned to the Netherwood district. Carrier E. T. Dunn resumed his duties yesterday, after a two weeks illness with muscular rheumatism. During Mr. Dunn's illness his district was carefully covered by Carrier William B. Sharp. Substitute Daniel Shea, who has been delivering mail for the past two weeks in the Park, will be substitute for Carrier E. E. Hann, who has three days leave of absence.

EMULATING THE FIRE LADDIES.

Such a Drill Will Be One of the Chief Attractions at the Fair.

Probably the most novel attraction of all the numerous compositions which will be introduced at the firemen's fair is the firemen's drill and dance, conceived and composed by Madame Menzeli Bartlett, which is now under rehearsal. The novel feature of this unique drill and manœuvering is the use of appliances employed by firemen when in active service. It is assured by Madame Bartlett that nothing of the kind has ever been presented either here or elsewhere. She has labored to make this her chief attraction in honor of the firemen.

Minnie Lester Tonight.

Minnie Lester and her excellent company, famous band and orchestra will open their five nights and four matinees engagement at Music Hall tonight in the funny comedy drama, "Madge." Seats are selling fast at Leggett's drug store. All who hold ladies tickets will do well to exchange them early, as they will not be exchanged after 7 p. m. Miss Lester will give a series of matinees during the week and the price of admission will be 10 cents to all parts of the house for everybody. Miss Lester's repertoire for the week is "Madge," "The Danites," "Molly Bawn," "Devil's Mine," "Mugg's Landing," "Little Bright Light," "Danger's Friend," "Little Counterfeiter," and "Ragged Jack, the Bootblack." By applying to the box office or Leggett's drug store you can obtain a lady's free ticket which has been issued for tonight.

Secretary to a Congressman.

Paul Ackerly, a former representative of The Press staff, has been selected by Hon. E. Stevens Henry, Congressman from the First Congressional District of Connecticut, as his private secretary. We congratulate Mr. Stevens on his selection of so bright and worthy a young man as Mr. Ackerly for his private secretary. His many friends in Plainfield wish him abundant success in his new position. He enters upon his duties today.

A Birthday Party.

Last Friday evening Miss Lizzie Sheldon gave a birthday party. Those present were Misses Annie Stewart, Lizzie Gunn, Millie Derand, Annie Donovan, Nora Donovan, Jessie Van Nest, Ethel Van Nest, Georganna Nedles, Katie Drake, Theresa Donavan and Masters Charlie Minerd, Willie Minerd, Tune Hewitt, George Donovan, Allie Coon.

Union Meeting of Young Workers.

The business meeting of the Christian Endeavor Society of Trinity Reformed church will be held tonight at 7:30 instead of 8 o'clock. It will be followed at 8 o'clock by a union meeting of Christian Endeavorers and Epworth Leaguers generally of this city. An interesting service is anticipated, and everybody is invited.

Amateur Actors.

The North Plainfield Dramatic Club will present the four-act comedy drama, "Breaking His Bonds," at Saenger and Turner Hall on Thursday evening, December 12th, at eight o'clock.

Evangelical Work to Be Discussed.

A union meeting of the Christian Endeavorers will be held this evening in Trinity Reformed church to consider evangelical work for the winter.

Enough for All.

There have been 57,000 tickets printed to be used at tomorrow's election.

—Mr. Murray's Y. M. C. A. Bible class, beginning with tonight, will hereafter meet on Monday evenings at 8 o'clock, instead of Tuesday evenings. All men are invited.

—One of the finest displays of sachet powder, toilet water and extracts can be seen at L. W. Randolph's the prescription druggist. The prices are all right, too.

THE SULTAN A PREVARICATOR

REV. MR. SCHENCK CHARACTERIZES THE EASTERN POTENTATE A LIAR.

He Says That the United States Should Arouse European Powers From the Apathy Evinced Towards the Armenians.

Rev. Cornelius Schenck preached a very interesting sermon at the Trinity Reformed church last evening on the subject "Armenia's Bitter Cry: Our Response," and took for his text the first seven verses of the ninety-fourth Psalm.

"The reports that come to us daily from Armenia," he said, "sound like chapters in the history of the early Christian church."

He then spoke of Armenia as a very interesting country, partly on account of its history and partly on account of its people and their surroundings. He gave the reasons for their cry. The Sultan of Turkey had taken away their inalienable rights. He had failed to keep his oft-made promises. Speaking of the Sultan, Rev. Mr. Schenck said:

"Of all the consummate liars in this world, the Sultan is the biggest. I tell you friends that you and I would not stand for a minute the oppressions that the Armenians suffer. Those that are not murdered are dying of starvation. The country has been devastated, and the missionaries are asking for help. They have petitioned the Sultan to stay his bloody hand in the humblest terms, but repeated outrages only follow. He would, however, stop all the terrible atrocities if the people would recant and become Mohammedans, but they will not.

In reply to this cry Rev. Mr. Schenck said that we should assure them of our sympathy, our prayers and material assistance.

"The Christian world, he exclaimed, should protest against these outrages and place the responsibility partly upon the Sultan and partly on the European nations. For while they are haggling over the way in which Turkey shall be divided, the slaughters goes on unhindered. There are times when principal must assert itself."

He also said that it was his opinion that the United States should do everything in its power to stir up the other countries from their apathy. In closing he said:

"Whatever is done by the powers will be a temporary expedient. That which is going to cure this awful evil is the Gospel of Jesus Christ and we must send our money and missionaries to assist in the accomplishment.

To Spread the Gospel.

The many friends of Miss Rachel Mair will regret to learn that next Saturday accompanied by Miss Arnold, of Chicago, she will sail for Africa, where she will engage herself as a missionary. Miss Arnold was at the W. C. T. U. rooms yesterday afternoon and made a few remarks as did also Miss Mair.

A Presentation.

The last lesson of the Parliamentary class, conducted by Miss Elizabeth Yates, was held in the Y. M. C. A. this morning. During the meeting Mrs. Robert Lowry rose and presented Miss Yates with a beautiful bouquet of pink carnations tied with pink satin ribbon.

All Were Roasted.

Roasted chickens were cheap at Dunellen last night when Lindsay's hennery was burned to the ground and most of its occupants roasted. The fire started at 7:30 and caught from an incubator.

Old Landmark Gone.

The arch gateway at Cedar Brook farm, built thirty-three years ago, was removed on Saturday last. Stone posts will take its place.

Informal Dance.

An informal dance will be given by the junior members of the Park Club, Wednesday evening, Dec. 4th.

—Mrs. Ira Riker, of Central avenue, has successfully passed an examination in the New York college for proficiency in embalming.

Major C. T. Picton is manager of the State Hotel, at Denison, Texas, which the traveling men say is one of the best hotels in that section. In speaking of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy Major Picton says: "I have used it myself and in my family for several years, and take pleasure in saying that I consider it an infallible cure for diarrhoea and dysentery. I always recommend it, and have frequently administered it to my guests in the hotel, and in every case it has proven itself worthy of unqualified endorsement. For sale by Reynolds' Pharmacy, Park and North avenues. T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

THE TALE OF A WOODEN LEG.

A FIGHT IN WHICH IT FIGURED RELATED IN POLICE COURT.

The City Judge Kept Busy This Morning With Sunday Delinquents—Whiskey the Cause of Most of the Appearances.

The court room in the rookery was crowded this morning with both prisoners and spectators, for the Monday morning catch of the police net was a large one. The first thing for Judge Coddington to settle was a hackmen's dispute. Henry Hanson was the offender, and he was charged by John Goodman, better known as "Corkey," with fighting. Goodman was going up the steps at the North Avenue station with a valise in his hand, and in some way or other Hanson, who was coming down, collided with him. Each laid the blame on the other, but they both agreed that as Hansen walked away, Goodman called him a "big headed thing," and Hanson came back, and then he testified that "Corkey" tried to kick him with his wooden leg, and he guarded off the blow by punching him in the eye. "I don't want to be kicked with a wooden leg" exclaimed the pugilistic hackman. "Did you hurt the wooden leg any?" asked the Judge, and then he gave Hanson his choice between a fine of $10 or thirty days in the county jail. "Would the fine have been any more if I had struck more than one blow?" remarked the culprit as he counred ever the amount of the fine to the Judge. "You would have been lucky to get off with $50," answered the Judge, and Hanson was glad that the scrap has been no worse.

Frank Lewers came up on the charge of carrying concealed weapons. He proved that he had only been temporarily carrying the revolver for a friend, so the Judge was lenient and let him off for $3 or a ten days visit at jail.

"Not guilty" was the plea of Frank Conde on the charge of being disorderly and using profane and indecent language, and his trial was set down for next Saturday morning at nine o'clock.

Whiskey was the cause of the next prisoner's downfall. Saturday evening Officer Frederickson had found Cooney Dunham helplessly drunk at the North avenue station and escorted him to the lock up. George W. DeMeza represented the prisoner and pleaded guilty, but made a little speech asking for mercy on account of his family. The Judge let him off on a fine of $5, or thirty days in jail. He paid.

There were two complaints against Mike Hartley, one by Harry Burnett, who charged Hartley with striking him under the eye and the other by the police for riding on coal trains.

Hartley could not give any good reason for the blow so it proved a rather expensive one for him, the Judge fining him $10 or thirty days in jail. Hartley will probably take passenger trains hereafter, for the stolen ride cost $3 or ten days at Elizabeth.

Hiram Birch and Edward Ross were each given their choice between adding $5 to the city treasury or spending twenty days in jail. They were both charged with peddling without a license and vagrancy. Birch had been drinking, not birch beer, but something stronger. They said they were from Jersey City.

Frank Buck was drunk on East Third street last evening and it took the combined efforts of Officers Cooney, Carney and Mattox to get him to the lockup. $5 or twenty days was the judgment of the court in regard to him.

James Mullen came up before the Judge at his office and was fined $10 for being drunk and disorderly.

Sand.

As the saying goes nowadays, it is a good thing to have "plenty of sand," but you don't want it in your eye, and when you have a feeling as of sand in the eye, it is a sure sign that you are in need of glasses, only a scientific examination of your eyes can tell you what kind of glasses you need. At Collier's, 103 Park avenue, all such examinations are free, and the best results are assured.

Junior Rally.

The local Junior Christian Endeavor societies will hold a rally tomorrow evening in the Trinity Reformed church. Lindley Hillman will render violin solos, May Parmalee will recite and State President, Rev. William Turner, of Camden, will make an address.

No Boxing Here.

The exhibition of boxing, which was to have been held at Central Hall on Wednesday evening last, did not take place as the permission of the police could not be secured.

BLENDED IN SWEET HARMONY.

Successful Rendition of the Harvest Cantata Last Evening.

The high standard of excellence so often shown in the choir of the First Baptist church was fully sustained last evening when they rendered the "Harvest Cantata" by George Garrett, M. A. The work is a beautiful one in every respect and its rendition was listened to with pleasure by an audience that filled the church. Interspersing the cantata, hymns were sung by the congregation. Solo parts were finely rendered by Miss F. May Grant and Mr. Smith.

In the latter portion of the cantata a noticeable feature was the part taken by the sopranos and altos. The well trained voices blended in the sweetest harmony, and brought out the many fine points in the selection. The last selections contained a basso solo, which was taken by Wm. Holmes, together with the bassos and tenors, and ending in a grand chorus by the entire choir.

An appropriate discourse by Dr. Yerkes, taken from the ninety-fifth Psalm was thoroughly enjoyed. During the offertory Miss F. May Grant sang "These are They" from "Holy City" by Gaul. The offering was in behalf of the Citizen's Organized Aid Association. After the usual closing exercises a hymn was sung by the congregation with a response by the choir.

The concluding number was "March of the Israelites"—"Eli" by Costa, which was very well rendered by E. J. Fitzhugh, to whom great credit is due for his work in training the choir. Also C. W. McCutchen as leader of the choir.

The following compose the choir: Sopranos, Miss F. May Grant, Miss Swain, Miss Bessie Blair, Miss Spear, Mrs. Harold Serrell; altos, Miss Nancy Randolph, Miss Alice Needham, Miss Bertha Needham, Miss Florence Serrell; tenors, C. W. McCutchen, Mr. Smith, E. B. Ryder; Bassos, B. T. Barnes, Wm. Holmes, Stacy Raynolds, George Snedicker.

A very appropriate symbol of the service, two large sheaves of wheat, gracefully adorned the pulpit platform while a choice bunch of chrysanthemums added not a little to the pleasant scene.

Mr. Bird Explains.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—I noticed in Saturday's issue of your paper an article headed "Litigants Come to Blows." The statement that blows were exchanged is wrong. In explanation I would say I was standing on the depot platform at Somerville talking to a friend when Mr. Smalley came up. I suppose he was not exactly suited with the judgment given by the court. He commenced to slander me, making statements that I am informed he has been in the habit of making whenever opportunity offered and which he will have a chance to prove at a later day, when all of a sudden, before his friends could stop him, he struck at me. That was the only blow struck. I did not strike back as your article would infer, although I felt very much like it. I did not want to get mixed up in a street brawl if I could possibly avoid it. If you will kindly give this space in your paper you will greatly oblige,

Yours respectfully,
F. W. Bird.

Second of Mrs. Miller's At Homes.

The second of Mrs. Isaac L. Miller's delightful at homes was held Saturday afternoon and was attended by a large number of her friends. She and her daughter were assisted in receiving by Mrs. J. Evarts Tracy, Mrs. George H. Goddard, Miss Agnes Opdyke, Miss Florence Waring, Miss Mary Whiton, and Miss Martha Tracy. The parlors were artistically decorated with chrysanthemums and roses while on the table, pink roses and smilax formed the principal decorations.

A Pleasant Evening of Euchre.

The Young People's Euchre Club, of Dunellen and North Plainfield, met Friday evening at the home of the Misses Barrett, of North Plainfield. The evening passed away very pleasantly and after the game was finished the young people danced and enjoyed the dainty refreshments that were served. The winners of the first prizes were Miss Sallie Gray and Charles Boice. Miss Emma Marlow and Thos. Barrett secured the second prizes. The consolation prizes were won by Miss Jessie Haynes and Mr. Martin.

—The regular meeting of the Mc All Auxiliary will be held at the Public Library at 11 o'clock on Wednesday.

—The Young Ladies' Mission Band of the Creseent Avenue church will hold its regular monthly meeting in the parlors of the church at four o'clock on Tuesday. There will be a missionary address given by Miss Katharine Jones.

A SUDDEN AND SAD DEATH.

MISS LENA SAUER, TAKEN SUDDENLY ILL, DIES IN THE HOSPITAL.

Her Ailment Was Found to Be an Unusual One, Being an Ulcer of the Stomach—She Was a Favorite Among Acquaintances.

Miss Lena Sauer, a domestic in the home Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Leader, corner Duer street and Mercer avenue, died in Muhlenberg Hospital Sunday morning at four o'clock, after being in the hospital only a few hours. She was attacked with excruciating pains in her stomach Thanksgiving day while preparing the dinner about six o'clock. Mrs. Leader and her sister, Miss McKee, of Brooklyn, who fortunately was present, prevailed upon Lena to go to her room and they labored with her from that time all night, under the direction of Dr. D. C. Adams, who was summoned as soon as she went to her room.

He did everything known to his profession, to alleviate her sufferings, which were so terrible that on Saturday he was forced to give hyperdermic injections to relieve her pains. Towards evening he found her condition so alarming that he ordered her removal to the hospital, inasmuch as he foresaw that a surgical operation was necessary to save her life. Mrs. Leader and sister, assisted by kind neighbors, properly prepared her for the journey, thoroughly wrapping her in quilts and making her perfectly comfortable.

About ten o'clock she was taken in the ambulance to the hospital, where she died about two o'clock in the morning. No operation was performed as it was seen she was near her end.

She was one of two orphan girls, both living in Plainfield, her sister Tillie living with Mr. and Mrs. Robinson Pound on East Second street. Mr. and Mrs. Leader are greatly crushed over the death of Lena, as they had learned to love her for her many good qualities. They could not have done more for their own daughter than they did for her during her illness. Lena was a member of Mr. Moon's Sunday school class at the Warren chapel, and her funeral will be held from Warren chapel, on Tuesday afternoon, December 3d.

Mrs. Robinson Pound insisted that the remains be removed from the hospital to her home where her sister lives, and they were taken there last evening.

An autopsy was held on her body at the hospital yesterday afternoon by the hospital staff, when it was found that death ensued from a perforated ulcer of the stomach, allowing the contents of the stomach to escape and causing peritonitis. This is an unusual ailment. Dr. Adams was present at the autopsy by courtesy of the hospital staff.

Another illustration of the benefits of life insurance is evidenced in Lena's case. She took out a ten-cent a-week policy in the Prudential Company when she was eighteen years old, which will pay $200 insurance, with which a lot has been purchased for the two orphans at Hillside, pay the funeral expenses of Lena and leave a small balance for her sister.

Joe Miller's Company in a Wreck.

J. B. Miller, of the Elm House, at Elizabeth, has received a telegram from Mrs. Miller, nee Miss May Winchester, from Knoxville, Tenn, stat that the "Trilby Up To Date" company, in which Mr. Miller is interested, met with a railroad accident at that place. Seven of the company were injured and the special car wrecked. Mrs. Miller and her maid were severely injured. Eva Livingston, the understudy, will continue with the company until Mrs. Miller recovers.

Death of Mrs. Halligan.

Mrs. James Halligan, nee Laura Rosell, who formerly lived in Plainfield, died at her home in Brooklyn on Saturday evening. She leaves a husband, but no children.

Funeral services Tuesday evening, at eight o'clock, 674 De Graw street. Interment in Evergreen cemetery, this city, Wednesday.

A Mean Act.

Last night some miscreant stole one of the lanterns on Putnam avenue used as a danger signal at the sewer trenches. Such an action is liable to cause a severe accident, and if the perpetrator of the act can be found he will be severely dealt with.

—The ladies of the auxiliary fire committee are requested ts meet at Mrs. A. Bartlett's, 63 Westervelt avenue, tomorrow night. A large attendance is requested.

—The Park Club members, together with the fair sex, enjoyed a dance Saturday evening. Miss Hasbrouck presided at the piano.

SIX HOURS OF CARNAGE

Fearful Barbarities Perpetrated at Erzingan.

Hundreds of Armenians Sacrificed to the Bloodthirsty Turks and Kurds—The Victims Torn Limb from Limb—Terrible Condition of the People.

Worcester, Mass., Dec. 2.—The following sent by the Armenians of Erzingan to Mgr. Izmirlian, Armenian patriarch at Constantinople has been forwarded in duplicate to this city, where it has been translated and made public: On Monday, October 21, while the people from the towns and villages surrounding Erzingan were gathered together on a market day in the public market place of this city a vulgar mob, composed of Turks and Kurds, fully armed, attacked the Armenians at 4 o'clock (11 o'clock a. m.), and began a wholesale massacre of them, beating, wounding, killing and slaughtering them, and then dismembering the bodies of many of them and tearing them limb from limb. During the six hours of this slaughter the ferocious mob murdered the unarmed Armenians with swords, sabres, knives, hatchets, clubs and guns with such horrible barbarity as has never been seen or heard of before.

Hundreds Sacrificed.

In the four quarters of the city soldiers were searching the Armenians, and if they found any arms upon them, they took them away. After they had thus deceived and robbed and entrapped the Armenians, they began to kill them most savagely. These soldiers and guards, who had apparently come to maintain order, not only did not stop the massacre, but themselves rushed savagely upon any of the Armenians who dared to try and defend themselves desperately, as any man would do; so that the greater number of the victims were sacrificed to the bayonets of the regular soldiers. This very same day hundreds of our kindred were sacrificed to that merciless and blood-thirsty mob, and ninety of their dead bodies have already been found. There are also many wounded, the greater portion of them fatally.

Stores and Shops Looted.

A savage mob, composed of 10,000 or 15,000 Turks and Kurds, after putting the Armenians in a state of terror and flight began to pillage and loot the stores and shops with such rapidity that about 500 of the Armenian markets and stores were sacked and ruined in a few hours. The condition of the surrounding towns is no better than that of the city. The surrounding monasteries have been plundered and demolished.

On the Verge of Starvation.

The villages of Serbahan and Mutuni were sacked and burned. A great number of lives also were sacrificed. The population of the nearest villages, especially Serbahan and Mutuni, barefooted and half naked, leading their children by their hands, fled to the city. These fugitives and most of the population of the city are naked and on the verge of starvation. Even if they had money, they could not buy any bread, because all of the bakeries are closed. The abject poverty, the burning of villages from day to day, the constant fear of fresh massacres, the danger that the cholera, which generally follows the crowding of the people together, will break out, the fact that the markets have been robbed and destroyed, the distressing destitution of the people, all these calamities have reduced the poor people to such a dreadful condition, that language of man is not able to describe it.

Women and Children Butchered.

About one-half hour's walk from this city the Puzouan village and the church there were considered a place of safety, consequently the Armenians had gathered there, but, alas, the Turkish and Kurdish savages polluted even the sanctuary and filled it with the blood of Christians. Not satisfied with the awful deeds they had already done they crushed the doors of the church and broke into it, and of the poor refugees there, one priest and forty men, women and children were butchered and the whole village pillaged afterwards.

Anxiety Increased.

Recently a number of unknown men, presumably police or government officials, visited a number of houses occupied by Armenians and made notes of the number of persons in each. They refused to enter into any explanation of their action, and their proceedings have increased the anxiety felt by the Armenians and other Christians in the city. It is feared that the taking of such a census is a preliminary to the wholesale driving out of the Armenians of Constantinople. It is possible that the authorities may meditate sending the Armenian residents, or at least those suspected of being concerned in revolutionary plots, to the various towns of Anatolia, where, should they be massacred by the Kurds, the blame for their killing could in some degree be shifted from the central government and attributed to the lawlessness of the Kurds, which the porte claims it is using every means at its disposal to suppress.

Pitiable Condition of Affairs.

London, Dec. 2.—The representative of the United Press pictures a pitiable condition of affairs at Harpoot, where the American mission buildings were burned at the time of the recent massacre there. There is great danger of hundreds of the poorer classes of Armenians starving to death. The peril that confronts these people is an immediate one. They are absolutely without food and without the means of getting any. The American missionaries have sent thousands of dollars to relieve the distress, but the sums furnished by them have gone but a little way to ward off the famine which threatens. The money has been expended as advantageously as possible, but there are so many persons who are homeless, foodless and helpless that nothing but government relief will save them from a great disaster. The people are now in a condition of apathy, and many of them, it is believed, would welcome death at the hands of their enemies rather than to await the slow process of starvation. Some, however, who have a little money of their own, or who have been secretly assisted by comparatively well-to-do compatriots, are fleeing to small places in the interior, where they hope to better their miserable condition. They run the risk of being massacred en route as the government will furnish them not the slightest protection.

Principle of Serfdom Enforced.

Those Armenians who have fled to Constantinople, thinking that in the capital they would be more or less under the protection of the representatives of the various powers, have found their hopes dashed to the ground. Perhaps, if they were allowed to remain, they might find the protection they seek; at any rate, it is pretty certain that they would be safe from cold-blooded massacres, but the government, in the case of the refugees, is enforcing the principle of serfdom, that every subject is bound to the soil, and every day large numbers of Armenians are arrested. At night they are shipped in batches to the places where they were born, with the warning that it will be better for them to remain there.

FOUR DROWNED.

Their Skiff Upset by Waves Caused by a Steamer.

Uniontown, Pa., Dec. 2.—James McInford and his wife, John Pickup and Laura Stevenson of Woods Run were drowned in the Monongahela river at midnight. They had been in Brownsville all afternoon and it was late when they started down the river in a skiff. When about two miles below Brownsville they met the steamer James G. Blaine coming up the river. They got too close to the steamer and the waves upset the skiff, throwing them out into the water. They soon became helpless and sank to the bottom. The bodies of the two men have been recovered, but the women are still at the bottom of the river.

NEW CHINESE LOAN.

A Berlin and Frankfort Syndicate To Furnish 300,000,000 Marks.

Berlin, Dec. 2.—A Berlin and Frankfort syndicate of capitalists is announced to be continuing negotiations for a new Chinese loan of 300,000,000 marks. Reports on the bourse credit the syndicate with stipulating as a condition of their handling the loan that large orders shall be placed in Germany to supply China with warships and railway material. As the English banking firms are giving the loan the cold shoulder it is understood that the German syndicate will seek to obtain a guarantee for it in Russia.

RAIDED THE TOWN.

Tramps Threatened To Destroy Cumberland, Wis.

St. Paul, Dec. 2.—Sixty-two tramps raided the city of Cumberland, Wis., last night, demanding food and shelter and threatening destruction to the town if refused. A posse was organized and three of the ringleaders were locked up in jail. They soon broke jail and another chase was given by the officers and several shots exchanged before the tramps were recaptured. Much excitement prevails on account of threats made.

TO INVADE ECUADOR.

An Army Organized To Overthrow President Alfaro.

Panama, Dec. 2.—A number of Ecuadorian emigrants at Pasto have publicly organized an army to invade Ecuador for the purpose of overthrowing the recently established government of President Alfaro. The revolutionists are within sight of the garrisoned towns of Tulcan and Ibarra and an attack is expected hourly.

SENATOR HILL ILL.

Compelled To Cancel All His Lecture Engagements in the West.

Duluth, Minn., Dec. 2.—Senator Hill while here contracted a severe cold, which has compelled him to cancel his remaining lecture engagements in the west. He left for the south yesterday for the benefit of his health, and will return to Washington as soon as his temporary indisposition will permit.

Gold for the Government.

New York, Dec. 2.—The banks of Pittsburg will ship to-morrow $1,000,000 in gold to the sub-treasury in New York to relieve the stringency caused by the outflow to Europe. Pittsburg will have $2,000,000 left, and it will be sent if necessary.

Minister McKenzie Reaches Lima.

Lima, Peru, Dec. 2.—James A. McKenzie, minister from the United States to Peru, has arrived at Lima. He was conveyed to the United States legation in a government carriage.

Bartholdi's Monument Unveiled.

THE NAVY DEPARTMENT

Secretary Herbert Asks for More Ships and Men.

He Recommends the Construction of Two Battleships and at Least Twelve Torpedo Boats—The Establishment of a Reserve System Advocated.

Washington, Dec. 2.—Advocates of continuing the increase in the new navy will find gratification in the annual report of Secretary Herbert to the president. The secretary recommends the construction of two battleships and at least twelve torpedo boats. The country is not in want of ordinary unarmored crusiers or of gunboats, but we are lamentably deficient in torpedo boats and we certainly need more battleships, according to the secretary. An inspection of the building programme of other nations will demonstrate that the lessons taught at Yalu and Wei-Hai-Wei have tended to confirm the belief of naval experts throughout the world in the efficacy of these two classes of vessels. That gunboats and torpedo boats may be built cheaply, the secretary points out briefly. The gratifying progress by our manufacturers of steel and our ship builders and the competition among them has enabled the department during the past two years, he says, to contract for gunboats and torpedo boats at a very large reduction from former prices.

Reserve System Advocated.

Toward this proposed increase of the navy Mr. Herbert estimates that $9,638,383 is necessary, and inclusive of that amount, his estimate for the complete expenses of the naval establishment for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1897, aggregate $29,311,166. Out of the appropriation for the current fiscal year—amounting to $14,212,801—there remains $942,286. With the exception of the appeal for more ships, the most important topic treated by Secretary Herbert is that of a reserve system. He prefaces his suggestion that such a system be established with some comment on the necessity for having more enlisted men and recommends that the enlistment of 1,000 more be authorized. Giving figures to show how small our enlisted force is and how large those of European countries are, he makes a comparison of our 13,450 blue jackets and marines with Germany's 21,487. Germany's available men, while not all at one time in actual service on board ship, would in case of war furnish no lack of trained and drilled material for the imperial navy, "and," says the secretary, "in case of a naval war, readiness, other conditions being equal, means victory."

More Men Wanted.

We have, he says, a magnificent squadron if armed and manned; but, he adds, we have not a man to put upon one of them and no authority of law to accept the services of a single one of the thousands who in case of war would volunteer to serve. But congress should not stop here, he says, and therefore suggests that, in order to be able to man our reserve fleet and such naval vessels as may not have full crews, the president be authorized to enlist in the naval service upon exigencies to be judged of by him such of the naval militia and other men, not to exceed altogether the number necessary to man all the ships of the navy and such ships as under the laws now existing or hereafter to be enacted; the government may have the right to call into its service for a period of, say, two years, the government reserving the privilege of discharging when the exigency may have passed.

Guns and Smokeless Powder.

The department has fixed upon the 13-inch calibre for the main battery guns of the new battleships, tests at the naval proving grounds on the side armor of the Iowa having conclusively demonstrated the superiority of this calibre over the 12-inch. The secretary mentions that a satisfactory smokeless powder is now manufactured at the government torpedo station. He also says that it is gratifying that during the year both the Bethlehem Iron company and the Carnegie Steel company have received large orders for armor from a foreign country, and this is convincing proof of the excellence of their product.

HALF A COUNTY SECEDES.

Seventeen Townships in Minnesota Object to a Bond Issue.

St. Paul, Dec. 2.—Seventeen townships of Cass county, comprising in population more than half the county, have seceded and will be annexed to Crow Wing county. This is done under a new law and the government will shortly issue the proclamation announcing the new deal. The seceders opposed a bond issue which Cass county officials had ordered. Hence the secession.

French Artist Dead.

Paris, Dec. 2.—M. Pierre Charles Comte, a well known French painter, died on Friday last at Fontainebleau. He was born at Lyons, April 25, 1825, and studied painting under M. Robert Fleury. M. Comte was awarded many medals for his works, and in 1857 was made a member of the Legion of Honor.

GEN. GOMEZ ROUTED

Death Blow to the Rebel Cause in Cuba.

The Insurgent Leader's Forces Dispersed with Great Loss—They Flee to the Mountains—Lieut. Feijoo's Sentence Not Yet Confirmed by Capt.-Gen. Campos.

Havana, Dec. 2.—Details of the victories of Gens. Luque and Oliver on Nov. 20 and subsequent days now are complete. Maximo Gomez and his army have utterly failed in their attempt to reach Las Villas. His forces sustained great loss, his ranks were broken and his men were dispersed. They abandoned their supplies and fled to the mountains. This most important victory is a death blow to the rebel forces. This news is official.

THE CUBAN REBELLION.

Lieut. Feijoo's Sentence Not Yet Confirmed by Gen. Campos.

Madrid, Dec 2.—A dispatch to the Imparcial says that Captain General Campos has not yet confirmed the senteece of imprisonment for life in a military prison passed by a court martial upon Lieu. Feijoo, who surrendered Fort Pelayo to the insurgents under Gomez. Sergeant Canovas, who was tried on the same charge, was acquitted. Gen. Valdes has defeated the insurgents in the Villas and Camaguez districts. The rebel leader Maceo has passed Troncha. Serious fighting is said to have taken place between his band and government troops, but the result of the engagement is not known.

Rabi's Promotion.

Santiago de Cuba, Nov. 31, via Key West, Fla., Dec. 2.—Col. Rotger, with a Spanish column 1,000 strong, arrived at Guantanamo on the 19th inst. after being out on war operations for four or five days. When the Spaniards arrived in the suburbs of Yateram they met the rebel leader, Gil, and his party, who immediately attacked the van and rear guards of the Spaniards, firing for more than an hour and a half. The column answered the fire, but at last were obliged to retreat to Guantanamo. The Spaniards had ten killed and four wounded and left several prisoners in the hands of the rebels. The insurgents had four killed and seven wounded. The rebel Brigadier Rabi, one of the bravest leaders of the Cuban army, has been raised to the rank of major-general as a reward for the victories he has obtained in the present campaign.

Fourteen Guerrillas Hanged.

Colonel Segura of the Spanish army, who has been in war operations in Guantanamo since the biginning of the present rebellion, has been transferred to Las Villas. It is rumored here that Gen. Martinez Campos removed him on account of the many complaints made against him by the people of Guantanamo for cruelties that he committed there. Fourteen guerrillas of Col. Tojeda's guerrilla were hanged by leader Rabi. These men were sent by Tojeda to join the rebels in order to kill Rabi, but he received private information of their project and they were sentenced to death. When questioned, after being sentenced, they confessed their intention.

ANOTHER DISTILLERY SOLD.

Important Step in Settling the Whiskey Trust Affairs.

Chicago, Dec. 2.—Receiver McNulta has effected another settlement in the affairs of the old whiskey trust involving the sale of the third distillery he has disposed of since eighteen principal properties were purchased by the American Spirits Manufacturing company. The house sold is known as the "Old '76 Distillery," and is located at Milldale, Ky. It was leased by the old trust. Under the settlement the receiver was paid a sum in cash, and Robinson & Stegman, former owners, withdrew all claims and took the house.

THE SCHEME FRUSTRATED.

Notorious Bank Burglars Attempt To Break Jail at Albany.

Albany, Dec. 2.—An attempt was made to break jail here yesterday. Included among the conspirators were "Count" Mark Shinburn and William Brown, the notorious Middleburg, N. Y., bank burglar. The scheme was discovered and the men placed in guarded cells. A table knife tempered and notched was being used as a saw to good effect on the iron bars when the scheme was frustrated. Shinburn and Brown are to be taken to Middleburg to-day for trial.

RICHARD BURNS CAPTURED.

One of the Gang of Athol Safe Blowers Wounded.

Athol, Mass., Dec. 2.—One of the gang of robbers that blew open the safes at the Athol and South Athol depots Friday night was captured near South Athol Saturday night, after being fired upon and wounded. He gives his name as Richard Burns. He will have a hearing in the district court sometime to-day.

Charged with Robbery.

Newark, N. J., Dec. 2.—James Malone, an ex-policeman of this city, is locked up at police headquarters on suspicion of having been implicated in the robbery of the Summit postoffice several days ago.

Fire at Corry, Pa.

Corry, Pa., Dec. 2.—Fire, origin unknown, occurred in the Ajax Iron works yesterday. It was confined to the second and third stories. Loss, $8,000.

CARS STALLED BY LAW.

Rolling Freight Stock Not Fitted with Safety Rails Detained.

Somerville, N. J., Dec. 2.—The United States law relating to grab rails or hand rails for the safety of train men on freight cars, which went into effect yesterday, resulted in the stalling of 100 cars attached to the fast freight lines to the west. The cars, which are the property of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad company, were side-tracked at the junction of the Philadelphia & Reading and Central railroad of New Jersey. The new law imposes a penalty of $5,000 on railroads running cars without grab rails. Many inspectors were stationed at the junction of the two roads at midnight with instructions to detain all cars not fitted with rails in the manner prescribed by law. A large force of workmen have been at work fitting up the stalled cars. There is much delay because of the scarcity of rails.

WRECK NEAR SYRACUSE.

Engineer and Fireman of a D., L. & W. Train Killed.

Syracuse, N. Y., Dec. 2.—The New York and Philadelphia express on the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western railroad, which leaves Syracuse at 10:10 p. m., was wrecked one-half mile north of Preble station, twenty-six miles south of this city, at 12:30 this morning. The engineer, George Young of Syracuse, was instantly killed. Webster Roof of Syracuse, the fireman, was taken from beneath the wreck of the engine and died soon afterward. At least a dozen passengers were badly injured. No sooner had the wreck occurred than the baggage car, which was reduced to kindling wood in the collision, caught fire from the engine. The panic-stricken passengers hardly had time to get from the cars before the whole train was ablaze.

MINE VICTIMS BURIED.

Funeral Procession Nearly Half a Mile Long.

Brewsters, N. Y., Dec. 2.—The funerals of five of the men who were killed in the disaster at the Tilly Foster mine were held at St. Lawrence's Roman Catholic church in this village yesterday. The men who were buried were Patrick H. Murtha, John Fagan, Michael Gannon, Thomas Dennis and an unknown Italian miner. Hundreds of miners and farmers from the country hereabouts attended, the funeral procession being nearly half a mile in length. The funerals of James Fox, James Clarke and three of the Italians were held to-day at noon. The work of recoving the bodies still in the mine was resumed this morning. It is probable that Coroner Penny will not hold an inquest until all the bodies have been taken out.

AN AWFUL DEATH.

Robert Janssen Falls Into a Vat of Nitric Acid.

Baltimore, Dec. 2.—Robert Janssen, 30 years old, an employe of the Monumental Chemical works at Fairfield, Anne Arundel county, met a horrible death yesterday. He was making some repairs to machinery, when he fell sixty feet into a vat filled with nitric acid. He crawled out of the receptacle, but fell unconscious beside it. His clothing and chunks of flesh dropped from his body when the unfortunate man was picked up by fellow workmen. Death followed in a few minutes. Janssen came here six months ago from Gustrow, Germany.

STABBED BY HIS FRIEND.

Baron Lionel Raphael Wounded in a Quarrel.

San Francisco, Dec. 2.—Baron Lionel Rothschild Disrgeli Raphael of Surrey, Eng., was stabbed under the right shoulder by a penknife in the hands of his roommate, Throop Browning, shortly before 1 a. m. Baron Raphael has resided in San Francisco for some months and is engaged in the study of surgery. Browning is his most intimate friend. The two quarrelled over a $5 gold piece which the baron missed. The wound is not fatal.

RIOT AT A DANCE.

Six Men Injured in a Melee at Shelby, Ind.

Crown Point, Ind., Dec. 2.—During a dance at Shelby John and Frank Lattey were shot and probably fatally wounded. Frank Fuller, who shot them, was in turn clubbed unmercifully and is in a critical condition. Six men were injured in the melee and the scene in the dance hall was one of carnage. Three of the desperadoes are in the county jail. Two have escaped. The cause of the trouble was the culmination of an old family feud.

CAL M'CARTHY DEAD.

The Ex-Featherweight Champion Succumbs to Consumption.

Jersey City, Dec. 2.—Cal McCarthy, the pugilist, who for several years was the featherweight champion of the world, who died from consumption in St. Mary's hospital last Friday night, was buried from his father's home yesterday. He was 26 years old and leaves a widow, but no children. McCarthy was champion until defeated by Dixon at Troy four years ago. He had previously fought a seventy-two round draw with Dixon.

Supposed Murderer Arrested.

Newtown, Conn., Dec. 2.—There is now locked up in this place a half witted mulatto who is supposed to be John Henry Baker who in September last murdered his wife in White Plains, N. Y.

Found Dead in Bed.

Buffalo, Dec. 2.—Mrs. Charles R. Marshall, wife of ex-City Clerk Marshall, was found dead in her bed yesterday morning. The circumstances point to it being a case of suicide.

MEETING OF CONGRESS

National Law Makers Convene at Noon To-day

Organization of the House and Senate—Twenty-nine Members of the Upper Branch To Be Sworn In—No Business in Either House This Week—Candidates for Offices.

Washington, Dec. 2.—The fifty-fourth congress convenes to-day at 12 o'clock, according to law, in first regular session. In the senate the twenty-nine members whose terms begin with this congress, to whose admission no objection is made, will be sworn in. The list includes sixteen new members of the body. The credentials of Mr. Dupont, who claims a seat from Delaware to succeed Mr. Higgins, will, according to present arrangement, be referred to the committee on privileges and elections and pending investigation and report he will not be seated. The oath of office having been administered to newly elected members, notification will be sent to the house that the senate is organized and ready for business and prepared to join the house in the appointment of a committee to wait upon the president to notify him of the assembling and organization of congress, and receive any communication he may have to make. The notification will probably be made to President Cleveland to-morrow, and his annual message will be read that afternoon. After adjournment of the senate the caucus of republican members will be held. It is given out this morning that no decisive action will be decided upon. The meeting is more for the purpose of a general conference, it being the first opportunity of the senators to get together after the nine months' recess.

Candidates for Senate Offices.

A nomination for president of the senate pro tem. may be agreed upon and committee vacancies will be discussed. The elective officers will also be considered, but no action on these matters is expected for several days. In the meantime, however, there will be the rearrangement of committees and the matter of distributing the appropriation bills among appropriate committees after the method that obtains in the house, to occupy the attention of the caucus. A resolution providing for the distribution will be offered as soon as practicable, it is said, by Senator Dubois. There are numerous candidates for the two elective offices of the senate. The most prominent one for secretary is the Hon. George C. Gorham of California, who held the position for twelve years. No programme has been arranged for the rest of the week. After to-morrow and aside from the introduction of bills and resolutions the transaction of business is not looked for.

Proceedings in the House.

The first day in the house will be exhausted by the routine of organization. First the 356 members and four delegates will have to be sworn in, the roll being called by the clerk of the old house, Hon. James Kerr. Then will come the election of speaker and the subordinate officers, in accordance with the results of the republican caucus on Saturday. In the hurry and confusion of reporting the caucus, which was held behind closed doors, the vote upon the election of a clerk of the caucus was reversed. W. B. Hooker of New York was chosen, not Mr. Ellis of Oregon, his competitor. A roll call will probably be had upon the election of speaker, but the other officers, it is expected, will be named together in a resolution and the resolution adopted viva voce. The usual motions to notify the senate and to appoint a committee to inform the president will follow. And then if there be time remaining the biennial lottery, known as the drawing of seats, will take place.

No Business This Week.

An adjourned democratic caucus will be held this afternoon to select the persons to be appointed to the several minor positions allotted to them in the organization of the house. Aside from the introduction of bills, resolutions, etc., no business is anticipated this week. The adoption of new rules and the appointment of committees by Speaker Reed are the first matters of general interest that will be accomplished.

CHARGED WITH POLYGAMY.

Dr. Saunders Under Arrest at Malden, Mass.

Malden, Mass., Dec. 2.—Dr. Johnston A. Saunders was arrested here last night on a charge of polygamy. He was arrested at the home of Henrietta Herman, with whom, it is claimed, he was living as his wife, while it is said he has a wife and family in Canada. Dr. Saunders says that he is entirely innocent of the charge. He is about 40 years old.

VAN ALEN SAFE FROM SUIT.

Col. Colt Withdraws His Case Against Him.

Providence, Dec. 2.—The petition of Col. S. P. Colt for commissioners to take evidence in his suit against J. J. Van Alen for $200,000 damages for the alienation of his wife's affections has been withdrawn in accordance with the agreement entered into at New York.

There are many anxious politicians.

Fanwood politicians should dwell in harmony.

Thomas B. Reed is on his way to the White House.

You can't vote before six o'clock in the morning and not after seven in the evening.

The registry lists were but slightly increased by the registration day for city election.

An Elizabeth young lady has been emulating Rip Van Winkle by sleeping fifty-five hours.

King Alcohol is the only potentate who is said to be on really friendly terms with the Sultan.

The barbers begin to take on a cheerful countenance. The football season is drawing to a close.

Governor-elect Griggs's inauguration will be accompanied by a big parade of Republican clubs.

Major Carl Lentz, of Newark, is said to be after Allan L. McDermott's place as Clerk of the Chancery Court.

Foster Voorhees seems doomed to retire from public office with a record of being a candidate for something which someone else got.

Nowadays it isn't the man who stands on the street corner and proclaims his preference for a candidate that tells which way the votes are going.

It is noticeable, with one exception, that Editor Runyon has spoken favorably only of the Republican candidates against whom there was no opposition.

Major J. K. Pangborn, well known throughout New Jersey, has retired from the editorship of the Jersey City Journal. He is succeeded by William Walter Phelps.

Counselor William K. McClure announces the withdrawal of his name as a candidate for Commissioner of Appeal on the Citizens' ticket in favor of A. Saltzman.

The cider joints continue to flourish in this city, and nearly every Monday morning the City Judge has its victims to deal with. Municipal legislation to suppress this nefarious trade would be opportune.

The Sunday closing movement in New York affords an example of where New York is compared to Plainfield and not Plainfield to New York. Mr. Roosevelt ought to visit Plainfield and get a few points on Sunday observance.

Cape May Point will again resume its position as a township. Judge Howard Carrow entered a judgment in the case of the borough under the decision of Chief Justice Beasley that the law under which it was organized was unconstitutional. The law of 1891 was declared unconstitutional a year ago in the case of Ridgefield Park. Under this decision any borough formed under the law of 1891 could be dissolved if contested.

The Newark News says that precisely the same qualities that make women the best teachers of children fit them to vote upon the government of the schools. School suffrage ought to be restored to them in New Jersey, and it ought to be extended, too: The Suffrage Association, far from realization as may be its aim of securing the general privilege of the ballot, seeks an object that should be well within reach when it advises systematic effort to regain the power that was exercised so satisfactorily, and that was growing in appreciation and good results when taken away by the Court.

The cider joints flourished yesterday and no less than a half dozen inebriated individuals were turned out on North and Park avenues to stagger along to the utter disgust of respectable citizens. Scarcely a Monday morning passes but what there are some cases in city court which can be traced to the hard cider which has been procured in these joints that close on Saturday and flourish with impunity on Sunday. When evidence is furnished in city court that prisoners arraigned on the charge of drunkenness and disorderly conduct have drank nothing more than hard cider it is about time that some action was taken to eradicate these inebriating incubators. It is to be regretted that the police have not the proper laws to back them up in suppressing this traffic.

Nothing Like It.

Time brings many changes, but the climate of California, "The Italy of America," and the attractions of the many famous health and pleasure resorts, are the same yesterday, today and forever.

Tourists never will tire of speaking in praise of the soft and balmy air, the profusion of flowers, the magnificent display of fruits, the luxury of seabathing and the beautiful walks and drives.

Then, too, it must be conceded that with such excellent equipment, consisting of Reclining Chair Cars, Pullman Palace Sleepers and Pullman Dining Cars, all heated by steam and lighted with Pintsch Light, the Union Pacific, "The Overland Route," is the tourists favorite. PUNTS AND KICKS.

The second team from Dunellen came to Plainfield Saturday afternand defetead the Watchung Park boys by a score of 4 to 0. The touchdown was made in the last three minutes of play.

A team, organized by Richard Waring and Roy Phillips, went to Scotch Plains Saturday afternoon. The home team strengthened their line with some of the players of the Plainfielc Y. M. C. A. and managed to defeat the Plainfield eleven 12 to 6.

The Antaens, of this city, defeated the East End Club at football Saturday morning by the score or 20 to 0. The principal features of the game were the runs of Nash and Huff and the tackles of Phillips and Long. Nash made the longest run, being about sixty yards. The touch downs were made by Huff and Nash, the former making two and the latter three. On the Somerville side the principal work was done by Laire and Shaffer. The Antaens lined up as follows: Long, centre; Remsen, right guard; Pope, right tackle; O. Flemming, right end; Smith, left guard; Peck, left tackle; Phillips, left end; Huff, right half back; Nash, left half back; Phillips, full back; Radford, quarter back. Good interference was done by Radford and Flemming. The Antaens would like to play the Westfield's next Saturday.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh That Contain Mercury.

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces, such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten-fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

THEATRICAL.

"Eight Bells" will be presented at Music Hall Tuesday evening, December 3d. There is no villain in Byrne Brothers' rejuvenated "Eight Bells," but there is plenty of fun, trick scenery, good music and clever specialties. The piece has been seen here so often that little need be said in praise of its many excellent features. All the former successes in the way of trick effects are retained and many new things added. It still presents the great revolving ship scene, the trick wagon, the hustling octopus, the weird trunk, doors and chairs, and a dozen other features. Incidentally a number of pleasing specialties are introduced. No one can help but admire the fine acrobatic work of the Brothers Byrne. John F. Byrne is also a clever comedian and his McGozzle is a laughable representation of the stage Irishman.

Joe Case Resigns.

Joseph Case, night baggagemaster at the North Avenue station, has resigned his position and this morning accepted a more lucrative one with a large wholesale dry goods house in New York. His place is being filled temporarily by Mr. Smith from the freight house.

Dr. E. B. Lighthill

of New York City,

whose practice in Plainfield has proved such a wonderful success has opened an office at

134 Crescent Avenue

(next door to his former residence) where he can be consulted from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m., on

of each week.

DR. LIGHTHILL makes the treatment of deafness, catarrh and diseases of the throat, lungs and heart a specialty.

Piles radically and permanently cured in a few weeks without the use of the knife, ligature or cautery and without pain or detention from business. The most desperate cases yield unfailingly to Dr. Lighthill's unique method of treatment, with guaranteed success. Fistula, fissure and ulcers of the rectum are also completely and permanently cured without the knife or other surgical operation.

Diseases of the bowels, bladder and stomach, mental and nervous derangements, diseases of the skin and blood and all chronic and obstinate complaints affecting the human system, of whatever name or nature, are successfully treated.

DR. LIGHTHILL refers with pardonable pride to the remarkable cures of his former practice in Plainfield and to the reputation which he established throughout the State. He has in his possession hundreds of testimonials from well-known residents of Plainfield and vicinity, which can be seen at his office.

New York Office, No. 214 West 46th Street

"ONLY SKIN DEEP", yet freckles, sunburn and tan don't add to one's beauty! What then, aside from the dangerous and poisonous "skin cures" so freely advertised, can we use to clear and bleach a bad complexion? Well, why not try your grandmother's cure—lemon juice? It will surely do all that can be safely done to clear the skin. And try it in the pleasant form of REYNOLD'S LEMON JUICE AND GLYCERINE. The results will please you. and see what economy means. Clothes-cost forms quite a large item in the expense account, and it's with clothes we have to do. We dye and clean soiled garments, we make old clothes new again. We take out dust, dirt and grease spots from your old suit or dress, freshen it up, press it, and get so much newness into it that you will have to get acquainted with it again. We charge just as little as possible for this work. Maybe you are skeptical—suppose you try us.

Card to the Trade.

WE shall make a large, special and absolutely unreserved auction sale of China and Fancy Goods through Messrs E. Bissell, Son & Co., auctioneers, and desire to state for the information of the trade, that the goods to be sold are all of this season's importation, being import orders arriving too late for delivery, and also import orders placed with us by prominent houses and not delivered to them on account of financial embarrassment. The lines to be offered are attractive and desirable and the sale will be worthy of the special attention of the entire trade.

Respectfully yours,

GEO. BORGFELDT & CO.

The above card explains itself, and we have placed on sale the goods bought at the above sale and they are without an exception the finest assortment of Porcelains ever displayed in Plainfietd. The goods were bought at half their real value and are well worth your inspection. There are vases, cups and saucers, cake and bread plates, celery trays, nut bowls, pickle dishes, fruit dishes, fancy plates, etc., all suitable for holiday gifts. You can make your selection now and we will keep them until wanted.

SEEING PARIS.

One Method by Which It May Be Accomplished In a Week.

A Paris correspondent of the Pittsburg Dispatch says a tourist may see Paris in a week, and he submits the following itinerary:

First Day.—Drive to Drexel's or Monroe's to get some money. Steal as many American newspapers from the reading rooms as possible. Take lunch at a boulevard restaurant. Kick at the bill. Take a cab and visit Notre Dame, the morgue, the Sainte-Chapelle, the palais de justice and the Cluny museum. Wind up at that big shop called the Bon Marche, and finish the afternoon looking around. Go to bed immediately after dinner.

Second Day.—Go to the Bon Marche and stay till dark. Of course only the ladies do this. It will give a chance for the men of the party to go down to Henry's American bar and stay till dark.

Third Day.—Get up late and take the ladies to that big shop called the Louvre. The men go to see about their steamer tickets and then make a trip to the Gare du Nord to get some extra trunks out of bond. All meet at the Louvre; take lunch at the cakeshop opposite, then go to the Louvre again and stay all day buying gloves. In the evening go to the Grand Opera, where the whole party goes to sleep from sheer fatigue.

Fourth Day.—See about the wash. Begin packing the gloves. Start for Versailles. Get back in time to take a drive through the Bois de Boulogne. At night the men of the party go to the Moulin Rouge.

Fifth Day.—The men go out alone and the women go out alone. The latter buy hats on the Rue Royale. The former go to bank for some more money. In the evening ride on the top of an omnibus from the Madeleine to the Bastille and back.

Sixth Day.—Everybody goes shopping. In the evening pack trunks.

Seventh Day.—Finish shopping, engage the omnibus to take us to the railway station, and take a nap in the afternoon. The train for Havre is waiting, and so goodby to Paris.

SMUGGLING BY A BIBLE.

She Read It Devoutly, but Most of It Was Filled With Lace.

An old lady once humbugged the custom house officers at Dover in an ingenious way. She used to cross the channel two or three times a week when the weather was anything like good.

She always gave the men at the gangway tracts, and the custom officers, too, if she could get near them. She always carried a good sized Bible, closed together with a broad elastic band. One of these officials tells the story in The Westminster Gazette.

"Whenever I saw her reading her Bible, which was not often, she was doing so quite at the beginning, somewhere about Genesis or Exodus.

"At last suspicion was aroused, and when next she came across I stepped up politely to her, as she was going away having no luggage, and said I should be much obliged if she'd allow me to look in her Bible, as a mate of mine had said I was wrong in thinking a certain verse was in the eightieth Psalm.

"At first she tried to put me off, saying she was in a great hurry, and that she was sure so good a man as I looked to be had a Bible of his own at home. And if I hadn't she'd bring me one down the next morning.

"In the end, however, she had to give up the Bible she was carrying, and we found that except for a few leaves at the beginning and at the end it was a solid block, so to speak, made of papier mache, hollowed out in the center, where we found some £10 or £12 worth of lace."

Trilby.

"I see there is to be an apartment house on the South Side called the Trilby," guardedly observed the exchange editor. "The apartments will be rented either singly or"—

"Well?" said the financial editor.

"Or altogether."

"Not necessarily. They will probably be rented by the foot."

"The janitor will be the Laird of it anyhow," retorted the exchange editor, watching him out of the corner of his eye.

"Do you suppose he will make out the regular little Bill, eh?" demanded the other, looking about him for something to throw.

"Gentlemen," interposed the index editor, drawing from his pocket an oblong pasteboard box and extracting a small white cylinder therefrom, "this is Du Maurierlizing!"

He struck a match, lighted the small white cylinder and the assembly broke up in confusion. It was.—Chicago Tribune.

The Man Afraid of His Wife.

If there is a man on earth to be pitied it is he who is afraid of his wife. There is something very sad, and at the same time a trifle ludicrous about such a case. To see man, who has always styled himself the master, meekly following the advice and obeying the dictum of one of the so called "weaker sex" must do the hearts of some "new women" an infinite deal of good.

I doubt if a woman ever respects a man whom she can twist about her little finger or one of those men who are subservient to her every beck and call, and who acts afraid of her. Neither, on the other hand, do most women like the tyrannical description of spouses. A happy medium is the approved style, but it's very hard to find one of the sort. Men nowadays are either too meek and mild, or else too tyrannical to suit an up to date woman.—Philadelphia Times.

Chloroform's Effect on the Mind.

"I dare say many of us," said Sir James Crichton Browne in a lecture on dreamy mental states, "recollect the story of the professor who, having experienced a magnificent thought in the early stage of chloroform inhalation, resolved that he would by one bold sally lay hold of it and so read the riddle of the world. Having composed himself in his easy chair in his study, with writing materials at hand, he inhaled the chloroform, felt the great thought evolve in his mind, roused himself for an instant, seized the pen, wrote desperately he knew not what, for even as he did so he fell back unconscious. On coming to himself he turned eagerly to the paper, to find inscribed on it, in sprawling but legible characters, the secret of the universe in these words, 'A strong smell of turpentine pervades the whole.'"—London News.

Awkward.

Master—What! Both want a holiday tomorrow? I can't spare you both at once. Mary, you can have tomorrow and John the next day.

John—Thank you, sir, but we wanted to get married, and I'm afraid, sir, it can't be done that way, but I'll inquire."—London Answers.

FORGOT HER MAIDEN NAME.

A Curious Instance of Absentmindedness and Consequent Embarrassment.

Inability to remember names is a failing common to a great many people. There are varying degrees of the malady, of course, but nearly every one has had the experience of going to call upon one of his most intimate friends, and suddenly, as he ascended the steps and was about to ring the bell, finding himself utterly unable to recall the name of the person he was to ask for. This performance, however, has been completely distanced by the feat of Mrs. S——, who lives up town and now holds the palm among her acquaintances for this sort of absentmindedness.

On the occasion of the death of a distant relative recently she was obliged to go down to the surrogate's court to attend to some business regarding the will. In the course of the proceedings it became necessary for her to sign her maiden name to the document in question. The clerk handed her the pen, told her where the signature was to be affixed, and stood waiting for her to comply. But Mrs. S—— seemed stunned at the request. She stared blankly at the young man before her and then at the paper, but made no motion toward writing, and said not a word.

"Just sign your maiden name, you know," repeated the clerk, thinking she had in some way misunderstood.

Mrs. S—— knew only too well what he had said, but was no more able to execute the task than the young man himself would have been. She had been married twice, and it is a long time since she had had occasion to use the name to which she was born.

"I—I—really don't remember it," she gasped in an agony of embarrassment to the astonished clerk. "I shall have to go home and find out." And she disappeared through the door with all the haste at her command.

In telling the story afterward she said that she paced up and down the street in front of that office for at least ten minutes cudgeling her brains in a vain effort to recall the lost name, and was finally obliged to go home, as she had proposed, and look it up in an old book which had belonged to her when a girl.—New York Tribune.

IN THE LAND OF THE FREE.

One Sacred, Hereditary, Inalienable Right the American Citizen Possesses.

"Yes," said the Englishman who has been for some years a resident of the "States," "America can fairly claim to be the freest country on earth. I used to think England was. I believed that in spite of your boasted republican institutions and your universal suffrage and your bird of freedom and lots of other things we had more real freedom and more personal rights on the other side than you had over here. But I've changed my mind. The American has more liberty than the Briton. But the advantage isn't due to the form of government or political institutions, or the tariff, or the size and youth of the country. It's just in the matter of peanuts.

"It is the sacred hereditary and inalienable right of every freeborn American citizen to eat peanuts when and where he pleases and to throw the shells on the floor. I was crossing the river the other day on one of the ferryboats. The deckhands had just swept out the gentlemen's cabin, and were even then washing the floor. Two young men came in, sat down on the side which had just been washed and began to eat peanuts. The deckhands who were sweeping were not afraid to do their duty, for they had very quickly subdued a drunken tough who got bolsterous, and they plainly saw the young men throw the peanut shells on the clean floor, but they no more thought of objecting than they would think of dictating to a man what kind of clothes he should wear. They respected the first right of an American citizen.

"I've seen the same thing in elevated and cable cars, in public halls, in theaters, —yes, even in a church—and it is always taken as a matter of course that the man who eats peanuts shall throw the shells on the floor wherever he happens to be. We poor Englishmen are slaves—we are serfs and bondservants beside you Yankees."—New York Herald.

is easy enough with the help of Randolph's Emulsion. It's a regular step ladder we might say. You get over the cough easily and quickly. In fact, all our drugs are step ladders to help one over every kind of earthly ailment But coughs are what we particularly want to speak of today, for there is a long hard winter before us, and the person who starts it off with a cough may never see the end of it. Therefore if a cough is what you have take Randolph's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil with phosphoric acid.

BARBARY.

By Mrs. E. V. WILSON.

[Copyright, 1895, by the Author.]

All the young fellers in the neighborhood took every chance to be with her, an was comin to the house on errands, or to see Steve, an hangin round Sundays. But laws! I never thought o' her carin more fer one than t'other. An I wondered how it would turn out. Phil was a very nice boy, but his folks wasn't very well off, an I felt worried. An so time went on. Harvest was over, an Emly married, an her man, we heard, hed rented a farm in the neighborhood, when one day Barbary an me bein busy in the kitchen the squire come in, seemin in a mighty good humor, an he says: 'I tell you, mother'—he called me that nearly allays—'I've had a streak o' luck. I got a big price fer Selim an he's gone.' Now, Selim was the name Steve hed given his colt, an I says: 'Selim! Why, you surely heven't sold Steve's colt?' He laughed. 'Steve's colt,' he said, 'but my horse. The beast's over 4 years old.' 'Oh, pap,' said Barbary, 'you oughtn't done it, Steve loved him so.'

"'I'll giv' him the black colt,' said pap, 'an a new suit o' clothes. That'll make it all right.' But it didn't. When Steve found his horse hed been sold, he flew into a dreadful rage. An I couldn't blame him, though I tried to pacify him, tellin him his pap hed a right to do as he pleased. 'He hed no right to sell my horse,' cried the boy. 'He gave him to me right at first, an I raised him,' an he'd nicker to me an let me do anything with him, an I loved him, an fer pap to sell him without even tellin me he's no better than a horse thief.'

"'Oh, Stevey,' says I, 'don't talk so! It's wicked.' But the boy was wild. 'It's not wicked to tell the truth,' he said. 'What'd he giv' him to me fer if he was goin to sell him? I say he is a thief to sell what didn't belong to him!' Oh, dear, dear! His pap heard Steve, fer jist then he came in an grabbed the boy by the collar an flung him across the room. The poor fellow staggered an saved himself from fallin, an the squire caught him again, kicked him savagely, an openin the door threw him into the yard. You needn't think Steve didn't show fight. But what could a slender lad o' 15 do against a strong man? I was that scared I couldn't move or speak. An as fer Barbary she was white as a sheet as her pap shet the door on Steve an turned round. He looked at us a minit. His eyes was glarin an his face red as fire. 'You git to work, miss, an as fer you,' he said to me, 'you let that boy alone. None o' your pettin him. Do you hear?' I didn't say a word, an he went in the room, bangin the door to after him.

"We looked at each other. Then Barbary, with her white face set sort o' like her father's, walked to the kitchen door, opened it an went out in the darkness, fer it was a cloudy evening. An supper was late, owin to the men bein at work in the lower meadow. I dished up the meal an called all hands, but neither Barbary or Steve came in, an we ate without 'em. I was mighty feared their pap would ask fer 'em, but he didn't. An as soon as the men went out o' the kitchen I went to look fer 'em. I soon found Barbary. She was settin on the back porch cryin. But she wouldn't say one thing about Steve. She dried her eyes an helped do up the work, an then went up stairs—said her head ached an she was goin to bed. I hed to go in the room, as it was bedtime, an I didn't know what to do. I slipped out an hunted fer Steve. Then I went up stairs, thinkin mebbe he'd gone round the house to the front door. But he hedn't, an the boys said they hedn't saw him. So I hed to say before I lay down, 'I guess Steve ain't in the house.'

"'Let him stay out then,' said the squire, angry as ever. He hedn't spoke to me all the evenin since the fuss. 'I'll let him know I'm boss here.'

"I didn't sleep much that night, an I thought, 'Well, Sally Humphrey was a happier woman than Mrs. Squire Hillyer, I reckon, but Mrs. does sound better.' Not a word was said in the mornin till breakfast was called. Then little Tom asked fer Steve. 'I reckon he's asleep in the barn,' said pap. 'Go tell him to come in. He's acted the fool long enough.' The boy went, but soon came back, saying he 'couldn't find Steve.' I see squire's face change color. But he sat down to the table without a word, an we was about half through breakfast when there was a knock at the back door. Barbary opened the door, an a strange man walked in. 'Squire,' he said, 'good mornin. That horse I bought of yer yesterday is missin, an I thought mebbe I'd find him here. He either got out o' the stable or was taken out.'

"For a minit nobody spoke. Then Tommy said: 'Pap, Selim ain't here. Mebbe Steve's gone after him.'

"'Who's Steve?' said the stranger. 'He is my son,' answered pap quickly. 'You shall hev our help, sir, in gettin your horse. Set down an eat a bite while I look about a bit.' The stranger sat down, an Barbary poured his coffee while I followed the squire out. As soon as the door closed behind us he grabbed my arm. 'Where's that boy?' he whispered savagely. 'I don't know,' I said, fer I didn't. He looked at me. His face turned most the color o' ashes. 'O God!' he cried. Then he hurried toward the stable.

"I was kind o' stunned fer awhile. I saw he thought Steve hed gone an got the horse an was gone. But I knew better. I felt somehow Steve was not that kind o' a boy. The stranger came out, an pretty soon he an the squire rode off. I went in to Barbary. She was tryin to eat, with tears runnin down her face.

"'Barbary,' said I, 'where kin Steve be? Your pap's nearly crazy fer fear he has stole Selim an gone off.' Barbary's face flamed up. 'Steve's no thief,' she said, 'wherever he is.' An I couldn't get another word out o' her. It was an awful long, hot day, an we had a big ironin to do. Barbary worked hard all mornin, but after dinner she got real sick, an I made her go out o' doors an set in the shade. After awhile I heerd her call me, an goin out I see Phil Thomas a-talkin to her.

"'Ma,' she called out as soon as she see me, 'Phil says Steve's at their house an has been all night: I thought he'd go there or to Emly's.' 'Is he comin home?' I asked Phil. He shook his head. 'Emly is at our house now,' he said, 'an I think he'll go home with her. He is pretty badly hurt from a fall, he says, an is somewhat lame, but he'll get along.' I went in to my ironin, feelin thankful, an left the youngsters to themselves. Bless 'em, they made a pretty pair.

"Phil staid till about 4 o'clock, an after he was gone Barbary come in to help about supper. 'I wish pap'd come,' she kep' sayin. 'I want him to know Steve is no thief.' Presently she ran out on the back porch an stood lookin down the road, an I heerd the clatterin o' a horse, an I run out jist in time to see Barbary go like a flash out o' the back gate toward the stable. It was all over in a minute. I see the horse rare up as she flung the open door to. I see her pap hangin with one foot in the stirrup, his head draggin, though one hand still held the bridle, an I got to him somehow jist as he got his foot loose, an I helped him up, an there lay Barbary white an still. Her pap let go the horse an stooped down. 'Barbary!' he said. She never moved. 'She's dead,' I said. 'What done it? O Barbary, my precious, what hurt you?' 'Be still!' he said sharply. 'She's not dead. Help get her in the house.' We lifted her up, an she opened her eyes. 'Phil,' she whispered faintly, 'tell pap Steve'— then her voice ceased, an her sweet eyes shut again. We got her on the bed, an I got the camphire, an pap rung the big bell fer the hands, an soon as they come in sent one fer the doctor. But I found where she was hurt. There was a great ugly bruise right between her pretty white shoulders. A little stream o' blood begun to trickle out o' her mouth. 'Send over to Thomas',' I said, 'fer Phil an Steve an Emly.' He thought I'd lost my senses, I know. 'They're there,' I said. 'Phil was here.' In spite o' his trouble his face lighted up. 'Then Steve is not'—he began, but at the name Barbary's eyes opened again. 'Never mind pap. He don't—he don't mean it, Stevey,' she muttered. 'I know it's hard, but I guess he likes us children.' 'Go,' I said, 'send fer 'em.' He went out with that queer gray color creepin over his face that I see in the mornin. An pretty soon I heerd the horse gallopin off. Then he came back. Well, we done all we could. The doctor came, an Phil an Steve an Emly an her man. But she never spoke but once after they came. She murmured then brokenly. All we could make out was, 'Pap—Steve never—ma's real good—Phil—mother!' she cried aloud at last, an her eyes opened wide, an she looked wonderingly at us, fixin her gaze for a little on her pap, who stood at the foot o' the bed. Then a long shudder shook her body, an her breath came in gasps. A torrent of blood poured out o' her mouth, an she was gone.

"Yes, we hed to bear it. People can bear things when they hev to. But he's never been the same man. An his face keeps that queer color. I've heerd that when that ashy look comes to anybody they've got their deathblow. They may live a few years, but it's death it means.

"'How did he get throwed?' Well, you see, jist as he rode in at the barnyard gate the horse sheered an throwed him, an his feet caught. Barbary see it all, an see the stable door open. She knowed the horse'd make fer his stall an her pap's brains'd be knocked out, an she got there in time to shet the door, an when the horse r'ared up he struck her afore she could git out o' the way. Yes, Steve staid at home. I dunno what we'd do without him, an Emly an her man comes over right often. She has a little girl now. She calls it Barbary, an it's mighty cute. But it'll never be like my Barbary to me or pap either. An, after all, Selim had got out himself an was on his way home when they caught him. But pore Stevey, he said he never wanted to see him again.

"Phil Thomas? He was pretty downhearted fer a good while, but he's chirked up now, an I heerd he was waitin on Melinda Jones. She's a nice girl, but she couldn't hold a candle to Barbary.

"'Dead folks soon fergot,' you say. I don't believe it. Folks don't ferget, but they can't go mournin allays. An it wouldn't be right if they could. I know long as I live I'll never ferget my girlie, who giv' up her sweet young life to save her pap. No, I'm not sorry I married him either. He's awful good, if he is a little close with money. But that's his nature. I reckon it's 'cause he knows how hard it is to get. But, bless my heart, it's nigh 4 o'clock, an that girl will never get supper on without I see to it. So you must excuse me awhile. There's the album with Barbary's picter in it. 'Tain't half as pretty as she was, but you can guess a little what she's like by it

"If you see him comin, jist slip it out o' sight. He can't bear to see it. There's some o' my folks' likenesses in it too. No, I never did hev mine taken. Don't reckon I ever will; but, laws! I must see about supper."

THE END.

Matilda Enham, Columbia, Pa., says:

"That Bearing-Down Feeling and dizzy, faint, gasping attacks left me as soon as I began to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I was sick with womb troubles so long I thought I never could get well."

NOTICE.

To James T. MacMurray, City Clerk, Plainfield, N. J.

DEAR SIR:—Since filing acceptance of nomination as candidate for Member of the Common Council from the Fourth Ward on the Citizens' ticket, and also on the Wheelmen's ticket, I have re-considered the matter and determined to withdraw from such candidacy on both tickets, and I hereby give you notice that, if possible, you omit my name from the ballots to be printed. If that is impossible, I give notice now that I shall not accept the office if elected, and I desire that you make this notice public in order that another name may be substituted if it is so desired, or, at any rate, in order that no one need vote for me with the expectation that I shall serve even if elected. Respectfully,

VINCENT L. FRAZEE.

THE MISSING WEALTH

A GOOD STORY OF BURIED TREASURE AT NEW LONDON.

Vain Search For the Gold That Disappeared From the Spanish Galleon—Futile Efforts of the Descendants of Witch Strickland, Whose Charm Failed.

The late John R. Bolles of this city used to relate a very good story of witchcraft, digging for buried treasure, and the robbery of a Spanish galleon, all of which occurred inside the limits of New London within 150 years. The last two features of the story are facts in history.

As late as July 11, 1827, two men from Vermont, said to be descendants of an ante-Revolutionary witch named Strickland, dug by the side of what is now Lawrence's wharf for buried gold, by the advice of some of their forefathers who dug there before them in the seventeen hundreds. The diggers were hunting for the treasure of the Spanish galleon St. Joseph and St. Helena, which was plundered at her moorings while lying there for repairs and shelter in 1753-4. None of the diggers was successful. The first party were grandsons of the Strickland woman, who as a witch was expelled long before from both the Connecticut and Massachusetts colonies.

The state of Vermont, however, willingly harbored all gray, lean sisters of the airy broomstick race, and this accounts for Witch Strickland's settling there.

This witch was said to have possessed a magic pebble, as clear as crystal, into which she could look and see treasure buried under land or water. It was through this happy medium that she chanced upon the missing treasure of the St. Joseph and St. Helena.

This galleon, which left so much bullion about New London, was the occasion of a local event which was not only discreditable to the Connecticut colony, but showed that our old time solons were not above reproach. A lively political disturbance resulted.

The St. Joseph and St. Helena, while putting in here in distress in 1753, ran upon a reef of rocks outside the harbor. Before she could be floated it became necessary to unload her. Then she was repaired here. Her freight was put in charge of Joseph Hill, at that time collector of the port. The supercargo of the galleon was Don Joseph Miguel de St. Juan. His vessel was bound from Havana to Cadiz, and her cargo consisted in part of gold bars and coin.

That he might proceed with his cargo early in the spring Don Miguel chartered a smaller vessel of 200 tons, which was ready to sail the following April. But when he had shipped a part of his cargo, other parts of it were withholden from him or lost, and he was unable to recover them. The don could obtain no relief, and finally, in the following October, he petitioned the general assembly upon the matter.

In his petition he said that much of his cargo had been embezzled, and he prayed that he might reland that portion of his cargo which remained and secure it at their expense. The general assembly, after much debate, decided that they did not know what the don's losses were, and neither could they prevent them. They declared the don's requests were too unreasonable to be granted, but "as protection was due a foreigner cast among us," the government was directed to grant all due relief to the don, according to the laws of trade, nature and nations. The governor was also empowered to direct a full search after the missing portion of the vessel's cargo.

Collector Hill was hotly censured. How such a quantity of treasure could be stolen without his knowledge and no search made for so long a time was held to be unaccountable. Nothing was ever found, and the colony was not put to any great expense for this shameful proceeding, which was finally lost sight of in the causes which led up to the war of the Revolution.

After this war the pioneer Vermonters, two in number, grandsons of Granny Strickland, appeared. They were sent here through the old lady's written instructions. It seems that years before, after a prolonged observation through the precious pebble she possessed, she distinctly viewed, deeply buried in the ground, many boxes of shining dollars packed edgewise. She also espied bullion as well. The locality, which was all about the moorings of the Spanish galleons, was pointed out to an inch. Not long after she died.

New Londoners, the story goes, laughed at the efforts of the raw boned Vermonters to recover the buried treasure. The tradition says the delvers worked only at night, in accordance with the witch's instructions, and that finally they uncovered the lids of a number of iron boxes just under the surface of the river. No sooner were these revealed than it was said a troop of snarling black dogs and a flock of green eyed geese interposed themselves, barking, hissing and yelling so furiously as to hold in check and finally to drive them away.

They went back to Marm Strickland's home to request her presence in the spirit at New London, with her witch hazel wand, to hold in check the vicious water sprites, which were so vehement in protecting the buried treasure. But it was in vain. Although the witch came to earth at their invocation, she refused to come to Connecticut to help them out, it was said, because she believed the same laws expelling witches still existed here as when she was in the flesh.

So the money diggers were compelled to give over their quest. Their descendants who came many decades later were no more successful. They worked by the side of the wharf in the hours of daylight, from a plan left by their ancestors. They used oyster tongs, clam rakes and grapnels, and although no ugly dogs and hissing geese hindered their movements they were unable to find anything of value.—New London (Conn.) Day.

Culture In a Boston Restaurant.

Boston culture sometimes crops out where one wouldn't most expect it. In a popular restaurant the other day, where the prices are moderate and the waiters girls, a middle aged business man, well dressed and of genteel appearance, beckoned to a waitress, pointed to some open windows, and said loudly:

"Can't ye shet down one o' them winders?"

Whereupon the girl called to the head waiter:

"This gentleman wishes to know if you won't please close one of those windows!"—Boston Transcript.

Vocabulary Simplified.

Englishman—Anyhow your French language has no word for "gentleman."

Frenchman—That is true. We have no need for the distinction—we are all gentlemen.—Pick Me Up.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

City Clerk McMurray is at home today, not feeling well.

Miss Florence Williams, of West Seventh street, who attends college in Pennsylvania, is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Williams.

Mrs. Loughlin, of Troy, who has been visiting her son, Robert Loughlin and family, of East Front street, for the past three weeks has returned home.

John Bicknell, of South avenue, spent yesterday at Mt. Horeb with his wife, who has been visiting her parents. They both returned home last evening.

Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Opdycke, Miss Kate Oydycke and Miss Jessimine Burd, of Somerville, spent Thanksgiving with Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Brokaw, of Duer street.

Mr. Frassic, who formerly conducted the drng business at the corner of Sometset street and Craig place, is now running a drug store at Nyac-on-the-Hudson.

Letters have been received by the friends of Miss Caroline Fitz Randolph, daughter of ex-Mayor L. V. F. Randolph, telling of her safe arrival in Germany. She sailed from this country on the Trave, of the North German Lloyd Line, and had a very pleasant voyage. She goes abroad to study music and German.

—The Crescent Avenue Christian Endeavor Society will be addressed on Friday evening by Miss M. C. Holmes, of Syria.

—The Thursday Evening Music Club will meet Thursday, December 5th in the Olympia, and not at the residence of Miss Petrie as erroneously stated in The News of last Saturday.

—The new grocery store of Fred Firstbrook that opened on Saturday night at 312 Liberty street was crowded with customers until 11:30, and the clerks were kept hustling all the time.

When most needed it is not unusual for your family physician to be away from home. Such was the experience of Mr. J. Y. Schenck, editor of the Caddo, Ind. Ter., Banner, when his little girl, two years of age was threatened with a severe attack of croup. He says: "My wife insisted that I go for the doctor, but as our family physician was out of town I purchased a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, which relieved her immediately. I will not be without it in the future." 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by Reynoldss' Pharmacy, Park and North avenues, T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

—Ferdinand Dencklau is now employed at Fulper's grocery store on West Front street.

—The books in the Public Library on subjects treated in the University extension series are kept by themselves in the open shelves opposite the counter, where all may consult them.

—W. V. Mundy, agent for the Travelers' Insurance Company, today handed a check for $50 to John Meeker, for two weeks disability through an accident caused by the kick of a horse.

—The Woman's Home Missionary Society of the Crescent Avenue church will hold a praise service at 3:30 o'clock on Friday in the parlor. A letter from Miss Buchanan and other interesting articles will be read. A thank offering will be received.

—Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Jones, of Grandview avenue, Alfred Alexander, of London, England, and three generations of Powlisons met at the home of J. A. Powlison, of Somerset street, Thursday, where they were entertained for the day.

The wife of Mr. D. Robinson, a prominent lumberman of Hartwick, N. Y., was sick with rheumatism for five months. In speaking of it. Mr. Robinson says: "Chamberlain's Pain Balm is the only thing that gave her any rest from pain. For the relief of pain it cannot be beat." Many very bad cases of rheumatism have been cured by it. For sale at 50 cents per bottle by Reynolds' Pharmacy, Park and North avenues. T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

—U. B. Crane's hat store, 120 West Front street, has been restocked with goods suitable for holiday gifts, and he will be happy to show you the goods.

Great Reduction in Time to California.

Once more the Northwestern Line has reduced the time of its trans continental trains, and the journey from Chicago to California via this popular route is now made in the marvelously short time of three days. Palace drawing room sleeping cars leave Chicago daily, and run through to San Francisco and Los Angeles, without change, and all meals en route are served in dining cars. Daily tourist sleeping car service is also maintained by this line between Chicago and San Francisco and Los Angeles, completely equipped berths in upholstered tourist sleepers being furnished at a cost of only $6 each from Chicago to the Pacific Coast. Through trains leave Chicago for California at six p. m. and 10.45 p. m. daily, after arrival of trains of connecting lines from the east and south. For detailed information concerning rates, routes, etc., apply to ticket agents of connecting lines or address: H. A. Gross, G. E. P. A., 423 Broadway, New York, or T. P. Vaille, S. E. P. A., 112 South Fourth street, Philadelphia, Pa. tf.

—The City Council will hold their regular monthly meeting this evening.

—The last rehearsal of the Old Folks Concert, which is to be held at the Y. M. C. A. Hall, will take place tomorrow evening.

—At the communion service at Trinity Reformed church yesterday morning five persons united with the church by letter.

—Rev. W. C. O'Donnell, of Monroe Avenue chapel, and Rev. Joseph McKelvey, of Warren chapel, exchanged pulpits yesterday morning.

—Walter G. Runyon, the contractor, and family, of Elizabeth, moved to Plainfield Saturday and have taken up their residence at 239 East Third street.

The Cloak Store

The busiest season of cloak-selling we have ever experienced. Again dozens of new cloaks, new capes, practically, as well as stylish and beautiful. Boucle cloth, beavers and meltons, those of perfect quality and excellent make, start at $7.45, cheaper cloaks, maybe, as low as $4.50. Embroidered plush capes start at $8.29 and stop at $30. Double capes all wool material, at $3.75, some at $5.19.

Blankets

Rather than have much to say about them we prefer to have you call and be surprised at the good things in the blanket stock, be surprised at the littleness of the cost. All-wool, part wool and cotton, although we prefer to sell pure wool blankets. A little more profit for us, better satisfaction for you. Price commences at $4 pair.

Get Good Gloves

If you know about gloves, you'll take pleasure in looking at our stock—you'll enjoy wearing them. The latest kid gloves of reliable brands represented. Best fabric gloves not high priced, but plenty of satisfaction and good wear.

Underwear

Where quality and economy join hands. That little underwear talk last week brought a volume of trade. The careful and economical buyer gets the quality without the high price at this underwear store. Plenty of "specials" for the coming week, which our salespeople will be pleased to tell you about when you call.

IS YOUR HEART RIGHT?

Series of Revival Meetings to be Inaugurated to Bring Out Answers.

The first of a series of union meetings of the Christian Endeavor and Epworth League Societies of Plainfield, was held last evening in the lecture room of Trinity Reformed church and was largely attended, the room being filled with members of both the above mentioned young people's societies. Fred. E. Smith led the meeting, and H. J. Martin the singing. Mrs. G. W. Saums presided at the piano.

The leader made a few chosen remarks on the topic of the evening, "Is my heart right with God?" and then left the meeting in charge of those present. The time was well occupied, many prayers being offered and testimonies given bearing on the subject of the evening. It was, indeed, a heart searching meeting and gave every evidenee of a deep, spiritual consecration to God and left an impression on the hearts of all present that the coming week or weeks of prayer will find the young Christian people of Plainfield filled with the Holy Ghost, and actively engaged in the blessed work of bringing souls into God's kingdom. Rev. Dr. Barnes, of the First M. E. Church, was called upon just before the meeting closed to explain the proposed line of action for the remaining union meetings to be held during the month, which he did with tender words of love and advice, long to be remembered, it is hoped, by all who heard him.

The next meeting will be held in the Monroe Avenue chapel, Thursday evening, December 12th.

Where to Go for Charity.

Col. Tyler, President of the Organized Aid Association, in his annual address said: "We do not mean that our annual expenses shall exceed six hnndred dollars and our desire is that this amount shall be raised, as far as possible, by subscriptions of two dollars each from three hundred different persons. In this way no one is burdened. The amount that each gives to the active charities of the city is not interfered with." Only two dollars a year! This is all the Organized Aid Association asks from good citizens of Plainfield. Organized charity will drive frauds and impostors out of the city. If anyone begs at your door you should decline to act unless the Organized Aid Association has investigated the case. Send every beggar to the office ot that association and send two dollars a year to Dr. H. P. Reynolds, the treasurer.

Transfers and Contracts.

The following transfers of property have been recorded in the Union County Clerk's office from November 21st to 27th inclusive, as published in the New Jersey Contractor:

John W. Runyon et ux. to Charles H. Hand et ux, to Mary F. Hoffman, lot West Third street, $300; Central New Jersey Land Improvement Co., to John McIntyre and Charles H. Hand, lot Sixth street, $320; Goldson W. Smalley et ux. North Plainfield, to Charles L. Moffett, lot Randolph road, $1,800; Theodore A. Boeder et ux. to Andrew Love Jr., lot Columbia avenue, $50; Benjamin G. Demarest, Newark, to Real Estate Co., three tracts West Sixth street, $1.

The following contracts have also been filed:

A. L. C. Marsh with George J. Tobin, plumbing new building Hillside avenue, $774; Elizabeth Mecker, with Daniel J. Wilson, carpenter, mason, etc., (two) houses, Arlington avenue, each, $1,900; Joseph R. Hall, North Plainfield, with J. N. Meeker, Roselle, carpenter, mason, etc., house Rosevelt Manor Cranford, $4,955.

Real Estate Prospects Good.

The increasing prosperity and popularity of the new real estate firm of Van Hermerken & Nichols, 153 North avenue, is evident. In conversation with them it was learned that the prospects for a lively market in real estate is very bright, and that a number of Brooklyn and New York people are likely to move here.

An Ancestor's Party.

A novel meeting is in preparation to be held at the Congregational church on Wednesday evening, December 11th. It will be called an "Ancestor's Party" and every one in the church, whose ancestors came over on the "Mayflower" or were in America at that time, will tell about them.

The wife of Mr. D. Robinson, a prominent lumberman of Hartwick, N. Y., was sick with rheumatism for five months. In speaking of it. Mr. Robinson says: "Chamborlain's Pain Balm is the only thing that gave her any rest from pain. For the relief of pain it cannot be beat." Many very bad cases of rheumatism have been cured by it. For sale at 50 cents per bottle by Reynolds' Pharmacy, Park and North avenues. T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

MANY MATTERS ACTED UPON.

CITY FATHERS TRANSACT LOTS OF LITTLE BUSINESS.

A Letter From Expert Allan Hazen Stating That the Sewage Beds Are Ready—Honan & Sons Work Finished.

In the absence of President See at last night's City Council meeting, Clerk MacMurray called the meeting to order and on motion of Mr. Fisk, Mr. Erickson was chosen to fill the vacancy.

The usual batch of claims preceeded the reading of the minutes in the order of business, after which the minutes of the last regular and adjourned meetings were read and approved.

A communication was received from Contractor John Siddall asking for an extension of time till May 1st, 1896, in completing his work of making house connections. The time was granted on recommendation of the Sewer Committee.

A bill of M. Honan & Son's for $79.16 for certain pipe used on Watchung avenue was referred to Consulting Engineer Farguar for settlement.

J. A. Karet made application to the Council for an auctioneer's license.

The matter was referred to the license committee.

Rev. P. S. Gibson, pastor of the Mt. Olive Baptist church, and others petitioned Council for a crosswalk on West Third street, corner of Liberty street. It was referred to the committee on streets with power.

The Treasurer's and Collector's reports were received and referred to the financial committee, and later ordered filed.

Resolutions were offered by Mr. Dumont that $2,000 and $3,000 be drawn and charged to the general and fire funds respectively to meet the city bills, also that $16,000 and $4,000 be drawn for sewer work. The resolutions were adopted.

Mr. Moore offered a resolution that an electric light be placed on West Front street between Giraud avenue and Waynewood place and one on West End avenue. The resolution was adopted.

Communications were read from Engineer A. J. Gavett which stated that the work of Contractors M. Honan & Sons and J. Marsden was completed and asked that the same be accepted. The matter was concurred in by the sewer committee and the same was accepted.

Mr. Frost then stated that the fourth of the sewage beds was nearing completion and would be ready in a short time, and as soon as practicable they would be opened for use. To prove that there would be no difficulty experienced in using the beds at this time Mr. Frost submitted a letter from Expert Allan Hazen on the subject, which shows in an official way that the same will be all right. The letter is as follows:

In reply to yours of the 25th, I have considered carefully the question of declaring your sewer system ready for connections December 15th, or thereabouts, and applying the small amount of sewage which would probably result from this action to a part of your sewage disposal area to be ready at that time. I have had occasion to observe repeatedly the action of experimental filters at Lawrence put in operation for the first time at this season of the year, and I am of the opinion that after your screening tank, etc. and at least two beds are ready for use, you will be able to take care of all the sewage that you will receive during the winter, securing adequate purification without injury to the beds and without the production of a nuisance.

The small danger is that the small amount of sewage will freeze, but owing to the depth of your outfall sewer the sewage will be comparatively warm and not inclined to freeze and even it does the quantity will be small and frozen sewage does not decompose or smell and when it thaws with warmer weather the land will be in condition to absorb and purify it promptly.

All bills were reported correct and warrants ordered drawn for the same, after which Mr. Fisk made a motion that when Council adjourn it be to meet Thursday evening, December 5th. The motion prevailed and Council adjourned.

An Aged Pipe.

Lawrence Scheelein, of North avenue, has just found a large pipe, German make, which was brought from Germany some forty-five years ago by his father. A few days ago while looking through some old things that were packed away, Mr. Scheelein discovered the valuable article, which he prizes very highly. He has been offered a good price for it but refuses to sell.

A Dream of Beauty.

The operetta "Queen Flora" will be presented on the opening night of the firemen's fair. This will introduce fairies, daisies, roses, butterflies, bumble bees, and the original and comical frog dance, as arranged by Madame Menzeli. This beautiful operetta is a midsummer's night revel, and replete with melody and graceful dancing.

BALLOTING DELAYED.

Boxes Refused to Work For Three Hours in the Fourth Ward.

The voting today is very quiet, there being but little activity around the polls. A very light vote is being cast.

The vote in the various wards at one o'clock today was as follows:

	First District.	Second District.
First ward	209	45
Second ward	212	25
Third ward	185	—
Fourth ward	165	155

At the last election the vote at the same hour was:

	First District.	Second District
First ward	240	59
Second ward	212	243
Third ward	331	—
Fourth ward	208	200

Voters in the First district of the Fourth ward were surprised this morning when they went to vote and learned that they could not, that is until 9 o'clock. Owing to a defect in the mechanism of the ballot box those in charge were unable to use it, and for several hours voters were obliged to wait. W. A. Newcorn and Charles Angleman, inspectors at the polls, finally succeeded in adjusting the machinery so that the box could be used. In the meantime an expert from Elizabeth was sent for and arrived about noon. There was nothing for him to do, however, as the box was all right.

WANT A PLACE TO STORE WHEELS.

High School Students Want to Follow the Example of Orange.

The East Orange Board of Education has just completed a building especially designed for storing bicycles ridden by the pupils of the High School. It is a wooden structure, sixteen feet wide and sixty feet long, with racks on both sides and a passageway between for the wheels. Here the wheels are stored during school and when the session is at an end, the janitor unlocks the building and the pupils take their wheels and ride away. This is the first building of its kind ever erected for the storing of pupil's wheels.

A petition signed by all of the riders in the Plainfield High School, of whom there are a number, was sent to the Board of Education several years ago, asking for wheelracks in the cellar or a shed for their wheels, but no definite action was ever taken. During the spring and fall such a building would be very advantageous.

Art in Advertising.

A novel entertainment will be given in Y. M. C. A. Hall on Tuesday evening, December 10th, entitled "Art in Advertising." There will be an exhibition of over sixty fine stereopticon views with a verbal description of each. In the afternoon from three to six o'clock there will be an exhibition of American and foreign bills and posters.

Dr. Carman Selected.

The Borough Board of Health met last night and selected Dr. Carman as delegate to attend the State Association meeting to be held at Atlantic City Friday and Saturday of this week.

For the Benefit of the Ladies Aid.

A concert for the benefit of the Ladies Aid Society of the Monroe Avenue Chapel, will be given by E. Arthur Jenke, pianist and P. Ludwig Conde, violinist, this evening at the chapel.

On Oyster Eating Championship.

On a wager Harrison Randolph, colored, devoured an oyster stew at Ross's restaurant, Saturday night, in one minute and fifteen seconds.

Skating Soon.

There was a thin crust of ice on the New Market pond this morning.

—Edward Love is selling out his large stock of stationery cheap, to make room for wall paper. Hurd's satin-finish, Egyptian linen wedding note, etc. They make nice Christmas presents.

—A salt water bath is most refreshing and invigorating and J. Howard Leggett has placed them within the reach of all. He is selling West India sea salt in bags of ten pounds for 25 cents a bag.

Major C. T. Picton is manager of the State Hotel, at Denison, Texas, which the traveling men say is one of the best hotels in that section. In speaking of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy Major Picton says: "I have used it myself and in my family for several years, and take pleasure in saying that I consider it an infallible cure for diarrhœa and dysentery. I always recommend it, and have frequently administered it to my guests in the hotel, and in every case it has proven itself worthy of unqualified endorsement. For sale by Reynolds' Pharmacy, Park and North avenues. T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

GERMAN CHURCH ENTERTAINMENT.

A Large Attendance and a Delightful Programme Make It Successful.

The Sunday-School room in the German Reformed church was packed last evening with those who came to attend the entertainment which was given there under the auspices of the Ladies Aid Society. The programme was a very enjoyable one and was as follows: Instrumental quartette, Overture from "Eulenberg," P. Ludwig Conde, Charles G. Davis, Clarence Mills, and William MacKillop. Mr. Menzell, accompanist, encore, "Weigenlied" by Schubert; German recitation, Mrs. France; vocal solo, Miss Agnes Ecke; English recitation, Miss Lillian Haberle; German baritone solo, Charles Dresselt; German comic song, Otto Keller; English dialogue, "A Batch at Last," Mrs. Fred Bach, A. Wolfe, Fred Bach, and Theodore Martin; English recitation, Miss Annie Doerringer; vocal solo, Miss Bertha Hoffman; English recitation, Miss Lillian Haberle; vocal solo, Miss Agnes Ecke; instrumental quartette, "Choral" of Sebastian Bach, encore, "Chorus der Euryanthe" by Weber, Conde and pupils; German dialogue, "Nechtigel Nichte," August Wolfe, Miss Ida Feller, P. Postler, Otto Keller; instrumental quartette, "Prayer von Freischutz," by Weber, encore "Minuet" from E flat symphony by Mozart, Conde and pupils. The accompanists were Miss Lillian Zeisz and Mrs. Hauser.

The entertainment was arranged by the following committee: Mrs. Menteenech, Mrs. Philip Bach and Mrs. Doerringer, which deserves great credit for the excellent one they provided. August Wolff had charge of the programme.

WIDOWED MOTHER; FATHERLESS SON

Peculiarly Sad Death of Charles Herman, of Somerset Street.

The death of Charles Herman, aged twenty-four years, of Somerset street, which occurred last night, is a notably sad one. He and his wife were married about two years ago and took up their residence in this city, where he and his brother took charge of "The Orange," a fruit store on Somerset street. Charles and his wife lived in the flat over the store.

Several months ago he was attacked with paralysis and since that time has been rather feeble, sometimes confined to his bed and other times able to be about the store.

Last Sunday his wife gave birth to a baby boy and both were getting along nicely.

Yesterday Charles felt unusually well and held his young son for sometime, but during the night he was taken worse and died.

Dr. Zeglio was the attending physician and did all in his power to stay the inevitable result.

Mrs. Herman is prostrated by the sudden death of her husband and lies in a critical condition.

Arrangements for the funeral are being made by friends.

A Good Company.

The Minnie Lester company was greeted with a full house last night in Music Hall, and as on all previous engagements in this city, gave evidence that they are the best repertorie company on the road. The piece presented last night was "Madge," in which Miss Lester was afforded the opportunity of winning her way into the good graces of the auditors by her conception of the role which she impersonated. The supporting cast is one of unusual excellence and gives the performance a finish that is lacked by many companies playing at high prices. The music of the band and orchestra is of the up-to-date kind, with a wide range of selections to render in a pleasing manner. The company will give a matinee and evening performance every day this week after today.

Words, Words, That Is All.

A public discussion of the currency question between A. W. Lightbourne, of The Mail and Express, and E. J. Whitehead, of the Union County Standard, will be held at Westfield December 20th. Mr. Lightbourne will argue for the gold standard and Mr. Whitehead from the Populist standpoint.

Talks on Art.

The second of Olaf Sangstad's talks on Art will be given at the Plainfield Art School, 212 West Front street, on Monday afternoon at half-past three. The subject will be "Art in its Youth."

Present Officials to Continue.

There will be no election of officers at St. Stephen's church this year as the present church officials will continue to hold office for another year.

SCHOOL CALENDAR FIXED.

BOARD OF EDUCATION ARRANGE THE TERMS FOR THE YEAR.

One Resignation Received, One Salary Increased, a Few Contracts Made and Several Minor Matters Looked After.

The regular December meeting of the Board of Education was held at the High School building last evening. Messrs. Probasco, Lovell, Lounsbury and Finch were present when the meeting was called to order. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved. Secretary Finch then read a number of approved bills, which on vote of the board, were ordered paid. The interest amounting to $700 on the school bonds was also ordered paid. The report of Tax Collector Johnson showed that $4,603.32 in school taxes had been collected, which with the interest, amounted to $4,621.02.

Superintendent Maxson brought up the subject of the Christmas vacation and recommended that school close on Friday, December 20th, and open on Thursday, January 2d. Dr. Probasco wanted the opening to be Monday, January 6th, so as to allow those who wished to be away New Year's Day opportunity to do so. Mr. Lounsbury moved that Superintendent Maxson's recommendation be adopted, which motion was unanimously carried. Dr. Jenkins then arrived.

The report of the committee on building and repairs was made by Mr. Lounsbury.

He reported that a contract had been made with Fernando Brown to carry away the ashes once a week from all the schools, except the Irving, for $80. Another contract had also been made with A. D. Phillips to put in the electric fixtures in the Washington building for $80.90. He suggested that as Janitor Harris of the Washington School had performed his duties satisfactorily, his salary be raised from $40 to $50 a month. The report was accepted and his suggestion ordered carried out. The question of connecting the Wadsworth School with the sewer was laid on the table.

Superintendent Maxson then gave his suggestions regarding the school calendar for 1896 which, on motion of Mrs. Lounsbury, were adopted. They were as follows: Winter term to close, March 28th; spring term to begin, April 5th; spring term to close, June 26th; fall term to begin, September 7th.

The committee on teachers, through Mr. Lowell, reported the resignation of Miss Anna Ticknor, sixth grade, Franklin School, and recommended its acceptance and the appointment of Miss Jennie Davis to take the position. The report, including all its recommendations, was accepted.

Mr. Lounsbury's motion, that the question of the purchasing of a safe be taken from the table, was carried and the question was again discussed. Dr. Jenkins suggested a very good second hand safe now at Thickstun's coal yard. Messrs. Finch and Lowell expressed themselves as in favor of a safe in preference to a vault. Dr. Jenkins had no opinion to offer. Mr. Lovell moved that the building committee be authorized to purchase a safe for the High School building, and the motion was carried.

Mr. Lounsbury then moved that the consideration of the letter-file be taken from the table, it was carried. The letter-file cost $40 and the base $3 more.

As the base was not necessary for the use of the file, Mr. Finch and Dr. Jenkins did not favor it. Dr. Probasco and Mr. Loundsbury thought it should be purchased. Mr. Lovell thought that it would be better in the long run and moved that the question be left to the discretion of the building committee. His motion was carried.

Captain George F. Edwards, who has been instructing the High School Cadet Company in military tactics, addressed the board on the subject of securing arms for the cadet company and read several letters from Quartermaster-General Donnelly regarding them. The letters stated that the only arms available were Springfield rifle muskets, muzzle-loading, 58 calibre. It would be necessary for the principal of the school to make application for the loan of arms and for him to furnish bonds to the amount of $850 for forty arms and accoutrements and five swords that Captain Edwards had stated were the correct number needed. They need not be insured for more than $200 to be carried by the High School.

Dr. Probasco thought that it was a matter for the Principal, not the Board, to look after, but Captain Edwards said that it was necessary for the Board to make some arrangement for the storage of the arms.

Mr. Finch moved that a committee of three, including the President of the Board, be appointed to settle the matter.

Dr. Probasco believed that such a matter should be put before a committee of the whole. The motion, however, was seconded and carried. The other two members of the committee, appointed by Dr. Probasco, were Mr. Lounsbury and Dr. Jenkins. The Board then went into executive session.

ART STUDENTS.

Plainfield Young People Gaining a Finished Education.

Among the art students of Plainfield who are pursuing their studies in New York are the following young people, some of whom take the journey each day and others spend the winter in New York:

Art League—Misses Margaret Tracy, Nettie Haviland, W. F. Gilbert. Brooklyn Art School—Miss Annie Miles. Artist Artisan Institute, founded by J. W. Stimson—Misses Carrie Elliott, Elsie Horne, May S. Shreve, Myra Clark, Hattie French, Roy Cahoone. School of Applied Design—Misses Amelia Day and Eleanor Van-Deventer. Metropolitan Art School—Miss Agnes Opdyke.

After the Summit Robbers.

The arrest in Newark of James Malone, an ex-policeman of that city, who is suspected of complicity in the robbery of the Summit postoffice, arouses much interest in Elizabeth, where Malone is well known from his being involved in a burglary there in connection with "Sheeney Mike" Kurtz and "Dutch" Fred, two noted cracksmen. The two escaped with six months in the county jail, because of their turning State's evidence in order to convict another member of the gang. It is believed that if Malone is mixed up in the Summit robbery the other two will likely be found to have had a hand in the matter.

Officers Elected.

The Catholic Benevolent Society met last evening in the C. Y. M. U. Hall, and after transacting routine business elected the following officers: President, Andrew Nolan; Vice-President, Henry Lutz; Collector, Thomas Lappin; Secretary, J Moore; Treasurer, P. Casey; Marshal, J. Keating; Orator, James Harper; Guard, P. Powers, Representative to State Council, T. McCarthy; Alternate, C. Reagen; Trustees, P. Whalen, and E. Kelly and J. Kelly. Two new members were proposed. The officers will be installed on January 2d.

Fine China From Auction.

You will find White's advertisement most interesting reading. He has placed on sale the extensive line of fine china and porcelain that were bought in the auction room, and all who have seen the goods say that they are the finest assortment ever displayed in Plainfield, and the prices are remarkably low. Mr. White was told by the representative of the firm who sold the goods that he had only paid about one third of what the goods cost to import.

A Big Surprise.

During the year Edsall's buyer in the china and crockery department has been buying up and laying aside an elegant assortment of importers samples for the special holiday trade. The goods are now being placed on sale. The prices at which they have been bought are from one-quarter to one-third their real value and they will be sold at the same proportionately low prices.

Every article has been selected with great care and will make a choice, dainty Christmas gift.

Watchung Avenue Commissioners.

The Borough Commissioners appointed on the proposed Watchung avenue extension will meet this week to organize. They will then take up the duties of their office, that of assessing benefits and damages on the property owners.

A Phonograph For The Fair.

Fred. Van Eps has his phonograph all ready for the Firemen's Fair next week. There are fourteen tubes for the listeners and he will have about twenty-five different changes.

When most needed it is not unusual for your family physician to be away from home. Such was the experience of Mr. J. Y. Schenck, editor of the Caddo, Ind. Ter., Banner, when his little girl, two years of age was threatened with a severe attack of croup. He says: "My wife insisted that I go for the doctor, but as our family physician was out of town I purchased a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, which relieved her immediately. I will not be without it in the future." 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by Reynoldss' Pharmacy, Park and North avenues. T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

SPAIN IS OPTIMISTIC

Believes the Cuban Revolt Will Soon Be Crushed.

Gen. Campos Says Reforms on the Island Must Be Initiated as Soon as Possible—Severe Spanish Defeat—Attempt To Burn Remedios. Julio Sanguilly Convicted.

Havana, Nov. 25, via Tampa, Fla., Dec. 3.—Madrid cablegrams report optimistic feeling in that city. The cabinet has been assured that the rebels will be expelled from Las Villas during December and that the sugar crop there will be harvested as usual. Madrid advices further state that the rebellion will cease before March. It is reported in Spain that Gen. Martinez Campos has not advised the government to postpone reforms until the war is closed. Gens. Toral and Rey have sailed in the steamer Cataluna for this island. They are accompanied by reinforcements. Gen. Salcede will return to duty in Cuba. Senor San Pedre, now governor of Pinar del Rio, will assume the government of Havana. Senor Gonzalez Lopez takes his place as chief civil officer of the province of Pinar del Rio, the latter being the famous tobacco department of western Cuba. Speaking of reforms in Cuba, Gen. Martinez Campos has said: "The reforms in Cuba are not for the rebels; they are for the island, and if they were necessary before the rebellion, they are necessary during the rebellion and as soon as possible they must be initiated."

A Spanish Defeat.

Manzanillo, Nov. 21, via Key West, Dec. 3.—On the 19th inst. the guerrillas of Vicuna, forty in number, had an engagement with Juan Vega's rebel party, two thousand strong. The rebels had concealed themselves in a place called Sabana, between Vicuna and Media Lum, and had their sentinels stationed between the trees all along the road to prevent any one from passing who might carry the news of their presence to the neighboring villages. When the guerrillas appeared the insurgents rushed out and attacked their vanguard with machetes. A desperate struggle ensued, the guerrillas being compelled to retreat to Vicuna. The Spaniards lost twenty-three killed or wounded. The rebels had one killed and five wounded.

Julio Sanguilly Convicted.

Havana, Dec. 3.—Julio Sanguilly, who claims to be an American citizen and who has been on trial here on the charge of aiding and abetting the rebellion, was found guilty yesterday and sentenced to imprisonment for life at hard labor

Attempt To Burn Remedios.

Remedios, Nov. 24, via Key West, Dec. 3.—Great excitement and alarm prevailed in this city yesterday. The bell of the railroad foundry rang out the alarm of fire and the people ran from their houses screaming that the insurgents had set fire to the foundry and were coming into the city. All the authorities and forces went to the place immediately and found the building in flames. It being a feast day the rebels took advantage of it and a small group appeared and compelled two boys who were there to wet the frame walls of the foundry with petroleum. This done they applied the torch and part of the building was burned. The prompt arrival of the troops and firemen prevented the loss of the entire building. It was afterwards learned that it was the plan of the insurgents to enter the city, but the precautions taken by the authorities frustrated it. Many young men were ready to join them had they succeeded in entering the city.

Separatist Sentiment in Cuba.

New York, Dec. 3.—A prominent Cuban to-day received a letter dated in Havana November 27, the following paragraph from which shows the enthusiasm and strong spirit of independence possessed by every Cuban in the island: "There is not a shadow of doubt but that the sentiment of all the Cubans is essentially separatist. It is clearly evinced by the admiration awakened by the revolutionists in their efforts to push forward our province; it is evinced by the praises sung in all the Cuban homes to Gomez, Roloff, Rabi, Carrillo, Sanchez, Zayas and other chiefs; it is shown by the rejoicings with which the news of every Spanish defeat is received, and no less so by the universal approval expressed for the radical, out necessary, war measure of destroying the sugar cane fields, which simply means to destroy the wealth of the country. And it is more than approval; it is demanded by all that the measure be executed to the fullest extent so that the revolution may triumph. I have been surprised to find that the planters themselves whose estates are threatened by the measure join in the general demand, and declare that they are perfectly willing to undergo the sacrifice in order that freedom and independence be achieved."

THE CUBAN REBELLION.

Paper Money To Be Issued by the Spanish Authorities.

Havana, Dec. 3.—The government is about to issue $20,000,000 in bank bills, and, in order to make the necessary arrangements, there will be a meeting to-day at the palace. Acting Captain-General Arderius, Senor Galbris Gonzoles Mendoza, director of the Banco Espanol, and representatives of the bankers and leading merchants of this city will be present.

Dead of Hydrophobia

Shamokin, Pa., Dec. 3.—George Shuey, jr., aged 30 years, died of hydrophobia yesterday.

GARNET MILL DESTROYED.

Only One in the Country Burned at North River, N. Y.

Saratoga, N. Y., Nov. 3.—The village of North River was visited by a destructive fire Sunday, the particulars of which have just been received. A large building used as a garnet mill, owned and operated by Frank Hooper, was burned to the ground, causing a loss of over $15,000, evoered by insurance. The origin of the fire is unknown. The mill was the only one of its kind in this country. In the mill the rock was crushed and the garnets separated from it. The process was secret and only certain persons were allowed to enter the building.

THIEVES BLOW OPEN A SAFE.

Steal $800, Maltreat a Watchman and Shoot the Owner.

Bethlehem, Pa., Dec. 3.—A trio of robbers blew open with dynamite the safe in Moyer's grist mill, bound and gagged and threw the night watchman, Thomas Lynn, into the bran bin, where he was found at daylight nearly frozen to death. The robbers decamped with nearly $800. David Moyer, owner of the mill, surprised the robbers at work and six shots were fired at him, one entering his shoulder. The thieves escaped.

HILL AT CHICAGO.

The Senator on His Way South for His Health.

Chicago, Dec. 3.—Senator David B. Hill and his secretary, D. G. Luckett, spent last night at the Auditorium hotel in this city. The gentlemen were scheduled to leave Chicago at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon, but owing to a delay of trains their departure was deferred until this morning when they left via the Pennsylvania road for Old Point Comfort. There the senator will remain until he is able to proceed to Washington.

PISA'S DEATH.

Three Insane Asylum Attendants Held Responsible.

Wilmington, Del., Dec. 3.—The coroner's inquest over the remains of Pisa, the alleged victim of the three attendants at the insane hospital, occurred yesterday afternoon. The examination of witnesses was made by Attorney General White and Deputy Cooper. The coroner's jury decided that Pisa came to his death at the hands of the three accused men. They were held for trial without bail.

YORKSHIRE ESTATE SOLD.

Scene of the First Battle of the Rebellion.

Alexandria, Va., Dec. 3.—The historic Yorkshire estate, the first battlefield of the war, was sold yesterday at public auction at the court house—about 600 acres in all, situated on both sides of Bull Run in Prince William and Fairfax counties. The land lying on the Prince William side brought on an average six dollars an acre, the other about three dollars.

THE EMMETTS' TROUBLE.

Both the Actor and His Wife Arrive in Denver.

Denver, Dec. 3.—Joseph K. Emmett, the actor, has arrived from the east, and his wife, Miss Emily Lytton, of Rose Coghlan's company, is here also, from the west. Mrs. Emmett's coming is in connection with her expressed determination to sue for divorce here, and it is believed her husband came to try his persuasive powers against her will.

JOHN MORAN ARRESTED.

A Clinton, Mass., Man Charged with Murdering His Wife.

Worcester, Mass., Dec. 3.—John Moran of Clinton was arrested yesterday afternoon for the murder of his wife Bridget, who died November 2. The theory of the police is that there was a domestic quarrel in which Moran assaulted both his mother and his wife, the latter dying from her injuries.

WEMPLE INSANE.

Will Be Sent to the Utica State Hospital.

Fultonville, N. Y., Dec. 3.—Yesterday afternoon a commission examined ex-state comptroller Edward Wemple, who was recently charged with incendiarism, and declared him to be insane. Mr. Wemple will be taken to the Utica State hospital as soon as the necessary papers can be made out.

Suicide from a Steamboat.

Troy, N. Y., Dec. 3.—Mary Smith of Brooklyn, a passenger on the steamer Saratoga, committed suicide by jumping overboard yesterday as the boat was passing Coxsackie on her way to this city. The body was not found.

An Unexpected Result.

Pawtucket, R. I., Dec 3.—The municipal election at Central Falls yesterday was a turnover that was unexpected by the republicans. Dr. Wm. Von Gottschalk, democrat, was elected mayor by 47 plurality.

Lavigne Defeats Walcott.

New York, Dec. 3.—The fight between Kid Lavigne of Michigan and Joe Walcott, the famous colored lightweight, took place at the Empire Athletic club last night. Lavigne won in the fifteenth round.

For Pure Milk.

Albany, Dec. 3.—The state board of health has decided to present to the next legislature for favorable consideration a bill to exclude all milk from sale which contains any tubercolosis germs.

Unknown Boy Killed.

Bridgeport, Conn., Dec. 3.—An unknown boy was instantly killed by 6:03 east bound train last night at South avenue crossing.

POWERS TO ACT TO-DAY

Will Demand Extra Guardships in the Dardanelles.

Official Report of the Disturbances in Caesarea and Harpoot—Americans at the Latter Place Stripped of Everything but Their Clothing. Marblehead at Pajas.

Constantinople, Dec. 3.—The general situation here is not changed, but it is now apparent that a change is about to take place. The representatives of the powers, some of whom have been awaiting instructions from their governments in regard to the matter of putting additional gunboats into the Bosphorus, now seem to be unanimous in their insistance upon the issuance of permits for the admission of these boats by the sultan. The ambassadors will hold a meeting to-day to consider the situation as presented by the sultan's refusal to permit the passage of the additional boats through the straits and decide upon a concerted plan of action.

At Caesarea and Harpoot.

The official reports of the disturbances in Caesarea on the 30th ult. state the disorder was due to two Armenians discharging guns in the market place. Some persons were killed, the report says, but order was restored within three hours. Details of the rioting at Harpoot say that on November 10 the Kurds made an attack on the place, but were easily repulsed. On the 11th a party of the soldiers and leading Turks met the Kurds in a conference, during the progress of which a bugle was sounded, at which signal the soldiers withdrew. The Kurds thereupon advanced with yells. There was no effort on the part of the soldiers and Armenians to resist, and the Turks joined in the killing and plundering. The Armenian school was burned and then began an attack upon the Christian quarter, the buildings in which were also set on fire. The Christians were without weapons of any sort and trusted entirely to the government to protect them.

Outrages on Americans.

The Americans remained in the girl's seminary until that building was set on fire, and then the appealed to the governor for protection. They obtained a guard of soldiers, all but two of whom afterward deserted. These two remained and carried out the orders issued to them, to fight the fires which had been kindled. The burning continued for three days. The Americans were stripped of everything but their clothing. All the Christian villages around were burned by the Kurds. The outrages continued unchecked until the government at Constantinople ordered troops to take action. Fourteen Kurds were then shot, when the murders and pillaging ceased instantly. The districts of Diarbekir, Malatia, Arabkir, Eyin and Pelu have been made desolate. Thirty-five villages have been destroyed, and thousands of the inhabitants have embraced Islamism in consequence of the pressure brought to bear upon them.

Marblehead at Pajas.

A correspondent of the United Press at Alexandretta, Syria, says: On the arrival of the cruiser Marblehead at Pajas Commander O'Neil went ashore and had a consultation with the local authorities, with the result of obtaining the release of Dr. Peltekian and his wife, who reached here yesterday evening, escorted by a guard of Turkish soldiers. The country around and about the gulf of Iskanderoon has been ravaged by Moslem marauders, and the smoke arising from burning villages can be plainly seen. About 7,000 Armenian Greeks have reached the town of Chekimerzmon, ten miles from Alexandretta, fleeing from Moslem pursuers, who have completely demolished the villages of Uzerli, Adjaki and Karaklissia.

TWO STRUCK BY AN ENGINE.

One Man Killed and Another Fatally Injured.

Altoona, Pa., Dec. 3.—Two unknown men were struck by an engine on the Pennsylvania railroad while walking on the track at the east end of Gallitzin tunnel yesterday afternoon. One was instantly killed and the other fatally injured.

New Labor Organization.

Iron Mountain, Mich., Dec. 3.—The Northern Mineral Miners' Progressive Union of America has been organized here by delegates who claim to represent 10,000 iron and copper miners of Wisconsin, Michigan and Minnesota.

Thrown Out of Work by Fire.

Baltimore, Dec. 3.—By the burning of the large cotton mill of the Powhattan Construction & Improvement company at Powhattan, Balitmore county, about one hundred men are thrown out of work.

Assemblyman Vacheron's Trial.

Albany, Dec. 3.—The probabilities are that the trial of Eugene Vacheron, the assemblyman, for bribery will go over the term and that it will not be reached before some time in January.

Algerians To Help Spain.

Madrid, Dec. 3.—It is reported here that 6,000 Spaniards, residing in Algeria, have volunteered their services to the government for active duty with the troops in the island of Cuba.

Revolt at Goa Suppressed.

Lisbon, Dec. 3.—A dispatch from Goa, capital of the Portuguese possessions in India, states that the revolt there against the government has been suppressed.

Heart Failure.

Often first manifested by extreme general debility, with sudden reactions for the better; a general dying out of the fires of life, that brighten up at intervals, giving hope of returning health, but eventually subside, go out on the spot, and another "dropped dead on the street" is reported. A general collapse of the great vital centres, due to a lack of sufficient nourishment is the cause. In such cases take and live to join the great army who today sing its praise. Dr. P. B. Carpenter, of 430 Friendship St., Providence, says, "I have never seen a case of general debility which Bovinine failed to cure, when taken as I directed." It cures in every instance where mal-nutrition is experienced. It is not a medicine, but a powerful condensed food that makes blood, flesh and bone, and by invigorating the life-generating organs dispels disease.

PANIC AMONG CHILDREN

Ceiling of a School Room Falls Without Warning.

In the Rush for Liberty Many Little Girls Are Crushed, One Perhaps Fatally—Her Scalp Almost Torn from Her Head—A Scene of Wild Confusion.

Paterson, N. J., Dec. 3.—The falling of a ceiling in public school No. 3 on Main street yesterday resulted in the serious, if not fatal, injury of one little girl and the painful injury of at least a dozen other pupils. The accident occurred without warning and created a panic throughout the school building. The room in which the ceiling fell is occupied by second class B, primary [illegible] of which Miss Sadie Phalon is the teacher. Miss Phalon was hearing recitations when the ceiling plaster, without a warning snap or crack, suddenly collapsed. In an instant the air was filled with the falling lime and blinding dust, through which it was impossible to see.

Scene of Wild Confusion.

The children occupying the room, averaging from nine to twelve years of age, were so frightened that there was a momentary silence, but when they realized what had occurred, pandemonium reigned. All of them jumped from their seats and made a rush for the stairs, but on account of the lime dust, which permeated the air, most of them were unable to find the door. In their wild rush for liberty many of the little ones collided heavily with one another and fell in heaps on the floor. With very few exceptions the children were screaming and this, together with the screams and moans of the injured, turned the schoolroom into a scene of wildest confusion. Inside of two minutes the entire school was in a state of the highest excitement. A serious panic was imminent and it was believed that the building was falling down, but cool heads among the teachers succeeded in restoring order.

Caring for the Injured.

When the dust had partly subsided a number of children were found to be injured. Some were unconscious and most all seemed to be in a half fainting condition. The most seriously injured was Bella Craig, aged 10. Her scalp was almost torn from her head. Archie Graham, aged 9, and Ida Hartzburg were also badly cut about the head. Dr. John Gilson was in the neighborhood of the school at the time and quickly dressed the wounds of the injured. He temporarily bandaged little Bella Craig's head and carried her to her home. The doctor said that her skull might be fractured. The news of the accident spread rapidly, and shortly after it occurred the parents of a large number of the children flocked to the school house. They were met at the entrance, however, by the principal and by much persuasion and explanation he prevented them from creating a general panic, as some of them seemed quite hysterical.

ATLANTA EXPOSITION.

Its Duration Will Not Extend Beyond the Present Year.

Atlanta, Ga., Dec. 3.—Inasmuch as a false impression prevails in some quarters about the duration of the exposition, President Collier has given out the following statement: "I wish to correct an erroneous impression that the exposition will be extended beyond the present year. It will close finally and forever on Dec. 31, and but four weeks remain to see the model exposition of the century."

TRIED TO KILL THE CZAR.

Reported That a Projectile Was Thrown at Him.

London, Dec. 3.—The Central News correspondent in Vienna says that a report is in circulation there that a projectile was thrown at the czar in St. Petersburg yesterday. The missile grazed his majesty's cloak and fell harmlessly to the ground. No one was injured.

The Housesmiths' Strike.

New York, Dec. 3.—The strike of the housesmiths was not settled by arbitration last night, as was expected, and this morning the situation remained unchanged, although there is a chance of the trouble coming to an end this afternoon.

Rockville, Conn., Dec. 3.—At the annual city election yesterday the republicans elected Edwin L. Heath mayor and the entire ticket by 280 majority.

MILITARY BICYCLE RIDE.

From Washington to New York in 21 Hours and 48 Minutes.

New York, Dec. 3.—The military relay bicycle ride between Washington and New York was successfully completed yesterday when the last of the riders delivered a message from Gen. Miles to Gen. Ruger, at Governor's island. The message was scheduled to arrive in twenty-one hours, and despite the rain and consequent bad condition of the roads, and despite the failure at various points of local wheelmen who were to have acted as guides and pacers to put in an appearance, the ride was completed in twenty-one hours and forty-eight minutes.

AMERICANS SAFE.

Full Protection for Missionaries in the Turkish Empire.

Washington, Dec. 3.—Mavroyeni Bey, the Turkish minister, called on Secretary Olney yesterday with a message from the porte to the effect that the American missionaries throughout the Turkish empire had the greatest protection and that sufficient troops had been detailed to protect them "from the attacks of the Armenian rioters." The message also said that the missionaries had expressed their gratitude for this imperial protection.

FATHER GLEASON DEAD.

The Venerable Vicar-General of Buffalo Passes Away.

Buffalo, Dec. 3.—The Rev. William Gleason, vicar-general of the Buffalo diocese, died here yesterday. He was born in Tipperary county, Ireland, 72 years ago, and two brothers survive him in that county, one a wealthy merchant in Dublin and the other a physician in Athlone. Father Gleason came to America in 1850 and was ordained in the Buffalo diocese, where he labored up to the time of his death. He was made a monsignor in 1888.

JAMES HINE FREE.

Pardoned After serving Four Years for Manslaughter.

Hartford, Conn., Dec. 3.—James A. Hine of Woodbridge, under sentence of seven years in state prison for manslaughter, was pardoned unconditionally by the board of pardons yesterday. Hine hit a man named Blakeslee over the head with a cart stake after he had been provoked to the assault. Blakeslee died two weeks after and Hine pleaded guilty to manslaughter. He had served nearly four years of his sentence.

BUFFALO STATE HOSPITAL.

The New Addition, Capacity 250 Patients, Ready for Occupancy.

Albany, Dec. 3.—The addition to the Buffalo State hospital is ready for occupancy. It has a capacity of 250 persons. A large number of Erie county patients as have had to be sent to distant points because of the crowded condition of the home hospital. Now nearly all, if not all, can be accommodated at home, and within a few days such patients as are in the Willard and Rochester hospitals will be transferred to Erie.

FINE AND IMPRISONMENT.

Operator Stein, Who Cheated His Miners, Sentenced.

Pittsburg, Dec. 3.—T. D. Stein, the coal operator recently convicted of swindling his miners at Idlewood Coal works by using false weights and defective weigh scales, has been sentenced to pay a fine of $500 and three months imprisonment in the county jail.

INTERNAL REVENUE.

Collections for 1895 $13,264,992 Less Than in 1894.

Washington, Dec. 3.—Internal Revenue Commissioner Miller has compiled collections of internal revenue for the four months of the current fiscal year. They aggregate $51,494,092, a decrease of $13,264,992, as compared with the corresponding four months of 1894.

FACTS ON FAT

Pale, Thin Folks Need Fat to Make Them Well.

PURE BLOOD THE FATTENER

Diet for Those Who Wish to Grow Fat and Get Color in Their Cheeks.

The Kidneys Must be Kept Clear.

The Kidneys as Filters for the Blood and How They Do It.

WHAT CLEARS CLOGGED KIDNEYS.

There are more thin people who want to get fat than fat people who want to get thin.
Some people were born thin and are healthiest thin.
They had better remain so.
But there are others.
The ones whose blood has not been properly filtered.
What keeps them thin is unhealthy blood. Sick kidneys that don't filter it. Clogginess that needs clearing.
Doctors call these people anæmic.
It's a good name to forget. Let's call it poor-blooded.
People with poor blood need nourishing food, beef, mutton, fowl, fish, bread, potatoes, butter, eggs, sugar, fruit; no pork, no salmon, no twice-cooked meat, nothing that gives you indigestion.
Good food makes good blood. Well kidneys keep it good.
Poor blood makes you thin and unhappy, you have no ambition, feel tired of everything, look pale, sallow, thin, feel nervous, weak and suffer from headache, dizziness, hysteria, etc.
You have blood, but it's poisonous. Instead of nourishing, it is making you sick. Your kidneys are not working right.
What is needed is Dr. Hobb's Sparagus Kidney Pills.
The kidneys must be well, if you want to be perfectly healthy. Dr. Hobb's Sparagus Kidney Pills will make them well, and is the only medicine that acts so quickly and effectively on the kidneys.
Besides the symptoms of poor blood, there are many other symptoms caused by sick kidneys.
Poison in the blood, not filtered out as it ought to be, causes rheumatism, gout, neuralgia, sleeplessness, chilliness, evil forebodings, puffiness of the eyelids, swelling of the feet and ankles, etc., etc.
Some of these symptoms are the signs of Bright's and other dangerous kidney diseases.
They will disappear if the clogged kidneys are cleared so they can filter the blood.
The extract of asparagus root, from which Dr. Hobb's Sparagus Kidney Pills are principally made, is of special value for the kidneys. The pills cure, tone up and gently stimulate the kidneys. They make them do their work and restore them to health and vigor.
The aches and stiffness of rheumatism disappear entirely when the kidneys begin to filter the blood.
Life is brighter and more worth living when the blood is again fresh and pure and healthy.
Strength and vigor come from nourishing blood, good food and healthy exercise. The nourishing blood comes from healthy kidneys.
Clogged kidneys are cleared and made healthy by Dr. Hobb's Sparagus Kidney Pills.
A few doses will relieve. A few boxes will cure.
Sold by all druggists or mailed prepaid for 50c a box.
Valuable medical pamphlet, "A Filter for Your Blood," illustrated, mailed on request. Hobb's Medicine Co., Chicago or San Francisco.

Nothing Like It.

Time brings many changes, but the climate of California, "The Italy of America," and the attractions of the many famous health and pleasure resorts, are the same yesterday, today and forever.
Tourists never will tire of speaking in praise of the soft and balmy air, the profusion of flowers, the magnificent display of fruits, the luxury of seabathing and the beautiful walks and drives.
Then, too, it must be conceded that with such excellent equipment, consisting of Reclining Chair Cars, Pullman Palace Sleepers and Pullman Dining Cars, all heated by steam and lighted with Pintsch Light, the Union Pacific, "The Overland Route," is the tourists favorite. Ask your agent for tickets via this route.

The country needs a rest from legislation.

You can vote as late as seven o'clock this evening.

The reformer who is not a politician is a scarce article.

Cider joints are the most disreputable of grog shops.

If Speaker Reed gets arrogant this time it will be Sultan Reed.

If there is no law at present to suppress the hard cider joints, make one.

For the first time in its history New Jersey is without a Democratic representative in Congress.

An individual with a swelled head is not only a dangerous man for a community, but for a political party.

So long as the hard cider joints flourish Sunday drunks will continue to jostle decent people on the streets.

The sum of $418,091,073 will be needed to support Uncle Sam for the coming year. And the style of his clothes never change.

The New York Sun says that the advent of the woman bar (Miss Philbrook, pioneer) in New Jersey is but a preliminary to the woman bench.

Thirty-eight white men have been lynched in the United States during the past seven months. Three have been murdered in Union county, but none of their assailants hung.

A New Brunswick man has returned home after an absence of twenty six years, and observes that the only new thing about the town is the trolley car and the Republican plurality.

The statement of The Daily Press last summer that Editor Runyon wanted to be a dictator in his party has been verified. But the desire to be a boss was as far as he progressed.

Richard Croker makes the suggestion that it would be a good idea to hold Democratic primaries all day, thus allowing the members of the party plenty of opportunity to participate.

The bloody shirt ought to be sufficiently tattered by this time to be cast into the ragbag of politics. Some editors seem to take delight, however, in flaunting it around to the disgust of ordinarily sensible people.

Jersey is a great State. Her lightning is known the world over, her mud of a kind peculiar to itself, her citizens celebrated for their influence and intelligence, and now she bids fair to develop into a veritable gold mine. Great is Jersey and the hills of Peapack.

Now that New Jersey is to have the real yellow metal from the bowels of her own Watchung mountains wouldn't it be policy for E. J. Whitehead, the Populist talker for The Westfield Standard, to tone down his sentiments against the gold standard. He is liable to offend local pride.

New York courts have been having sensational trials galore for the past few weeks. Following close upon the Hannigan murder trial, in which the son's life was saved by the jury and the father's sacrificed by the worry and strain of the ordeal of the trial, comes the remarkable confession of perjury on the part of Barbara Aub against W. L. S. Langerman. Langerman seemed doomed to spend the greater portion of his remaining life behind prison bars, but now this fate stares his feminine accuser in the face. This case is an example of what an effect a pretty face has on a jury.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Walter Irving Clarke is now business manager of the Hartford Sunday Globe.

Corporation Notice.

Public notice is hereby given that the Plainfield Street Railway Company, a corporation incorporated under the laws of the State of New Jersey, did, on the third day of June, A. D., Eighteen Hundred and Ninety-five, file with the Common Council of the City of Plainfield, the petition of said The Plainfield Street Railway Company, in the words and figures following, that is to say:

To the Mayor and Common Council of the City of Plainfield, N. J.

Gentlemen—The Plainfield Street Railway Company, a corporation incorporated under the laws of the State of New Jersey, authorized to locate, construct, maintain and operate a street railway in the City of Plainfield, Union County, New Jersey, to be operated by electricity or other motive power except steam, respectfully represents that it desires an extension of the location of its railway in the City of Plainfield, as follows:

1. From the present terminus of the road in Watchung avenue, through Watchung avenue to East Fifth street, through East Fifth street to Richmond street, through Richmond street to Putnam avenue, and through Putnam avenue to Woodland avenue, through Woodland avenue to South avenue, through South avenue to the station of the Central Railroad of N. J., at Netherwood.

2. From the present terminus of the road in Watchung avenue, through Watchung avenue to East Third street, through East Third street to Richmond street, through Richmond street to North avenue, through North avenue to the city line at the Township of Fanwood.

3. From the present terminus of the road in Front street at Grant avenue, through Front street to the City line at Dunellen.

4. From the present terminus of the road in Watchung avenue through Watchung avenue to Fourth street, and through Fourth street to Grant avenue.

And therefore respectfully petitions your Honorable Body to locate the tracks of the street railway and to consent to the extension thereof in said streets or highways, and further petitions Your Honorable Body to consent to the operation of said extension of said railway with electric motors and to the erection of the necessary poles and to the necessary stringing of the necessary wires for the operation of said extensions of electricity; the tracks to be placed in the center of the streets and to be single track with turn outs every thousand feet.

[SEAL.] Yours respectfully,
J. T. FRITTS, Vice Pres.

Attest: ADRAIN RIKER, Secretary.

The character of the road intended to be constructed, operated or maintained, the motive power to be used thereon and the street or streets or other public places through which the same shall extend are those specified in said petition above quoted in full.

That upon the twelfth day of December, A. D., eighteen hundred and ninety-five, at the Common Council chamber, No. 109 Park avenue, in the city of Plainfield, New Jersey, at the hour of eight p. m., or upon such subsequent date as the hearing of said petition may be adjourned to the Common Council will consider such petition, and intend by ordinance and not otherwise to grant or by resolution to refuse permission to construct, maintain or operate such street railway as prayed for in said petition, or in their direction, to consent to the construction, maintenance or operation of such street railway upon part of the streets, highways or public places designated in such petition or notice, and refuse permission to construct, maintain or operate the said street railway upon the remainder of streets or public places.

Dated, November 26th, 1895.

By order of the Common Council
J. T. MACMURRAY, City Clerk.

$50 Worth For $39.75

An actual fact—couldn't afford to give false values—it would ruin our business. This is a fine remarkably fine—5-piece Parlor suit—it's been tagged $50 until present sale, and it's well worth that price—Brocatelle upholstered, silk plush trimming, exquisite colorings—all for $39.75. Fit for any home.

A Great Room

Is this, our "Bargain Room"—now filled more than ever with hundreds of broken sets, manufacturers' samples, etc.—all new and best makes—they're odd pieces tho' and have to go at and often below cost. Each article marked in plain figures—slip in some time—it will pay you well—there are desks, bedroom suits, chairs, tables, etc., etc, The "Portland Range" sells at a fast rate—it's funny, but our salesmen have less trouble to sell this famous range than a $1 chair—it's real worth sticks out all over it—we're the only house where its carried.

A

Big Surprise.

During the year our buyer in the Crockery and China Department has secured from the leading importers in New York their samples in some of the finest imported wares, and laid them aside to bring out as a big surprise for the Special Holiday Trade.

The prices paid for these rich and beautiful wares is only a trifle of their real value, at most not more than one-half to one-third.

We are now offering them for sale at the same proportionately Low Prices as they were bought at. They are not Auction, —— or imperfect goods at all, but every article guaranteed genuine 'firsts' and perfect in every way.

There is nothing in the market to compare with them. Those who purchase them will get the Biggest Bargains ever offered in this line. Don't wait for they will soon be sold.

Notes of Interest.

The Commercial Palace is the center of attraction for the trading public this season more than ever before. In addition to the above attractions many others as important might be mentioned, viz:

The Toy and Doll Department

has been greatly enlarged; now covering floor space over one hundred feet long and twenty-five feet wide in the big basement.

Here a grand display of everything almost in this line is made and offered at about one-half former prices. Dolls, for instance, that used to sell for 25c, 50c and $1, now sell for 13c, 25c and 50c. This great saving has come about in buying in large quantities direct from manufacturers and importers for cash.

Our assortment of cheap and fine Books this year surpasses all former years. It is just wonderful what a nice 12mo you can buy now for 13c to 15c, and the toy books and booklets for the little ones are just lovely and cheap, too.

The Art Department

is just perfectly captivating. It would be useless to undertake to give anything like a description of it. The variety of elegant articles is large, and it seems as if the makers of them had really outdone themselves. Prices here too are cut about in half from a year or so ago.

And in the line of Gloves, Handkerchiefs, Hosiery, Laces, Ribbons, and other needs we are simply prepared to supply all wants.

In ladies' coats, capes, skirts, etc, there never has been a time in the history of this county when prices were so low as now. We show the latest and most fashionable styles at just as low prices as in New York.

And in fact throughout the entire establishment the most elaborate preparations have been made for an enormous Holiday Trade, at least doubling that of a year ago.

The citizens of Plainfield have in fact little excuse to go out of town now to do their shopping, with such an establishment as the Commercial Palace in their midst packed brimful of elegant new seasonable goods and offered at such astonishingly low prices.

The Chrissmas display this year will surpass all our former efforts Save money by going with the crowds to Edsall's.

The bowlers of the Y. M. C. A. meet a team from the Young Men's League of Hope chapel tonight on the latter's alleys.

The Plainfield Catholic Club bowling team goes to Jersey City this evening to roll a game against the Catholic Club of that city.

The match between the bowlers of the Plainfield Club and those of the Crescent Wheelmen has been postponed until after election.

The next game in the Central Journal Bowling League will be rolled this evening at Cranford between the team from that place and the New Jersey Athletic Club.

One of the most interesting games of the season will be rolled at Plainfield Friday night, when the E. A. C. ten will stack up against the Crescents. The cranks have been awaiting an opportunity to see what these clubs would do to each other.—Elizabeth Journal.

BASKET BALL.

The second game in the Y. M. C. A. basket ball championship contest will be held this evening. Leal's School team and the Borough's meet.

The game of basket ball at the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium this evening will be between the Borough's and the Olympics instead of the Borough's and the Leal School team.

WHIST.

The Killaloo Whist Club will resume its meetings next week.

A game for the State whist trophy will be played this evening at the Park Club house between their team and one from the Elizabeth Whist Club.

VARIOUS SPORTS.

The Young Men's Association are already planning to put a strong baseball team on the field next year.

THEATRICAL.

The above pantomimic comedy which has had such wonderful success everywhere will be seen at Music Hall tonight. The Brothers Byrne are a rarely progressive firm of clever artists and in this season's production will give their many admirers a rare treat, for they have perfected a number of new and startling tricks besides several scenic effects that are a marvel of stage-craft. An outlay of a large sum of money by these inimitable pantomimists results in one of the most realistic stage productions before the public.

The most exacting critic of variety will find something to interest and amuse him at Proctor's Pleasure Palace in New York this week. The management thoroughly understands the art of constructing a vaudeville show that appeals to ever taste. Here week after week is presented a programme in which the cream of dozens of farce comedies are whipped deliciously together so as to form a tonic for the most jaded theatre goer. The Vaidis Sisters in their clever acrobatic acts have a prominent place, and Clara Wieland, with some new and "catchy" songs, made her usual hit. Les Eduardos were well received.

In spite of the fact that DuMaurier & Potter's "Trilby" ran for several months at the Garden Theatre to the largest business New York has known for years, its reproduction has been as successful as ever. The handsome house is crowded to the doors every night, and the presentation itself is, if anything, more fascinating than before, for Mr. Lackaye has amplified and given a new meaning to his wonderful performance of "Svengali." and Miss Walsh is an ideal "Trilby." The other members of the ideal cast remain the same. It should be remembered that "Trilby will be seen only two more weeks in New York.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh That Contain Mercury.

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces, such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten-fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. Back Again.

Dr. E. B. Lighthill

of New York City,

whose practice in Plainfield has proved such a wonderful success has opened an office at

134 Crescent Avenue

(next door to his former residence) where he can be consulted from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m., on

of each week.

DR. LIGHTHILL makes the treatment of deafness, catarrh and diseases of the throat, lungs and heart a specialty.

Piles radically and permanently cured in a few weeks without the use of the knife, ligature or cautery and without pain or detention from business. The most desperate cases yield unfailingly to Dr. Lighthill's unique method of treatment, with guaranteed success. Fistula, fissure and ulcers of the rectum are also completely and permanently cured without the knife or other surgical operation

Diseases of the bowels, bladder and stomach, mental and nervous derangements, diseases of the skin and blood and all chronic and obstinate complaints affecting the human system, of whatever name or nature, are successfully treated.

DR. LIGHTHILL refers with pardonable pride to the remarkable cures of his former practice in Plainfield and to the reputation which he established throughout the State. He has in his possession hundreds of testimonials from well-known residents of Plainfield and vicinity, which can be seen at his office.

TOO BAD

The big surprise came a day or two late, but we are not in business to spin fairy tales about our competitors, neither do we pay for advertising space to fill it with a lot of twaddle about our competitors goods. We believe in straightforward competition, but we sympathize with them in their attack of trade indigestion, but such means will never cure it, as an old farmer once said, "When you hear a loud squeal in the back of the barn you can assume that the pig is either hurt, scared or hungry." We have placed on sale the auction——— and we invite your inspection of the goods, compare them, note the difference in the price There is no doubt

CONGRESS IN SESSION

Reed Elected Speaker by a Majority of 102.

The Rules of the Fifty-first Congress Adopted in the House — Officers Chosen—Organization of the Senate—Waiting for the President's Message, Due at Noon To-day.

Washington, Dec. 3.—The machinery for the organization of the house of representatives worked yesterday in a very satisfactory manner and without the slightest jar. Mr. Reed of Maine, in pursuance of the unanimous decision of the republican caucus, was elected to the speakership by a vote of 224, as against 95 for Mr. Crisp of Georgia, the democratic candidate; six for Mr. Bell of Colorado, the populist candidate, and one for Mr. Culberson of Texas, democrat. Mr. Reed's speech in taking the chair was brief and incisive. He would not speak for the past, he said; the past could speak for itself. Nor should he speak of the future, as they were not now putting off the harness, but putting it on. But he suggested that those who had acted with wisdom in the past might be fairly expected to act with wisdom in the future.

Officers and Rules of the House.

After the oath of office had been administered to the speaker and all the members the next step in the republican programme—the election of officers—was taken, and Messrs. McDowell of Pennsylvania, Russell of Missouri, Glenn of New York, McElroy of Ohio, and Couden of Michigan were chosen as clerk, sergeant-at-arms, doorkeeper, postmaster and chaplain, respectively. The rules of the fifty-first congress were adopted for the government of the house in the present congress, after an assurance from Mr. Cannon, rep., Ill., who had offered the resolution, that they would hereafter be referred to the committee on rules, and that the house would have an opportunity to discuss the report of the committee. That assurance seemed to satisfy Mr. Crisp, dem., Ga., who had raised the question, and the matter went through without further contention. After some further preliminary proceedings and a drawing for seats in the usual manner, perhaps somewhat in contravention of the anti-lottery law, and in which drawing many of the prizes fell to some of the least known of the members, and many of the blanks to some of the most distinguished, the house, at 3:35 p. m., adjourned till noon to-day.

In the Senate.

There was an unusually large attendance of senators when the fifty-fourth congress convened at noon, the only recorded absentees being Mr. Hill of New York, Mr. Lindsay of Kentucky, Mr. Wolcott of Colorado and the two senators from Louisiana. Senator Palmer of Illinois and Mr. Jones of Arkansas were absent during the first part of the proceedings, but came in time for adjournment. The only interesting feature of the proceedings was the swearing in of the new senators. Being officially advised that the president's message would not be delivered till noon to-day the senate immediately thereafter adjourned till that time.

Democratic Officers.

Three hours were consumed by the house democrats in caucus last evening selecting the four officials of their party to which they are entitled by their minority representation. The veteran Ohioan, Col. Isaac Hill, who was the deputy sergeant-at-arms of the last congress, was elected special employe over H. W. Moler of Illinois, who held the office of cashier in the fifty-third congress. After a long discussion, interspersed with numerous roll calls, Geo. L. Browning of Virginia and Thos. Cokley of New York were elected special messengers. The caucus finished its work by electing Jas. F. English of California, page.

President at the White House.

Now that congress has assembled the president will move to the White House from his country home "Woodley" where he wrote his annual message without disturbance. Mr. and Mrs. Cleveland and their children will take up their resieence for the winter at the executive mansion to-day.

MISSIONARIES IN DANGER.

Nothing Heard from the Baptists in Shensi, China, Since August.

London, Dec. 3.—Great anxiety is felt for the safety of the Baptist missionaries in the province of Shensi, China. No news of them has been received since August. The latest report from them stated that the Mohammedan rebels had captured the city of See Ngan, the capital of the province, and murdered large number of men, women and children.

THE BARITONE SINGER.

An Amusing Incident In the Career of Mr. Clifford Halle.

Clifford Halle, son of Sir Charles Halle, one of England's most famous musicians (who, by the way, was knighted by the queen some years ago), said to the writer:

"I recollect a funny thing that occurred in Port Elizabeth, South Africa, when I was traveling through that country as a baritone singer. The town is rather provincial, and the poundmaster never considers that he has any duties to perform. The hall where I sang was in a portion of the village where donkeys, goats and other domestic animals held considerable of the available space. The night was warm and the main entrance was left open for the purpose of permitting fresh air to enter.

"I had already sung two or three numbers and was announced to render a ballad well known in that part of the world, entitled 'Thou Art Passing Hence, My Brother.' It is full of sympathy and feeling, and as the audience seemed to be alive to my work I did my very best. The orchestra was reasonably good. I had the audience pretty well under control. The conclusion of the song contains the words, 'Brother, brother,' and just as I reached them and my voice was dying away and everybody seemed spellbound a full grown donkey stuck his head in the door and brayed, 'Ye-haw-w-w! Ye-haw-w-w!' seemingly in answer to my words.

"The audience went into convulsions, and the applause I anticipated was turned into howls of mirth. We had to stop right there and conclude the programme. The violinist was all broken up over the accident, and walking up to me with his bow in his hand said, 'Say, Halle, if you expect to make a success of this South Africa tour you have got to keep your relatives away from the front door.'

"On another occasion I sang for the king of Swaziland, old Umbandine, and I had for an audience his 600 wives. Young Shepstone, son of the famous Theopholis Shepstone, the man who plunged England into the Zulu war, was with me, and our orchestra consisted of two banjos. We sang light music, and in concluding I gave them a trill. The old king jumped down from his throne, rushed up to me and wanted to examine my throat. I did it for him several times, and he finally concluded that he could do it himself. The result was a sound that reminded one of a broken snare drum being played by a small boy. He tackled it for two or three days and gave it up on the ground that his throat wasn't built right. He tried to teach it to several of his family, but without success. It was about the only thing I did that seemed to please him, and from that time on until I left I indulged in nothing but songs that had a trill in them. He always made a close examination after each piece, and finally stated that there was something the matter with me."—San Francisco Call

THE CAPITOL CRYPT.

Tragic Story of a Young Bride Who Spent One Night There.

"For several years I was an official guide at the capitol in Washington," said Colonel Brent Stacy of Springfield, O., "and during that time I saw some queer things about the building. But I was always most interested in the wandering ghost in the crypt. Report has it that a soldier was left in the crypt one night and was never heard of afterward, but his spirit is supposed to be wandering around there yet looking for a way out.

"This ghost story has crept into print many times, but that crypt did come very nearly causing a tragedy once. Late one afternoon a young lady, married to a new congressman but a short time, on her first visit to Washington, was shown through the crypt with some friends. Somehow the bride became separated from her friends and couldn't find her way out. The congressman looked for her everywhere, and everybody joined in the search. No trace of her could be found, so they went home thinking she might have gone out ahead of them.

"But she was not there either. Another search was made next morning, and at last they found her way down in one of the darkest passages of the crypt, where she had been all night with the rats and bugs. They picked her up, but when she got home she was a raving maniac. The terrors of the night had been too much for her. The congressman took her to their Illinois home, and I never heard of her afterward until on a recent visit to Jacksonville, Ills. The superintendent of the State Insane asylum is a personal friend of mine, and I called on him. He conducted me through the institution, and while I was passing out of one of the violent wards for women I heard a shriek come from a woman. It startled me, and when I turned my eyes fell upon a wild looking creature whose hair was snow white, but who was apparently yet a young woman. Her figure and features, although the latter had lost their intelligence, bore evidence of great beauty once. 'Who is that woman?' I asked. 'She is the wife of Congressman F——,' he replied. I asked him no more about her, because I knew only too well the story of her misfortune, and was only too glad to dismiss the horrible details of her mental dethronement and confinement from my mind."—Kansas City Times.

is easy enough with the help of Randolph's Emulsion. It's a regular step ladder we might say. You get over the cough easily and quickly. In fact, all our drugs are step ladders to help one over every kind of earthly ailment But coughs are what we particularly want to speak of today, for there is a long hard winter before us, and the person who starts it off with a cough may never see the end of it. Therefore if a cough is what you have take Randolph's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil with phosphoric acid.

What Was He Made For?

By JOHN HABBERTON.

[Copyright, 1895, by the Author.]

Such was the question which every right hearted inhabitant of New Rochester had asked himself about Sam Minney many times during the twenty odd years which had elapsed since New Rochester was first settled. In Rochester proper, from which the colonists of the new town had labored through several hundred miles of wilderness, it had been the common impression that Sam was made to be either a preacher, a lawyer or a member of congress. Both his parents were intellectual, and their only child had inherited their talents so completely that when he was 4 years of age he occasionally stood upon a table in the minister's parlor and read aloud "Paradise Lost" with evident feeling and appreciation, although greatly to the disgust of many larger boys, who had been dragged away from their favorite sports to behold this model for Rochester youth. As he grew in years and intelligence, and his parents were too poor to complete his education, some wealthy persons supplied the money which enabled Sam to graduate, at 19, from an eastern college.

After he graduated, however, Sam did not at once begin to give practical evidences of the ability which he was supposed to possess. In fact, he developed no special ability at all, except as a connoisseur in smoking tobacco. The ministers all liked him, for he enabled them to recall their own college days, but the other citizens began to remark to each other that Sam Minney wasn't doing much. At last, after receiving several hints on the subject of unused talents, Sam became clerk in a store. All his customers liked him exceedingly, perhaps because he was too good natured to stand out against an ordinarily vigorous beating down. His peculiar sort of ability gained Sam an early release from the thraldom of the counter, but no lawyer stood ready to seize him as a student and prospective partner. Not even a Rochester editor seemed anxious to secure Sam as an assistant.

"He ought to go west," was the final decision of Rochester. He needed something to stir him up, and in the west he could get it. So Sam joined a party of colonists who were to leave Rochester for the far west—i. e., Indiana. As every other man was obliged to designate his occupation Sam called himself a land surveyor and actually traded away a great many books for a second-hand theodolite. Experience proved that he had reasoned rightly, for his services were not required more than an hour in a week during the first year of the colony, while the schoolmaster who was employed by the people in the following year proved as capable a surveyor as Sam and a great deal more trustworthy in point of time.

What Sam did after that it is doubtful whether he himself could tell. He seemed to get a sudden start in the world when a new and well to do storekeeper employed him as private tutor to his half dozen large children. We say advisedly that this employment gave him a sudden start, for it enabled him to obtain a much needed suit of clothes on credit, an achievement which would shortly before have been impossible. The merchant's children made considerable progress, but hardly in the direction contemplated by their parents. The boys learned more college songs than mathematics, while the oldest daughter found Sam so agreeable that she exhibited symptoms of falling in love with him.

For a long time after Sam's discharge by the merchant his only business efforts consisted in running in debt for his board. As $1 per week was the price of board at New Rochester in those days his transactions in this line were not large, but he could conscientiously say that in this respect at least he did his best. But, after receiving notices to quit from every one at New Rochester who ever took boarders, Sam conceived a desire to visit the sunny south, in which land he understood existence might be maintained without labor. He embarked for New Orleans on a flatboat, or rather he became one of the crew of such a boat, and for five weeks told jokes in the little cabin and grumbled when he was called on duty. After he parted from his mates at New Orleans the citizens of New Rochester heard no more of him for a year, when suddenly he reappeared just after an upward bound steamer had left New Rochester. His clothing was not overneat, and the shoulders of his coat were rubbed through in the manner peculiar to the "roustabout" (deckhand). He brought no baggage ashore with him and made no secret of the fact that he had been very hard up and had learned to work.

But the good hearted storekeeper who employed Sam immediately on hearing the ex-surveyor's story soon found that his new clerk had forgotten the excellent habit he had learned, but had not been so successful with certain other acquired accomplishments. He had learned to drink, and he parted with not a fragment of his knowledge on this subject. He had learned to make palatable beverages from raw materials, and he freely imparted his knowledge to the customers of the single liquor seller who had crept into New Rochester. He had profited so liberally by the free lunch attachment to the southern barrooms that he suggested the idea of free lunches to the liquor dealer, and the experiment resulted so profitably that the grateful barkeeper made Sam welcome whenever he called. Later, when Sam's patronage seemed rather expensive, the vender of poisons remembered that Sam had never been suspected of theft, so he employed him as barkeeper. Poor Sam was already so far gone that he could not understand why, after his taking this new position, the nondrinking inhabitants ceased to recognize him respectfully. But he had his revenge, although he had not the slightest idea of taking any. His beautiful store of jokes and his fine assortment of funny songs drew into the back door of the liquor shop many likely young men whose parents supposed their sons were visiting their neighbors' daughters.

At last Sam became too much of a drunkard to mix liquors correctly, so he lost his professional position. But Bayne, his late employer, was not a man to go back on his friends, so he let Sam sleep on the bar at night, fed him with his own hired man and woman and occasionally gave him castoff clothing, in return for which kindness Sam took down and put up the shutters, made the fire, chopped wood and made himself incidentally useful in other ways. His principal occupation, however, consisted in rambling about aimlessly and chatting in a desultory manner to whoever would listen to him.

All the ministers tried their hands on Sam, and he cordially agreed with every proposition they advanced. Once, in the midst of an earnest sermon by the Methodist pastor, the subject being, "Our Home In Heaven," poor Sam burst out crying, and his conversion, which took place soon after, was the precursor of a mighty revival. But the brethren were so busy in rejoicing over the reclaiming of Sam's soul that they forgot all about the needs of his body, until one of that peculiar class of benevolent people who must be satan's especial darlings offered him his board in return for a steady job of wood chopping. The new doctor took it upon himself to visit some of the faithful and say that Sam's system could not meet the demands made upon it, and that he must return to his cups if something were not done for him, but the new doctor, besides being a sort of an interloper, was not a religious man and could not be expected to understand the things of the Spirit. So his prophecy was permitted to be fulfilled.

After this relapse Sam went to the dogs. To be sure, the New Rochester dogs never lacked food. Sam hung about sugar camps, loggers' huts, soap boilings and other places where small services would earn a full meal and a bed of leaves. Sam appeared at every temperance meeting and always signed the pledge, and no one who looked into his eyes when he did it could ever accuse him of insincerity. A curious citizen once gave Sam a quarter to publicly put himself under the fingers of a lecturing phrenologist, and the lecturer said something about congenital lack of vitality and imperfect nourishment in early years. For a few moments all good people in the audience thought that something should be done for Sam. Then they wondered what it should be.

The only business to which Sam devoted himself with any earnestness was that of catching sawlogs. About twice a year White river would be suddenly filled by a freshet, and then, with the driftwood, fence rails and other wood which the waters found on the bank, would be an occasional fine log which had been cut for the sawmill, but which the cutter had been unable to get to his raft. These were claimed by whoever could find them adrift, and they brought $1 each at any mill on the river. The catching of these logs was work which exactly suited Sam. It consisted in sitting in a skiff behind a point where there was dead water and looking up the surface of the stream. When a log appeared in sight, he rowed into the stream, drove into the log a spike fastened by a rope to the stern of the boat and towed it to shore. The active exertion required per diem to catch several logs did not consume an hour. The time thus left for smoking, drinking and reflection was considerable. Then the same freshets were the signal and the only means for the start of many flatboats for the south, and it was a poor boat which, on being boarded, could not supply comfort to a thirsty man.

As Sam was log catching during a spring freshet he saw coming down the river a very queer looking little craft, which seemed to be manned by only a single very small person. The rapid current soon brought the craft near enough for him to see that it was a small bridge, made of two logs and several planks, and that the occupant was a little girl, who was crying piteously, and when she saw Sam she held out her hands appealingly. Sam had her in his arms in an instant and exclaimed:

"Where did you come from, little dear?"

"Way off to Raysville," she sobbed, "and I want to go back to mamma."

"Well, don't cry," said Sam. "Raysville is only two miles up the river, and I'll take you home in the skiff right away after I've towed the bridge ashore. How did you get afloat?"

"Why, papa caught the bridge," she said, "and 'twas tied near to the fence where the river was overflowed, and I was playing house on it, and then the next thing I knew it was broke loose and floating off again, and papa'll be awful sorry to lose the bridge, too, 'cause he said it was worth 6 bits."

She held out her hands appealingly.

"Well, he shall have the bridge again if he'll come after it," said Sam, "but he shall have his little girl first."

Sam had hardly noticed where his heavy prize was causing him to drift to and when he looked ahead he saw he was a half mile below his lookout place and opposite a portion of the bank which was overflowed. To tow the bridge against the current would be an impossibility, so Sam pulled toward the shore with all his might, desirous of tying the bridge to some one of the trees on the bank. But the trees, when he reached them, proved to be all large sycamores or cottonwoods, about which Sam could not easily put his arms and rope.

SHAKERS AND DOCTORS TALK TOGETHER.

In his able work entitled "Longevity," published a few years ago, Dr. John Gardner, of England, predicts that a vegetable agent will yet be found that shall so retard those changes that bring about old age as to prolong human life much beyond its present limit

Acting, perhaps, upon the impulse produced by this thought, many eminent physicians have called from time to time upon the Shakers of Mt. Lebanon to inquire of them concerning the secrets of medicinal plants, in which these sincere, simpleminded and God-fearing people are known to be wise and skillful beyond all other men.

The Shakers willingly told what they had learned, and in return received from their visitors much valuable information about disease; which they at once made practical use of. The most important point was that if a genuine and certain remedy could be found for indigestion and dyspepsia, and the ailments growing out of it, a long step would be taken in the right direction. Old age, said these physicians, begins in a failure of the digestion, and so do most diseases of any and all periods of life. The result of these consulations was the discovery by the Shakers of the desired specific, made wholly from herbs, and now known as the Shaker Digestive Cordial. Its action is magical and worthy of its origin.

Where there is distress after eating, heart burn, sick headache, bad taste in the mouth, biliousness, weakness and weariness, cold hands and feet, aversion to food, nervousness, or any other symptom of dyspepsia, the Cordial will prove its curative virtues. Behind it is the reputation of a people who have never defrauded or deceived their fellow men.

In order to test whether this remedy is adapted to your case, at practically no cost, you may procure a trial bottle for ten cents at almost any druggist

Important Facts.

If you have dull and heavy pain across forehead and about the eyes; if the nostrils are frequently stopped up and followed by a disagreeable discharge; if soreness in the nose and bleeding from the nostrils is often experienced; if you are very sensitive to cold in the head accompanied with headache; then you may be sure you have catarrh, and should (immediately) resort to Ely's Cream Balm for a cure. The remedy will give instant relief.

"FIT FOR A KING."

The Royal Blue Line, a Railroad That Eclipses Regality Itself.

"A royal train, believe me," Shakespeare makes one of his characters exclaim in King Henry VIII. And to one who looks for the first time upon the sumptuous glories of a Royal Blue Line train the idea of regality must instinctively suggest itself. Indeed, it may well be questioned whether any of the potentates of the Old World enjoy such superb facilities of travel as those which are at the service of the uncrowned kings of unmonarchial America, whose citizen is a sovereign.

As an example of the pitch of perfection to which the science of transportation has attained in this country, take the famous route of travel between New York, Philadelphia and Washington, known as the Royal Blue Line. It has been termed the highest type of the fin de siecle railroad. But it is more—it reaches a decade or two into the possibilities of the next century, a prophecy, so to speak, turned into an actuality, and a courier that moves far in advance of the main body of railway progress.

To particularize, the Royal Blue Line connects Philadelphia with New York and New England to the eastward, and with Baltimore and Washington to the southward, with connections reaching Florida, New Orleans, and the great empire of the Southwest. It is composed of portions of the Central R. R. of New Jersey, the Philadelphia & Reading and the Baltimore and Ohio Railroads. As the Reading Railroad was the first to establish two-hour trains between New York and Philadelphia, so was this "triple alliance" the pioneer in giving the public five-hour trains between the Metropolis and the National Capitol. The trains are notable for their unique construction, and celebrated for their sumptuous elegance and comfort. The fast time made on the Royal Blue Line is a matter of wide notoriety, and it continues to hold the only properly authentic record for the highest speed ever attained by any railway train in the world.

The trains from Philadelphia to New York and to Washington comprise a schedule ample in extent and admirably adjusted as to time of departure, most of them connecting closely with trains coming in over the various lines of the Reading System from the eastern and central portions of Pennsylvania. All of these connections are made beneath the roof of the magnificent Reading Terminal, the most beautiful, as well as one of the most extensive railway stations in the world. For the further convenience of travelers, through tickets and baggage checks to all important points reached by or via the Royal Blue Line are supplied at most of the Reading Railroad stations throughout Pennsylvania and New Jersey.

"Wouldn't Stick, Nohow."

He was an old colored servant who had lived with us "befoh de wah" and who loved and reverenced us with that devotion and personal appropriation which is seldom found outside the negro race.

One morning he came into the family sitting room and began at the door the series of little ducks to his body without which he could never be persuaded into my presence.

"Well, Washington, what is it?" I asked.

After some more ducks he came up to my chair, and, holding out an indescribably dirty envelope, he mournfully informed me:

"I wuz writin to Sairy Ann, Mis' Robbins, but de 'v'lope just won't work. I licked an licked, but he won't stick nohow, an I jus' thou't yo' did hit so easy mebbe yo'd lick hit fur me."

As it was impossible to instruct Washington in ethics I presented him with a fresh envelope.—New York Herald.

A Snap Shot's Story.

An enthusiastic Philadelphia amateur photographer caught a capital snap shot while at Asbury Park, showing a man who was pitched out of a rowboat just as it was being beached with a party from a yacht. The man struck the water hands first, and the camera caught him with his heels high in the air. While traveling in the west the photographer met a company of gentlemen, and in the course of conversation seashore experiences were taken up. One of the group related that while at Asbury Park he had had a queer adventure while coming in shore from a yacht. The amateur had the photograph in question with him and thereupon produced it, picturing the very occurrence of which the participant was telling.—Philadelphia Call.

Misapprehended.

"Miss Barretts," said the young man suddenly, "I must see your father concerning something very dear to me; something that may affect my whole life"—

"Dear me, this is so sudden," said the young woman.

"Why, no; so very sudden. I announced my name as a candidate for councilman more than four weeks ago. Do you think he will vote for me?"—Chicago Dispatch.

Accommodating.

Mother—So you have broken your engagement with Charlie to become engaged to Dick, have you?

Daughter—Oh, no, mamma, I just bent it around a little to accommodate the demand.—Detroit Free Press.

Where necessity ends curiosity begins, and no sooner are we supplied with everything that nature can demand than we sit down to contrive artificial appetites.—Johnson.

The temperature of Norway varies little, and statistics show that the average duration of life there is greater than in any part of the world.

Great Reduction in Time to California.

Once more the Northwestern Line has reduced the time of its trans continental trains, and the journey from Chicago to California via this popular route is now made in the marvelously short time of three days. Palace drawing room sleeping cars leave Chicago daily, and run through to San Francisco and Los Angeles, without change, and all meals en route are served in dining cars. Daily tourist sleeping car service is also maintained by this line between Chicago and San Francisco and Los Angeles, completely equipped berths in upholstered tourist sleepers being furnished at a cost of only $6 each from Chicago to the Pacific Coast. Through trains leave Chicago for California at six p. m. and 10.45 p. m. daily, after arrival of trains of connecting lines from the east and south. For detailed information concerning rates, routes, etc., apply to ticket agents of connecting lines or address: H. A. Gross, G. E. P. A., 423 Broadway, New York, or T. P. Vaille, S. E. P. A., 112 South Fourth street, Philadelphia, Pa. tf.

All Aboard, Boys.

You'll be away behind time if you can't command a fleet of toy war boats. They're here in sets of six, as natural as Uncle Sam's cruisers that sail the salty seas. This is a bran new idea in toys for bright American lads. Each boat is 8 inches long, fitted out with funnels, cannon, etc. A half set will cost your mamma but 50c, and a whole set only 95c, and goodness! what a world of fun you can have with a little navy of your own.

THE LITTLE FELLOWS

who are ambitious to become a sailor man will be tickled with the "Boston." 19 inches long, 2 funnels, 2 masts with military tops, 2 life boats and 6 movable cannon, only 23c.

Still a Bigger Boat,

The "New York," 28 inches long, 3 funnels, 2 masts, with military tops, 8 ventilators, 4 life boats and 8 movable cannon. This boat was built to bring 50c, but we have lowered it to the easily reachable price of 38c.

EVENING OF CLASSICAL MUSIC.

THE BENEFIT CONCERT AT MONROE AVENUE CHAPEL A SUCCESS.

The Attendance Was Large and the Different Numbers Excellently Rendered—Those that Took Part and the Selections.

The walk in the clear and cold atmosphere last evening, made the benefit concert at the Monroe Avenue chapel seem all the more enjoyable. The beautiful full moon tempted many to come out and add their quarters to the furnishing fund of the library building. The concert was tendered to the Ladies Aid Society by Mrs. Anita Tovell, celloist; L. H. Bigelow, baritone; P. Ludwig Conde, violinist; and E. Arthur Janke, pianist. Miss Julia J. Ketchum was to have taken part, but a severe cold prevented her.

Those preseut were treated to a delightful evening of music rendered by those taking part, each one of which is a master. The different numbers, which were all classical, were rendered with a skill that made them all the more enjoyable to a lover of music. P. Ludwig Conde played especially well and deserved the praise he received. Mr. Bigelow's singing was also very good, while Mr. Janke pleased all his hearers by his excellent rendition of all his selections. Mrs. Trovell showed her excellence on the 'cello.

The programme opened with a trio from Wohlfahrt, Mrs. Trovell, and Messrs Conde and Janke. Then followed a selection, "Romanza" from one of Grieg's Sonatas by violin and piano. Mr. Biglow sang "Evening Air" by Wagner, and gave as his encore that beautiful lullaby by DeKoven "Ferry to Shadowtown." A violin solo by Mr. Conde, "Cavatina" by Raff, was vigorously applauded. "Fantaisie Impromptu" by Chopin, and "Romanza" by Schumann were next rendered by Mr. Janke and closed the first part.

Another of Conde's violin solos, "Preis Lied, Meistersinger" by Wagner, was heartily applauded, and then Mr. Bigelow in the solo "Margarette" by Helmun, received his share of praise and gave "Good Night" by Dvorack, as his encore.

The programme closed with a selection by violin and piano "Rondo" from a Sonata by Beethoven.

A Praise Service.

The Woman's Home Missionary Society of the Crescent Avenue church will hold a praise meeting on Friday, December 6th, in the church parlors, at half-past three o'clock. An interesting address is expected by Mrs. Grant, a medical missionary, who has been laboring among the Waldonses in North Carolina.

A Thrilling Effect.

Among other numbers on Friday evening George Riddle will give scenes from Victor Hugo's "Lucrezia Borgia," of which the New York Tribune speaks thus: "Mr. Riddle has never produced a more thrilling effect or left a stronger impression on the minds of his hearers than in 'Lucrezia Borhia.'"

Board of Health at Work.

A meeting of the City Board of Health was held last evening and an ordinance passed which allows no connection to be made with the sewer without the permission of the representative of the Board. This ordinance will be published and will go into effect at once. Routine business was trancacted.

Mr. Robinson says: "Chamberlain's Pain Balm is the only thing that gave her any rest from pain. For the relief of pain it cannot be beat." Many very bad cases of rheumatism have been cured by it. For sale at 50 cents per bottle by Reynolds' Pharmacy, Park and North avenues. T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

ORGAN LOFT ILLUMINATED.

First Presbyterian Church Adopts a Simple But Important Improvement.

Ordinarily, in examining or tuning church organs, candles are carried about in the different parts to see to make the repairs or changes. The consequences have been disastrous in several cases, notably in Henry Ward Beecher's church in Brooklyn. The fire, which destroyed the church, was caused by a lighted candle being left in the organ, which burned down so low that the woodwork caught.

The First Presbyterian church of this city, after having a motor put in to pump the organ, concluded, on the suggestion of Willard M. Miner, a prominent electrician of this city, to have the organ loft completely illuminated by five incandescent electric lights. The lights are only used for a short time, but are always ready when wanted, lighting the organ completely from top to bottom as bright as any ordinary room. This not only gives a superior light to the the tuner or repair man, but it is also an absolute safeguard against fire. The First Presbyterian church is the only church in Plainfield which has this inovation, and as far as is known, the only one in the State.

Funny Paper That is Funny.

The first number of Clips, a new and handsome "funny paper" just issued in New York has been received. To the jaded gentleman whose business it is to read "first numbers" of alleged humorous publications it is indeed a relief to find something, once in a way, bright, vivacious and eminently readable. There is already a large number of clever periodicals of this nature and one might think that the field of humor was nearly exhausted, but in spite of this fact, or perhaps because of it, Clips has issued a very promising initial copy. The editorial shears have been well directed and the best of the humor of the world is clipped each week and cemented together with original matter of interest and merit. All this, to say nothing of the original illustrations, is served to you on the news stands for five cents. The artistic work is in charge of H. B. Eddy, the famous illustrator of Chimmie Fadden, and the other departments are in equally competent hands. Clips should have a prosperous career.

Funeral of Miss Sauer.

The funeral services of the late Miss Lena Sauer whose sad death occurred at Muhlenberg Hospital Sunday afternoon were held from Warren Chapel yesterday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock and were largely attended by friends.

Rev. J. O. McKelvey, pastor, conducted the service and spoke very tenderly of the decedent.

The floral tributes consisted of a handsome pillow from her Sunday-school class, bearing the inscription "Asleep in Jesus," a cross from unknown friends and several bunches of cut flowers.

The pall-bearers were Augustus Wilson, Samuel Terry, Jr., Harry Adams and Arthur Adams. Interment was in Hillside cemetery.

A Big Time.

F. L. C. Martin has returned from his trip to Atlanta with the "Crescent" people and he expresses the time they had as a very "large" one. The big wheelmen's dinner, given by R. Lindley Coleman, president of the Western Wheel Company, was greatly enjoyed by all, while the exposition was a great attraction. Mr. Martin brings back with him a box of cotton that he picked himself, besides a number of other souvenirs of the trip.

THE REPUBLICAN WAY.

The Whole City Carried by Big Pluralities for Them.

GEO. DEMEZA MAKES A GREAT RUN.

The Election Was Without Exciting Incident, the Voters Casting Their Ballots Silently—Elias H. Bird Goes Into the Collector's Office With 445 Plurality, While DeMeza Gets a Majority Over All—Official Conduct of Mayor Gilbert and the Common Council Endorsed, Notwithstanding the Lies Circulated by the Disgruntled and Disappointed Party Organ.

The Citizens' and Wheelmen's party was born in a day and though it was a fairly lively youngster for a short time, it succumbed to the avalanche of Republican votes yesterday and now lies in the tomb of the defeated.

The campaign leading up to yesterday's election was a remarkably tame one, and the scenes around the polls yesterday was in keeping with the previous spirit.

There was no cat hauling and pulling by the workers and the votes that were polled were cast by men who did it in a quiet manner. The heaviest voting was done after one o'clock. In nearly all the districts the election boards did not finish their work until three and four o'clock this morning.

The run which George DeMeza made for City Judge was a surprise of everyone. He was the only man who received a majority of all the votes cast.

George W. DeMeza was born twenty-four years ago at Hartford, Conn., but came here before he was one year old, and was educated in private and public schools. When only sixteen, his father died, throwing him upon his own resources; he started life as an office boy with Schepflin & Co., for one year, then teok up the study of law with Jackson & Codington, one of the leading law firms in New Jersey. Mr. DeMeza was admitted to the bar at the age of twenty-one, and the day following he started in business for himself in the First National Bank building. His first case in the Superior Court met with success and his success has been looked upon as something remarkable for so young a man. He is spoken of by lawyers as being blessed with a brilliant future. He has the finest office in this city, consisting of three rooms, three clerks and one stenographer. This is his first attempt at office seeking.

The plurality of 445 which Elias H. Bird received was the cause of his receiving innumerable congratulations this morning personally and by telephone.

The detailed vote follows:

POMPEY'S WIDOW WRATHY.

She Pulled a Revolver and Threatened to Shoot Ex-Senator Corle.

Mrs. Pompey Lane, colored, is in the Somerset county jail on a charge of assaulting ex Senator Calvin Corle. The affair took place in front of the Second National Bank, on Main street, at Somerville, yesterday.

Mr. Corle had left the building with ex-Sheriff B. F. Totten, when Mrs Lane, who is a middle aged woman with white hair and wears gold eyeglasses, stepped up and demanded that he pay her money which he is holding in trusting for her.

Mr. Corle told her he would pay her when the money was due and not before.

The woman was very angry, and as Mr. Corle turned away she pulled a revolver from the folds of her dress and pointed it at his breast. Ex-Sheriff Totten caught her hand and pushed it aside. The woman was then overpowered and taken before Justice Sutpher, who committed her to the county jail in default of $2,000 bail.

Mrs. Lane is the widow of one of the most prosperous colored men in the county. They lived at Neshanic until Pompey Lane's death two years ago. Since that time the widow has been keeping a boarding house in town. She is a tall, handsome woman, and quite a leader among the colored folks.

When Pompey Lane died he left a farm and considerable property. Mr. Corle was made the administrator. Mrs. Lane has had a strange hallucination that Mr. Corle was withholding her money from her. She made frequent calls upon him for it.

Mr. Corle says that he has always paid her as the will of her husband provided, and he could not do more.

THE JUNIOR RALLY.

Young Endeavorers As Active As the Older Ones.

That the Junior Christian Endeavor Society can equal the Senior Society in interest and activity was conclusively shown last evening at their rally in the Trinity Reformed church, at which time a large audience was present. A large platform had been erected and the members were provided with seats. Mrs. Wheaton Lowry, the local president, was in charge and D. E. Titsworth led the singing, accompanied by Miss Emma V. Fish on the piano. Several hymns were rendered by the society, after which E. E. Anthony announced that he had received two telegrams from State President Arthur Spooner stating that his wife was ill, and also that he had been taken ill, and in consequence was not able to be present. He then introduced Rev. C. E. Herring, who had been secured in Mr. Spooner's place. He gave a highly interesting object talk on "Lights," making use of various sized candles to explain the same.

This was followed with a duet by Viola Hellyer and Florence Cuming. the whole society joining in the chorus. Mr. Anthony followed with a few remarks in which he asked the audience to hold up their right hands, after which he said now put them in your pockets for the ushers are going to take up a collection. As an offertory Lindly Hillman rendered a violin solo, accompanied by Miss Poole.

A few sentence prayers and testimonies as to what the society had done for the juniors was then given. Another violin solo by Lindley Hillman preceeded a very interesting exercise by the following: Norman Hill, Violet VanWinkle, Harold Smalley, Fanny Fisk, Wm. Remsen, Lillian Richardson, Charles Hellyer, and Marion Shotwell. Each one wore a placard bearing the monogram "C E." Upon the removal of them the word Junior came into view.

A hymn by the society and the benediction by Rev. C. E. Herring brought the rally to a close.

CAMP HAND ELECTS.

Sons of Veterans Choose Officers for the Ensuing Year.

The following officers were elected at the meeting of John Hand Camp, No. 28, S. of V., last evening, to serve for the ensuing year:

Captain, W. S. Sutton; First Lieutenant, C. F. Stephens; Second Lieutenant, H. C. McVoy; Camp Council, Charles Graves, Jr., L. E. Eaton, James Stryker; Delegates at Large to Division Encampment, H. J. Martin; Alternate, Fred Sutton; Delegate, C. F. Stephens; Alternate, Raymond McVoy.

The balance of the evening was devoted to routine business and the admission of L. E. Eaton by transfer card from the Alfred, N. Y., Camp.

High School Notes.

The weather is growing colder and the ice is forming on the lakes, therefore the interest among the boys is increasing and a "hocky team" is being talked of and will soon be formed.

A recitation was given yesterday morning by Mildred Titsworth entitled "The Orchestra."

As the three upper classes of the school all sit in one room the class spirit is small and feeble, therefore it is quite a problem for the classes to know how to decorate the room with their class colors. All three classes will have to unite and combine the many colors in the way in which they blend the best, leaving the platform and the forward part of the chapel to the class of '96 to decorate.

Bicycle Men Meet.

The Board of Trustees, of the Plainfield Bicycle Club met last evening at the home of George P. Mellick, of La Grande ayenue. Those present were President D. M. VanVliet, F. L. C. Martin, J. W. Sandford, Jr., A. L. C. Marsh. G. P. Mellick, Townsend Rushmore, M. W. Daboll and T. S. Burr. Routine business was transacted.

Major C. T. Picton is manager of the State Hotel, at Denison, Texas, which the traveling men say is one of the best hotels in that section. MOHAMMED WAS ILLITERATE.

DR. RIGGS EXPLAINS THE CHARACTERISTICS OF MOHAMMEDISM.

Its Power in the Eastern Countries Shows Much Vitality in Spite of Many Corruptions—Other Points of Interest.

The chapel of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church was well filled last night with interested listeners to the second of Dr. James F. Riggs' University Extension lectures on the Eastern Question. The subject for the evening was "Mohammed and Mohammedism."

One of the great central facts with which we have to deal in studying the Eastern Question, said Dr. Riggs, is the religion known as "Islam." It is a remarkable combination of truth and error, and has shown an amazing vitality in spite of many corruptions.

At the time of Mohammed's birth, the Christianity of the world was almost worse than none. The greatest learning and piety ware shut up in the monasteries, and the large cities were a hot bed of vice.

Mohammed was born at Mecca about A. D. 569, and began to preach about 609. It is certain that it first he was perfectly sincere. His aim was to break down polytheism and to bring men back to the pure faith of their fathers. He made a genuine effort for reform. But later he began to waiver in his allegiance to truth.

The Mohammedans have many strange legends covering the founder of their father, a large number of which they accept as implicitly true. For example, there is the story of the "night journey to heaven," which represents Mohammed as going to heaven on the stud of the lightning, seeing the wonders of heaven and hell, talking with Moses, and receiving, face to face with God, a detailed description of what the new faith was to be.

Mohammed was an untaught, illiterate man. There is no adequate reason for his success, aside from his own personality; he had enormous native force of character.

Mohammedanism is the protest of the East against idolatry. The articles of faith are six:—God, predestination, angels, both good and bad, books, chiefly the Koran, prophets, the resurrection and the final judgment. In the teaching on these points, there is a curious blending of truth borrowed from the Hebrew scriptures, and errors of every imaginable sort.

The Mohammedan has five duties; prayer, five times a day, almsgiving, fasting, specially during the month Ramazan, pilgrimage and war against the infidel. The last two duties are not now very strictly observed.

Dr. Riggs closed his lecture by reading a few short selections from Mohammedan sacred literature, after which a large number of those present remained to the conversation class which Dr. Riggs conducts at the close of each lecture.

A MATCH FOR A CIGARETTE.

It is Thrown on a Y. M. C. A. Carpet and Starts a Blaze.

Plainfield's handsome Y. M. C. A. building came very near being the scene of a disastrous fire last evening.

The final rehearsal for the Old Folks Concert was being held in the hall and during one of the intervals between the different numbers William M. MacClymont, who is in charge of the concert, noticed several faces at the door and went out to see who they were. As he opened the door into the hall, two boys ran out, each puffing on a cigarette. Then Mr. MacClymont noticed a lighted match that had been thrown on the floor and had already set fire to the matting. As the fire had only just started he easily stamped it out, but there was excitement for a few moments. It is a strict rule of the Y. M. C. A. that no one is allowed to smoke in the building.

An Erroneous Statement.

The statement published in The News that the pupils in St. Mary's School were to participate in the dances of the firemen's fair is entirely false. They are pupils of Madame Bartlett.

When most needed it is not unusual for your family physician to be away from home. Such was the experience of Mr. J. Y. Schenck, editor of the Caddo, Ind. Ter., Banner, when his little girl, two years of age was threatened with a severe attack of croup. He says: "My wife insisted that I go for the doctor, but as our family physician was out of town I purchased a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, which relieved her immediately. I will not be without it in the future." 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by Reynoldss' Pharmacy, Park and North avenues. T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

Only Finance and Foreign Relations Touched.

Disappointment Followed the Issue of Bonds--Increased Revenues No Cure for Our Troubles--Legislation on Our Money System Urged on Congress--The Only Practical Remedy.

Washington, Dec. 3.—The president's message to congress, read in both branches to-day, dealt only with finance and foreign relations. The main points follow:

To the Congress of the United States: The present assemblage of the legislative branch of our government occurs at a time when the interests of our people and the needs of the country give especial prominence to the condition of our foreign relations and the exigencies of our national finances. The reports of the heads of the several administrative departments of the government fully and plainly exhibit what has been accomplished within the scope of their respective duties and present such recommendations for the betterment of our country's condition as patriotic and intelligent labor and observation suggest. I therefore deem my executive duty adequately performed at this time by presenting to the Congress the important phases of our situation as related to our intercourse with foreign nations, and a statement of the financial problems which confront us, omitting, except as they are related to these topics, any reference to departmental operations.

The Waller Case.

The customary cordial relations between this country and France have been undisturbed, with the exception that a full explanation of the treatment of John L. Waller by the expeditionary mililitary authorities of France still remains to be given.

Following the course justified by abundant precedents, this government requested from that of France the record of the proceedings of the French tribunal which resulted in Mr. Waller's condemnation. This request has been complied with to the extent of supplying a copy of the official record, from which appear the constitution and organization of the court. But the evidence adduced in support of the charges—which was not received by the French minister for foreign affairs till the first week in October—has thus far been withheld, the French government taking the ground that its production in response to our demand would establish a bad precedent. The efforts of our ambassador to procure it, however, though impeded by recent changes in the French ministry, have not been relaxed, and it is confidently expected that some satisfactory solution of the matter will shortly be reached. Meanwhile it appears that Mr. Waller's confinement has every alleviation which the state of his health and all the other circumstances of the case demand or permit.

The Venezuela Trouble.

Our relations with Great Britain, always intimate and important, have demanded during the past year even a greater share of consideration than is usual. It being apparent that the boundary dispute between Great Britain and the republic of Venezuela concerning the limits of British Guiana was approaching an acute stage, a definite statement of the interest and policy of the United States as regards the controversy seemed to be required both on its own account and in view of its relations with the friendly powers directly concerned. In July last, therefore, a dispatch was addressed to our ambassador at London for communication to the British Government, in which the attitude of the United States was fully and distinctly set forth. The general conclusions therein reached and formulated are in substance that the traditional and established policy of this government is firmly opposed to a forcible increase by any European power of its territorial possessions on this continent; that this policy is as well founded in principle as it is strongly supported by numerous precedents; that as a consequence the United States is bound to protest against the enlargement of the area of British Guiana in derogation of the rights and against the will of Venezuela; that, considering the disparity in strength of Great Britain and Venezuela, the territorial dispute between them can be reasonably settled only by friendly and impartial arbitration, and that the resort to such arbitration should include the whole controversy, and is not satisfied if one of the powers concerned is permitted to draw an arbitrary line through the territory in debate and to delare that it will submit to arbitration only the portion lying on one side of it. In view of these conclusions, the dispatch in question called upon the British Government for a definite answer to the question whether it would or would not submit the territorial controversy between itself and Venezuela in its entirety to impartial arbitration. The answer of the British government has not yet been received, but is expected shortly, when further communication on the subject will probably be made to Congress.

Great Britain and Nicaragua.

In last year's message I narrated at some length the jurisdictional questions then freshly arisen in the Mosquito Indian strip of Nicaragua. Since that time, by the voluntary act of the Mosquito nation, the territory reserved to them has been incorporated with Nicaragua, the Indians formally subjecting themselves to be governed by the general laws and regulations of the republic instead of by their own customs and regulations, and thus availing themselves of a privilege secured to them by the treaty between Nicaragua and Great Britain of January 28, 1860. After this extension of uniform Nicaraguan administration to the Mosquite strip the case of the British vice-consul, Hatch, and of several of his countrymen who had been summarily expelled from Nicaragua and treated with considerable indignity, provoked a claim by Great Britain upon Nicaragua for pecuniary indemnity, which, upon Nicaragua's refusal to admit liability, was enforced by Great Britain. While the sovereignty and jurisdiction of Nicaragua was in no way questioned by Great Britain, the former's arbitrary conduct in regard to British subjects furnished the ground for this proceeding. A British naval force occupied without resistance the Pacific seaport of Corinto, but was soon after withdrawn upon the promise that the sum demanded would be paid. Throughout this incident the kindly offices of the United States were invoked and were employed in favor of as peaceful a settlement and as much consideration and indulgence toward Nicaragua as were consistent with the nature of the case. Our efforts have since been made the subject of appreciative and grateful recognition by Nicaragua.

The Cuban Insurrection.

Cuba is again gravely disturbed. An insurrection, in some respects more active than the last preceding revolt, which continued from 1868 to 1878, now exists in a large part of the eastern interior of the island, menacing even some populations on the coast. Besides deranging the commercial exchanges of the island, of which our country takes the predominate share, this flagrant condition of hostilities, by arousing sentimental sympathy and inciting adventurous support among our people, has entailed earnest effort on the part of this government to enforce obedience to our neutrality laws and to prevent the territory of the United States from being abused as a vantage ground from which to aid those in arms against Spanish sovereignty. Whatever may be the traditional sympathy of our countrymen as individuals with a people who seem to be struggling for larger autonomy and greater freedom, deepened as such sympathy naturally must be in behalf of our neighbors, yet the plain duty of their government is to observe in good faith the recognized obligations of international relationship. The performance of this duty should not be made more difficult by a disregard on the part of our citizens of the obligations growing out of their allegiance to their country, which should restrain them from violating as individuals the neutrality which the nation of which they are members is bound to observe in its relations to friendly sovereign states.

Armenian Massacres.

Occurrences in Turkey have continued to excite concern. The reported massacres of Christians in Armenia and the development there and in other districts of a sprit of fanatic hostility to Christian influences naturally excited apprehension for the safety of the devoted men and women who, as dependents of the foreign missionary societies in the United States, reside in Turkey under the guarantee of law and usage and in the legitimate performance of their educational and religious mission. No efforts have been spared in their behalf, and their protection in person and property has been earnestly and vigorously enforced by every means within our power. I regret, however, that an attempt on our part to obtain better information concerning the true condition of affairs in the disturbed quarter of the Ottoman empire, by sending thither the United States consul at Sivas to make investigation and report, was thwarted by the objections of the Turkish government. The presence of our naval vassels which are now in the vicinity of the disturbed localitities affords opportunities to acquire a measure of familiarity with the condition of affairs and will enable us to take suitable steps for the protection of any interests of our countrymen within reach of our ships that might be impeiilled. Our minister has been vigilant in affording all possible protection in individual cases where danger threatened or safety was imperilled. We have sent ships as far toward the points of actual disturbance as it is possible for them to go, where they offer refuge to those obliged to flee, and we have the promise of other powers which have ships in the neighborhood that our citizens, as well as theirs, will be received and protected on board those ships. Though thus far no lives of American citizens have been sacrificed, there can be no doubt that serious loss and destruction of mission property have resulted from riotous conflicts and outrageous attacks. By treaty several of the most powerful European powers have secured a right and have assumed a duty, not only in behalf of their own itizens, but as agents of the Christian world. Their right is to enforce such conduct of Turkish government as will restrain fanatical brutality, and if this fails their duty is to so interfere as to insure against such dreadful occurrences in Turkey as have lately shocked civilization. The powers declare this right, and this duty to be theirs alone, and it is to be earnestly hoped that prompt and effective action on their part will not be delayed.

FINANCIAL SITUATION.

A Matter Requiring Prompt and Wise Treatment

As we turn from a review of our foreign relations to the contemplation of our national financial situation we are immediately aware that we approach a subject of domestic concern more important than any other that can engage our attention, and one in such a perplexing and delicate predicament at present as to require prompt and wise treatment. We may well be encouraged to earnest effort in this direction when we recall the steps already taken toward improving our economic and financial situation, and when we appreciate how well the way has been prepared for further progress by an aroused and intelligent popular interest in these subjects. By command of the people a customs revenue system, designed for the protection and benefit of favored classes at the expense of the great mass of our countrymen, and which, while inefficient for the purpose of revenue, curtailed our trade relations and impeded our entrance to the markets of the world, has been superseded by a tariff policy which in principle is based upon a denial of the right of the government to obstruct the avenue to our people's cheap living or lessen their comfort and contentment for the sake of affording special advantages to favorites, and which, while encouraging our intercourse and trade with other nations, recognizes the fact that American self-reliance, thrift and ingenuity can build up our country's industries and develop its resources more surely than enervating paternalism. The compulsory purchase and coinage of silver by the government, unchecked and unregulated by business conditions and heedless of our currency needs, which for more than fifteen years diluted our currency medium, undermined confidence abroad in our financial ability, and at last culminated in distress and panic at home, has been recently stopped by the repeal of the laws which forced the reckless scheme upon the country. The things thus accomplished, notwithstanding their extreme importance and beneficent effects, fall far short of curing the monetary evils from which we suffer as a result of long indulgence in ill-advised financial expedients. The currency denominated United States notes and usually known as greenbacks was issued in large xuantities during the inte civil war and was intended originally to meet the exigencies of that period. It will be seen by a reference to the debates in congress at the time the laws were passed authorizing the issue of these notes that their advocates declared they were for only temporary use and to meet the emergency of war. In almost if not all the laws relating to them some provision was made contemplating their vountary or compulsory retirement. A large quantity, however, were kept on foot and mingled with the currency of the country, so that at the close of the year 1874 they amounted to $381,999,073. Immediately after that date, and in January, 1875, a law was passed providing for the resumption of specie payments, by which the secretary of the treasury was required, whenever additional circulation was issued to national banks, to retire United States notes equal in amount to 80 per cent. of such additional national bank circulation until such notes were reduced to $300,000,000. This law further provided that on and after the 1st day of January, 1879, the United States notes then outstanding should be redeemed in coin, and in order to provide and prepare for such redemption the secretary of the treasury was authorized not only to use any surplus revennes of the government, but to issue bonds of the United States and dispose of them for coin and to use the proceeds for the purposes contemplated by the statute. In May, 1878, and before the date thus appointed for the redemption and retirement of these notes, another statute was passed forbidding their further retirement and cancellation. Some of them had, however, been previously redeemed and cancelled upon the issue of additional national bank circulation, as permitted by the law of 1875, so that the amount outstanding at the time of the passage of the act forbidding their further retirement was $346,681,016.

Redeemed Without Redemption.

The law of 1878 did not stop at distinct brohibition, but contained, in addition, the following express provision. "And when any of said notes may be redeemed or be received into the treasuay, under any law, from any source whatever, and shall belong to the United States, they shall not be retired, cancelled, or destroyed, but they shall be reissued and paid out again and kept in circulation." This was the condition of affairs on the 1st day of January, 1879, which had been fixed upon four years before as the date for entering upon the redemption and retirement of all these notes, and for which such abundant means had been provided. The government was put in the anomalous situation of owing to the holders of its notes, debts payable in gold on demand which could neither be retired by receiving such notes in discharge of obligations due the government, nor cancelled by actual payment in gold. It was forced to redeem without redemption and to pay without acquittance. There had been issued and sold $95,500,000 of the bonds authorized by the resumption act of 1875, the proceeds of which, together with other gold in the Treasury, created a gold fund deemed sufficient to meet the demands which might be made upon it for the redemption of the outstanding United States notes. This fund, together with such other gold as might be from time to time in the Treasury available for the same purpose, has been since called our gold reserve, and $100,000,000 has been regarded as an adequate amount to accomplish its object. This fund amounted on the 1st day of January, 1879, to $114,193,360, and though thereafter constantly fluctuating, it did not fall below that sum until July, 1892. In April, 1893, for the first time since its establishment, this reserve amounnted to less than $100,000,000, containing at that date only $97,011,330. This reserve has from that time to the present, with very few and unimportant upward movements, steadily decreased, except as it has been temporarily replenished by the sale of bonds.

Causes of the Shrinkage.

Among the causes for this constant and uniform shrinkage in this fund may be mentioned the great falling off of exports under the operation of the tariff law until recently in force, which crippled our exchange of commodities with foreign nations and necessitated to some extent the payment of our balances in gold; the unnatural infusion of silver into our currency, and the increasing agitation for its free and unlimited coinage, which have created apprehension as to our disposition or ability to continue gold payments; the consequent hoarding of gold at home and the stoppage of investments of foreign capital, as well as the return of our securities already sold abroad; and the high rate of foreign exchange, which induced the shipment of our gold to be drawn against, as a matter of speculation. In consequence of these conditions the gold reserve on the 1st day of February, 1894, was reduced to $65,438,377, having lost more than $31,000,000 during the preceding nine months, or since April, 1893. Its replenishment being necessary, and no other manner of accomplishing it being possible, resort was had to the issue and sale of bonds provided for by the resumption act of 1875. Fifty millions of these bonds were sold, yielding $58,633,295.71, which was added to the reserve fund of gold then on hand. As a result of this operation this reserve, which had suffered constant and large withdrawals in the meantime, stood on the 6th day of March, 1894, at the sum of $107,446,802. Its depletion was, however, immediately thereafter so accelerated that on the 30th day of June, 1894, it had fallen to $64,873,025, thus losing by withdrawals more than $42,000,000 in five months and dropping slightly below its situation when the sale of $50,000,000 in bonds was effected for its replenishment. This depressed condition grew worse, and on the 24th day of November, 1894, our gold reserve being reduced to $57,669,701, it became necessary to again strengthen it. This was done by another sale of bonds amounting to $50,000,000, from which there was realized $58,538,500, with which the fund was increased to $111,142,021 on the 4th day of December, 1894. Again disappointment awaited the anxious hope for relief. There was not even a lull in the exasperating withdrawals of gold. On the contrary, they grew larger and more persistent than ever. Between the 4th day of December, 1894, and early in February, 1895, a period of scarcely more than two months after the second reinforcement of our gold reserve by the sale of bonds, it had lost by such withdrawals more than $69,000,000, and had fallen to $41,340,181. Nearly $43,000,000 had been withdrawn within the month immediately preceding this situation. In anticipation of impending trouble, I had on the 28th day of January, 1895, addressed a communication to Congress fully setting forth our difficulties and dangerous position, and earnestly recommending that authority be given the Secretary of the Treasury to issue bonds bearing a low rate of interest, payable by their terms in gold, for the purpose of maintaining a sufficient gold reserve, and also for the redemption and cancellation of outstanding United States notes and the Treasury notes issued for the purchas of silver under the law of 1890. This recommendation did not, however, meet with legislative approval.

Situation Critical.

In February, 1895, therefore, the situation was exceedingly critical. With a reserve perilously low and a refusal of congressional aid, everything indicated that the end of gold payments by the government was imminent. The results of prior bond issues had been exceedingly unsatisfactory, and the large withdrawals of gold immediately succeeding their public sale in open market gave rise to a reasonable suspicion that a large part of the gold paid into the treasury upon such sales was promptly drawn out again by the presentation of United States notes or treasury notes and found its way to the hands of those who had only temporarily parted with it in the purchase of bonds. In this emergency, and in view of its surrounding perplexities, it became entirely apparent to those upon whom the struggle for safety was devolved not only that our gold reserve must, for the third time in less than thirteen months, be restored by another issue and sale of bonds bearing a high rate of interest and badly suited to the purpose, but that a plan must be adopted for their disposition promising better results than those realized on previous sales. An agreement was therefore made with a number of financiers and bankers whereby it was stipulated that bonds described in the resumption act of 1875, payable in coin thirty year after their date, bearing interest at the rate of four per cent. per annum, and amounting to about $62,000,000, should be exchanged for gold, receivable by weight, amounting to a little more than $65,300,000. This gold was to be delivered in such installments as would complete its delivery within six months from the date of the contract, and at least one-half of the amount was to be furnished from abroad. It was also agreed by those supplying this gold that during the continuance of the contract they would by every means in their power protect the government against gold withdrawals. The contract also provided that if congress would authorize their issue, bonds payable by their terms in gold and bearing interest at the rate of three per cent. per annum might within ten days be substituted at par for the four per cent. bonds described in the agreement. On the day this contract was made its terms were communicated to congress by a special executive message, in which it was stated that more than sixteen million dollars would be saved to the government if gold bonds bearing three per cent. interest were authorized to be substituted for those mentioned in the contract. The congress having declined to grant the necessary authority to secure this saving, the contract, unmodified, was carried out, resulting in a gold reserve amounting to $107,571,230 on the 8th day of July, 1895. The performance of this contract not only restored the reserve, but checked for a time the withdrawals of gold and brought on a period of restored confidence and such peace and quiet in business circles as were of the greatest possible value to every interest that effects our people. I have never had the slightest misgiving concerning the wisdom or propriety of this arrangement, and am quite willing to answer for my full share of responsibility for its promotion. I believe it averted a disaster the imminence of which was, fortunately, not at the time generally understood by our people.

Large Withdrawals Predicted.

Though the contract mentioned stayed for a time the tide of gold withdrawals, its good results could not be permanent. Recent withdrawals have reduced the reserve from $107,571,230 on the 8th day of July, 1895, to $79,333,966. How long it will remain large enough to render its increase unnecessary is only matter of conjecture, though quite large withdrawals for shipments in the immediate future are predicted in well-informed quarters. About $16,000,000 has been withdrawn during the month of November. The foregoing statement of events and conditions develops the fact that after increasing our interest-bearing bonded indebtedness more than $162,000,000 to save our gold reserve we are nearly where we started, having now in such reserve $79,333,966, as against $65,438,377 in February, 1894, when the first bonds were issued.

Only Practical Remedy.

I am convinced the only thorough and practical remedy for our troubles is found in the retirement and cancellation of our United States notes, commonly called greenbacks, and the outstanding treasury notes issued by the government in payment of silver purchases under the act of 1890. I believe this could be quite readily accomplished by the exchange of these notes for United States bonds of small as well as large denominations, bearing a low rate of interest. They should be long-term bonds, thus increasing their desirability as investments, and because their payment could be well postponed to a period far removed from present financial burdens and perplexities, when with increased prosperity and resources they would be more easily met. To further insure the cancellation of these notes, and also provide a way by which gold may be added to our currency in lieu of them, a feature in the plan should be an authority given to the secretary of the treasury to dispose of the bonds abroad for gold if necessary to complete the contemplated redemption and cancellation, permitting him to use the proceeds of such bonds to take up and cancel any of the notes that may be in the treasury or that may be received by the government on any account. The increase of our bonded debt involved in this plan would be amply compensated by renewed activity and enterprise in all business circles, the restored confidence at home, the reinstated faith in our monetary strength abroad, and the stimulation of every interest and industry that would follow the cancellation of the gold-demand obligations now afflicting us. In any event the bonds proposed would stand for the extinguishment of a troublesome indebtedness, while in the path we now follow there lurks the menance of unending bonds, with our indebtedness still undischarged and aggravated in every feature. The obligations necessary to fund this indebtedness would not equal in amount those from which we have been relieved since 1884 by anticipation and payment, beyond the requirements of the sinking fund, out of our surplus revenues. The currency withdrawn by the retirement of the United States notes and treasury notes, amounting to probably less than $486,000,000, might be supplied by such gold as would be used on their retirement or by an increase in the circulation of our national banks. Though the aggregate capital of those now in existence amounts to more than $664,000,000, their outstanding circulation based on bond security amounts to only about $190,000,000. They are authorized to issue notes amounting to ninety per cent. of the bonds deposited to secure their circulation, but in no event beyond the amount of their capital stock, and they are obliged to pay one per cent. tax on the circulation they issue.

Bank Circulation.

I think they should be allowed to issue circulation equal to the par value of the bonds they deposit to secure it, and that the tax on their circulation should be reduced one-fourth of one per cent. which would undoubtedly meet all the expense the government incurs on their account. In addition they should be allowed to substitute or deposit in lieu of the bonds now required as security for their circulation those which would be issued for the purpose of retiring the United States and treasury notes. The banks already existing, if they desired to avail themselves of the provisions of the law thus modified, could issue circulation in addition to that already outstanding, amounting to $478,000,000, which would nearly or quite equal the currency proposed to be canceled. At any rate, I should confidently expect to see the existing national banks or others to be organized avail themselves of the proposed encouragements to issue circulation, and promptly fill any vacuum and supply every currency need. It has always seemed to me that the provisions of law regarding the capital of national banks which operates as a limitation to their location fails to make proper compensation for the suppression of state banks, which came near to the people in all sections of the country and readily furnished them with banking accomodations and facilities. Any inconvenience or embarrassment arising from these restrictions on the location of national banks might well be remedied by better adapting the present system to the creation of banks in smaller communities or by permitting banks of large capital to establish branches in such localities as would serve the people—so regulated and restrained as to secure their safe and conservative control and management. But there might not be the necessity for such an addition to the currency by new issues of bank circulation as at first glance is indicated. If we should be relieved from maintaining a gold reserve under conditions that constitute it the barometer of our solvency, and if our treasury should no longer be the foolish purveyor of gold for nations abroad or for speculation and hoarding by our citizens at home, I should expect to see gold resume its natural and normal functions in the business affairs of the country and cease to be an object attracting the timid watch of our people, exciting their sensitive imaginations. Whatever is attempted should be entered upon fully appreciating the fact that by careless, easy descent we have reached a dangerous depth, and that our ascent will not be accomplished without laborious toil and struggle. We shall be wise if we realize that we are financially ill and that our restoration to health may require heroic treatment and unpleasant remedies. In the present stage of our difficulty it is not easy to understand how the amount of our revenue receipts directly affects it. The important question is not the quantity of money received in revenue payments, but the kind of money we maintain and our ability to continue in sound financial condition. We are considering the government's holdings of gold as related to the soundness of our money and as affecting our national credit and monetary strength. If our gold reserve had never been impaired; if no bonds had ever been issued to replenish it; if there had been no fear and timidity concerning our ability to continue gold payments; if any part of our revenues were now paid in gold, and if we could look to our gold receipts as a means of maintaining a safe reserve, the amount of our revenues would be an influential factor in the problem. But unfortunately all the circumstances that might lend weight to this consideration are entirely lacking.

No Gold Received.

In our present predicament no gold is received by the government in payment of revenue charges, nor would there be if the revenues were increased. The receipts of the treasury, when not in silver certificates, consists of United States treasury notes and treasury notes issued for silver purchases. These forms of money are only useful to the government in paying its current ordinary expenses, and its quantity in government possession does not in the least contribute toward giving us that kind of safe financial standing or condition which it built on gold alone. If it is said that these notes if held by the government can be used to obtain gold for our reserve, the answer is easy. The people draw gold from the treasury on demand upon United States notes and treasury notes, but the proposition that the treasury can on demand draw gold from the people upon them would be regarded in these days with wonder and amusement. And even if this could be done, there is nothing to prevent those thus parting with their gold from regaining it the next day or the next hour by the presentation of the notes they received in exchange for it.

Inasmuch as the withdrawal of our gold has resulted largely from fright, there is nothing apparent that will prevent its continuance or recurrence, with its natural consequences, except such a change in our financial methods as will reassure the frightened and make the desire for gold less intense. It is not clear how an increase in revenue, unless it be in gold, can satisfy those whose only anxiety is to gain gold from the government's store. It can not therefore be safe to rely upon increased revenues as a cure for our present troubles. I can not but think there has been some confusion of ideas regarding the effects of the issue of bonds and the results of the withdrawal of gold. It was the latter process and not the former that by substituting in the treasury United States notes and treasury notes for gold increased by their amount the money which was in the first instance subject to ordinary government expenditure. It is neither unfair nor unjust to charge a large share of our present financial perplexities and dangers to the operation of the laws of 1878 and 1890 compelling the purchase of silver by the government, which not only furnished a new treasury obligation upon which its gold could be withdrawn, but so increased the fear of an overwhelming flood of silver and a forced descent to silver payments that even the repeal of these laws did not entirely cure the evils of their existence. No government, no human contrivance or act of legislation has ever been able to hold the two metals together in free coinage at a ratio appreciably different from that which is established in the markets of the world. Those who believe that our independent free coinage of silver at an artificial ratio with gold of 16 to 1 would restore the parity between the metals, and consequently between the coins, oppose an unsupported and improbable theory. Those who advocate a blind and headlong plunge to free coinage in the name of bimetallism and professing the belief, contrary to all experience, that we could thus establish a double standard and a concurrent circulation of both metals in our coinage, are certainly reckoning from a cloudy standpoint. In conclusion I especially entreat the people's representatives in the congress to promptly and effectively consider the ills of our critical financial plight. I have suggested a remedy which my judgment approves. I desire, however, to assure the congress that I am prepared to cooperate with them in perfecting any other measure promising thorough and practical relief.

GROVER CLEVELAND.

"BAT" SHEA'S CASE.

His Lawyers Will File Their Briefs Next Week.

Albany, Dec. 4.—Calen E. Hitt and John T. Norton, counsel for "Bat" Shea, who is at Clinton prison awaiting electrocution for the murder of Robert Ross in Troy, were with Gov. Morton yesterday. As a result it was announced that the lawyers had agreed to forego their request for a private hearing at the governor's suggestion and to file their briefs containing their arguments by Monday or Tuesday of next week at the latest. Counsel will make their main argument for a commutation of sentence, but in any event will ask a respite so that the execution need not occur during the holidays.

POISONED THEMSELVES.

Charles Abbott and Wife Found Dead in Bed.

Holyoke, Mass., Dec. 4—Charles C. Abbott and his wife, Julia, were discovered dead about 6 o'clock in the evening in their rooms on High street, having apparently poisoned themselves. They had apparently been dead since Monday. Abbott was a fireman in Coburn Trolley Track company, and was about 55 years old, and the woman, who was his third wife, was about 38. Despondency on account of poverty probably caused the act.

BICYCLE THIEVES HELD.

Three Men Under Arrest at Rockland Lake, N. Y.

Nyack, N. Y., Dec. 4.—Henry Shiebel, Joseph Goldstein, Ernest Ruprecht and H. Swartwout, who were arrested in New York last Sunday for stealing many bicycles and for several burglaries at Rockland Lake and Congers City, had an examination before Justice Reimer at Rockland Lake yesterday afternoon. They were committed to the county jail to await the action of the grand jury.

TWO FIREMEN KILLED.

Damage to the Amount of $400,000 Caused at Indianapolis.

Indianapolis, Dec. 4.—A fire which resulted in the death of two firemen and the injury of three others, did damage amounting to nearly $400,000 in the wholesale district on South Meridian street yesterday, laying the quarter of a square in ruins and burning out seven large concerns.

BARBARA AUB INDICTED.

True Bill Found Against Her by the Grand Jury.

New York, Dec. 4.—Barbara Aub, who confessed that she perjured herself in appearing against Walter Langerman, whom she charged with criminal assault, the latter being convicted on her testimony, has been indicted by the grand jury.

Explosion of a Retort.

Nashua, N. H., Dec. 4.—A retort filled with molten iron exploded at the register works of William Highton & Son on Otterson street. Matthew Protey, one of the employes, was badly burned about the body and legs and taken to the hospital. John Kelley, another workman, was seriously burned and taken to his home. Other workmen were injured.

The Clevelands in Washington.

Washington, Dec. 4.—The president and Mrs. Cleveland and their children resumed their residence at the white house yesterday after a sojourn at Woodley since their return from Buzzard's Bay.

Now let us settle down to business.

It is a crushing defeat for Editor Runyon.

It was the votes that counted; not the affidavits.

Editor Runyon's boycott didn't amount to much.

Honest now, did you read the President's message through?

Cobb-like people are wondering where Editor Runyon is at.

No Democrat will grace the council chamber after January first.

Plainfield will continue to be the best governed city in New Jersey.

George DeMeza will be the youngest City Judge Plainfield has ever had.

Editor Runyon and the three D's—Dictator, Disgruntled and Defeated.

The people were not as dissatisfied as some dissatisfied people thought they were.

The fact that the Republicans were confronted with a bolting and sulking editor makes their victory all the more gratifying to them.

Either make the cider joints pay a license or close them up. Under no circumstances should they be allowed to flourish on Sunday.

The Daily Press some time ago stated that most bicyclists were bicyclists for sport and not for politics. It was verified yesterday.

Elizabeth is grappling with the too much whiskey question. Plainfield is just beginning to find out that there is too much hard cider within her limits.

Commercial travelers who visit this city assert that it has the most progressive class of merchants of any town anywhere near its size that they deal with. Their enterprise should be encouraged by a liberal patronage during the holidays.

Viewed without the prejudice of partisan victory or defeat the result of yesterday's election means that Plainfield will simply continue to be governed in a straight-forward and business like method by officials who exercise the same careful consideration in the performance of public duties that they do in the work by which they gain a livelihood.

—If you want to enjoy a good hearty laugh attend the Old Folks concert in the Y. M. C. A. hall tomorrow evening, and your desire will be gratified.

Mrs. Robert Binning, of New York, has returned home after a visit with her mother, Mrs. Elijah Stites, of Chatham street.

Mr. Dumont and family, of Hunterdon county, who have been visiting J. P. Laire and family, of East Fifth street, have returned home.

J. Evarts Tracy and family, of West Eighth street, are planning to spend the winter in New York, expecting to leave Plainfield January 1st.

After a week pleasantly spent with her parents on Plainfield avenue Arthur Serrell has returned to his studies at Lehigh University.

Miss Nickols, of Newark, after spending the Thanksgiving week with her uncle, W. R. Mattox, of Webster place, returned home yesterday.

Fred Fullerton, of Montclair, was the guest of Plainfield friends yesterday. Mr. Fullerton was at one time a student at the Harned Academy.

Borough Clerk James K. Arnold and wife will celebrate their silver wedding on Wednesday evening, January 1st, at their home, 21 Manning avenue.

Dr. Henry K. Carroll, of this city, editor of the Independent, delivered an address at Kansas City last Sunday on the subject of "The Progress of Evangelical Christianity in America."

Charles Everitt, of Chatham street, won the prize for drawing in the North Plainfield Public School last week, and is now a student in the Dalziel Manual Training School, of East Front street.

Nothing Like It.

Time brings many changes, but the climate of California, "The Italy of America," and the attractions of the many famous health and pleasure resorts, are the same yesterday, today and forever.

Tourists never will tire of speaking in praise of the soft and balmy air, the profusion of flowers, the magnificent display of fruits, the luxury of seabathing and the beautiful walks and drives.

Then, too, it must be conceded that with such excellent equipment, consisting of Reclining Chair Cars, Pullman Palace Sleepers and Pullman Dining Cars, all heated by steam and lighted with Pintsch Light, the Union Pacific, "The Overland Route," is the tourists favorite. A Great Room

Is this, our "Bargain Room"---now filled more than ever with hundreds of broken sets, manufacturers' samples, etc.---all new and best makes---they're odd pieces tho' and have to go at and often below cost. Each article marked in plain figures --slip in some time---it will pay you well---there are desks, bedroom suits, chairs, tables, etc., etc, The "Portland Range" sells at a fast rate—it's funny, but our salesmen have less trouble to sell this famous range than a $1 chair---it's real worth sticks out all over it---we're the only house where its carried.

A

Big Surprise.

During the year our buyer in the Crockery and China Department has secured from the leading importers in New York their samples in some of the finest imported wares, and laid them aside to bring out as a big surprise for the Special Holiday Trade.

The prices paid for these rich and beautiful wares is only a trifle of their real value, at most not more than one-half to one-third.

We are now offering them for sale at the same proportionately Low Prices as they were bought at. They are not Auction, —— or imperfect goods at all, but every article guaranteed genuine 'firsts' and perfect in every way.

There is nothing in the market to compare with them. Those who purchase them will get the Biggest Bargains ever offered in this line. Don't wait for they will soon be sold.

Notes of Interest.

The Commercial Palace is the center of attraction for the trading public this season more than ever before. In addition to the above attractions many others as important might be mentioned, viz:

has been greatly enlarged; now covering floor space over one hundred feet long and twenty-five feet wide in the big basement.

Here a grand display of everything almost in this line is made and offered at about one-half former prices. Dolls, for instance, that used to sell for 25c, 50c and $1, now sell for 13c, 25c and 50c. This great saving has come about in buying in large quantities direct from manufacturers and importers for cash.

Our assortment of cheap and fine Books this year surpasses all former years. It is just wonderful what a nice 12mo you can buy now for 13c to 15c, and the toy books and booklets for the little ones are just lovely and cheap, too.

The Art Department

is just perfectly captivating. It would be useless to undertake to give anything like a description of it. The variety of elegant articles is large, and it seems as if the makers of them had really outdone themselves. Prices here too are cut about in half from a year or so ago.

And in the line of Gloves, Handkerchiefs, Hosiery, Laces, Ribbons, and other needs we are simply prepared to supply all wants.

In ladies' coats, capes, skirts, etc, there never has been a time in the history of this county when prices were so low as now. We show the latest and most fashionable styles at just as low prices as in New York.

And in fact throughout the entire establishment the most elaborate preparations have been made for an enormous Holiday Trade, at least doubling that of a year ago.

The citizens of Plainfield have in fact little excuse to go out of town now to do their shopping, with such an establishment as the Commercial Palace in their midst packed brimful of elegant new seasonable goods and offered at such astonishingly low prices.

The Chrissmas display this year will surpass all our former efforts Save money by going with the crowds to Edsall's.

Two Forty-Eight.

For a woman's double sole neat, stylish, serviceable boot, button and lace, sizes 3 to 7, B, C and D width. These are fresh stylish goods direct from the manufacturers, made to retail at $3.50 a pair, and they're cheap at that. Our special price,

Two Forty-Eight.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh That Contain Mercury.

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces, such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten-fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

PRESENTATION TO THE LIBRARY.

Valuable Acquisition of Job Male's Naturalization Papers.

The regular meeting of the Board of Directors of the Public Library was held at the Library last night and was called to order by the President. There were present Directors M. W. Tyler, A. C. Baldwin, J. Evarts Tracy, Wm. H. Larrabee, J. B. Dumont, J. W. Yates and Wm. M. Stillman.

The minutes of the meeting of October 3d, were read and approved,

On motion, Miss Mary K. Jobs was engaged as Assistant-Librarian in place of Miss Davie, resigned, at the same salary, the employment to date from November 1, 1895, at which time she began her service.

A communication was received from Messrs. J. C. Pope & Co., donating to the Library the framed letter of naturalization issued to the late Job Male, in 1834. On motion the communication was ordered received and placed on file and the secretary requested to extend the the thanks of the Board for the gift.

The library committee reported progress in the matter of purchasing books, and that they had authorized the employment of extra assistance to the librarian for three days in each week at the rate of fifty cents each day, believing it to be necessary and proper expense. On motion the action of the committee was approved and their report ordered received.

It was moved and carried that the communication of Miss Adams and the subject matter of binding referred to in same be referred to the library committee with authority to order the binding done if in their judgment they think best.

Minnie Lester Tonight.

Minnie Lester and her admirable company, band and orchestra, will play the celebrated drama, "The Danites," at Music Hall tonight. Miss Lester and her company gave a splendid performance of "Danger's Friend," at the matinee today. Matinees will be given on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday, and the price of admission is ten cents to all parts of the house for everybody. Jack Sheppard will be played Saturday night for the last time.

—H. M. Jaquett has a fine display of underwear on exhibition to day at exceedingly low prices.

—The regular business meeting of the W. C. T. U. will be held on Thursday at 3:30, to be followed by an informal reception to Miss Rachel Mair, who leaves for Africa next Saturday. The friends of Miss Mair are cordially invited to be present.

Miss Margerite Yerkes, of Central avenue, is spending a few weeks in Philadelphia with friends.

Crooked.

"Crooked?" remarked the colonel from Texas, who has just returned from an extended visit in Boston, "Crooked, sah! Why, I never saw such crooked and such narrow streets in my life. Whenever I met a gentleman about my own build"—and he swelled up to his fullest capacity to give color to the remark—"either he or I had to crowd into an alley to let the other by, and it was very inconvenient, sah, very."

"Boston streets and sidewalks are not as wide as we have them here?" queried The Star man, who had been listening very attentively.

"Well, I rather reckon not. And crooked! I think the men who laid out the old streets of Boston must have used the letter S and figure 8 for diagrams. Just to show you, I was walking along Washington street, one of the principal business streets one afternoon, and about a rod ahead of me I saw the back of a man I thought I knew—something about his build and clothing that seemed very familiar—so I hurried up to catch him. He started forward at a more rapid gait at the same time, but I gained on him, and just as we reached a turn in the street a little more abrupt than usual I put my hand on his shoulder. At the same instant I felt a hand on my shoulder, and looking around, who do you suppose I saw?"

"Can't imagine," replied The Star man.

"Myself. Dang my buttons if I hadn't put my hand on my own shoulder! Fact, I assure you." And he hurried away to get ready for his duties the next day as Sunday school teacher.—Washington Star.

Lack of Care Ruins Clothes.

It is not water, but lack of care, that makes a bedraggled mass of one's best gown in a couple of months, and often it suffers most when not being worn. The way shopkeepers care for ready made garments is an excellent object lesson. Coat hangers are cheap, but half a barrel hoop, linen wound, with a loop in the middle, is even cheaper and answers the purpose as well. These are for heavy skirts, waists and jackets. Thin garments should not be hung at all, as they grow stringy. These should be folded with light paper stuffed in sleeves and bows.

Crispi, the Italian premier, never leaves his work, even during the terrors of a Roman summer. Like Napoleon, he is a very light sleeper. He eats little, and neither smokes nor drinks anything stronger than his three liters of milk per day.

The Cloak Store

The busiest season of cloak-selling we have ever experienced. Again dozens of new cloaks, new capes, practically, as well as stylish and beautiful. Boucle cloth, beavers and meltons, those of perfect quality and excellent make, start at $7.45, cheaper cloaks, maybe, as low as $4.50. Embroidered plush capes start at $8.29 and stop at $30. Double capes all-wool material, at $3.75, some at $5.19.

Blankets

Rather than have much to say about them we prefer to have you call and be surprised at the good things in the blanket stock, be surprised at the littleness of the cost. All-wool, part wool and cotton, although we prefer to sell pure wool blankets. A little more profit for us, better satisfaction for you. Price commences at $4 pair.

Get Good Gloves

If you know about gloves, you'll take pleasure in looking at our stock—you'll enjoy wearing them. The latest kid gloves of reliable brands represented. Best fabric gloves not high priced, but plenty of satisfaction and good wear.

Underwear

Where quality and economy join hands. That little underwear talk last week brought a volume of trade. The careful and economical buyer gets the quality without the high price at this underwear store. Plenty of "specials" for the coming week, which our salespeople will be pleased to tell you about when you call.

BAY STATE ELECTIONS

The Citizens of Twenty-one Cities Cast Their Votes.

Unlooked-for Results in a Number of Places—Several of the Muncipalities Decide in Favor of License—North Adams' Maiden Vote as a City.

Boston, Dec. 4.—Twenty-one of the thirty-two cities in the commonwealth held their municipal elections yesterday, including North Adams, which cast its maiden vote as a city and elected Hon. A. C. Houghton its first mayor. In New Bedford the election was a contest between the citizens' party and the independent citizens' party, headed respectively by David L. Parker and Stephen A. Brownell. Parker was elected by 818 plurality and his entire ticket for aldermen and fifteen of his ticket for common councilmen out of twenty-four were successful. License won. In Marlboro, Bartlett, rep., defeated Curley, dem. The republicans have three of the seven aldermen and eight of the fourteen councilmen. License won. The republicans in Lawrence elected George C. Jenkins, mayor, over Leonard, dem., five of the six aldermen and a majority of the council. License won. In Fall River Mayor W. S. Greene was re-elected by the republicans over Murphy, dem. The republicans elected six of the nine aldermen and sixteen of the twenty-seven councilmen. License won. In Haverhill, Benjamin F. Bricket. dem., defeated Jewett, ind., the present mayor. The city government is republican. License won. David I. Robinson, the A. P. A. candidate in Gloucester, secured the mayoralty over Cook, ind. rep., the present incumbent. License defeated. In Northampton mayor H. F. Field was re-elected by the republicans. The aldermen are 4 democrats and 3 republicans; common council, 16 republicans, 4 democrats. License won. Mayor Rockwell, running on an independent citizens' ticket, was re-elected at Fitchburg over Bond, citizens' temperance candidate. The independent citizens' ticket for aldermen and councilmen was also successful. License defeated. In Taunton Benjamin Morris, dem., for mayor defeated John T. Hawkins, rep. The city council is republican. License won. In Quincy there was something of a surprise by the election of Charles Francis Adams, dem. and ind., over Charles L. Hammond, rep., also indorsed by the A. P. A. The city government is republican. License defeated. The republican and citizens' ticket headed by Clarence O. Walker for mayor was successful in Malden, defeating Farnham, ind. The city government is republican. License defeated. Springfield had a political overturn, and for the first time in her history the democrats have control of all departments, electing a mayor, 5 out of 8 aldermen and 10 out of 16 councilmen.

NICARAGUAN AFFAIRS.

Indians Expected To Renew Allegiance to Chief Clarence.

New York, Dec. 4.—Advices from Bluefields show that Nicaragua is in arrears in the paymert of the salary of Chief Hanley. The Indians are dissatisfied and it is expected that they will renew their allegiance to Chief Clarence, who was deposed by the Nicaraguan government and subsequently went to Kingston, Jamaica, where he is said to be in receipt of a stipend from the British government.

TO LOOK INTO THE PLAN.

Consolidation of All Postoffices Within 30 Miles of Boston.

Boston, Dec. 4.—Word has been received from Washington that a corps of postal inspectors will arrive in Boston in a few days, presumbaly for the purpose of investigating the feasibility of the scheme for the consolidation of the postoffices within a radius of thirty miles of Boston with the Boston system, as recommended by Postmaster Coveney and favored by the attorney general.

Admiral Gervais May Be Acquitted.

Paris, Dec. 4.—The commission of inquiry as to the responsibility of Admiral Gervais for the grounding of the French warships Formidable, Admiral Courbet and Admiral Baudin in the Mediterranean has concluded its sittings. The Gaulois expresses the opinion that Admiral Gervais wil be acquitted.

Condition of Newfoundland.

St. Johns, N. F., Dec. 4.—It is understood that Gov. Murray is arranging for the appointment of three commissioners to investigate and report upon the condition of the colony. He will recommend reforms in the public service, especially a remodelling of the finanyial arrangements.

Rochester, N. H., Election.

Rochester, N. H., Dec. 4.—At the city election yesterday Samuel E. Felker, dem., was elected mayor by 57 majority. The council will stand 16 republicans, 2 democrats.

Democrats Win at Hudson, N. Y.

Hudson, N. Y., Dec. 4.—At the charter election held yesterday the democrats elected nearly all the city officers by large majorities.

THE BREWSTERS DISASTER.

Laborers Refuse To Search Longer for the Bodies.

Brewsters, N. Y., Dec. 4.—Yesterday twelve Italians were indnced to go down with Foreman Lynch into the pit at the Tilly Foster mine to recover the remaining three bodies. At short intervals during the moving chips of rock rolled down from the overhanging walls. A force of men on top constantly watched the walls in order to warn their brother miners below should danger threaten, and a wall of heavy boulders was erected to shelter the men below in case of another slide of rock. At noon all hands quit work and the men were taken out of the pit and would not go down again. A. Richard King, a new mine inspector, who has arrived at Brewsters, will make a thorough examination to-day. Without doubt he will be subpoenaed by Coroner Penny to be a witness at the inquest, which will be held this afternoon, over the bodies recovered.

THE NEW BATTLESHIPS.

Fight on Between the Cramps and the Newport News Company.

Washington, Dec. 4.—The Cramps and the Newport News Shipbuilding company have locked horns over the bids for the construction of two battleships, and each will make a determined fight for the contracts, which will amount in all to nearly $7,000,000. The Union works of San Francisco is also interested and proposes to contest vigorously for one of the vessels, although it did not come within $400,000 of the bid of the Newport News company, on the ground that it was the intention of congress to have one of the ships constructed on the Pacific coast if a reasonable bid was received.

RAILWAY STATION ROBBED.

Money and Tickets Taken from the Erie Station at Belleville, N. J.

Newark, N. J., Dec. 4.—The Erie railroad station at Belleville was robbed some time during the night. The thieves, after the station had been closed, gained an entrance by forcing a catch on a window in the front of the station. The ticket case and money drawer were broken open. Considerable money was taken. Fifty trip tickets good between New York and Belleville, many excursion tickets and some single tickets were stolen.

SECRETARY MORTON INJURED.

A Cinder in His Eye Renders Him Temporarily Blind.

Washington, Dec. 4.—Secretary Morton, who returned to Washington from his western trip on Sunday, has since been confined to his room by a painful accident to one of his eyes. A cinder flew into it while on his way to Chicago and failing to be promptly dislodged so irritated it that when he reached here he was unable to see, the well eye sympathizing with its fellow A few days' rest will remove all trouble is easy enough with the help of Randolph's Emulsion. It's a regular step ladder we might say. You get over the cough easily and quickly. In fact, all our drugs are step ladders to help one over every kind of earthly ailment But coughs are what we particularly want to speak of today, for there is a long hard winter before us, and the person who starts it off with a cough may never see the end of it. Therefore if a cough is what you have take Randolph's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil with phosphoric acid.

What Was He Made For?

By JOHN HABBERTON.

[Copyright, 1895, by the Author.]

Suddenly, while making a violent effort to throw the end of a rope around one of the trees, his boat careened so much that both the occupants were thrown into the water. The child screamed, but Sam seized her in an instant and was delighted to find that the water was only waist deep. But in the meantime the bridge and boat were both moving away with the current, and, as is always the case with drift in a freshet, moving toward the center of the river.

"This is a bad fix to be in," remarked Sam, holding the child above water, "but I'll wade to where there's dry ground, and then we'll find some house where we can dry ourselves."

But Sam did not find it easy to reach dry ground. Behind him the top of a small canebrake showed above water, indicating that the ground there was lower than that on which he stood. He moved cautiously down stream, but was stopped by what seemed to be a small ditch or hollow running at right angles with the river. Then he retraced his steps and moved toward the little point beyond which he always established his lookout, but a thicket of young cottonwoods, eight or ten feet high, barred his way.

"I'll tell you what we'll have to do," said he. "I'll stand in front of the trees and put you up on my shoulders and we'll hail the first flatboat that comes along. There's been two gone by already this morning, and there will be plenty more."

"Let's climb a tree," suggested the child, "and then you won't be in the water. I can climb as good as Brother Ben."

Sam looked about him. Probably the weight of a healthy child even so small as this one was a severe tax upon his feeble body, already chilled by the water.

"There's no tree small enough to climb," said he. "'Twould take two men to reach around any one of them."

"Then let's hello," said the little girl. "That's the way folks do when they want the ferryman to come over."

"That's a first rate notion," exclaimed Sam, and he at once delivered several vigorous and prolonged howls. Then the little girl gave vent to some shrill shrieks, but no one answered. Sam began to tremble and bend under the weight of the child, and the child, perceiving his uneasiness, exclaimed:

"I wish the water wasn't so deep, so I could stand up in it and not hurt you," said she.

"Oh, you don't hurt," said he. "Can you sing?"

"Oh, yes—lots of things," answered the child promptly. "What do you like the best—'Tommy Green' or 'Happy Land?'"

"Well, whichever is liveliest," replied Sam, shifting the child to the other shoulder, while she sang "Tommy Green" with the best spirit a soaked child could command.

"Tha-at sounds che-ery," said Sam.

"Why, how funny you talk!" said she. "What makes you say things so shaky-like?"

"Oh, I just felt cold for a minute," replied Sam very hastily. "Wouldn't it be nice if we could warm the water somehow?"

"To think of warming all the water in a big river," said she. "How funny!"

"'Tis nonsensical, isn't it?" Sam admitted. "Well, 'twould be nice if somebody was making soap and we were standing by the fire, wouldn't it? What was the biggest fire you ever saw?"

"'Twas old Bretzger's barn," said she promptly. "It burned way up to the sky and made my face warm way off on the fence, as far as from here across the river."

"Did it roar and crackle and look red and comfortable?" asked Sam.

"Yes, indeed!" said the child. Sam shifted her from one shoulder to the other again, and once more gave vent to several calls, but no one responded. There was dead silence for a little while, and then the child remarked:

"It's kinder lonesome here. Why don't you say something?"

"I—I'm kind o' sleepy," said Sam, straightening himself a little.

"Why, it's early in the morning," exclaimed the child. "The idea of being sleepy!"

"I guess I was up very late last night," said Sam in explanation. "Aren't you glad I caught the bridge and kept you from floating way down the river—nobody knows how far?"

"Oh, ain't I!" replied the little girl. "Then couldn't you give me a kiss?" asked the rescuer.

"I'll give you a thousand," said the child impetuously as Sam lifted her off his shoulder and in front of him carefully, holding her so high that her feet should not get wet.

"Why, how blue you look!" she exclaimed as she saw his face.

"It's the reflection of the water makes one look that way," explained Sam, pressing her tightly to his breast and kissing her many times. "But you think I'm good for something, don't you?"

"You're gooder than anybody in the world but my papa," replied the child.

"That's a darling," said Sam, putting her back on his shoulder. Then he took from his pocket a long piece of a "trotline," a heavy fishing line made to hold 40 or 50 hooks a yard apart, and managed to throw the end around the tree by which he stood and catch it again.

"Now hold tight to my head," said he. "I want to use both hands a moment. Why didn't I think of this line when the skiff floated off? I might have caught it. O God!"

"Oh, you swear!" exclaimed the child.

"Not—exactly," said Sam hesitatingly, though he did not explain. He tied the line tightly around his body, so that he was fastened against the tree, with his face toward the river. Then he bent his head forward and said:

"See if you can sit on my back now, with one foot over each of my shoulders."

The little girl wriggled about a little, and then exclaimed:

"Oh, yes; it's just like a chair, with the big tree for a back. It's awful comfortable!"

"Well, when I go to sleep," said Sam, "you can sit there without my holding you. Do you see?"

"Yes," replied the child, "but I don't want you to go to sleep. I'll be so lonesome."

"Oh, no! You can keep a lookout for boats," said Sam. "Have you got a handkerchief?"

"No."

"Then wave my hat and hello if you see a boat. Do you understand?"

"Yes; I understand."

Two or three moments passed in silence, which the child broke by asking:

"What are you whispering about?"

"I was thinking about the only friend I've got left, and I was whispering just what I'd say if I saw him," said Sam, not overloud. "Do you ever say prayers?"

"Oh, yes; every night and morning."

"Can't you say a little prayer for me? I don't like to go to sleep without praying, and the Lord might hear two people better than one. Do you ever tell lies?"

"Thank you," said Sam hoarsely.

"No—not never at all."

"Then you ask the Lord to let me wake up in the right place."

"When the boat comes, you mean?"

"Yes, and ask him to let the ferryman take me where my mother is."

The child was silent for a moment. Then she said:

"Dear Lord, let the man that's been so good to me wake up in the right place when the boat comes and be took right to where his mother is and let her love him awful much for taking me off the bridge. And I'll be a real good girl if you will. For Christ's sake. Amen!"

"Thank you," said Sam hoarsely, reaching up a wet hand and clasping the child's little fingers. "Now sing 'Happy Land.' And don't—forget—to wave—the hat and—hello."

The child began to sing, and Sam's head drooped. It fell lower and lower, until, when the song was finished, the singer had a good broad seat.

"Don't it hurt you to lean over so?" she asked. But she received no response.

On the same morning, as the cook, for the day, of the flatboat Rough and Ready was taking a doomed chicken from a coop on deck, he heard a shrill scream, and, looking up, saw a little girl sitting upon something where the bank should be. He hastily called up one of the crew, took the boat's skiff and rowed off to the child. She was glad enough to be released from her position and begged the men to wake up the dear good man who had taken her off the bridge.

"Who tied him that way?" demanded the old man who was the cook's companion.

"He did himself," said the child. "He said he was so sleepy, and he tied himself so's not to fall in the water and drown us both. And then he went to sleep."

"I hope," said the old man, who was a Methodist class leader, "that he fell asleep in Jesus, for he'll never wake again in this world."

The flatboat was worked ashore at the next town, and the dead man was soon identified. It was proposed by some of the residents to leave the remains, under suitable guard, in a barn not far from the river until the coroner should arrive, but when the wife of the owner of the barn heard how Sam came to lose his life she caused him to be laid upon the best bed in her house, and she, with her own hands, threw a snowy spread over the dead man. The coroner soon came, with all New Rochester at his heels, and after the crowd came Bosier's hearse, with Bosier himself, the well to do cabinet maker, driving. The coroner's jury rendered the only verdict which was possible under the circumstances, and then Sam was escorted back to New Rochester by a procession which would have done his soul good to see could he have sat up in the hearse and looked through its glass sides. Everybody at New Rochester went to the funeral. There was some objection made to the appearance of Bayne, the liquor dealer, in the church, but when he reminded the faithful that he had been the only person in the town who had been practically kind to Sam the objectors were silenced. As for the Presbyterian pastor who preached the funeral sermon, he was so moved by Sam's conduct that he twisted the passage, "Who gave himself a ransom," into a text appropriate to the occasion, and he spent so much time in calling attention to Sam's heroism that he was unable to warn young men against Sam's ruinous habits of life.

THE END.

THE SEVEN CONSECUTIVE "THATS."

(Copied from an old English magazine.)

I'll prove the word that I've made my theme,
Is that that may be doubled without blame,
And that that that, thus trebled, I may use,
And that that that that critics may abuse
May be correct. Further—the dons to bother—
Five "thats" may closely follow one another,
For be it known that we may safely write
Or say that that that that that man wrote was right—
Nay, e'en that that that that that that followed
Through six repeats, the grammar's rule has followed,
And that that that (that that that that began)
Repeated seven times is right, deny it you who can.

—Ethel Admitt.

A CURIOUS HAPPENING.

A Case In Which Lightning, So to Speak, Struck Twice In the Same Place.

"Here was a curious thing that happened to me once," said a man. "I sat in a theater in an end seat. Next to me sat a man and next to him a lady whom he was escorting. In the course of the entertainment one of the group of performers on the stage threw out to the audience a number of photographs. They were photographs of the performers themselves. The thrower threw out three or four little bunches of them one after another as one sometimes sees a person throw cards. They left his hands all together, but immediately separated and scattered, some fluttering down near by and some sailing out farther over the audience before they dropped. Perhaps there were 30 or 40 cards altogether. I rather hoped I would get one, but I didn't expect it, for of course the chances were greatly against it, but as a matter of fact at the second cast one of the photographs floated over and dropped on my knee.

"I was a little surprised and a little slow, and the man sitting next to me was a little quick. Thoughtlessly he picked up the photograph and handed to the lady. At the same instant we both realized that by right the photograph belonged to me, but we also realized at the same instant that there was nothing to be done about it.

"Now here was the really surprising thing about it all. At the next cast of the cards another one separated from the rest and flew over and fluttered down upon my knee. The chances against this were very great, but here was the card, and I picked this one up promptly. I am not sure but that I regarded this picture as a sort of reward of merit. Anyway I was greatly pleased to get it, and it is certain that the man sitting next was equally pleased with this most prompt, unexpected and felicitous termination of the incident."—New York Sun.

Fagin's Kitchen.

This relic of what was formerly one of the most hideous and dangerous of London slums is situated at the bottom (No. 117) of Great Saffron hill. It is part of a dirty and ruinous old tenement exactly coinciding with the infamous den to which the Artful Dodger led Oliver Twist as a new pal for a first visit from "Greenland." The den has several ominous looking staircases leading into dark and ill smelling passages, and plenty of cupboard room well available for thieves' booty. From the outhouses any of the light fingered gentry could easily have dropped into the street, while the adjacent house was easily accessible. The last named tenement, formerly a haunt of vagrants, with all the conveniences of a thieves' kitchen, had associations of the worst kind. Fagin was a real character, by name Isaac Touch, who, on being raided by the police, was found to possess a peck measure of watches. He had the name of being a confederate in worse crimes than training young thieves and buying stolen property. Kenny Meadows wrote of him:

Thy face is rough with matted shag.
Foul is thy form, old shrivel'd wretch.
How cunningly you eye the swag.
Harden'd purveyor to Jack Ketch!

—Public Opinion.

We are ruined not by what we really want, but by what we think we do. Therefore, never go abroad in search of your wants; for if they be real wants they will come in search of you.—Colton.

A saunterer is believed by some etymologists to have originally signified a man without lands, such a person naturally wandering to and fro in search of employment.

Said Sidney Smith, in speaking of one of the most eminent Americans who ever lived, "Daniel Webster struck me like a steam engine in trousers."

HOW AN ADVERTISEMENT SAVED A WOMAN'S LIFE.

[SPECIAL TO OUR LADY READERS.]

"For four years I suffered with female troubles. I was so bad that I was compelled to have assistance from the bed to the chair. I tried all the doctors and the medicines that I thought would help me.

"One day, while looking over the paper, I saw the advertisement of your Vegetable Compound. I thought I would try it. I did so, and found relief. I was in bed when I first began to take the Compound. After taking four bottles, I was able to be up and walk around, and now I am doing my housework. LAST EDITION.

BOTH MEN FREED.

Willibald and Donovan Discharged in Court of Common Pleas.

Two cases came up in the Union County Court of Common Pleas at Elizabeth this morning and in both the prisoners were men from Plainfield. Judge Rice presided.

The first was that of Fred Willibald, who was arrested several weeks ago on the charge of grand larceny. The facts of the case were told in The Daily Press at the time, how Michael O'Keefe went into Goff's saloon and got a drink of beer and then went home to find out later that the two $50 bills he had had in his pocket were gone. The same night Willibald flourished two $50 bills about. The witnesses for the prosecution were Michael O'Keefe, Thomas O'Keefe. John Newman, Chief-of-Police Grant and Chief-of-Detectives Keron. The only witness for the defense was the defendant himself. Willibald's story was that he found two $50 bills near an electric light in front of Goff's saloon while he was cleaning a cuspidor.

The testimony was denied by Newman and T. O'Keefe who said that Willibald had shown them the money and told them that he found it in the saloon. After being cross-examined they finally acknowledged that Willibald said he found it out of doors.

Willibald was represented in the case by Judge W. A. Coddington, whose crnss-examination was very searching. After the testimony had all been given, Judge Coddington claimed that there was no evidence that Willibald did not find the bills and that the State had failed to make its case as it hadn't proved the identity of the two $50 bills.

The Court agreed with Judge Coddington and discharged the prisoner. There was quite a scene when Willibald's mother, who was present, heard the verdict. Her thankfulness to Judge Coddington was quiete pathetic.

Frank T. Dunn, deputy prosecutor, represented the State and was assisted by Judge-elect George W. DeMeza.

The other case was the State against James Dunavan. Judge W. A. Coddington was assigned to the defence by the State and Goorge W. DeMeza was retained by Dunavan. About two weeks ago Officer Cooney heard glass breaking on Madison avenue and saw a man trying to climb into the little tailor shop of A. Wolf. Cooney fired at him as he ran and and fired again when he jumped over the fence. At the trial Cooney testified very positively that the man who escaped was Dunavan.

A hat was found on the spot, but it was too big for Dunavan and a pocket knife was also found, but it could not be proved to be the property of Dunavan.

Judge Coddington proved an alibi for the prisoner, as John McCann testified that he saw Dunavan go to his home on West Third street, and his mother went into his room during the night, about the time of the attempted robbery at two o'clock, and found him fast asleep. Officer Rockafellow heard the shots, and told the Court that when he saw Cooney that officer told him he did not know who the man was.

Cooney was very positive, however. The Court did not agree with him and Donovan was declared not guilty and discharged. Deputy Prosecutor Dunn was the attorney for the State.

STRIKES AND SPARES.

The Park Club bowlers have started on their upward journey and don't intend to stop short of first place. They are now second. Last evening the team of the Westfield Athletic Club came flushed with their former victories, but the pins went down to a merry tune and the home team won the first game by twelve pins. The second game was almost as close. The Westfield bowlers made a better score but their Plainfield opponents knew how to roll and victory rested on the Park Club with fifteen to spare. Matthews made the high score of the even ing by rolling 204. The individual score by games was as follows:

PARK CLUB.

Cashier—Mrs. Charles Schemerhorn, assisted by Miss Radcliff.

VOORHEES DISAPPOINTED AGAIN.

The Union County Senator Can Not Climb Any Higher.

Senator Foster M. Voorhees is not to be President of the Senate, through circumstances that are in some respects peculiar. His candidacy was not cordially received by the Republican leaders, generally, for the same reasons that have operated against him in the past. He is also confronted with a very formidable opponent in Senator Thompson, who has been a candidate several times and retired to the advantage of some other Senator, and the feeling prevails that Thompson's generosity to his friends, as well as his constant devotion to the party, entitles him to some consideration. In consequence, the sentiment that operates to the favor of the Senator from Somerset is not against the Senator from Union.

Voorhees' most intimate friends have reached the conclusion that it will be impossible to land him. He will not seek any distinction in the Senate this time, but will do his plain duty as the Senator from Union. Senator Rogers has joined forces with Senator Thompson and hopes to be made chairman of the caucus. and leader on the floor in return for the votes that he secured for Thompson.

It was stated that Senator Samuel D. Hoffman would probably be a candidate for the leader of the majority, but when asked the direct question a few days ago, he said that he was not.- Newark News.

SURPRISE PARTY.

Pleasant Time Enjoyed at an Arlington Avenue Home.

A surprise party was arranged and given by Morris Sutphen and Fred Tallamy to Miss Mildred Tyrrell, of Arlington avenue. Games, music and dancing helped to furnish a very pleasant time for the following who were present:

Kirmess Resolution.

The result of the late Kirmess has been so overwhelming, so far beyond anything that was expected, that with hearts full of sincere gratitude the Woman's Auxiliary Board at their regular meeting held November 29th, have passed the following resolutions:

Resolved, That a vote of thanks be extended to all who before and during the progress of the Kirmess have rendered valuable assistance, either by donating time and labor or in any way lending a helping hand, by sending bountiful contribuions or otherwise exerting themselves to secure the magnificent success that has been achieved.

Resolved, Further to publish a list of the names of all to whom we feel especially indebted, and if anyone through mistake or being undiscovered should be omitted, we wish to express our gratefulness to them as well. First of all we desire to thank the gentlemen of the press who from beginning to end have advocated and furthered our undertaking in the kindest and most earnest manner, and by their accurate and interesting accounts have largely assisted in drawing the immense crowds of visitors; also for the liberal discounts kindly granted on all printing matter. We further beg to express our gratitude to the gentlemen of the Plainfield Bicycle Club for allowing the use of their hall for the dance rehearsals.

To A. B.Thorn for generously repairing furnace, supplying pipe, etc., and to Messrs. Boice, Runyon & Co., as well as to DeWitt Ivins for donating one ton of coal each to heat the Bicycle Club hall. We are also indebted to the following friends of our institution:

To Mr. Marshall, Messrs. Woolston & Buckle and Messrs. Marsh & Ayers, for painting Stationery, Venetian, French and German booths.

To John Abbott, Charles E. Doane, Charles Wilson, Mr. Thatcher, Mr. Emmons, Pierson & Gayle, for furnishing lumber and erecting the Flower, Spanish, Venetian, French, German, Gypsy, and Welsh rarebit booths.

To Messrs. Griffen, Seely Edsall, VanEmburgh, and White, for their donations of tin and hardware, baskets, fancy articles, toys; also decorations for various booths.

To George O. Stevens for one ton of coal and to G. W. Rockfellow for preserves and canned vegetables for German booth.

To F. W. Dunn, P. M. Demarest, Mr. Rockfellow, Neuman Bros., J. A. Smith & Bro., and R. O. Howell, for liberal donations to Welsh rarebit booth and to restaurant.

To Garrett Packer for the loan of tables, chairs, sideboard, etc.; also to B. T Barnes for tables.

To Messrs. Staats and Hoagland for carting of furniture.

Ts Mr. Gavett for his donation of fancy jars for plants, and the loan of all the dishes used in the restaurant.

To Mr. Coddington for his generous supply of ice; to Mr. Gavin for the donation of ten quarts of milk every day; and to Mr. Randolph for fifty bottles of apollinaris water.

To Messrs. Peterson, Carson and Miles for cut flowers; also to Mr. Schmidt, of Fanwood for his generous contribution of flowers.

Mr. Butler and Mr. Brower, of New York, also sent in a quantity of choice cut flowers, bunches of violets and for large baskets of flowers.

R. C. Rand was extremely generous in loaning all the small flags and Japanese lanterns used in the decorations of the hall. Messrs. VanEmburgh & Son also furnished many other decorations for the same purpose.

The Stationery booth received donations from several circles of King's Daughters and are likewise indebted to well known firms in New York, viz, Stern Brothers, Dempsey, Carroll and others for liberal donations.

The ladies in charge of the Venetian booth feel especially indebted to Evarts Tracy for designing and personally directing the building and painting of their booth with the assistance of Mr. Benson and Wm. Gilbert. The latter gentleman will likewise accept our sincere thanks for his donation of the very artistic design on our programmes.

The services of our firemen have been invaluable throughout and we wish to thank them particularly for all their assistance.

And now, how can we ever say enough in praise of the ladies and gentlemen, as well as of the little folks, who so willingly sacrificed time and comfort to take part in and carry out the beautiful dances, and to the ladies and gentlemen and all who assisted in the various booths, in the refreshment rooms and other places. The never-ending applause of the delighted audience, the liberal purchases at all the booths, have been proof of the high appreciation of the public, and we can only say thanks to you all; a thousand thanks.

PARK CLUB GAIETY STARTS.

THE OPENING JUNIOR BALL HELD LAST EVENING.

Cosy Assembly Hall Made the Scene of a Gay Party of Dancers—Carried Off With the Usual Dash of Completeness.

The balls thundered down the alleys, the billiard and pool balls clicked and flew about over the green covered tables, and all was enjoyment in the basement of the Park Club house while in the assembly hall the Juniors were entertaining their friends with an informal dance, the first of the season. Here all was life and gaiety and the charming gowns of the city and borough ladies flashed about the room intermingling with the more conventional dress suits of their companions in the dance, forming an ever-changing but ever-beautiful scene. With short intervals between each dance, the music continued from early in the evening until after 12 o'clock had struck. And then it was very hard to leave the brilliantly lighted room, with its smooth waxed floor, for the outer darkness.

The attendance was very good, as is always the case with any Park Club affair, and the rule regarding invitation cards was strictly adhered to. When the young men tired of dancing, the basement, with all its attractions, awaited them, and many took advantage of it.

The committee of the Juniors who arranged the dance consisted of Edward Rushmore and Charles S. Cook, and one glance in the assembly hall showed how successful had been their efforts. Rogers furnished the music.

The capacity of the hall was limited and the side rooms and gallery were filled during the entire evening with those who did not care to dance or who, after a waltz or a two-step, cared to wander to some secluded corner for a friendly chat.

Among those who were present during the evening were: Mr. and Mrs. Wm. E. MacClymont, Mrs E. S. Brown, and the Misses Mabel Van Deventer, Halla Van Deventer, Eleanor T. Van Deventer, Florence Pond, Genevieve Daniel, Ada Smock, Sarah Douglass, Grace Barlow, Alice Barlow, Adelaide Margaret Elsberg, Sarah Long, Laura Long, Miss Underwood, Nellie Underwood, Miss Ingersoll, Miss Thiers, Sallye Swayzee, Miss Clark, Mabel Clark, Bertha Clark, Miss Hasbrouck, Ethel Green, Alice Thompson, Hattie Shreve, Marion L. Henderson, Anna Miller, Marie Dryden, Amy Dryden, Grace Brown, and Messrs Edmund Rushmore, Charles S. Cook, Robert Bruce Douglass, Walter Douglass, Wm. R. Thiers, Charles Dupee, Fred. P. Taylor, Percy Long, Elston French, Louis E. Waring, William N. Runyon, Clarence Peck, Albert E. Woltmann, Harry C. Van Emburg, Charles E. Faber, Charles Stillman, Harry Patton, John Brower, W. S. Place, Geo. F. Schoonmaker, Volney F. Green, Henry C. Wells, E. Albert Sprowl, Templeton Johnson, Allen Lang, Alfred Willis West, Alfred Holmes, H. Oscar Nightengale Howard Turrill, John C. Kirkner, Charles H. Kyte, William L. McClure, Mr. Ingals, Mr. Paddock, Samuel Prescott Hall, Mr. Franklin, Roger Erickson, Blanchard Randolph, M. W. Daboll, Peter Matthews, Leslie Daniel, Meredith Dryden, Laurens H. Van Buren, Jules Erickson, Ernest Swayzee, Carl Brown, Arthur Freeman and Arthur West.

The chaperones of the evening were Mrs. Charles A. Reed and Mrs. Charles R. Thiers.

High School Notes.

The class spirit in the school is not as strong as it should be for the good of the classes. Last year at this time all the classes had held one or more class meetings. Up to this time this year none of the classes except the illustrious Class of '96 have shown any class spirit.

The geometry class is now working original problems and are very much interested in their work, although many find it rather hard.

Ernest S. Suffren, a member of the Class of '97, is detained from school for some time to come, because of illness.

—After one year's vacation drill engine No. 30 is again doing duty at the freight house in this city. No. 200 has been transferred.

The wife of Mr. D. Robinson, a prominent lumberman of Hartwick, N. Y., was sick with rheumatism for five months. In speaking of it. Mr. Robinson says: "Chamberlain's Pain Balm is the only thing that gave her any rest from pain. For the relief of pain it cannot be beat." Many very bad cases of rheumatism have been cured by it. For sale at 50 cents per bottle by Reynolds' Pharmacy, Park and North avenues. T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

OFFICERS OF THE CLASS OF '96.

High School Students Elect Their Society Officers.

The Class of '96 of the High School held its regular monthly business meeting in the school building yesterday afternoon. The meeting was called to order by Miss Grace E. Overton, the Vice-President of the class last year. The first business brought before the class was the election of officers. Charles Noble and Charles M. Dolliver were appointed judge and teller of the election.

The following officers were elected: President, Wilbur F. Cornwell; vice-president, Miss Grace E. Overton; secretary and treasurer, Charles Noble; historian, Miss Bessie Cahoone; orator, Henry Eggerding; poet, Charles M. Dolliver; prophet, Miss Sallie Swayze; artist, Miss Hattie King.

It was decided to hold the class spread on Thursday evening, December 19th.

The following committees were appointed: Committee on arangements, Miss Bessie Cahoone, chairman, Miss Hattie King and Miss Carl; committee to arrange the toasts, dinner cards, etc., Charles Noble, chairman, Miss Grace E. Overton, Henry Eggerding, Miss Bowman and Herbert L. Richardson; finance committee, Volney F. Green, chairman, Miss Mildred Titsworth and Miss Clyde Burnett; decorating committee, Miss Mamie Steiner, chairman, Miss Julia Bourgeois, Miss Mary Hull, Messrs. Wilbur F. Cornwell, Henry Eggerding, Fred Squires, Charles Squires, Raymond Carroll, Charles Dolliver, V. F. Green, Fred C. Gaskill, Charles Noble, Herbert L. Richardson, J. H. Craig, F. Layat and Alden Wagner.

MUST FIGHT TOGETHER

Woman Must Have the Assistance of Man Before She Can Vote.

A parlor lecture on "Fashionable Thinking" was given yesterday afternoon by Miss Elizabeth Yates, of Maine, at the beautiful home of Mrs. Charles Potter, of West Seventh street, under the auspices of the W.C. T. U. A large number of Plainfield women were present, and the afternoon was much enjoyed by all.

Two songs were charmingly sung by Miss Mabel Coard; Mrs. Cooley presided, and introduced the speaker.

Miss Yates began by telling how thinking had its changing fashions, like everything else. Very different ideas are held now, on most subjects, from those that were in vogue in past years. She dwelt specially on the changed ideas with regard to women. Once they were regarded either as angels or as dolls or toys; now they find nearly all avocations open to them, in some states they have been given the ballot, and more and more every year they are coming to have equal rights with men. In speaking of the temperance work, Miss Yates said that in order to succeed, it would be necessary for men and women to go in the fight hand in hand.

At the close of the lecture bullion was served by members of the Y. W. C. T. U., and a very pleasant social hour was enjoyed by ihe guests.

An Active Worker.

Miss Alice B. Spangenberg, superintendent of the missionary department of the State Christian Endeavor Union, sends out to the superintendents of the various unions monthly bulletins. The one following the State convention was especially interesting. Here is an extract: "It was thought best to try in every way to prepare the societies and unions for a great missionary awakening the year following the evangelistic work, that they may be ready to apply for the missionary course of lectures which we hope to arrange. Unions not entering the evangelistic campaign are urged to plan for themselves a missionary course of lectures this winter. Franklin Cooper, of Jersey City, chairman of the missionary committee of the Hudson County Union, has made some excellent plans for a course of missionary lectures in that county. No doubt he would be willing to give informa tion, upon application, in regard to them."

Rides Easier.

The Muhlenberg hospital ambulance was brought from Newark yesterday afternoon by Harry Scanlan Roberts and William Haverstraw Miller, where it has been for several weeks past receiving repairs. The trip home was full of episodes and the ambulance came near fulfilling the mission for which it was bought.

Freehill's Sentence Postponed.

The sentence of Frank Freehill, convicted of the murder of Police man Alfred Jewell, of Rahway, was deferred one week in the Union County Court yesterday.

RODE IN A WHEELBARROW.

LUDICROUS ELECTION BET PAID OFF LAST EVENING.

Preceded By the Colored Fife and Drum Corps and Followed By a Howling Mob the Journey Was Taken.

The rattle of the drum and the squeak of the fife startled the residents in the vicinity of Park avenue and Second street last evening at about half-past seven, and to those who did look out to see what was the matter a strange sight was presented. First came the colored fife and drum corps, the dusky fifers and drummers marching along with smiling countenances and playing for all that was in them. Then came a wheelbarrow all bedecked with flags and similar decorations. Seated on it was a man and when the first surprise was over the spectator could not fail to recognize the familiar form and features of Mike McCarthy, the expressman. In the rear, trundling his burden with apparent ease, was "Gentle Willie" Murphy, who seemed to enjoy this kind of a home run as much as the baseball kind.

There was another of these primitive vehicles, also decorated, in which John H. Slover, Justice of the Peace-elect, reclined with as much ease as he will in the judicial chair. Bob Wood, the old driver on the Hook and Ladder truck, acted as tillerman to the wheelbarrow.

The cause of this rather remarkable parade was a bet on Tuesday's charter election and the Citizens had to wheel the Republicans about the block bounded by East Second street, Watchung, North and Park avenues. A crowd of friends of both parties brought up the rear and encouraged the losers to greater efforts while the drum corps played enlivening music.

SOCIABILITY AMONG THE FRIENDS.

Young People's Association Organized for That Purpose.

The third regular meeting of the Young People's Association of the Friends Society on Watchung avenue was held last evening with President E. M. Vail in the chair.

Mrs. Eckel and Mrs. Adams, delegates from the association to the annual conference held at Trenton in November, presented interesting reports. It was stated that in all there are three associations and each is doing excellent work. Following this a portion of "Janney's History of Friends" was read by Mrs. Charles E. Vail and a paper from the New York Association on the "Possibilities of Young Friends Associations" was read by Adelbert Vail. A general discussion of the paper followed.

The Association is organized for social and literary purposes and in a measure serves the same purpose as the Christian Endeavor Society. The Plainfield Association now has eighteen members.

Cycling Experiences.

The Crescent Wheelman will give an entertainment in the Y. M. C. A. hall on Thursday, December 17th, which promises to be a very interest-one. Spencer Crane, a former Plainfield cyclist, will tell something of his experiences in a wheeling trip through Norway and Sweeden. The lecture, or rather talk, will be illustrated with stereopticon views. Those who have heard his letters from abroad telling of parts of the trip will know what a treat there is in store for those who go.

Everything Almost Ready.

The time is drawing near for the firemen's fair, and the drills and dances are nearing their completion. Madame Menzeli has worked hard and faithful to make them beautiful and attractive. The final touches are being put on, and the firemen's dance is to be rehearsed for the last time tonight.

—A concert will be given in the Y. M. C. A. Hall next Thursday evening for the benefit of the German Lutheran church by the Zampa Orchestra, of New York, M. A. Korff and Mr. Janke of this city.

Major C. T. Picton is manager of the State Hotel, at Denison, Texas, which the traveling men say is one of the best hotels in that section. In speaking of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy Major Picton says: "I have used it myself and in my family for several years and take pleasure in saying that I consider it an infallible cure for diarrhœa and dysentery. I always recommend it, and have frequently administered it to my guests in the hotel, and in every case it has proven itself worthy of unqualified endorsement. HUMAN SKULLS UNEARTHED.

PLOWED UP IN THE OPENING OF STELLE AVENUE.

Supposed to be the Remains of Indians Who Were Buried a Century Ago at That Point—They Are Poorly Preserved.

"A skull!" exclaimed one of the men employed by Contractor Michael Uhdal in opening up Stelle avenue yesterday as the plow turned over the soil. The plow moved a little further on and the bones of the body were revealed. Visions of Blue Beard and the fate of his wives and other stories of a similar strain ran through the minds of the laborers. "Indians" was the verdict of Contractor Uhdal, however, and a few minutes later three other skeletons were uncovered, each beneath the other. None of them were perfect, however, as the bones had rotted so that many of them were crushed by the plow. One of the skulls was smashed in this way. The remains of the braves, or whomever they were, were collected and deposited in a place of safety. Then Mr. Uhdal notified Randolph M. Stelle, who is the owner of the land on which the remains were discovered.

For sometime Contractor Uhdal and his men have been at work opening Stelle avenue, which runs from Central avenue towards Ceder brook, beyond West Ninth street. The little one-story, two room house, belonging to A. J. Clarkson was in the way and some time ago, Mr. Clarkson gave the required permission to Randolph M. Stelle, who owns the land there and is having the avenue opened up, and the house was torn down. The house stands on a sort of knoll or mound and about ten feet behind is the place where the bones were found. Several weeks before Mr. Stelle had told Mr. Uhdal that an Indian burial ground was supposed to be located somewhere in that vicinity.

When a Daily Press reporter went to see Mr. Stelle this afternoon, he was told that the farm had been purchased by R. M. Stell's father, Manning Stelle, in 1826.

"He often said that he thought that Indians were buried there" said Mr. Stelle, "but we never found any traces of them, although, years ago, I often picked up arrow heads in that field."

The bones have not yet been examined by any expert in that line, but it is thought, partly on account of their great age and partly because another burial ground has been discovered about a mile from there, that the remains are those of some long laid-at-rest Indian braves who went to war and fought and danced as well as their comrades. One of the skulls was remarkably large while the other three were somewhat smaller.

Contractor Uhdal is quite disgusted that the teeth which had been in the large head were stolen last evening. He left them on a stone and this morning they were gone.

Through the kindness of Mr. Stelle, The Daily Press reporter was allowed to take possession of one of the skulls which will be placed on exhibition in the window of The Daily Press office.

Injured on the Cars.

A young man about thirty years of age, giving the name of David Jones, had his left forearm badly lacerated this morning while riding on a coal train at Bound Brook. The arm was caught between the bumpers. He was brought to the Grant Avenue station on the working car and from there was taken to the hospital in the ambulance for treatment. It is not thought that it will result in a permanent injury.

Old-Fashioned Supper.

All the members and their friend of the First M. E. church are invited to attend the old-fashioned supper, in Vincent chapel, this evening. A good supper will be served from 6 p. m. on at the moderate price of 35 cents. Candies, "home made," and other articles will be for sale. No charge will be made for admission.

Entertaiard at Euchre.

The Progressive Euchre Club was entertained last night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry C. Adams on East Sixth street. The first lady's prize was won by Mrs. Fred Yates, the first gentleman's by Mr. Vezsey and the second gentleman's by E. H. Ladd.

No More Borough Licenses.

Judge Bartine of the Somerset county courts states that no new license for the sale of liquor will be granted in the borough of North Plainfield while the court is constituted as it is at present.

—A photograph on china of Mrs. Cleveland, wife of the President, attracts many to one of Gavett's show windows.

ART IN ADVERTISING.

Suggestions That Every Progressive Merchant Will Appreciate.

The use of the pictorial in advertising has greatly increased of late years, and doubtless has been largely stimulated by the progress made in photography and the so-called "process" system of illustration. A most interesting and novel example of the high development of art in connection with advertising will soon be offered to the public in the exhibition which is to be given in Y. M. C. A. Hall on the afternoon and evening of December 10th, when there is to be an exhibition of lantern slides prepared expressly for this event. The name of the Young Men's Christian Association is a guarantee of the dignified character of the entertainment, and its high artistic merit may be inferred from the names of such well known houses as Messr. Tiffany & Co., Dr. C. Klackner, Messrs. William Knabe & Co., the New York Central R. R. Co., the Great Northern Railway Co., Messrs. Proctor & Gamble, and the managers of the Ponce de Leon Hotel, St. Augustine, Florida, and others Fine stereopticon views prepared in New York and Cincinnati will be exhibited, besides a careful selection of superior specimens from the best work of the Orange Camera Club. A verbal description of each subject will be given during the progress of the exhibition. From three to six o'clock, a fine display of bills and posters will be made in the small hall, and a large collection of striking and artistic specimens has been secured, including one of the finest collections in this part of the country, illustrating foreign and American art in this line.

A WIDER FIELD OPEN.

Rev. C. E. Dunn Called to Take the Pastorate of an Illinois Church.

The Rev. C. E. Dunn, pastor of the Third Presbyterian church of Albany, N. Y., has received a unanimous call to the First Presbyterian church, of Freeport, Illinois.

Mr. Dunn is a son of S. F. Dunn, of this city, and has many friends here who will be glad to hear that he is to have the opportunity of taking of a wider field than the present one.

Jas. R. Cowley, city editor of the Freeport Journal, writes as follows:

"The First Presbyterian church is the leading church in this city. The last pastor, Rev. Dr. Hill, had been here only about a year when the congregation granted him a vacation to visit Europe and paid his expenses, and a few years later, again sent him abroad. During his pastorate they put in a $5,000 organ, and remodeled the interior of the church and put in a gallery. A pastor who is liked, and they have never yet had one who was not liked, can get anything he wants. The congregation is wealthy and will back up the pastor in any good work that he may attempt. Dr. Hill told me it was the greatest trial of his life to leave here, yet his best friends in the church advised him to go Much as they loved him, they did not wish to stand in the way of his advancement."

Mr. Dunn will visit the field and occupy the pulpit next Sunday.

Suing for Board.

A suit has been brought in the Union County Court against James J. Day, of Plainfield, administrator of the estate of the late John T. Day, to recover $311.37 for board and care of the latter at the State Hospital at Morris Plains. The suit is brought by the managers of the institution, who declare they have made demands for the payment of the claim, but they were refused. Day was in the institution from January 1st, 1894, to March 1st, 1895.

An Old Fire Fighter.

Isaac Hollenbeck, for fifty-two years a member of the Newark fire department, was in the city yesterday calling on his old friend Chief Doane.

He has been in active service of the Newark fire department for fifty-two years, and for thirty-four years has been engineer of a fire company. He has been made a full captain and next month will retire from the service on half pay.

When most needed it is not unusual for your family physician to be away from home. Such was the experience of Mr. J. Y. Schenck, editor of the Caddo, Ind. Ter., Banner, when his little girl, two years of age was threatened with a severe attack of croup. He says: "My wife insisted that I go for the doctor, but as our family physician was out of town I purchased a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, which relieved her immediately. I will not be without it in the future." 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by Reynoldss' Pharmacy, Park and North avenues, T. S. Armstrong, Manager

THE MULES WERE FRACTIOUS

WILLIAM DALTON, THEIR DRIVER, DRAGGED FOR THIRTY YARDS.

He Pluckily Held On, But Suffered a Rupture of His Leg as a Consequence—Taken to Dr. Clawson's Office.

Wm. Dalton, an employe of W. O. Baldwin, of West Front street, met with a painful accident last evening while returning from Newark with a team of mules and an empty hay wagon. Dalton was under the influence of liquor and had considerable trouble in driving. When near Scotch Plains the reins in some way became tangled, and the mules in consequence were frightened and started to run away. Dalton was thrown out, but still kept hold of the reins. After having been dragged about ninety feet he succeeded in bringing the mules to a standstill. When he got in the wagon he felt very sore and was not able to ascertain the extent of his injuries till he reached Plainfield. He was met by Fred Bowden, of the Daily Press office, who assisted him to Dr. Clawson's office on East Front street. The latter made an examination and learned that be side suffering from a hip disease the left leg had been ruptured. The doctor bandaged the leg and administered the proper treatment. In the meantime the mules and wagon were found by Officer Frederickson, but he did not know where the driver was. He recognized the rig as belonging to Mr. Baldwin, and meeting a young man named Grannatt sent him to Baldwin's house to notify him of the affair. In a little while Dalton appeared with Mr. Bowden and the latter assisted him in getting into the wagon, and then drove him part way home, when Mr. Baldwin met them and took charge.

FAIR AT MT. OLIVE CHURCH.

Raising Money for the Charitable Side of the Church.

The Sewing Circle of the Mt. Olive Baptist church gave a concert in the church last evening which was successfully rendered before a good-sized audience. The programme was as follows: Song, "When Other Hearts," Miss Georigia Hamilton; Song, Miss Ethel Johnson; Song, "Pretty Girl," Miss Cornelia Jenkins; Recitation, "Parting My Love," Miss Virgie Smith; Song, "Maggie Mooney," Misses Booker and Cohen; Recitation, "Uncle John," Miss Julia Burton; Vocal solo by Rev. P. S. Gibson; Dialogue by Miss Hamilton, Miss Sattler, Miss Johnson, C. Henry and J. Miller; Vocal duet, Charles Henry and Alfred White; Solo and chorus, "Sunshine of Paradise," Miss Jenkins and company.

After the entertainment a fair was held in the basement and was largely attended. The principal things on on sale were fancy articles and refreshments

The following are those who had charge of the affair: Miss L. Reed, Miss M. Bolden, Mrs. F. Scott, Mrs. P. H. Brown, Mrs. L. M. Field, Mrs. M. Johnson, Miss K. Jackson, Mrs. L. Jones, Miss H. Randolph, Mrs. P. Jackson and Mrs. L. Jefferson.

The fair will be continued this and tomorrow evenings.

The Eye.

The human eye seldom fulfills all the requirements of a perfect optical instrument. When, however, the error is slight it may be disregarded; but when sufficient to produce headache, pain in the eyes, or poor vision it should be corrected at once by wearing properly adjusted glasses. If your eyes are causing you pain or anxiety call on Leech, Stiles & Co.'s specialist who will be at 107 East Front street, from 10 a. m. to 5 p. m.

They Knew Better.

Two sadder but wiser men came out of the station house yesterday morning. They were Michael Meck and James Barry, who had been arrested on the charge of fighting in the rear of Day's saloon on West Third street. They did not attempt to explain to Judge Coddington, but simply pleaded guilty. They paid $5 in preference to spending twenty days in jail.

Mr. Riddle's Programme.

The programme for the recital by George Riddle at the Y. M. C. A. hall tomorrow evening is as follows:—Scene from "Lucrezia Borgia," Victor Hugo; Village Dressmaker, Kate Douglas Wiggin; Mrs. Malaprop; "The Rivals," Sheridan; A Piece of Red Calico, Stockton.

Merchants Change About.

Mrs. Foote's candy store was removed today from Park avenue to the store adjoining J. Howard Leggett's drug store on East Front street. Eugene Laing, the hatter, will occupy the store vacated by Mrs. Foote.

BOSTON SOCIETY AGOG

Mrs. Higginson Elopes with James W. Smith.

Both Moved in Aristocratic Circles at the Hub—Went to New York and May Have Sailed for Genoa—Friends Think She Is Mentally Unbalanced.

Boston, Dec. 5.—Mrs. Francis L. Higginson, wife of the famous banker and a social favorite, has forsaken her home and family, leaving no word behind her. She has been gone over two weeks. There is also missing from the same social set James Wheatland Smith, a young lawyer, who was graduated from Harvard in the class of '89, and who since then has been practicing his profession with a son of the late ex-Governor Gaston. Mrs. Higginson is within a few months of 40 years of age and the mother of four children, one of them a charming girl of 17, who was to have been brought out during the coming season. Her husband is about ten years her senior. Smith is only 26 years of age. The two have been friends in society for some months past and the young man's devotion to the matron has caused considerable comment, particularly among members of the Essex County club, where they were frequently seen together. Mrs. Higginson left here for New York, saying that she intended taking in the horse show, and that she would be back in two or three days. Smith went to New York two weeks ago yesterday. He told his aunt, with whom he lived in Salem, that he was going to meet his mother, who resides at the hotel Savoy, in New York, and that he would be back on Thanksgiving day. That is the last definite information concerning him.

May Have Gone to Genoa.

It is said that he met Mrs. Higginson in New York and attended the horse show with her and that both of them stopped at the Waldorf at least a part of the time. It is believed that Mrs. Higginson and young Smith took passage on the steamship Columbia, for Genoa, November 23. Society is much wrought up over the dual disappearance and the families of the principals are heartbroken. Mrs. Higginson was a Miss Borland, the daughter of an old Back Bay physician now deceased. Her mother is living. She has had many admirers, particularly among young bachelors and club men. James Wheatland Smith was known as "the handsomest man in college," while at Harvard. He was very popular and conspicuous as an athlete on his class teams, playing both on his class football eleven and his class nine. His mother was a Wheatland, one of the oldest of the blue bloods of Salem. Young Smith was an amateur athlete and made a specialty of boxing, and not very long ago, representing the Boston Athletic association, met the champion 155-pound boxer of the Chicago Athletic club. Smith was knocked out in this match after a hard fought battle lasting several rounds.

Is She Mentally Unbalanced?

It is understood that the steamer Columbia will be met at Genoa by agents of the Higginsons to determine whether or not the belief is well founded. It is not thought likely that an arrest will be made if the couple should be found, but the Higginsons will not say what they propose to do. Young Smith, it is said, had very little money when he left home. Mrs. Higginson did not have any great amount of ready cash with her, but she did have some valuable jewelry. None of her friends can account for her conduct, except on the ground that she has become mentally unbalanced. While it is understood that her relations with her husband were at times somewhat strained it is known that she loved her home and was devoted to her children.

Frozen to Death in the South.

Winston, N. C., Dec. 5.—Robert Watkins, a married man, 27 years old, was found frozen to death in his wagon near Hay Meadow, Wilkes county, yesterday. He had been over the mountains with a load of produce. When found he was sitting in the wagon with his feet on the double trees and his head leaning against the side of the wagon.

Middlesex Valley Railroad Sold.

Philadelphia, Dec. 5.—The Lehigh Valley Railroad company has completed negotiations for the purchase of the Middlesex Valley railroad. The road lies in the northwestern part of New York, and extends from Naples to Geneva. It is about twenty-nine miles long, and it is thought will be a good feeder to the main line.

Suffering with Hydrophobia.

St. Louis, Dec. 5.—Clara, aged 6 years, and Jacob, aged 4 years, children of Albert Lissner, a picture frame manufacturer, are suffering with hydrophobia, as a result of being bitten a few weeks ago by a strange dog, with which they were playing.

Stern's Bail Forfeited.

Munich, Germany, Dec. 4.—The 80,000 marks bail given by Louis Stern of New York has been declared forfeited, Mr. Stern having in the meantime failed to surrender himself for two weeks' imprisonment and a fine of 6 marks.

Cuban Leader To Be Shot.

Havana, Dec. 5.—Gil Gonzales, the insurgent leader, after having been tried by court-martial and convicted of taking up arms against the government, has been sentenced to be shot.

IN HOUSE AND SENATE

Speaker Reed Still Silent Concerning Committees.

He Has Not as Yet Disclosed the Names of Those Chosen—Abundant Speculation as to the Assignments—Reorganization of the Senate—Mr. Payne's Views.

Washington, Dec. 5.—Now that congress is in session and the president's message read, the question recurs on the committee assignments, the organization of the senate, and foreign affairs generally. No one seems to be very greatly interested in the tariff and financial question any longer, because every one nearly believes that little or nothing will be done with either. Mr. Payne of New York, who, it is agreed, will be chairman of the ways and means committee, has declared that the difficulties of legislation will be great, and expressed the fear that nothing can be done unless the president shows a willingness to co-operate. Other republican leaders, who will control, speak in the same way, and, judging from them, any attempt at tariff revision or financial bills will fail. There are a good many republicans, however, who wish to do something, and their wishes may have some effect, though the chances seem against it at present.

The Committees.

The committee assignments are as important as ever to the members, though attention was diverted from them for some time and interest has returned with renewed force. Nobody but Mr. Reed himself yet knows how the committees are to be made up, or when they are to be announced. He himself has declared in the most positive manner that he has told nobody. Abundant speculation goes on as to how the places will be assigned. It is generally believed that the list will be given out early next week. The question of greatest interest at the other end of the capitol is that of reorganization. Half a dozen of the senators, headed by Chandler, are talking it heart and soul, and will do their best to bring it about. Half a dozen others, headed by Sherman, are opposed to it, though they will not take any active steps to impede it, relying merely on their inertia to discourage action.

THE NICARAGUA CANAL.

Commissioner Noble Thinks It Will Be Constructed.

Chicago, Dec. 5.—Alfors Noble of this city, a member of the Nicaraguan board appointed by act of congress to report upon the feasibility of the Nicaragua canal, when seen in reference to a report that the board had reported adversely on the enterprise, said that so far as he knew the report, which the board had submitted first to the president, as provided in the act creating it, had not yet been presented to congress, and therefore he could not speak freely until the report became public property. He admitted, however, that the commission's estimate of the cost of the building of the canal was $133,500,000, as against the estimate of the Nicaragua Construction company of $69,000,000. Mr. Noble would not say that the report was adverse to the project, but thought the canal a decided possibility, so far as the task of constructing was concerned. The committee, he explained, was not authorized to consider the question of the canal becoming a paying enterprise, but only to investigate as to cost and manner of construction.

THE BREWSTERS DISASTER.

Coroner's Jury Says the Accident Was Unavoidable.

Brewsters, N. Y., Dec. 5.—Coroner Penny held an inquest yesterday afternoon over the remains of the ten men who lost their lives in the Tilly Foster mine disaster. Many witnesses were examined, the majority of them being employes of Contractor Stephens, who also was present. The jury brought in the following verdict: "We, the jury, find that these persons came to their death by being crushed by the slide of rock from the northeast side of the mine, and it is the opinion of the jury, from the evidence adduced, that the accident was unavoidable."

Mrs. Parnell's Condition.

New York, Dec. 5.—It was said today at Trinity hospital, where Mrs. Delia Stewart Parnell has been for two weeks, suffering from partial paralysis, that her condition was much improved and it was thought that she would go to Philadelphia this week.

New Haven School Census.

New Haven, Conn., Dec. 5.—The secretary of the New Haven board of education has just finished taking the census of children in the city schools. The total enumeration in the city district for 1895 is 20,509, a gain over 1894 of 722.

Reported Spanish Defeat.

Key West, Fla., Dec. 5.—Passengers on the steamer Olivette, from Cuba, say that on December 3, Gen. Gomez, with 3,000 troops, attacked Gen. Suarez, with 2,500 troops, and administered a severe defeat, killing 150 Spaniards.

FOR NORTHERN CAPITAL

The South To Have an Exposition at Chicago.

Augusta Cotton Mill Proprietors Plan To Make a Magnificent Display of Their Products To Call the Attention of Investors to the Southern States.

Augusta, Ga., Dec. 5.—At a meeting of the presidents of the cotton mills in Augusta and other prominent citizens, including ex-Senator Patrick Walsh, ex-Congressman George T. Barnes, F. B. De Barard of the New York Dry Goods Economist, D. B. Dyer, president of the Augusta railway and others, the following resolutions were adopted: Resolved, That it is for the interest of the south to encourage the production of all classes of cotton goods, not now made by southern mills, especially the production of the highest grade. That the complete development of cotton working in the south will be greatly aided by the immediate establishment of southern bleacheries, print works, starch works and similar industries. That to fully show these opportunities in a manner that should bring them to the knowledge of the whole people of the United States would be a reasonable method for inducing the location of such industries in the south. That the citizens of Augusta consider that a cotton exposition in Chicago would be a proper and effective means for the purpose named. That a committee on permanent organization be appointed to report to this meeting a plan for such an exposition, said committee to comprise William B. Young, George T. Barnes, D. B. Dyer, Patrick Walsh James Verdery and J. R. Lamar.

Report of the Committee.

The committee on permanent organization reported as follows: We recommend the formation of a provisional committee to consist of all the gentlemen present, for the purpose of providing ways and means to interest the citizens and manufacturers of the south and of Chicago in the formation of a permanent organization to be known as Chicago-Southern States Cotton exposition, for the purpose of making a display of the cotton goods product and methods of the south in Chicago; to the end that capital of both the west and the east may be forcibly convinced of the good to result from the further development of the auxiliary industries to the present cotton mill interest in the south. We further recommend that a sufficient sum be raised by subscription to provide for the expenses of promotion, including the cost of the printed matter and the services of a general manager, whose duty it shall be to act as executive officer under the direction of the executive committee. Advices have been received from Chicago of substantial aid in the movement and it is sure to result in a magnificent exposition of southern products.

TWO MEN BLOWN TO ATOMS.

Nitro-Glycerine Magazine Wrecked by an Explosion.

Butler, Pa., Dec. 5.—The magazine of the Humes Torpedo company, two miles south of Butler, was blown up yesterday by the explosion of 1,000 pounds of nitro-glycerine. George Bester and Lewis Black, who were in the magazine, were blown to atoms, while only shreds and splinters remain of their horses and wagon. Buildings in Butler were shaken and much glass was shattered. Black was 20 years of age. Bester was 25 years of age and leaves a widow and one child. Nothing whatever remains of the magazine building.

BEER IS TO GO UP.

A Brewers' Combine in Chicago Will Make It $5 a Barrel.

Chicago, Dec. 5.—Many of the leading brewers of Chicago and Milwaukee who sell in Chicago have entered into a pool, the result of which will be the placing of the price of beer at $5 a barrel. About 4,000,000 barrels are produced in Chicago yearly, and now fifty-one of the fifty-two companies have agreed to the plan.

New York, Dec. 5.—The sub-treasury yesterday received $50,000 gold in exchange for greenbacks.

General

Debility.

That complete collapse of the entire system, when the organs improperly perform their functions, and as a natural result a cessation of nourishment to the body ensues, a continual loss of flesh is experienced, and death from starvation is the end. This trouble is in every instance averted by the use of that greatest concentrated food product

Bovinine

Retained by the weakest stomach, readily assimilated, new flesh and nerve tissue is created, the blood is enriched, the vital organs resume their natural functions and a return to health is the result. In this connection, Dr. M. W. Van Denburg of Fort Edward, N. Y., says, "I have used Bovinine in cases of extreme debility where no other food would be tolerated and with very satisfactory results." Physicians everywhere tell the same story.

BLAME THE ARMENIANS

Turkish Report of the Recent Riot at Trebizonde.

The Wounding of Two Officials by a Servant of the Bishop the Starting Point of the Trouble—Consulates and Schools Protected by Regular Troops.

Washington, Dec. 5.—The Turkish legation has received from the sublime porte a report of the Armenian troubles at Trebizonde, signed by the civil and military officials, the ulemas and notables of the vilayet—Mussulman, Greek, orthodox and Catholic. In part it is as follows: On October 2, while a party of officials were passing along a street in Trebizonde they were fired upon several times by a servant of the Armenian bishop and another Armenian. Two of the party were shot. The assailants were instantly arrested. This incident, the first outbreak in Trebizonde by the rebellious Armenians, caused some excitement, but was not followed by immediate disorders. Two days later, however, an Armenian, while resisting arrest for complicity in the shooting, shot and killed Rahmi Effendi, in the Ai Vassil quarter, and made his escape. The murder created intense excitement and the streets were soon filled with a mob, many of whom carried arms. A rumor was circulated that the Armenians had assassinated the vali at the government house and a rush was made for that place. The streets were blocked by the excited people, but after a time the authorities succeeded in dispersing the crowd, but public feeling remained very strong.

Fired at Random.

In view of the critical situation arising from the shooting, Father Mesrco, acting representative of the Armenian bishop, and the most prominent citizens of the city were summoned to the government house to attend a meeting to consider the best means of preventing further disorders. The conference proving unsuccessful and the shooting being followed by news of the riots in Constantinople, public excitement became greater than ever. Every one became alarmed, and the Armenians kept their stores closed and walked about armed to the teeth. Affairs began to reach a dangerous stage, and as Armenians from neighboring villages began to swarm into the city, the governor-general, to prevent possible bloody riots, on the morning of October 8 assembled in the market square a large number of prominent citizens—Mussulmans and Christians—and exhorted them to quell the excitement of the populace. Even as he spoke shots were heard in every direction on Sharki square. Owing to the resulting confusion it was impossible to determine on which side the brawl began. It seemed, however, as though the more the troops and officials endeavored to suppress the riot the greater became the audacity of the Armenians. From their shops and bazaars, from the windows of their dwellings, from anywhere and everywhere, they fired at random on soldiers, police and citizens alike.

Disarming the Armenians.

The vali hastened to the scene, but was powerless to stop the shooting, and several shots were even fired at the governor. At the sight of two Mussulmans dead and two or three Mussulmans and one soldier wounded the excitement of the Mussulmans and Greeks reached its climax, and it was late in the afternoon when order was restored. The Armenians were deprived of their arms and placed under guard. Those individuals and families deprived of their means of support were cared for in some Mussulman houses and the Catholic school. Later the offenders were tried by court-martial. During the disorders the foreign consulates, schools and other religious establishments and residences of foreigners were guarded by the regular troops.

IN COMPLETE SUSPENSE.

Action on the Question of Guardships at a Standstill.

London, Dec. 5.—A dispatch to the Standard from Constantinople says that the question of the admission of additional guardships into the Bosphorus is in suspense and all diplomatic action in the matter is at a complete standstill for the moment. Some of the ambassadors are still awaiting fresh instructions from their governments. All of the diplomats are of the belief that the exercise of strong pressure, stronger by far than that which has hitherto been brought to bear upon the porte, will be necessary to induce the sultan to yield, and it is understood that such action will be immediately taken upon the receipt of replies by the ambassadors of the powers which are insisting upon the issuance of firmans to the representations they have made to their respective governments. The sultan has made a personal appeal to the Russian, Austrian, German and French governments that they agree not to press their demands, but without success.

Tamsen Pleads Not Guilty.

New York, Dec. 5.—Sheriff Tamsen, on trial for permitting the three post-office robbers to escape from Ludlow street jail on July 4 last, pleaded not guilty yesterday. The testimony taken so far has been without general public interest.

Fardon's Sentence Commuted.

Washington, Dec. 5.—The president has commuted to two years' in prison the five years' sentence imposed upon Abram Fardon, in New Jersey, for embezzling national bank funds.

CREATES SOME COMMENT.

Senator Hoar's Resolution on the Turkish Situation.

Washington, Dec. 5.—Considerable comment has been caused by the resolution presented in the senate by Senator Hoar on the Turkish situation. The resolution, which was referred to the committee on foreign relations, is as follows: "Resolved that the senate will support the president in the most vigorous action he may deem fit to take for the protection and security of American citizens in Turkey and to obtain redress for injuries committed upon such citizens; and be it resolved, that the president make known to the government of Turkey the strong feeling of regret and indignation with which the people of America have heard of injuries inflicted upon persons of the Christian faith in Turkey, and that the American people cannot be expected to view with indifference any repetition or continuance of such wrongs." Mr. Hoar also offered a resolution, which was agreed to, requesting the president to send to the senate all information received by him or the state department in reference to injuries inflicted on persons and property of American citizens in Turkey, and in reference to the condition of affairs there as to oppression and cruelties practiced on the Armenian subjects of the Turkish government: also if our representatives in the Turkish empire are at their posts of duty, and, if not, what circumstances prevent the performance of their duties.

ONE HAD A SWITCH KEY.

Four Men Suspected of Having Wrecked a Train.

Buffalo, Dec. 5.—The police arrested at East Buffalo yesterday four men they suspect were members of the gang that wrecked the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western train at Preble, near Courtlandt, the other night. When searched at the station house one of them was found to have a switch key in his possession, while one of the others had a Syracuse paper containing an account of the wreck. The police decided to send them to the penitentiary for four months each, and in the meantime their records will be investigated.

THE BATTLESHIP TEXAS.

Another Mishap Through Breaking Her Steering Gear.

Washington, Dec. 5.—Another mishap has befallen the battleship Texas, which recently met with trouble through the buckling of her frame while in drydock at the Brooklyn navy yard. The Texas left Brooklyn for a preliminary test of her engines at sea. Last evening a message was received at the navy department saying that her steering gear had broken down and that she was at Tompkinsville. No particulars were given.

ACT IS NULL AND VOID.

Massachusetts Ship Canal Company Fails To Deposit Its Forfeit.

Boston, Dec. 5.—The Massachusetts Ship Canal company, incorporated by act of last general court, failed to deposit its $150,000 forfeit money last night with the treasurer of the commonwealth. The provisions of the act incorporating the company have therefore become null and void. There are six petitions already in for authority to build the canal so that the next general court will have some more canal talk.

REFUSED FRANCIS MURPHY.

Churches Are Denied to the Temperance Orator.

Cedar Rapids, Ia., Dec. 5.—Francis Murphy came here Sunday night to begin a series of temperance meetings. No definite arrangements for a meeting place had been made. On Monday his offers were refused by all the churches of the city. Last night Rev. Frank L. Loveland and others denounced the action of the churches. Much bitter feeling has been engendered.

MARYLAND DAY.

Two Thousand Baltimoreans Leave for Altanta.

Baltimore, Dec. 5.—Never before in the history of Baltimore have the citizens so generally gone forth to participate in a public demonstration as they did last night. Amid the roll of drums and the blare of trumpets 2,000 of Maryland's sons and daughters departed for Atlanta to take part in the celebration of Maryland day at the international exposition to-morrow.

Carlyle Centenary Celebration.

Edinburg, Dec. 5.—The centenary of the birth of Thomas Carlyle, the famous historian and philospher, was celebrated at his birthplace, Ecclefechan, near Dumfries, yesterday. A large number of wreaths were sent from all parts of Great Britain and the continent, one of them being presented by Emperor William of Germany.

3,551 Deer Killed This Season.

Albany, Dec. 5.—Reports received from four-fifths of the correspondents in the Adirondacks to whom the fish, game and forest commission sent circular letters, show that 3,551 deer were killed during the past season. It is estimated that there are about 10,000 deer in that region.

Hotel Gables Burned.

Patchogue, L. I., Dec. 5.—The hotel Gables, at Ronkonkoma, one of the largest and most fashionable hotels of Long Island, has been completely burned. The damage will be about $10,000.

Wemple Taken to an Asylum.

Fultonville, N. Y., Dec. 5.—Ex-state comptroller Edward Wemple was taken to the Utica State hospital last evening by attendants from that institution.

Great Reduction in Time to California.

Once more the Northwestern Line has reduced the time of its trans-continental trains and the journey from Chicago to California via this popular route is now made in the marvelously short time of three days. Palace drawing-room sleeping cars leave Chicago daily, and run through to San Francisco and Los Angeles, without change, and all meals en route are served in dining cars. Daily tourist sleeping car service is also maintained by this line between Chicago and San Francisco and Los Angeles, completely equipped berths in upholstered tourist sleepers being furnished at a cost of only $6 each from Chicago to the Pacific Coast. Through trains leave Chicago for California at six p. m. and 10.45 p. m. daily, after arrival of trains of connecting lines from the east and south. For detailed information concerning rates, routes, etc., apply to ticket agents of connecting lines or address: H. A. Gross, G. E. P. A., 423 Broadway, New York, or T. P. Vaille, S. E. P. A., 112 South Fourth street, Philadelphia, Pa. tf.

Nothing Like It.

Time brings many changes, but the climate of California, "The Italy of America," and the attractions of the many famous health and pleasure resorts, are the same yesterday, today and forever.

Tourists never will tire of speaking in praise of the soft and balmy air, the profusion of flowers, the magnificent display of fruits, the luxury of seabathing and the beautiful walks and drives.

Then, too, it must be conceded that with such excellent equipment, consisting of Reclining Chair Cars, Pullman Palace Sleepers and Pullman Dining Cars, all heated by steam and lighted with Pintsch Light, the Union Pacific, "The Overland Route," is the tourists favorite. Ask your agent for tickets via this route.

The Cloak Store

The busiest season of cloak-selling we have ever experienced. Again dozens of new cloaks, new capes, practically, as well as stylish and beautiful. Boucle cloth, beavers and meltons, those of perfect quality and excellent make, start at $7.45, cheaper cloaks, maybe, as low as $4.50. Embroidered plush capes start at $8.29 and stop at $30. Double capes all-wool material, at $3.75, some at $5.19.

Blankets

Rather than have much to say about them we prefer to have you call and be surprised at the good things in the blanket stock, be surprised at the littleness of the cost. All-wool, part wool and cotton, although we prefer to sell pure wool blankets. A little more profit for us, better satisfaction for you. Price commences at $4 pair.

Get Good Gloves

If you know about gloves, you'll take pleasure in looking at our stock—you'll enjoy wearing them. The latest kid gloves of reliable brands represented. Best fabric gloves not high priced, but plenty of satisfaction and good wear.

Underwear

Where quality and economy join hands. That little underwear talk last week brought a volume of trade. The careful and economical buyer gets the quality without the high price at this underwear store. Plenty of "specials" for the coming week, which our salespeople will be pleased to tell you about when you call.

The Sultan is quite a politician.

The Great Iam has evolved into the Little Ofit.

New Brunswick is still talking of reform in almost every municipal department.

Speaker Reed stopped receiving calls yesterday long enough to call on President Cleveland himself.

The Daily Press gave the detailed vote of the city election one hour before any other paper in this city.

Editor Runyon wonders where the intoxicating drinks came from on Tuesday. The cider joints flourished.

John Kean has been in Washington and from his point of view as an outsider thinks that Senator Smith's seat is a pretty nice place to occupy.

The New York Press this morning prints a picture of Senator Thompson, of Somerset county, and a brief biographical sketch. The Senator has been in politics for twenty years.

"Reed at the White House," says a newspaper report of the movements of the Speaker yesterday. It is not among the impossibilities that it will eventually be Reed in the White House.

Nellie Bly has reappeared in metropolitan journalism. Her journey along the walks of matrimony have been filled with the vicissitudes of a suspecting husband and shadowing detectives.

The Republican papers are now engaged in their annual partisan duty of showing what a good English subject Grover Cleveland is. The argument is as threadbare of common sense as the bloody shirt.

Richard Croker is entering horses for big track events in France. His entries in the last political race won in a canter. Richard is as successful as the Dick who went to London and became Lord Mayor.

The Elizabeth reformers are going in with a vim. They are negotiating with Dr. Parkhurst and Commissioner Roosevelt to address a public meeting.

Plainfield must be a desirable place to live in. Yesterday it went overwhelmingly Republican, and now not a single Democrat holds a city office there. That is what may be called a plain field for Republicans.—Elizabeth Journal.

On and on towards Harlem goes the movement of the trade section of the metropolis. Consternation has spread among the exclusive set of upper Fifth avenue over the purchase of a lot on that thoroughfare on which a big department store is to be established.

Now that the attention of the nation is attracted towards Washington it might not be amiss to remind people that Adlai E. Stevenson is Vice president of the United States. His name figures so little in public affairs that in the hurly-burly of life people are liable to forget the fact.

It will be the mission of this paper to point out to them such errors as may be committed by them: and to reflect as far as possible. the judgment of the people regarding their public acts, whet her they are received with favor or disfavor.—News.

Thus writes Editor Runyon in the hour of his defeat and disappointment. It is a mingled wail of anguish and defiance—a despairing product of an inconsistent party career. He says that it will be his mission to reflect the judgment of the people on the official acts of the newly elected men, whether they are received with favor or disfavor. Ever since he was turned down for the position of City Clerk because of his arrogant and swell headed style of acting towards persons who had official relations with him, he has been "reflecting" the judgment of disfavor, as conceived from his standpoint of prejudice. How far his reflections of the past influenced the voters of Tuesday is shown in the defeat of the candidates whom he espoused by pluralities ranging from 500 to 1,100. He would do well to reflect on his own reflections.

EDSALL'S

Big Surprise.

During the year our buyer in the Crockery and China Department has secured from the leading importers in New York their samples in some of the finest imported wares, and laid them aside to bring out as a big surprise for the Special Holiday Trade.

The prices paid for these rich and beautiful wares is only a trifle of their real value, at most not more than one-half to one-third.

We are now offering them for sale at the same proportionately Low Prices as they were bought at. They are not Auction, —— or imperfect goods at all, but every article guaranteed genuine 'firsts' and perfect in every way.

There is nothing in the market to compare with them. Those who purchase them will get the Biggest Bargains ever offered in this line. Don't wait for they will soon be sold.

Notes of Interest.

The Commercial Palace is the center of attraction for the trading public this season more than ever before. In addition to the above attractions many others as important might be mentioned, viz:

has been greatly enlarged; now covering floor space over one hundred feet long and twenty-five feet wide in the big basement.

Here a grand display of everything almost in this line is made and offered at about one-half former prices. Dolls, for instance, that used to sell for 25c, 50c and $1, now sell for 13c, 25c and 50c. This great saving has come about in buying in large quantities direct from manufacturers and importers for cash.

Our assortment of cheap and fine Books this year surpasses all former years. It is just wonderful what a nice 12mo you can buy now for 13c to 15c, and the toy books and booklets for the little ones are just lovely and cheap, too.

The Art Department

is just perfectly captivating. It would be useless to undertake to give anything like a description of it. The variety of elegant articles is large, and it seems as if the makers of them had really outdone themselves. Prices here too are cut about in half from a year or so ago.

And in the line of Gloves, Handkerchiefs, Hosiery, Laces, Ribbons, and other needs we are simply prepared to supply all wants.

In ladies' coats, capes, skirts, etc, there never has been a time in the history of this county when prices were so low as now. We show the latest and most fashionable styles at just as low prices as in New York.

And in fact throughout the entire establishment the most elaborate preparations have been made for an enormous Holiday Trade, at least doubling that of a year ago.

The citizens of Plainfield have in fact little excuse to go out of town now to do their shopping, with such an establishment as the Commercial Palace in their midst packed brimful of elegant new seasonable goods and offered at such astonishingly low prices.

The Chrissmas display this year will surpass all our former efforts Save money by going with the crowds to Edsall's.

Two Forty-Eight.

For a woman's double sole neat, stylish, serviceable boot, button and lace, sizes 3 to 7, B, C and D width. These are fresh stylish goods direct from the manufacturers, made to retail at $3.50 a pair, and they're cheap at that. Our special price.

Crescent Wheelmen	2	0	1618
New Jersey A. C.	1	1	1589
Cranford C. C.	1	1	1557
Elizabeth A. C.	0	2	1547

Tomorrow night the Park Club will bowl the Country Club on the latter's alleys.

Visions of dropping from the lead in The Standard League stare the Westfields in the face.

The bowling team from the Y. M. C. A. will visit Hope chapel this evening and roll a game with the latter.

There is some talk of forming a second bowling team among the Crescent Wheelmen. Should the team be organized, games will be arranged with teams west of Plainfield.

The bowling match between the Plainfield Catholic Club and the Catholic Club of Jersey City, which was to have taken place Tuesday evening, was postponed until tomorrow evening on account of election.

The next game in the Central Journal League will be rolled at the Crescent Wheelmen's alleys tomorrow evening between the above club and the Elizabeth Athletic Club. The Elizabeth boys are now the tail enders in the league.

A bowling match is to be held Thursday, December 11th, at the Park Club alleys between a five-men team of the young men of the Elizabeth Athletic Club and a similar team from the Park Club. The latter team is to be captained by Edward Rushmore.

WITH ROD AND GUN.

About 4,000 deer have been killed in New York State this season. The largest specimen weighed 233 pounds. There are now estimated to be about 35,000 deer in the State running wild.

Two black squirrels were shot a few days ago in the woods on the Dan Cory farm near Warrenville by two Frenchmen who were stopping at Pedeflous' Hotel in the valley. Squirrels of this color are a rarity in this locality.

A short time ago a bevy of quail numbering about fifteen located in the thickly part of the borough and spent over two days in the yard of Contractor Thomas Doud, of Duer street. The only explanation is that they had been shot into and frightened so that they located there for safety.

BASKET BALL.

The Y. M. C. A. basket ball team will meet the Trenton Y. M. C. A. team in this city on Saturday evening, December 14th. The Trenton team now holds the championship of New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware and Maryland. A great game is expected in this city. A small admission fee will be charged to cover the expenses of the visiting team.

CYCLING COMMENT.

The entertainment committee of the Crescent Wheelmen met last evening but no definite action regarding the coming minstrel show was taken. It was decided, however, to meet again next Wednesday evening.

A. H. Barnett, the speedy class B rider, was in town yesterday visiting his friends. Next year he expects to start a bicycle agency somewhere along the line of the Jersey Central Railroad between Elizabeth and Plainfield, and he will in all probability be the agent for the wheel which he has riden all this year and expects to next year, the Stearns.

GOLF.

The East Orange Golfing Club is the latest thing in the field in that vicinity. It was organized at a meeting held in Commonwealth Hall, East Orange, Tuesday night. The following officers were elected: President, Fred C. Reynolds; Master of the Links, George S Ring; Secretary, Charles Spaulsbury. The location of the links has not been decided upon.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh That Contain Mercury.

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces, such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. Important Facts.

If you have dull and heavy pain across forehead and about the eyes; if the nostrils are frequently stopped up and followed by a disagreeable discharge; if soreness in the nose and bleeding from the nostrils is often experienced; if you are very sensitive to cold in the head accompanied with headache; then you may be sure you have catarrh, and should (immediately) resort to Ely's Cream Balm for a cure. The remedy will give instant relief.

YAP'S DUCK DINNER.

HOW A HOSPITABLE CHINAMAN ENTERTAINED FRIENDS.

A Queer Building With Dingy Placarded Walls—A Host Who Condemns His Own Table—The Chinese Method of Cooking a Duck Explained.

"Did you ever eat boiled duck cooked a la Chinois with noodles and string beans?" asked Mr. B. P. Tasker, the rectifier, of a seeker for information. "I have been invited by my friend, Yap Wing, at 217 South Eighth street, to go there and partake, and you ought to try it." Colonel Wing's restaurant is inside a dingy brick sarcophagus that reminds one of those brick graves they build for aristocrats at the cemeteries for $50 each. One reaches it up a palsy stricken stairway, and as one waits at the door for entry one is confronted with a number of placards with Chinese characters in black on a red ground. Translated they run as follows:

"The house of the eight benevolences will tonight provide inferior duck badly boiled and seasoned with unworthy curry, together with such wilted and cheap bought vegetables as may be required by those who honor its unworthiness with their presence. The extravagant price of this inferior repast will be 25 cents in American money."

Beside it was another:

"The negro woman Matta in the alley behind the singing place is a thief. Now she has stolen $8 from Fong Plung. The sagacious will avoid this black woman."

Some of the placards were wholly unprintable and deadly libelous. Some were of a light and frivolous character. Some were advertisements, pure and simple. Some were poems written in spare moments and exposed that all might see.

There are also some galling allusions to the police and Celestial critiques on the municipal government, but before the interpreter could work through the lot Yap Wing had the little party under his hospitable wing and was marshaling it into the restaurant.

"No gooda reada Chinaman write," he said. "Chinaman write when he get mad. You come eat duck. 'T's vera bad duck tonight, but how can help? S's vera bad curry. S's evlything rotten, but you try him, and then you dam Yap Wing, and you solly you ever see him—hein?"

"This means," Mr. Tasker whispered, "that Yap has an especially good duck for us and that all other things are out of sight. It is the Chinese way. It is politeness."

The eating room is a little below the level of Hop alley. It is scrupulously clean and scrupulously bare. At the table where the present party was to sit were grouped a number of chairs. A spotless linen cloth covered it, and quaint china dishes were all about. Others in the refectory were eating off delft and tin, and they sat on benches. The "high place in the synagogue" had two lamps; the other tables shared one.

When the guests were seated, a cooly came in with a large tray that he sat before Yap Wing and uncovered. It had the duck on it, and to Caucasian eyes that duck did not look like it had ever been cooked at all. The skin had the fresh appearance of the market place. The other dishes came on quickly. There was some kind of a ragout. There were string beans, tomatoes and what one would take to be a salad, although it was really a cabbage omelet.

The host stuck his fork into the breast of the duck and then, instead of carving as we do, he began slicing right through the fowl, turning off flake after flake as though it had been so much sausage.

"Say, what kind of a duck is that?" queried a startled guest, who had never seen a bird cut crossways before.

"Him vera bad duck," Wing stated. "You try him." And a portion that looked like a chicken croquette bound in skin was put on the plate, with a spoonful of noodles and a lot of sauce. The other vegetables were added, and the guest, clumsily adjusting his chopsticks, began to work. The beauty about chopsticks is that you can use them as a fork once you get a piece of meat cornered where it cannot elude you. Until then you have exercise and all the pleasures of the chase. But the duck once won was worth winning. It was heavy with curry and red peppers, so that it was a shade too hot for an uneducated palate, but it melted in the mouth, duckily, and the rice and the noodles seemed to fit it exactly.

"Explain the way you do it, Mr. Wing," one asked. "What has become of the bones?"

"Sis ver poor duck," said Mr. Wing complacently, "but I tell you. When Chinaman buy duck, he buy him alive, so he can kill right. He hang duck in cellar and cut he throat, so he bleed plenty. Then he scald duck, so him fleathels come off. Then he skin duck and save skin, so he one piece. Then he take duck and cut him into little bits of pieces and he no cut bones, but put them in pot for boil. When he choppee, choppee duck so he small little bits of meat, Chinaman take rice and take curry and take noodle and put 'em all in pot for boil—other pot. Then he take duck skin and piece of duck's gut and needle and he sew up that skin where he have cut him, only leave one big hole for stuff him. When the meat is boil, he take it and cram and cram that duck skin till bimeby that skin he chock full of duck and rice and noodle and curry. Then he sew up that big hole what he stuff him by and put him in pot for boil a minute more, and when he not bad duck like this him vera good. He look like duck what got bones in him, but he just boil duck."

"But you can't get all the duck back into the skin, can you?"

"Oh, no. Chinaman not try. That rest of that duck we boil in other pot with bones and more rice, and we sell him 10 cents a bucket. Plenty people buy."

And this was true. While the little supper was being eaten at least half a dozen people came in, bought a bucketful of the mess—and it was nice mess—and went on their way rejoicing.

The other comestibles were much like the American preparations except the cabbage omelet, which was indescribable—and also inedible. The tea was served in transparent porcelain without sugar or cream, but with a few drops of what tasted like brandy in it. This was also unusual to the United States palate—the combination, that is. Finally came a great tray of little pots full of candied ginger, melon rind, some queer Asiatic fruits and some more tea—this time without the brandy—and the meal was finished.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

COVENT GARDEN MARKET.

Masses of Sweetness and Fragrance to Delight the Senses of Londoners.

To speak in detail of all the flowers in Covent Garden market would be to write an article like a florist's catalogue. Everything is there that is in season. When we saw it in the last days of July, masses of sweet peas, stocks and carnations, roses of every description—choice ones tied in small bunches, commoner kinds, with long liberal stalks and abundant leaves and thorns, bound in big bunches, such as one likes to bring in from the shrubberies of a generous country garden—lilies and gladioluses—white, red and orange, some in pots standing tall and stately on the shelves above the stalls, others laid in layers of cotton wool in oblong cases, and looking as if prepared for their own obsequies—forests of palms and maidenhair ferns, fringes of white creeping campanula, hazes of silvery gypsophylla, skylike stretches of blue cornflower struck us as among the most vivid and distinctive features.

Between 6 and 7 o'clock we noticed a good many sisters of charity buying flowers for the churches they tend and hospital nurses catering for their wards. Between 7 and 8 o'clock business began to be very eager, and from 8 to 9 o'clock the work of dismantling went on apace. It is then that the poorer class of purchasers come, the women in the familiar costume of the street corner—the black or nondescript colored gown and tartan shawl, and bonnet of straw, crape or lace, well crushed down and battered, but brightened up with a brave bunch of the commonest and loudest artificial flowers a few pence can buy. This is the time when bargains can be made, and the poor woman who wants to furnish her basket for sale, and the managing lady with a dinner party coming on, who, "though on pleasure she is bent, has yet a frugal mind," are equally eager to buy cheap. At 9 o'clock the closing bell rings, and after a few minutes' grace, during which the exodus goes on rapidly, the doors are shut and the great flower market is over for the day.—London Spectator.

AN ENGLISH BREAKFAST.

It Seems a Lazy Custom, but Is Really a Good One For All Concerned.

It is characteristic of most English homes in which I have been a guest that once a day the whole family, including the servants, meet together for morning prayers, says a correspondent of The Outlook. What is perhaps more significant is the substantially universal arrangement of the breakfast so as to reduce to a minimum the friction on the servants of conflicting duties. We all know that the morning hours are the most precious ones for household work, and that household is happiest, in this respect, in which the necessary preparations for the day are earliest completed.

But in the American home the waitress must take an hour out of this precious morning to wait on the breakfast table, and then hurry through her own breakfast and drive, perhaps half distracted, through the forenoon to get her morning's work done before midday dinner or a lunch which is its equivalent. And it is an even chance that Harry comes down late to breakfast, and instead of paying, as he ought, the natural penalty of his laziness by eating a cold breakfast, has the table cleared and a new breakfast set for him. In England and Scotland the breakfast is set upon the table or upon the sideboard or both, the bell is rung, and the breakfasters help themselves and each other, while the servants take the time to make the house ready for the day. Thus, while English home life starts at least an hour later than American home life—a usual breakfast hour in England is 9 o'clock—England easily catches up with America before noon, and both mistress and servant are saved the worry of hurried work and conflicting duties. And if Harry comes down late he gets, as he ought, a cold breakfast.

There Is English and English.

"Your American reporters misquote me sometimes horribly," said an English author, newly landed. "They make me murder the king's English in their interviews with me."

"Well, who did the deed, you or the reporters?" asked a critic.

"What do you mean?" he asked testily.

"Well," replied the critic, "in the works of the English authors of today who run into many editions and get themselves popular and pirated on this side of the water little things are noticed by the men whom you call the 'subeditors' and sneer at which no tyro in the reporters' craft would ever dare to write or allow to go into copy. You see, our reporters are, as a rule, taught English. Your writers of fiction who publish in London seldom are. 'Tis a pity."

"What do you mean?" demanded the British author, with asperity.

"Just what I began to say. Your modern—and for that matter your classic—British works of fiction fairly bristle with solecisms like 'these kind of people,' and 'when one has done so and so how can he'—and a hundred other favorite colloquial slurrings of our mother tongue. I may add that our American writers—such of them as get into magazines or cloth bindings—avoid little blunders, if any blunder can be called a little one."—New York Herald.

Salmagundi.

Halliwell, in his "Dictionary of Archaisms and Provincialisms," describes salmongundy to be a mixture of apples, onions, veal or chicken and pickled herrings, minced fine and eaten with oil and vinegar; hence a nickname for a cook.

Halliwell-Phillipps' "Dictionary of Archaisms and Provincialisms" has: "Salmongundy—apples, onions, veal or chicken and pickled herrings, minced fine and eaten with oil and vinegar; hence a nickname for a cook." Cf. also Grose's "Classical Dictionary of the Vulgar Tongue." Bailey's "Dictionary" has "salmingondin."

Salmagundi, of course; made of pickled herring minced up raw with pepper, vinegar, etc. From "Sea Words and Sea Phrases Used Along the Suffolk Coast," by Edward Fitzgerald, communicated by him to The East Anglian News.—Notes and Queries.

Getting Over a Cough

is easy enough with the help of Randolph's Emulsion. It's a regular step ladder we might say. You get over the cough easily and quickly. In fact, all our drugs are step ladders to help one over every kind of earthly ailment But coughs are what we particularly want to speak of today, for there is a long hard winter before us, and the person who starts it off with a cough may never see the end of it. Therefore if a cough is what you have take Randolph's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil with phosphoric acid.

THE AZTEC OPAL.

By RODRIGUES OTTOLENGUL.

[Copyright, 1895, by the Author.]

"Mr. Mitchel," began Mr. Barnes after exchanging greetings, "I have called to see you upon a subject which I am sure will enlist your keenest interest for several reasons. It relates to a magnificent jewel. It concerns your intimate friends, and it is a problem requiring the most analytical qualities of the mind in its solution."

"Ah! Then you have solved it?" asked Mr. Mitchel.

"I think so. You shall judge. But first will you permit me to allude to the chance which first led to our acquaintance?"

"Assuredly. Proceed as you please. I will give you my attention."

"Very well. It is little more than a year since I was traveling from Boston one night to this city. Upon that occasion I overheard a curious conversation between yourself and a friend. You stated to him that it was your opinion that criminals are usually caught through their own blundering or by accident, rather than because of any great skill possessed by the detectives."

"Yes. And I hold the same view now, though slightly modified since my acquaintance with you, Mr. Barnes, who are an exception. I admit that you have brains."

"Thank you. But let me proceed. You wagered with your friend that you could commit a crime, and nevertheless escape detection. The wager was accepted, and the fun began. Several crimes followed so quickly, that, though I had the advantage of knowing your purpose in advance, for over a year you baffled me utterly, and in the end you won the bet."

"I did," said Mr. Mitchel in a self gratulatory tone. "And considering that I was contending against the most skillful detective of the age I really feel proud of the achievement."

"So that, on the whole, it seems to you that in baffling a detective you showed more skill—that is to say, better brain work—than he. Am I not right?"

"Well, you put it rather unflatteringly for yourself. But certainly we used our brains against one another, and I won."

"Now, then, Mr. Mitchel, we have reached the point where I may make a proposition to you. I have today been called in to investigate one of the most singular cases that have fallen in my way. It is one in which the usual detective methods would be utterly valueless. The facts were presented to me, and the solution of the mystery could only be reached by analytical deduction."

"That is to say, by using your brains?"

"Precisely. Now you have admitted that you consider yourself more expert in this direction than the ordinary detective. I wish to place you for once in the position of the detective, and then see you prove your ability."

"Ah, I comprehend! You think that avoiding detection, such as I did in our recent affair, is easier than actually ferreting out a criminal?"

"I do. Therefore if you care to listen I will tell you all that I know of the case to which I have alluded, and then give you my solution of it after you have expressed your views. We can then see which of us is correct, or whether we reach the same explanation."

"My dear Mr. Barnes, you could not come to me with a more alluring proposal. My mind this morning is in a peculiarly analytical pose, and I am already impatient for you to begin."

"Attend carefully, then, for in these affairs the smallest details may have the greatest value. Early this morning I was summoned by a messenger to go aboard of the steam yacht Idler, which lay at anchor in the lower bay."

"Why, the Idler belongs to my friend, Mortimer Gray," said Mr. Mitchel.

"Yes," replied Mr. Barnes, "I told you that your friends are interested. I went immediately with the man who had come to my office, and in due season I was aboard of the yacht. Mr. Gray received me politely and took me to his private room adjoining the cabin. Here he explained to me that he had been off on a cruise of a few weeks and was approaching the harbor last night, when, in accordance with his plans, a sumptuous dinner was served, as a sort of farewell feast, the party expecting to separate today."

"What guests were on the yacht?"

"I will tell you everything in order as the facts were presented to me. Mr. Gray enumerated the party as follows: Besides himself and his wife there were his wife's sister, Mrs. Eugene Cortlandt, and her husband, a Wall street broker. Also Mr. Arthur Livingstone and his sister, and a Mr. Dennett Moore, a young man supposed to be devoting himself to Miss Livingstone."

"That makes seven persons, three of whom are women. I ought to say, Mr. Barnes, that, though Mr. Gray is a club friend, I am not personally acquainted with his wife or with the others. So I have no advantage over you."

"I will come at once to the curious incident which made my presence desirable. According to Mr. Gray's story, the dinner had progressed as far as the roast, when suddenly there was a slight shock as the yacht touched, and at the same moment the lamps spluttered and then went out, leaving the room totally dark. A second later the vessel righted herself and sped on, so that before any sort of panic ensued it was evident to all that the danger had passed. The gentlemen begged the ladies to remain seated until the lamps were lighted, and this the attendants undertook to do, when they discovered that they had been dislodged from the brackets which held them and were so broken or bent that they could not be used. It became necessary, therefore, to get others. Thus the room was totally dark for several minutes."

"During which time, I presume, the person who planned the affair readily consummated his design?"

"So you think that the whole series of events was prearranged? Be that as it may, something did happen in that dark room. The gentlemen had started from their seats to assist in relighting the lamps and then groped their way back, some of them, however, finding the wrong places, as was seen when the fresh lamps were brought. This was considered a good joke, and there was some laughter, which was suddenly checked by an exclamation from Mr. Gray, who quickly asked his wife, 'Where is your opal?'"

"Her opal?" asked Mr. Mitchel in tones which showed that his greatest interest was now aroused. "Do you mean, Mr. Barnes, that she was wearing the Aztec opal?"

"Oh! You knew the gem?"

"I know nearly all jewels of great value, but what of this one?"

"Mrs. Gray and her sister, Mrs. Cortlandt, had both donned decollete costumes for this occasion, and Mrs. Gray had worn this Aztec opal as a pendant to a thin gold chain which hung around her neck. At Mr. Gray's question all looked toward his wife, and it was noted that the clasp was open and the opal missing. Of course it was supposed that it had merely fallen to the floor, and a search was immediately instituted, but the opal could not be found."

"That is certainly a very significant fact," said Mr. Mitchel. "But was the search thorough?"

"I should say extremely thorough, when we consider that it was not conducted by a detective who is supposed to be an expert in such matters. Mr. Gray described to me what was done, and he seems to have taken every precaution. He sent the attendants out of the salon, and he and his guests systematically examined every part of the room."

"Except the place where the opal was concealed, you mean."

"With that exception, of course, since they did not find the jewel. Not satisfied with this search by lamplight, Mr. Gray locked the salon so that no one could enter it during the night, and another investigation was made in the morning."

"The pockets of the seven persons present were not examined, I presume?"

"No; I asked Mr. Gray why this had been omitted, and he said that it was an indignity which he could not possibly show to a guest. As you have asked this question, Mr. Mitchel, it is only fair for me to tell you that when I spoke to Mr. Gray on the point he seemed to be very much confused. Nevertheless, however unwilling he may have been to search those of his guests who are innocent, he emphatically told me that if I had reasonable proof that any one present had purloined the opal he wished that individual to be treated as any other thief, without regard to sex or social position."

"One can scarcely blame him because the opal is worth a fabulous sum. I have myself offered Gray $25,000 for it, which he refused. This opal was one of the eyes of an Aztec idol, and if the other could be found the two would be as interesting as any jewels in the world."

"This is the story which I was asked to unravel," continued Mr. Barnes, "and I must now relate to you what steps I have taken toward that end. It appears that because of the loss of the jewel no one has left the yacht, although no restraint was placed upon them by Mr. Gray. All knew, however, that he had sent for a detective, and it was natural that no one should offer to go, until formally dismissed by the host. My plan, then, was to have a private interview with each of the seven persons who had been present at the dinner."

"Then you omitted the attendants from your suspicions?"

"I did. There was but one way by which one of the servants could have stolen the opal, and this was prevented by Mr. Gray. It was possible that the opal had fallen to the floor, and though not found at night, a servant might have discovered and have appropriated it on the following morning, had he been able to enter the salon. But Mr. Gray had locked the doors. No servant, however bold, would have been able to take the opal from the lady's neck."

"Her opal?" asked Mr. Mitchel.

"I think your reasoning is good, and we will confine ourselves to the original seven."

"After my interview with Mr. Gray, I asked to have Mrs. Gray sent in to me. She came in, and at once I noted that she placed herself on the defensive. Women frequently adopt that manner with a detective. Her story was very brief. The main point was that she was aware of the theft before the lamps were relighted. In fact, she felt some one's arms steal around her neck, and knew when the opal was taken. I asked why she had made no outcry, and whether she suspected any special person. To these questions she replied that she supposed it was merely a joke perpetrated in the darkness, and therefore had made no resistance. She would not name any one as suspected by her, but she was willing to tell me that the arms were bare, as she detected when they touched her neck. I must say here, that although Miss Livingstone's dress was not cut low in the neck, it was practically sleeveless, and Mrs. Cortlandt's had no sleeves at all. One other significant statement made by this lady was that her husband had mentioned to her your offer of $25,000 for the opal and had urged her to permit him to sell it, but she had refused."

"So it was madam that would not sell. The plot thickens."

"You will observe, of course, the point about the naked arms of the thief. I therefore sent for Mrs Cortlandt. She had a curious story to tell. Unlike her sister, she was quite willing to express her suspicions. Indeed she plainly intimated that she supposed that Mr. Gray himself had taken the jewel. I will endeavor to repeat her words:

"'Mr. Barnes,' said she, 'the affair is very simple. Gray is a miserly old skinflint. A Mr. Mitchel, a crank who collects gems, offered to buy that opal, and he has been bothering my sister for it ever since. When the lamps went out, he took the opportunity to steal it. I do not think this—I know it. How? Well, he made a mistake in our relative positions in the dark, and he put his arms around my neck and deliberately felt for the opal. I did not understand what he was about at the time and said nothing, but now it is very evident what he was after.'

"'Yes, madam,' said I, 'but how do you know it was Mr. Gray?'

"'Why I grabbed his hand, and before he could pull it away I felt the large cameo ring on his little finger. Oh, there is no mistake whatever.'

"I asked her whether Mr. Gray had his sleeves rolled up, and though she could not understand the purport of my inquiry she said no. Next I had Miss Livingstone come in. She is a slight, tremulous young lady who cries at the slightest provocation. During the interview, brief as it was, it was only by the greatest diplomacy that I avoided a scene of hysterics. She tried very hard to convince me that she knew absolutely nothing. She had not left her seat during the disturbance, of that she was sure. So how could she know anything about it, and at this her agitation reached such a climax that I was obliged to let her go."

"You gleaned very little from her, I should say?"

"In a case of this kind, Mr. Mitchel, where the criminal is surely one of a very few persons, we cannot fail to gain something from each person's story. A significant feature here was that, though Miss Livingstone assures us that she did not leave her seat, nevertheless when the lamps were lighted again she was sitting in a different place."

"That might mean anything or nothing."

"Exactly. But we are not deducing values yet. Mr. Dennett Moore came to me next, and he is a straightforward, honest man, if I ever saw one. He declared that the whole affair was a great mystery to him and that while ordinarily he would not care anything about it he could not but be somewhat interested because he thought that one of the ladies, he could not say which one, suspected him. Mr. Livingstone also impressed me favorably, in spite of the fact that he did not remove his cigarette from his mouth throughout the whole of my interview with him. He declined to name the person suspected by him, though he admitted that he could do so. He made this significant remark:

BOTH MEN FREED.

Willibald and Donovan Discharged in Court of Common Pleas.

Two cases came up in the Union County Court of Common Pleas at Elizabeth this morning and in both the prisoners were men from Plainfield. Judge Rice presided.

The first was that of Fred Willibald, who was arrested several weeks ago on the charge of grand larceny. The facts of the case were told in The Daily Press at the time, how Michael O'Keefe went into Goff's saloon and got a drink of beer and then went home to find out later that the two $50 bills he had had in his pocket were gone. The same night Willibald flourished two $50 bills about. The witnesses for the prosecution were Michael O'Keefe, Thomas O'Keefe, John Newman, Chief-of-Police Grant and Chief-of-Detectives Keron. The only witness for the defense was the defendant himself. Willibald's story was that he found two $50 bills near an electric light in front of Goff's saloon while he was cleaning a cuspidor.

The testimony was denied by Newman and T. O'Keefe who said that Willibald had shown them the money and told them that he found it in the saloon. After being cross examined they finally acknowledged that Willibald said he found it out of doors.

Willibald was represented in the case by Judge W. A. Coddington, whose crnss-examination was very searching. After the testimony had all been given, Judge Coddington claimed that there was no evidence that Willibald did not find the bills and that the State had failed to make its case as it hadn't proved the identity of the two $50 bills.

The Court agreed with Judge Coddington and discharged the prisoner. There was quite a scene when Willibald's mother, who was present, heard the verdict. Her thankfulness to Judge Coddington was quiete pathetic.

Frank T. Dunn, deputy prosecutor, represented the State and was assisted by Judge-elect George W. DeMeza.

The other case was the State against James Dunavan. Judge W. A. Coddington was assigned to the defence by the State and Goorge W. DeMeza was retained by Dunavan. About two weeks ago Officer Cooney heard glass breaking on Madison avenue and saw a man trying to climb into the little tailor shop of A. Wolf. Cooney fired at him as he ran and and fired again when he jumped over the fence. At the trial Cooney testified very positively that the man who escaped was Dunavan.

A hat was found on the spot, but it was too big for Dunavan and a pocket knife was also found, but it could not be proved to be the property of Dunavan.

Judge Coddington proved an alibi for the prisoner, as John McCann testified that he saw Dunavan go to his home on West Third street, and his mother went into his room during the night, about the time of the attempted robbery at two o'clock, and found him fast asleep. Officer Rockafellow heard the shots, and told the Court that when he saw Cooney that officer told him he did not know who the man was.

Cooney was very positive, however. The Court did not agree with him and Donovan was declared not guilty and discharged. Deputy Prosecutor Dunn was the attorney for the State.

STRIKES AND SPARES.

The Park Club bowlers have started on their upward journey and don't intend to stop short of first place. They are now second. Last evening the team of the Westfield Athletic Club came flushed with their former victories, but the pins went down to a merry tune and the home team won the first game by twelve pins. The second game was almost as close. The Westfield bowlers made a better score but their Plainfield opponents knew how to roll and victory rested on the Park Club with fifteen to spare. Matthews made the high score of the evening by rolling 204. The individual score by games was as follows:

PARK CLUB.

	FIRST.		SECOND.
Sandford	147		122
Smith	143		171
Matthews	151		204
Worth	173		166

Cashier—Mrs. Charles Schemerhorn, assisted by Miss Radcliff.

VOORHEES DISAPPOINTED AGAIN.

The Union County Senator Can Not Climb Any Higher.

Senator Foster M. Voorhees is not to be President of the Senate, through circumstances that are in some respects peculiar. His candidacy was not cordially received by the Republican leaders, generally, for the same reasons that have operated against him in the past. He is also confronted with a very formidable opponent in Senator Thompson, who has been a candidate several times and retired to the advantage of some other Senator, and the feeling prevails that Thompson's generosity to his friends, as well as his constant devotion to the party, entitles him to some consideration. In consequence, the sentiment that operates to the favor of the Senator from Somerset is not against the Senator from Union.

Voorhees' most intimate friends have reached the conclusion that it will be impossible to land him. He will not seek any distinction in the Senate this time, but will do his plain duty as the Senator from Union. Senator Rogers has joined forces with Senator Thompson and hopes to be made chairman of the caucus, and leader on the floor in return for the votes that he secured for Thompson.

It was stated that Senator Samuel D. Hoffman would probably be a candidate for the leader of the majority, but when asked the direct question a few days ago, he said that he was not.—Newark News.

SURPRISE PARTY.

Pleasant Time Enjoyed at an Arlington Avenue Home.

A surprise party was arranged and given by Morris Sutphen and Fred Tallamy to Miss Mildred Tyrrell, of Arlington avenue. Games, music and dancing helped to furnish a very pleasant time for the following who were present:

Misses Mildred Tyrrell, Fanny Mills Lillian Thorn, Cora Scull, Mate VanHorn, Edith Vail, Lida Pangborn, Florence Taynor, Lillian Hope, Florence Rugg, Dora Ulrich, Lulu Hartpence, Etta Raybert, and Messrs Audley Marsh, Clarence Rittenhouse, Percy McVoy, Vermon Waters, Clarence and William Thorn, George Graves and Ralph Tolles.

Another Organization.

A preliminary meeting for the purpose of organizing a Daughters of Liberty Council was held in Red Men's Hall last evening. The meeting was called by State Organizer Mrs. E. L. Bennett, of Newark. The attendance was excellent, and the meeting was adjourned for two weeks when a permanent organization will be effected.

Parlor Meeting.

A parlor meeting is being held at the home of Mrs. Charles Potter, of West Seventh street, this afternoon, at which time Miss Elizabeth U. Yates will speak The meeting is under the auspices of the W. C. T. U.

Kirmess Resolution.

The result of the late Kirmess has been so overwhelming, so far beyond anything that was expected, that with hearts full of sincere gratitude the Woman's Auxiliary Board at their regular meeting held November 29th, have passed the following resolutions:

Resolved, That a vote of thanks be extended to all who before and during the progress of the Kirmess have rendered valuable assistance, either by donating time and labor or in any way lending a helping hand, by sending bountiful contribuions or otherwise exerting themselves to secure the magnificent success that has been achieved.

Resolved, Further to publish a list of the names of all to whom we feel especially indebted, and if anyone through mistake or being undiscovered should be omitted, we wish to express our gratefulness to them as well. First of all we desire to thank the gentlemen of the press who from beginning to end have advocated and furthered our undertaking in the kindest and most earnest manner, and by their accurate and interesting accounts have largely assisted in drawing the immense crowds of visitors; also for the liberal discounts kindly granted on all printing matter. We further beg to express our gratitude to the gentlemen of the Plainfield Bicycle Club for allowing the use of their hall for the dance rehearsals.

To A. B. Thorn for generously repairing furnace, supplying pipe, etc., and to Messrs. Boice, Runyon & Co., as well as to DeWitt Ivins for donating one ton of coal each to heat the Bicycle Club hall. We are also indebted to the following friends of our institution:

To Mr. Marshall, Messrs. Woolston & Buckle and Messrs. Marsh & Ayers, for painting Stationery, Venetian, French and German booths.

To John Abbott, Charles E. Doane, Charles Wilson, Mr. Thatcher, Mr. Emmons, Pierson & Gayle, for furnishing lumber and erecting the Flower, Spanish, Venetian, French, German, Gypsy, and Welsh rarebit booths.

To Messrs. Griffen, Seely Edsall, VanEmburgh, and White, for their donations of tin and hardware, baskets, fancy articles, toys; also decorations for various booths.

To George O. Stevens for one ton of coal and to G. W. Rockfellow for preserves and canned vegetables for German booth.

To F. W. Dunn, P. M. Demarest, Mr. Rockfellow, Neuman Bros., J. A. Smith & Bro., and R. O. Howell, for liberal donations to Welsh rarebit booth and to restaurant.

To Garrett Packer for the loan of tables, chairs, sideboard, etc.; also to B. T Barnes for tables.

To Messrs. Staats and Hoagland for carting of furniture.

Ts Mr. Gavett for his donation of fancy jars for plants, and the loan of all the dishes used in the restaurant.

To Mr. Coddington for his generous supply of ice; to Mr. Gavin for the donation of ten quarts of milk every day; and to Mr. Randolph for fifty bottles of apollinaris water.

To Messrs. Peterson, Carson and Miles for cut flowers; also to Mr. Schmidt, of Fanwood for his generous contribution of flowers.

Mr. Butler and Mr. Brower, of New York, also sent in a quantity of choice cut flowers, bunches of violets and for large baskets of flowers.

R. C. Rand was extremely generous in loaning all the small flags and Japanese lanterns used in the decorations of the hall. Messrs. VanEmburgh & Son also furnished many other decorations for the same purpose.

The Stationery booth received donations from several circles of King's Daughters and are likewise indebted to well known firms in New York, viz, Stern Brothers, Dempsey, Carroll and others for liberal donations.

The ladies in charge of the Venetian booth feel especially indebted to Evarts Tracy for designing and personally directing the building and painting of their booth with the assistance of Mr. Benson and Wm. Gilbert. The latter gentleman will likewise accept our sincere thanks for his donation of the very artistic design on our programmes.

The services of our firemen have been invaluable throughout and we wish to thank them particularly for all their assistance.

And now, how can we ever say enough in praise of the ladies and gentlemen, as well as of the little folks, who so willingly sacrificed time and comfort to take part in and carry out the beautiful dances, and to the ladies and gentlemen and all who assisted in the various booths, in the refreshment rooms and other places. The never-ending applause of the delighted audience, the liberal purchases at all the booths, have been proof of the high appreciation of the public, and we can only say thanks to you all; a thousand thanks.

OFF FOR THE DARK CONTINENT.

What Is to Be Plainfield's Loss Will Be Africa's Gain.

The regular monthly business meeting of the W. C. T. U., held yesterday afternoon in their rooms on Watchung avenue terminated in a very pleasant manner, which it is safe to say will never be forgotten by those present.

Miss Rachel Mair, who sails for Africa on Saturday morning, was given an informal reception by the members and the event was an affecting one. Miss Clementine R. Yates arose and spoke in part as follows:

Dear sister, as you are about to leave us and go to dark Africa, this afternoon we are all exceedingly sorry that Plainfield is going to loose you, but we congratulate Africa We know that you will take Christ with you and the prayers of this union will also go with you. We felt as though we ought to give you a little gift as a souvenir, for your faithfulness in this union and for what you have been to us.

At this time Miss Yates presented Miss Mair with a tourist satchel containing a purse with money and a very handsome copy of the "Christian Legacy." Miss Mair responded by heartily thanking all for their generous gifts. Two other gifts not to be opened till Christmas were presented by the teachers of Warren chapel and Mr. and Mrs. Seeley Edsall. Each member had written a letter and they were also presented to Miss Mair. They are not to be opened till she boards the steamer. The balance of the afternoon was devoted to sociability, during which tea and wafers were served.

Miss Mair and Miss Arms, of Iowa, will sail Saturday morning on the Steamer Lucania and upon their arrival in Liverpool will meet Bishop Taylor. From there they will go to Brook's station, Africa, one hundred miles from Cape Pamas, which is the postoffice address. They expect to arrive there in six weeks.

STUDENTS EXCELLENT WORK.

Annual Exhibit of the Plainfield Manual Training School.

The annual reception and exhibit of the Dalziel Manual Training School was held yesterday afternoon and evening, and was very largely attended by friends of the school which now numbers eighteen members. The work of the scholars this year is a marked improvement and the different branches have been thoroughly taught. Some very fine specimens of wood work, clay modeling, drawing, writing, etc., were shown and highly complimented by those present.

In the evening Principal Maxson gave an interesting talk on the value of manual training.

Mr. Dalziel and his daughters certainly deserve much credit for their very excellent management and instruction at the school which is gaining more in popular favor each year.

Young Andrew Carney Recovers.

Master Andrew Carney, of No. 33 Emily street, who was transferred from the New York hospital in West Fifteenth street, where he had been undergoing treatment to his left arm, which had been badly broken by a fall from a hay loft a few months ago, and who was removed to another hospital at the foot of East Sixteenth street, on account of contracting a mild attack of diphtheria from one of the patients in the former hospital, was discharged as cured yesterday. The little fellow will yet be compelled to receive treatment from the West Fifteenth street hospital for his arm. His mother will accompany him daily to the hospital in New York until that member is entirely cured.

Intended Visiting Plainfield.

An unknown man was cut completely in two by an express train on the Pennsylvania Railroad at Lawrence Hill, shortly after midnight on Saturday. The body was taken to Trenton and placed in a morgue. Mrs. William McGinnis, of West Philadelphia, identified the body of the man killed at Lawrence early Sunday morning last as her husband. Mr. McGinnis left his home at 3 o'clock on Saturday to see a ball game, and from there was coming to this city to visit relatives over Sunday. He probably fell off of the car platform when the train gave a lurch and thus was killed.

The wife of Mr. D. Robinson, a prominent lumberman of Hartwick, N. Y., was sick with rheumatism for five months. In speaking of it. Mr. Robinson says: "Chamberlain's Pain Balm is the only thing that gave her any rest from pain. For the relief of pain it cannot be beat." Many very bad cases of rheumatism have been cured by it. For sale at 50 cents per bottle by Reynolds' Pharmacy, Park and North avenues. T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

THE SONS OF OLD ELI DINE.

ANNUAL DINNER OF THE PLAINFIELD YALE CLUB.

The Alumni Listen to Philosophical and Witty Remarks From Bright Men—All Sounded the Praises of Yale.

The happiest days in the life of a man are said to be his school days, but to one who has passed through college the time he spent there is the most enjoyable, and there are very few men who do not like to meet their old friends once more and talk over the days when he was a verdant freshman or a grave and reverend senior. And of all college men, the Yale graduates know how to enjoy themselves, as last evening showed. About fifty of them, with several invited guests, gathered in the Casino for the annual dinner of the Yale Club of Plainfield.

The tables were arranged in the shape of a giant U, at the head of which sat James R. Joy, president of the club, and toastmaster. At the place of honor on his right was the old and dignified president of Yale University, Dr. Timothy Dwight, while on his left was Dr. Austin, president of Rutgers College. The tables were lighted by silver candelabra while blue Yale ribbon and holly were arranged in pretty designs on the snowy-white covers. Several screens seperated the tables from the stage. The well known Yale flags, which have so often waved at victorious contests, graced the walls and gallery while a handsome American flag hung in artistic folds over the large fireplace. And here the Yale men, some old, some young, gathered for their alumni dinner and talked and laughed over stories of those good old days and then joined in the chorus of some well-remembered song that recalled thoughts of places and people now almost forgotten. The dinner was a most excellent one. The menu was was as follows:

Blue Point Oysters
Consomme Royal
Salmon Trout Sauce Hollandaise
Potatoes Parisiennes
Filet of Beef with Mushrooms
Potato Croquettes Asparagus
Roman Punch
Roast Turkey
Cranberry Jelly French Peas
Prairie Chicken Celery Mayonnaise
Ice Cream Charlotte Russe
Roquefort and Camembert Cheese
Fruit Coffee Cigars

And, in the intervals between the courses, come of the younger alumni struck up some humorous ditty or one of the good old songs so well known to the sons of Eli. Wm. N. Runyon with three other well known singers, sang together and made an excellent quartette, and Runyon sent his hearers into roars of laughter when he sang that quaint and sorrowful tale of the young man, the maid, and the parrot that talked.

When the last course was finished and the clouds of curling blue smoke gradually increased as cigar after cigar was lighted, Toastmaster Joy arose from his seat.

According to the menu the toasts and the speeches were as follows:

Yale.....President Dwight
"O mighty Mother, proudly set
Beside the far inreaching sea,
None shall thy trophied past forget,
Or doubt thy splendor yet to be."
Edmund Clarence Stedman, '53
The State of New Jersey.....Dr. Austin Scott
"In whose face
Cavalier honour, Huguenot grace,
The Quaker truth and sweetness,
And the strength of the danger-girdled race
Of Holland, blend in a proud completeness."
Bayard Taylor.
Planco Consule.....Dr. James M. Whiton
"We dwelt within the old Brick Row,
Before Durfee or Welch was built,
Or gilded youths in Vanderbilt
Look down upon the mob below.
We had no football then, you know.
All bloodless lay the unrodden snow."
Henry Augustin Beers, '69.
Harvard.....Jose A. Machado, Esq
"Learning is still honored here; the pursuit of truth is not abandoned; the higher ideals of life are still those which she inculcates, and a band of youth pass out from her gates today who will not, all of them, spend their lives in playing ball."—Charles Eliot Norton.
The Blue.....S. St. J. McCutchen, Esq
"These in the robings of glory."
Francis Miles Fince, '49.
Princeton.....Dr. B. VanD. Hedges
"In dreams through court and camp he bore
The trophies of a conqueror."
Fitz-Greene Halleck.
Lux et Veritas.....Dr. William R. Richards

But Mr. Joy had scarcely risen to his feet when Will Runyon sprang up and it was "Three cheers for Joy," which were given with a right good will. Then the president of the club was allowed to speak. After a few well-chosen words, Dr. Dwight was introduced as the President and Beelzebub of Yale. Then the grey-haired old man took the floor and, in his dry, humorous way, said that in all his experiences, of which he gave a few, that he had never had the good or bad fortune, whichever it was, to be given that title. After speaking in a light vein for several minutes he came back to the subject of his toast, Yale, and spoke of the college. He called the life at Yale the richest and dearest part of a graduate's experiences, and thanked the Divine Providence for the privilege of entering and going through the college and remaining there the rest of his life. There it was, he said, that we learn what real friendship is. After speaking on Yale of the past he said:

"The same spirit is there now that there was forty years ago, but the institution has grown wonderfully in numbers, resources and opportunities. I look forward with great confidence to the future and expect that in the next century greater improvements will be made. Let me extend to you from me and from the institution a kindly greeting."

After a few closing words, Dr. Dwight sat down.

After the loud applause had subsided to some extent, Mr. Joy said: "Dr. Dwight has prepared for the future and appointed his successor, William Runyon."

And then the coming president started a rollicking song "If I Were President," well known to Yale men, of the general good time he would have if he "were president."

Dr. Austin Scott, of the Class of '69 and now president of Rutgers College, responded to the toast "The State of New Jersey." He spoke of New Jersey as the subject of gibes and jeers and declared that she did not deserve it. "If there is one state in the Union," he exclaimed, "that is a representative state, that state is New Jersey! I will not say that she is the best but she has the extremes; what she has that is good, is very good, but that which is bad, is horrid." He also spoke of New Jersey as a deciding state, in politics as in other things. "Yale has had her share in this. There are two things that stir my heart and they are New Jersey and Yale. Yale is like New Jersey in that it is materially representative." And after other remarks in a similar vein, the diners united in the song "America" and then Dr. James M. Whiton answered his toast on "Planco Consule," and told of the doings of Yale, on the campus, in the gymnasium and the athletic field. He also told the story of the first athletic contest between Yale and Harvard which he arranged. Harvard was represented at the dinner by Jose A. Machad and he was next to respond. He remarked upon the feeling between Yale and Harvard and hoped the present situation was only temporary. He spoke of the two as national allies, but friendly rivals, and brought the greetings of their Harvard brothers.

After a verse of "Auld Lang Syne" S. St. John McCutchen responded to "The Blue." Reminisence followed joke, and story followed reminisence until his auditors had to stop laughing for sheer want of breath. He told of the famous Yale spirit and how it makes every Yale man that enters a contest feel that he has got to win.

Dr. B. Van D. Hedges, as the Princeton speaker, was also very entertaining. He remarked upon the wonderful coolness of Yale men in daily life as well as in the athletic field and gave a very laughable experience with one of them.

"Lut et veritas," the motto of Yale, was spoken upon by William R. Richards, and in a few words he told of the many true straightforward men that had come forth from Yale and spoke of these two as general characteristics of many Yale graduates. He referred to the woman of New Haven whose opinion of Yale was so poor and seemed to think she knew very little of most of the students at that institution. Several songs followed and then with a rousing "Rah, rah, rah, rah, rah, rah, Yale!" the party broke up.

The gallery was filled with the friends of the diners. Those present at the dinner were:

A. H. Atterbury and J. C. Palmer, of Brooklyn; M. S. Bate, of New York; H. L. Moody and J. M. Wells, of Westfield; Clifford Kelsey, Charles S. Foote, Edward Finch, George H. Ryder, Robert S. Tracy and E. A. S. Man, of Fanwood; J. F. Raymond, H. C. Tracy and Mr. Richards, of Orange; Mr. Schultize, Tom Arbuthnot and Mr. Schreider, of New York; William H. Corbin, of Elizabeth; Assemblyman C. N. Codding, of Westfield; Evarts Tracy, John Leal, Henry A. McGee, W. D. Murray, Mr. Hutchens, Mr. Calkins, Arthur Lovell, Clarence Peck, Fred Yates, Irving West, T. VanBoskerck, Percy Stewart, Mr. Foote, Mr. Stewart, C. C. Cokefair, William N. Runyon, Howard Huntington, John M. Whiton, Jose A. Machado, Assemblyman-elect Charles A. Reed, S. St. John McCutchen, Dr. Austin Scott, J. R. Joy, Dr. Timothy Dwight, Dr. W. R. Richards, Dr. James M. Whiton, Dr. B. Van D. Hedges, Samuel Huntington, J. E. Tracy and W. F. Murray.

BUILDING ORDINANCE AMENDED.

The New Office of Building Inspector About to be Created.

All the members of the city council were present at last night's meeting, except councilmen Stockton and Frost. The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved and upon recommendation of Mr. Moore the application of J. A. Karet for an auctioneer's license was granted. Mr. Moore stated that the appication of residents for an electric light on West Second street had been investigated and the committee did not recommend its erection. The report of the committee was concurred in.

Mr. Erickson then called up the building ordinance, also the ordinance creating the office of building inspector. They were placed on second reading and Mr. Erickson offered several amendments which were adopted. It was then ordered engrossed and advertised. Mr. Dumont said he supposed the same had been agreed to by the Board of Trade. Mr. Erickson stated that it had and was perfectly satisfactory.

Mr. Westphal voted no on the ordinance creating a building inspector.

Mr. Fisk stated that Honan & Sons should make certain repairs about the city and the street commissioner desired insruction as to how it should be done. It was decided that the street commissioner should do the work and have the same deducted from bills due if possible, if not, to be taken from the 7½ per cent, and that the street commissioner report the cost to the council.

The same action was taken in the case of John Siddall who has refused to fix Park avenue.

On Mr. Ginna's motion the council adjourned to meet Thursday evening, December 12th, when the street railway matter will come up.

MAJOR ANDERSON ELECTS.

New Officers of a G. A. R. Post for the Year.

A meeting of Major Anderson Post, No. 109, G. A. R., was held last evening and officers elected.

The election resulted as follows: Commander, Joseph T. Dunn; Senior Vice-Commander, Salmon C. Baker; Junior Vice-Commander, Edward J. Olssen; Quartermaster, John R. Naylor; Surgeon, Joseph F. Berg, M. D.; Chaplain, Rev. E. L. Livermore; Officer of the Day, Edward T. Dunn; Officer of the Guard, Major John N. Anderson; Outside Sentinel, Edward M. Devine; Delegate to State Encampment, E. J. Olssen; Alternate, John R. Naylor; Trustee for three years, Robert Mundy.

The other officers will be appointed in two weeks.

German Society Nominations.

The following officers were nominated at the business meeting of the Saenger and Turn Verein societies held last evening in their hall on Somerset street: President, Robert Jahn, Henry Haurand, M. Schoettlin; vice-president, John Richter, H. Meyer, H. Voegel, R. Wurgle; corresponding secretary, M. Schoettlin, I. Kohner; financial secretary, C. Felber, L Moraller; treasurer, A. Wolff, L. Moraller, C. Duvier. The nominations for the finance committee were laid over till next meeting.

The Student Service.

The following is the programme which will be rendered at the student volunteer service in the Congregational church next Sunday evening: Hymn number 1065; Scripture reading; hymn number 1062; address, C. W. Wisner, Jr, of Princeton; "Search," John C. Whiting, of Amherst; offertory; instrumental quartette, Charles Davis, first violin, Gilbert Lovell, second violin, Lindley Hillman, third violin, Walter Serrell, flute; hymn number 1076.

Increasing in Membership.

At the meeting of Franklin Council, No. 41, J. O. U. A. M., last evening, two members were elected, two initiated and one proposition received. The balance of the evening was devoted to routine business.

Major C. T. Picton is manager of the State Hotel, at Denison, Texas, which the traveling men say is one of the best hotels in that section. In speaking of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy Major Picton says: "I have used it myself and in my family for several years, and take pleasure in saying that I consider it an infallible cure for diarrhœa and dysentery. I always recommend it, and have frequently administered it to my guests in the hotel, and in every case it has proven itself worthy of unqualified endorsement. For sale by Reynolds' Pharmacy, Park and North avenues. T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

SONGS OF A COLONIAL KIND.

RENDERED BY YOUNG PEOPLE WITH CALICO DRESSES, ETC.

The Old Folkes Concerte Successfully Carried Out Before an Appreciative Audience—The Odd Names of Participants.

In a mental and optical way a fair sized audience in the Y. M. C. A. Hall was last night carried back to the colonial period. It was the occasion of the "concerte of ye olde folkes" given under the direction of Timeist Skoover Makepeace MacClymont. The programme, which had a superflous lot of ys and es, announced that "ye musick will commence at earlie candle lighte."

This phrase was put on the programme in a figurative sense, but it came near being literally true. After the choir had become seated on the platform and were about ready to commence vocalizing, a fuse in the electric light system blew out and the hall was plunged into sudden darkness. After a tedious wait of a half hour the break was repaired and the concert was started.

The numbers were all pleasingly rendered, evidencing careful training of the participants by Mr. MacClymont. The character impersonated by William G. Runyon was especially mirth provoking and his make-up as the prim old maid was very ludicrous. During the progress of the programme he sang a laughable parody on "There is Only One Girl in This World for Me."

The women singers were as follows: Asphyxia Williams, Smanthy Glen, Belinda Runyon, Humility Keenan, Mehitable Bittenbinder, Reconcile Dunham, Emerson Blair, Hulda Petrie, Comfort Searing, Vanderpool Blish, Pettingil McKillop, Belinda Noggles Scarborough, Keziah Chism Glen, Returah Popple MacClymont, Hathway Minner, Wealthy Ann Messersmith, Deliverance Herring, Bumps Blair, Periwinkle Pruden, Arsenith Newell, Twitchel Runyon, Sherlie Petrie, Rachel Pruden and Goodenough Bond.

The following were the men singers: Deacon Hezekiah Miner, Jonadab, Hazeltine, Melchizidek Spriggins Drake, Ienabod Hooker Barnes, Adonijah Warren Pope, Valient Brettle Flannery, Zebidee Miner, Noah Bumpus Yaeger, Eliakem Primrose Schutt, Theophrastus Baxter Honeyman, Selah Brinsindad Gallup, Sunlighte Hornblower McGee, Josiah Feeble Petrie, Brother Jonathan Snenicker, Susan Ann Jane Moore George Washington Angleman.

The programme was as follows:

Songe of ye Olde Folkes.
All ye men and women Singers
Ye Worldie Songe. Within a mile of Edinboro' town.....Samanthy Jane Glen Cousin Jedediah.
All ye men and women Singers
Ye Worldie Songe.....Brother Runyon

All ye men and women Singers

Mrs. B. T. Barnes acted as accompanist.

REFORM CLUB RULERS.

The Temperance Organization Select New Officers.

The Reform Club met at their hall on West Second street last night and reelected the following offiders to serve another year: President, W. C. Smith; First Vice President, M. F. Marclay; Second Vice-President, S. B. Scribner; Third Vice-President, Ethan Lanphear; Recording Secretary, W. B. Ayers; Financial-Secretary, J. W. A. Bauersachs; Treasurer, J. D. Spicer; First Marshal, John Hennesy; Second Marshal, Mark Lee; Sergeant-at-Arms, W. C. Smith, Jr.

Speeches were then made by Messrs. Smith, Marclay, Spicer, Spencer, Scribner, Bauersachs, Lanphear and Ayers, and all noted the perfect harmony existing in the club and hoped for its continuance.

Inspected Pond's Work.

About seventy-five members of the Society of Mechanical Engineers, who have been holding a meeting in New York, accepted an invitation yesterday to inspect the Pond Machine Tool Works. They came to Plainfield in a private car in the afternoon and were very much pleased with the works. After inspection all adjourned to the offices where a delightful lunch was served by Max Wiertz. The party returned to New York about five o'clock.

Presents for the Little Ones.

A meeting of the managers of the Children's Home was held in the Y. M. C. A. yesterday afternoon when it was decided to have a Christmas tree this year as usual.

GOOD OLD STYLE OF EATABLES.

The Women of the Methodist Church Know How to Prepare Them.

The very mention of supper and the Ladies Aid Society of the First M. E. church, together, suggests something good, and the old-fashioned supper which they gave last evening was quite up to the expectations. As so many entertainments were held during the evening the attendance was not as large as it otherwise might have been, but the congregation dropped in from the time that the supper was ready until it was time to close, and thoroughly enjoyed the delicious meal that was set before them. If "old-fashioned" meant a bountiful supply, the the supper last evening was very old-fashioned.

The supper was arranged by the following committee: Mrs Noah W. Pike, chairman, Mrs. Daniel E. Davis, Mrs. George M. Rittenhouse, Mrs. Garret Q. Packer, Mrs. O. L. Jenkins, Mrs. Charles R. Barnes, Mrs. C. H. Rugg, Mrs. John Cory, Mrs. Charles E. Horne, Mrs. J. P. Humble, Mrs. Edward C. Mulford, Miss Alexander, Mrs. J. H. King and Miss Susie Jackson. The cake table was under the supervision of Mrs. Henry A. McGee, chairman, Mrs. C. C. Cokefair, Miss Penny and Mrs. J. C. Peck. The pie table was looked after by Mrs. J. P. Homan, chairman, Mrs. Corlies Pond and Miss Mary Brown. The table, where the delicious home-made candies were for sale, was under the charge of Mrs. N. Y. Hull, chairman, and the Misses L. M. Mulford, Elsie Horne, Sarah Douglass, Elizabeth Cornwell, Grace Barnes, Margaretta Barnes, Ethel Simmonds and Smith. The ice cream was dealt out by Miss Minnie Sharp.

The supper was served by the following waitresses: Misses Lucie P. Davis, C. Florence Barnes, Alice Jenkins, Eva Jenkins, Cora Shepard, Mattie Humble, Elizabeth Stackhouse, Etta Raybert, Miss Van Middlesworth, Edna Harris, Lizzie Stafford and Lulu Packer.

MRS. CARNEY SURPRISED.

She is Called Out to Return and Find the House Full of Friends.

Mrs. John H. Carney, of 40 Craig place, was incidentally called out last evening for the purpose of allowing her sister, Mrs. John Kulp, of Bayonne City, who is spending a few weeks with her, to complete arrangements made by her and Mrs. Carney's cousin, Miss Maggie, of Westfield, to take the house by storm, which was indeed accomplished to the very letter when the hour of eight had arrived. Two large coupes were driven to the house and a most lively gathering alighted therefrom. Prominent among them was Westfield's reliable merchant, John Darsh, and lady; the genial architect, Charles Darsh, and lady; and that popular master plumber, Harry Taylor, and lady. When Mrs. Carney arrived, although completely surprised, she was equal to the occasion and at once made all feel at home. The evening was delightfully spent, and the many selections rendered by the quartette, composed of Charles Darsh, Mrs. Charles Darsh, Mrs. Harry Taylor and Mr. Taylor, were heartily received. During the evening Mr. Carney amused all by his original German sayings, including his humorous version of the new woman. Refreshments were served and all returned to their homes at an early hour after midnight more than delighted.

Royalty for Passengers.

John Burke, of Denver, Col., now residing with Mr. Dickson, of Dunellen, was in town yesterday. The hand from which he lost his fingers is improving. If it was his right hand, as the News reported, it would seriously interfere with Mr. Burke's profession, which is the driver of the Deadwood coach at Buffalo Bill's Wild West show. Mr. Burke delights in telling that this coach has carried more notable persons than any other vehicle in the world, and on one occasion among his passengers were four kings and a queen. In history the coach records thirteen deaths from violence when in commission. The last driver killed was John Slauter in 1878.

When most needed it is not unusual for your family physician to be away from home. Such was the experience of Mr. J. Y. Schenck, editor of the Caddo, Ind. Ter., Banner, when his little girl, two years of age was threatened with a severe attack of croup. He says: "My wife insisted that I go for the doctor, but as our family physician was out of town I purchased a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, which relieved her immediately. I will not be without it in the future." 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by Reynoldss' Pharmacy, Park and North avenues. T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

THEIR SCHEME FOILED

Plot To Capture the City of Canton Discovered.

Conspirators Desired To Establish an Independent Government—The Movement Involved Christians to a Considerable Extent—Missionaries Not in Sympathy.

Boston, Dec. 6.—The following letter has been received in Boston from a reliable correspondent who describes the recent attempt to capture Canton, south China. The writer says: For some time rumors have been afloat that a secret organization in Hong Kong was conspiring with men in Canton to capture the city and establish an independent government. The plot ripened October 27. A suspicious telegram came under the notice of an American resident regarding packages sent up by the S. S. Powan. The United States consul was immediately notified and he in turn notified the officials. On the same steamer from Hong Kong came 400 men who expected to aid in the revolt. The officials, however, being notified, captured seventy-five of these; all wore a red sash under their coats. They had no weapons, but were to be supplied by friends in the city. The suspicious telegram proved to be a communication between two houses of the same firm, one in Hong Kong and one in Canton. The packages sent proved to be five barrels of pistols and ammunition labelled "cement."

Plan of the Organization.

The attempt thus far proved a miserable failure, as notice was given in time and the authorities are now making a diligent search for the leader as well as for more weapons. It is said that a large amount has been smuggled in on various occasions; also that there are thousands in sympathy with the movement. The Hong Kong papers speak of it as a "patriotic movement," and worthy of support, but foreign residents have cause to think otherwise. The plan of the organization was first to capture the city treasury and next to demolish the viceroy's palace. By this time they would expect sufficient aid to storm the city. They next expected to proclaim an independent government to take measures to hold the city. The movement has involved the Christians to a considerable extent.

Christians Implicated.

The ringleader is a man who was baptized several years ago but did not prove to be a worthy member. Others who have been at some time connected with various societies of Christians are also implicated, some willingly, believing the movement good, others through deception. Great excitement prevails, especially inside the city near a chapel which had been used, unknown to the missionary, as a sort of rendezvous for some of the conspirators. The hatred against Christians has increased, and they are bitterly denounced. The effect upon work was almost instantaneous. I do not think that there will be any uprising against missionaries, but the consul urges them to be careful in their work. The missionaries have no sympathy with this kind of a movement.

STOLE VALUABLE JEWELRY.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Dec. 6.—The Delaware, Lackawanna & Western railroad depot was entered at Wyoming by burglars and a trunk belonging to John Honey, a traveling salesman for a jewelry house in Syracuse, N. Y., was broken open and the entire contents, consisting of watches and jewelry, were removed. The loss is estimated at $2,000. There is no clue.

"BILLY" BIRCH ILL.

The Veteran Minstrel Stricken with Paralysis.

New York, Dec. 6.—"Billy" Birch, the veteran minstrel, was stricken with paralysis yesterday at his residence in this city, and, while not in a critical condition, he is very ill.

No One Injured.

Woonsocket, R. I., Dec. 6.—A northbound local passenger train ran into the rear of a freight train near Manville station on the Worcester division of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad yesterday afternoon The caboose of the freight was ditched and wrecked, the front of the passenger engine smashed in and passengers badly shaken up, but otherwise uninjured. Both tracks were blocked for several hours.

For the New Battleships.

Washington, Dec. 6.—Secretary Herbert has concluded to hear representatives of the competing bidders for the battleships, for building which proposals were recently opened, before awarding the contract.

Smith in the Asylum.

Washington, Dec. 6.—Rev. Frank Hyatt Smith, the Cambridge, Mass., clergyman, who was adjudged insane, has been taken to St. Elizabeth's asylum for the insane on the outskirts of Washington city.

"Living Picture" Kilanyi Dead.

New York, Dec. 6.—Kilanyi, the originator of living pictures, died suddenly yesterday of hasty consumption.

DAY IN THE SENATE.

Free Silver and Cuban Resolutions Are Introduced.

Washington, Dec. 6.—There was a very good attendance when the senate met at noon. The first bill introduced was one by Mr. Mills for the coinage of the silver in the treasury. A bill introduced by Mr. Chandler for the free coinage of silver at the ratio of 15½ to 1, the bill to become operative when England, Germany and France pass similar laws, was listened to with great attention by the members of the senate. Petitions from Florida for the recognition of Cuba and from the legislature of Montana against further issuance of bonds were presented. A resolution offered by Mr. Call was adopted, calling upon the secretary of state to send to the senate the correspondence relating to the case of Gen. Sanguilly, an American citizen, sentenced to life imprisonment for alleged complicity in the Cuban revolution, and directing him to procure a copy, of the record in the case, if it is not on file at the department. Mr. Gallinger introduced a resolution declaring it to be the sense of the senate that it was unwise and inexpedient to retire the greenbacks.

CONTESTED SEATS IN CONGRESS

Speaker Reed May Appoint Two Committees Instead of One.

Washington, Dec. 6.—Pressure has been brought to bear on Speaker Reed to appoint two elections committees in the present congress. It is argued that in no other way can the large number of contested cases, thirty in all, be disposed of before March 4, 1897. While the speaker has reached no decision in this matter, it is believed that he will be so influenced by the representations of the contestants, all of whom are republicans, with few exceptions, that he will ask permission of the house to do so.

DYING OF HICCOUGHS.

John Miller, a Society Man, Will Succumb to the Malady.

New Brunswick, N. J., Dec. 6.—The condition of John Miller, a well-known society man, who is suffering from hiccoughs, remains about the same. He is gradually growing weaker. He was seized with spasms a week ago. He first had malarial fever, which developed into pneumonia, and from pneumonia he was stricken with hiccoughs. Two physicians and two nurses are constantly in attendance on him, but his death is believed to be a question of a day or two only.

HIGHWAYMEN JAILED.

Four Men, One of Whom Confesses, Arrested at Concord.

Concord, N. H., Dec. 6.—Within the past two months two men have been held up by highwaymen in Loudon, but each managed to escape by whipping up his horse, after being fired at. A Pinkerton detective from Boston was put on the case. As a result George London, George Taylor, alias Sargent, George Lougee, jr., and John Calahan have been arrested and lodged in jail here. One of the parties made a full confession implicating all the others.

RED CROSS AND TURKEY.

Clara Barton Appealed To by Relief Workers.

Boston, Dec. 6.—A special meeting of the Prudential committee of the American board was held last evening for the purpose of requesting the Red Cross society, of which Clara Barton of Washington is president, to undertake relief work in Turkey, as an international organization. A relief ship under its auspices would be allowed to enter where the fears of the Turkish government would allow no European warships to go.

THE PRESTON CHARGES.

Superintendent of Banks Files His Answer with Gov. Morton.

Albany, Dec. 6.—Supt. Preston of the state banking department has filed with Gov. Morton his answer to the charges filed against him by certain depositors of the Commercial bank of Brooklyn. These charges are similar to those made against him twice before during the past two years to Gov. Flower and the state senate and which Gov. Flower dismisssed.

THE BLUE AND THE GRAY

Movement for a Parade of Civil War Veterans.

Charles A. Dana Chosen Chairman of the Organization Effected in New York for a Reunion in That City on July 4, 1896—Many Prominent Men Favor the Idea.

New York, Dec. 6.—In answer to a call issued December 2, signed by Mayor Strong, Chauncey M. Depew, Judge Martin T. MacMahon, Andrew G. Dickinson, Charles A. Dana and John J. Garnett, about fifty well known New York men met in the governor's room at the city hall yesterday and organized for a reunion and parade of the veterans of the civil war, both the blue and the gray, in the streets of New York on July 4, 1896. It will bring together at the celebration those who are left of the men and the leaders who took part in the "bitter struggle," and unite for the first time in the north the blue and the gray. Charles A. Dana was elected temporary chairman, after which letters were read from many prominent men all over the country. Only one refused to act on the committee to further the idea. That was Elbridge T. Gerry; he gave no reason. It was presumably on account of a recent death in his family. Many of the letters spoke enthusiastically of the project, and patriotic sentiment was expressed in every one of them.

Chas. A. Dana Chosen Chairman.

Col. Garnett then put in nomination for permanent chairman the originator and champion of the idea—Charles A. Dana. He was unanimously elected, and thanked the meeting for the honor. He said: "I thank you most heartily for the honor you confer upon me. I am only too glad to serve and do what I can for the delightful and admirable undertaking. I would ask, however, that you appoint an associate chairman who can act for me when I am called to other duties." Col. Garnett was elected permanent secretary. It was then moved by Gen. Howard Carroll that an executive committee be appointed. The motion was adopted and another for the appointment of a subcommittee was also carried. They will be selected in a day or so, and will consist in part of those who were present at yesterday's meeting and those who expressed a desire to serve on the committee by letter. The meeting then adjourned subject to the call of the chair. Among those present were Col. W. L. Brown, A. G. Dickinson, Gen. Howard Carroll, Dr. Murphy, J. Pierpont Morgan, Jacob Ruppert, George Ehret, Amos J. Cummings, L. C. Weir, Robert Dunlap and Gen. Daniel Butterfield.

A MOTHER'S DUTY

TOWARDS HER DAUGHTERS.

Suggestions Which Bear Repeating, as Their Importance is Immeasurable.

[SPECIAL TO OUR LADY READERS.]

Only a few years ago even the medical profession scouted the idea that young girls could suffer from the misery of uterus troubles.

That form of disease, it was claimed, came only to married women.

When Lydia E. Pinkham first sent out the news of her great discovery, there was no lack of harsh speech from those whose practice and opinions she set at defiance.

But when young girls by the hundreds were absolutely cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, then the tongues of the traducers were stilled, and faith was allowed to live in the hearts of the people.

Young girls are subject to this trouble. It robs them of the buoyancy of youth. It makes all effort distasteful.

It causes retention and suppression of menses, leucorrhœa, severe headache, waxy complexion, depression, weakness, loss of appetite and interest.

Certainly mothers ought to know that these are all symptoms of the one cause of nearly all the suffering that comes to women; and to save their daughters ought to begin treatment at once.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the surest and most natural remedy for women ever compounded. It will accomplish its work with certainty.

WASHINGTON MATTERS

Republican and Democratic Senators in Caucus.

Mr. Sherman's Committee Almost Evenly Divided Between Gold and Silver Men—Mr. Chandler Holds the Balance of Power—What the Democratic Caucus Did.

Washington, Dec. 6.—Both the republican and democratic members of the senate held a caucus yesterday afternoon for the purpose of considering matters relative to the reorganization of the senate committees. Beyond that the discussion did not go. Mr. Sherman, chairman of the republican caucus, reported to his associates the names of the members who had been selected by him to form the senate committees for the republican side of the chamber and apportion the members according to their service and for the best interest of the country and the business of the body. When the caucus met some of the younger element, which now has quite a foothold in the senate, had some apprehension as to what Mr. Sherman might do, and for this reason went into the caucus chamber intending to override him if they found any evidence of an intention to "snub" the young members, or if the silver element of the senate was unduly discriminated against. As soon as Mr. Sherman read his list, suspicion was disarmed. The committee named by him consisting of the following was accepted without a dissenting vote: Mitchell, chairman; Teller, Cullom, Platt, Quay, Chandler, Pettigrew, Gear and Pritchard. This committee is divided evenly on financial lines as nearly as any committee of nine could be divided. Mitchell, Teller, Pettigrew and Pritchard are pronounced silver men and Cullom, Platt, Quay and Gear, anti-silver men: Chandler, a bimetalist and friend of silver but not a radical, holds the balance of power.

The Democratic Caucus.

The democratic caucus had an easier piece of work before it. Mr. Gorman, chairman of the caucus, was directed to appoint a committee with power to place the democrats on the proper committees. Six of this committee will consist of Senators Blackburn, Cockrell, Harris, Brice, Jones, Ark., and Gorman, who were on the former committee. Three new ones will be added to it next Monday by Mr. Gorman. It was decided that when the republicans nominated a candidate for president of the senate the democrats should nominate Mr. Harris, who served during the fifty-third congress. But little was said about the reorganization the senate in general, but Senators Vest and Blackburn are quoted as expressing themselves in favor of permitting the republicans to organize without objection on the part of the democrats and thereby throw upon them the responsibility for the legislation of congress.

TWELVE BUSHELS OF MAIL.

Thrown Into a Loft by a Lazy Substitute Carrier.

Fall River, Mass., Dec. 6.—The post-office scandal turns out to be a case of gross criminal negligence on the part of a substitute carrier. Instead of, as reported, three bushels of mail matter being found undelivered, the quantity is nearer to twelve bushels. The place in which it was found is within a block of the postoffice in the loft of the armory and central fire engine house.

WORLD'S FAIR MEDALS.

Will Be Delivered as Soon as the Diplomas Are Ready.

Washington, Dec. 6.—The Chicago world's fair medals will be delivered here on the 15th inst. They will be kept here until the world's fair diplomas are ready and both will be delivered at the same time. The world's fair closed November 30, 1893.

GEN. DAVOUT APPOINTED.

Chosen Grand Chancellor of the Legion of Honor.

Paris, Dec. 6.—Gen. Davout has been appointed grand chancellor of the legion of honor. He was made a chevalier of the legion in 1861, an officer in 1870, a commander in 1871, a grand officer in 1880 and a grand cross in 1887.

Employment for Many Men.

Phillipsburg, N. J., Dec. 6.—The large stack of the Andover Iron company, which has been idle for two years, will be put in operation next week, giving employment to a large number of men.

Indictment of a Postmaster.

Portland, Me., Dec. 6.—In the United States district court yesterday an indictment was reported against Ossian W. Gilbert, late postmaster at Kingfield, for embezzling $640.

Gold for the Government.

New York, Dec. 6.—The Manufacturers National bank of Troy deposited $50,000 in gold at the sub-treasury yesterday, taking legal tender in exchange.

Confirmed by the Pope.

Rome, Dec. 6.—The pope has confirmed the appointment of father W. H. O'Connell of Boston as rector of the American college at Rome.

Erne-Dixon Fight a Draw.

New York, Dec. 6.—The ten-round bout between Erne and Dixon at the New Manhattan Athletic club last night ended in a draw.

THE VENEZUELAN DISPUTE.

Reasons for Believing Lord Salisbury's Reply Is Satisfactory.

Washington, Dec. 6.—All published reports about the character of the reply of the British government to Secretary Olney's note concerning arbitration of the British-Venezuelan dispute are pure conjecture. Whatever the administration knows already of its character it is keeping well sealed from public inspection. That it has been informed of the general character of the reply is believed by many persons, and the president's statements in his message are regarded as indicating that the tone of the British note is not unsatisfactory, for any other construction in the light of knowledge already possessed, would involve a prejudgment of a case with which congress will have ultimately to deal.

MAHER AND FITZ TO MEET.

Will Fight in Mexico for a Purse of $10,000 on Feb. 14.

New York, Dec. 6.—A meeting was held at the St. James hotel yesterday between John J. Quinn and Dan Stuart and complete arrangements were made for a fight to a finish between Bob Fitzsimmons and Peter Maher, the fight to take place in Mexico on February 14. The men will fight for a purse of $10,000 and Police Gazette heavyweight championship belt. It is proposed to pull the fight off in Mexico, just across the Rio Grande from El Paso, Tex. There will be a tent capable of seating 3,000 or more people. Maher has improved 100 per cent. since he was defeated by Fitzsimmons, and it is fair betting that a rattling contest will result.

STORE ROBBERS SENTENCED.

Sons of Well-to-Do People Receive Long Terms in Prison.

Lancaster, Pa., Dec. 6.—Edward Welsh, Frank Fitzkey, George Howard, George Miller and Frank Welsh, sons of well-to-do parents, who were convicted of robbing the store of Amos Hershey & Bros., at Gordonville, were yesterday sentenced to terms in prison ranging from a year and a half to six years and a half. They would probably have received heavier sentences had not the jury recommended them to the mercy of the court.

A ROYALIST PLOT.

Scheme for a Filibustering Expedition to Hawaii.

Seattle, Wash., Dec. 6.—The Hawaiian government has information disclosing beyond a doubt a scheme to inaugurate another big filibustering expedition on the Pacific coast in the interest of the royalist party. Charles T. Wilder, Hawaiian consul general of the states of California, Oregon, Nevada and Washington, has been on Paget sound for a week making investigation.

TWINS CAUSE TROUBLE.

Rawson Boys, Heirs of Laura Keene, in Jail.

New York, Dec. 6.—The Rawson boys, the celebrated twins, who are the direct heirs to the great estate left by Laura Keene, the actress, are in jail again in Hackensack, and since they have acknowledged their guilt they will probably remain in jail for a short time. The complaint against the boys this time is assault, and the complainants are the Misses Mabel, Eva and Sarah Simon, ranging in age from 14 to 20 years.

WANT CUBA RECOGNIZED.

Mass Meeting at Trenton Sends Resolutions to Washington.

Trenton, Dec. 6.—A thousand people went to Taylor's opera house last evening in response to a call for an expression of public sympathy with the Cuban cause. Resolutions were adopted asking the government at Washington to extend to Cuba the recognition of belligerency and such aid as the situation demands. The resolution will be forwarded to Washington at once.

SNOW IN NEW ENGLAND.

Ranges from Five Feet in Boston to Eight Inches in Keene.

Boston, Dec. 6.—The snow storm which began early Wednesday night has continued since that time without cessation. Five feet of snow have fallen. At Glousceter a foot of snow is reported. At Keene, N. H., eight inches have fallen. At Suncook, N. H., there is a foot of snow. Brattleboro, Vt., reports a heavy fall of snow.

CLEVELAND GOES HUNTING.

President Leaves Washington for North Carolina Rivers.

Washington, Dec. 6.—Taking advantage of the admirable ducking weather, President Cleveland last night sailed from Washington on the light-house tender Myrtle, to pursue that sport in the North Carolina sounds and rivers for a brief period.

Requisition Granted.

Harrisburg, Pa., Dec. 6.—A requisition was granted by the governor yesterday on the governor of New Jersey for David L. Clever, now in Camden, and wanted in Philadelphia on the charges of grand larceny and forgery.

Died After Fasting Forty-seven Days.

Toledo, O., Dec. 6.—W. J. Murray, father of Dr. S. B. Murray, died last evening, after fasting for forty-seven days. Mr. Murray was 80 years old. He had refused to eat anything for seven weeks.

The Philadelphia Leaves Tacoma.

Washington, Dec. 6.—The cruiser Philadelphia sailed yesterday from Tacoma for Olympia.

Chief-Justice Fuller Better.

Washington, Dec. 6.—Chief-Justice Fuller's condition is improved to-day.

SHAKERS AND DOCTORS TALK TOGETHER.

In his able work entitled "Longevity," published a few years ago, Dr. John Gardner, of England, predicts that a vegetable agent will yet be found that shall so retard those changes that bring about old age as to prolong human life much beyond its present limit

Acting perhaps, upon the impulse produced by this thought, many eminent physicians have called from time to time upon the Shakers of Mt. Lebanon to inquire of them concerning the secrets of medicinal plants, in which these sincere, simpleminded and God-fearing people are known to be wise and skillful beyond all other men.

The Shakers willingly told what they had learned, and in return received from their visitors much valuable information about disease; which they at once made practical use of. The most important point was that if a genuine and certain remedy could be found for indigestion and dyspepsia, and the ailments growing out of it, a long step would be taken in the right direction. Old age, said these physicians, begins in a failure of the digestion, and so do most diseases at any and all periods of life. The result of these consulations was the discovery by the Shakers of the desired specific, made wholly from herbs, and now known as the Shaker Digestive Cordial. Its action is magical and worthy of its origin.

Where there is distress after eating, heart burn, sick headache, bad taste in the mouth, biliousness, weakness and weariness, cold hands and feet, aversion to food, nervousness, or any other symptom of dyspepsia, the Cordial will prove its curative virtues. Behind it is the reputation of a people who have never defrauded or deceived their fellow men.

In order to test whether this remedy is adapted to your case, at practically no cost, you may procure a trial bottle for ten cents at almost any druggist.

The Cloak Store

The busiest season of cloak-selling we have ever experienced. Again dozens of new cloaks, new capes, practically, as well as stylish and beautiful. Boucle cloth, beavers and meltons, those of perfect quality and excellent make, start at $7.45, cheaper cloaks, maybe, as low as $4.50. Embroidered plush capes start at $8.29 and stop at $30. Double capes all wool material, at $3.75, some at $5.19.

Blankets

Rather than have much to say about them we prefer to have you call and be surprised at the good things in the blanket stock, be surprised at the littleness of the cost. All-wool, part wool and cotton, although we prefer to sell pure wool blankets. A little more profit for us, better satisfaction for you. Price commences at $4 pair.

Get Good Gloves

If you knew about gloves, you'll take pleasure in looking at our stock—you'll enjoy wearing them. The latest kid gloves of reliable brands represented. Best fabric gloves not high priced, but plenty of satisfaction and good wear.

Underwear

Where quality and economy join hands. That little underwear talk last week brought a volume of trade. The careful and economical buyer gets the quality without the high price at this underwear store. Plenty of "specials" for the coming week, which our salespeople will be pleased to tell you about when you call.

Somerville wants free mail delivery.

If nothing else, Senator Sewell's legislation on oysters is seasonable.

Tomorrow many of the cider joints close. Next day they will be in full blast. Isn't it wrong?

There is said to be one college without a yell. This is the reason why no one knows where it is.

The Cranford Chronicle has passed its third anniversary. Editor Potter has a lusty youngster.

Oysters and pensions are the subjects of legislation which Senator Sewell's first two bills treat with.

That annual fall visitor, Dusty Roads, has arrived in town. He needs an introduction to the street sprinkler.

A home for soldiers' widows, the only institution of the kind in New Jersey, has just been opened near Trenton.

Nebraska farmers have discovered that sugar beets make good whiskey, and internal-revenue agents are finding illicit stills. It is cheaper, though, to run cider joints in Plainfield, and not half so risky.

Attorney-General Stockton says that he would not accept the vice-chancellorship should it be offered him. This means that he will continue in his present office until the expiration of the term, April 5th, 1897.

Mrs. Etta Morse Hudders has been grappling with the servant question and her conclusions are not of a rosy hue for the present generation. She says the domestic problem can only be solved by education of the future servant-class. And education is so slow.

Among all the New Jersey editions of New York papers there is none that is conducted with greater enterprise and ability than that of The Press. Its manner of covering many events with briefness and terseness is a feature possessed by no other Jersey edition.

What a mecca the gay old town New Brunswick is for real bad people. Now the story comes from there that two of the feminine population have been hypnotized by a wandering gypsy, whose seductive Svengalli ways made one woman voluntarily give up $275 in real money and another one open her wardrobe and allow the nomad to take some of her best clothes.

Herman Ahlwardt has come all the way from Germany to drive the Hebrews out of the United States. Before starting out on his tour of extermination he needs to study the features of the men in Wall street, the business firms on Broadway, the list of bank officials, city officials and other important personages of New York and the rest of the country. If he possesses the faculty of distinguishing a man's nationality by his cognomen he will give his up mission as the biggest piece of foolish business he ever engaged in.

FOR THE MISSION.

Entertainment Given in Warren Chapel Last Evening.

An excellent entertainment was given in Warren chapel last evening under the auspices of the Christian Endeavor Society and was largely attended. The proceeds will be devoted to missionary purposes. The following programme was rendered: Piano duett, Misses Lillian Zeisz and Lida Pangborn; Recitation, Miss Bertha Clum; Tableaux, "Mute Choir"; piano solo, Miss Alice Squires; Dialogue, "Inhuman Monster"; Recitation, W. R. Mattox; Song, Miss Lillian Zeisz; Tableaux, "The Right"; Recitation, Miss Try Mattox; Dialogue, "Rich and Poor"; Dialogue, "The Country Aunt's First Visit to the City."

Those who arranged the entertainment are as follows: Misses Sadie Searing, Minnie Bolsterli, Lizzie Dunham and Messrs. Henry Seader and William Mullon.

THEATRICAL.

Minnie Lester and her excellent company were greeted by another good house last evening when the comedy-drama "Ragged Jack" was presented. The play was exceedingly funny, and many good specialties introduced. Miss Lester was charming in the title role. Tonight "The Devil's Mine" will be presented, and "Jack Sheppard" tomorrow night. "Mugg's Landing is the name of the play for tomorrow's matinee.

"The Shop Girl," at Palmer's Theatre in New York, is full of the specialties of generally clever actors to whom new matter is given from time to time. The piece has just completed a year in London, where a new company was formed for it when the original one was sent here. Its production at the popular theatre in New York is on a scale of splendor that has made it easily one of the most popular among metropolitan theatre-goers. A number of Plainfielders who have witnessed its performance say that it tells a story in a very funny way.

High School Notes.

The Kappa Delta Phi will hold its regular weekly meeting on Friday afternoon of this week. The subject of the meeting will be "Inventors and Their Works." Each member of the society will speak upon a different invention of the eighteenth century. Each member is to represent his chosen inventor and is to describe to the society a visit to the world and is to relate to the society what his opinions are concerning the advancement in the inventing world. On Friday, Dec. 20th, there will be no meeting of the society, as that day is the last day before the Christmas vacation.

Dunellen.

Mrs. C. Boice, of Front street, has been entertaining Miss Esty, of Bayonne.

Miss Kervey has returned home from a visit with her parents at Chester, Pa.

John McCall has returned home from his visit with his mother at Sheepshead Bay.

Chris Huff is moving into the house formerly occupied by Mr. Reed, of Church street.

Mr. Brokaw, a resident of New Market, was found dead in a hallway at New York Wednesday. The body was sent out on the five o'clock train from New York Thursday morning, which was taken care of by Undertaker Runyon.

Great Reduction in Time to California.

Once more the Northwestern Line has reduced the time of its trans continental trains, and the journey from Chicago to California via this popular route is now made in the marvelously short time of three days. Palace drawing-room sleeping cars leave Chicago daily, and run through to San Francisco and Los Angeles, without change, and all meals en route are served in dining cars. Daily tourist sleeping car service is also maintained by this line between Chicago and San Francisco and Los Angeles, completely equipped berths in upholstered tourist sleepers being furnished at a cost of only $6 each from Chicago to the Pacific Coast. Through trains leave Chicago for California at six p. m. and 10.45 p. m. daily, after arrival of trains of connecting lines from the east and south. For detailed information concerning rates, routes, etc., apply to ticket agents of connecting lines or address: H. A. Gross, G. E. P. A., 423 Broadway, New York, or T. P. Vaille, S. E. P. A., 112 South Fourth street, Philadelphia, Pa. tf.

Working for Young Men.

A meeting of the Board of Directors of the Y. M. C. A. was held last evening with the following gentlemen present: E. L. Bonny, A. B. Beers, G. H. Batchelor, C. E. Boss, S. Cahoone, G. S. Clay, G. R. Cornwell, T. E. Hazell, A. C. LaBoyteaux, Nelson Runyon and John Valiant. In the absence of the President Mr. Bonny presided. Written reports were received from the following committees: Religious work, social work, junior work, educational work, literary work, music, rooms, membership. It was reported that a Spanish class would in all probability be organized. The attendance for the month has averaged: Boys' meetings, 76; young men's, 175; classes in educational department, 68; Bible classes, 39.

The Children of the Brain

are books, so the poet says. What stacks and piles of gaily colored picture books for the little tots. It would seem that artists and writers had found all the most beautiful imagery of their brains into these charming books to capture the hearts of the little book lovers. We have picked out the nicest and rarest literature for the young we could find. Let me tell you about a few of the many.

Wide Awake Pleasure Book

7¼x9¾ inches. Good stout paper. Print as clear as type can make it. Beautifully illustrated. Tastily colored frontspiece. Board covers, cloth back, for boys and girls, 68 cents.

Articles and Topics for Boys

All the World Over for boys and girls. Bo Peep's World for little ones of both sexes; all three 8x9¾. First-rate paper and good print; full of pictures; board covers; cloth back. 50 cents.

"Good Friends," "May Blossoms" and "Merry Making." Three charming books for little folks. Each book 8¼x10½; very fair paper and print; nearly 200 bright pictures, 8 of which are colored; cloth binding, handsome and lasting. Fascinating stories and poems for the little people. 75 cents. The same books and "Nursery Budget", just the same as last except board covers, cloth back, 40 cents.

"Snow Bird," See Saw Stories, Family Cares, Our Pet's Picture Book, Bright and Early Santa Claus Ride. All six 8x10; fair paper; large print; illustrated board covers; paper back, 15 cents.

A

Big Surprise.

During the year our buyer in the Crockery and China Department has secured from the leading importers in New York their samples in some of the finest imported wares, and laid them aside to bring out as a big surprise for the Special Holiday Trade.

The prices paid for these rich and beautiful wares is only a trifle of their real value, at most not more than one-half to one-third.

We are now offering them for sale at the same proportionately Low Prices as they were bought at. They are not Auction, —— or imperfect goods at all, but every article guaranteed genuine 'firsts' and perfect in every way.

There is nothing in the market to compare with them. Those who purchase them will get the Biggest Bargains ever offered in this line. Don't wait for they will soon be sold.

Notes of Interest.

The Commercial Palace is the center of attraction for the trading public this season more than ever before. In addition to the above attractions many others as important might be mentioned, viz:

has been greatly enlarged; now covering floor space over one hundred feet long and twenty-five feet wide in the big basement.

Here a grand display of everything almost in this line is made and offered at about one-half former prices. Dolls, for instance, that used to sell for 25c, 50c and $1, now sell for 13c, 25c and 50c. This great saving has come about in buying in large quantities direct from manufacturers and importers for cash.

Our assortment of cheap and fine Books this year surpasses all former years. It is just wonderful what a nice 12mo you can buy now for 13c to 15c, and the toy books and booklets for the little ones are just lovely and cheap, too.

The Art Department

is just perfectly captivating. It would be useless to undertake to give anything like a description of it. The variety of elegant articles is large, and it seems as if the makers of them had really outdone themselves. Prices here too are cut about in half from a year or so ago.

And in the line of Gloves, Handkerchiefs, Hosiery, Laces, Ribbons, and other needs we are simply prepared to supply all wants.

In ladies' coats, capes, skirts, etc, there never has been a time in the history of this county when prices were so low as now. We show the latest and most fashionable styles at just as low prices as in New York.

And in fact throughout the entire establishment the most elaborate preparations have been made for an enormous Holiday Trade, at least doubling that of a year ago.

The citizens of Plainfield have in fact little excuse to go out of town now to do their shopping, with such an establishment as the Commercial Palace in their midst packed brimful of elegant new seasonable goods and offered at such astonishingly low prices.

The Chrissmas display this year will surpass all our former efforts Save money by going with the crowds to Edsall's.

Two Forty-Eight.

For a woman's double sole neat, stylish, serviceable boot, button and lace, sizes 3 to 7, B, C and D width. These are fresh stylish goods direct from the manufacturers, made to retail at $3.50 a pair, and they're cheap at that. Our special price.

PUNTS AND KICKS.

The football season is over, as far as Plainfield is concerned at least. The Spartans were to play at Westfield, but owing to the lateness of the season it was given up. The season has been a very successful one, especially for the Y. M. C. A. eleven, and the Alis team, the crack junior team of the city. Neither team has lost a game, although both have played a tie and both can boast that they were not scored against.

Aaron Thompson is the manager of the Alis eleven, and much of their success is due to his persistent efforts. Roy Phillips filled the position of captain, and the wonderful energy he infused into the team is one of the causes of their victorious career. Special credit should also be given to the half backs, J. V. Rittenhouse and Harry Cuming.

The Spartan team has not been as successful as the others but that was owing to the inability of the players to meet regularly for practice.

In the Y. M. C. A. team much credit is due Louis E. Waring and Thomas U. Smith, who looked after the management of the eleven; while Fred H. Freeman, as captain, was a great success.

GOLF.

At a recent meeting of the governors of the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club it was decided that on account of the great interest taken in the game of golf since the grounds were laid out this fall, that the course should be kept open until the first of January so that members will have a chance to play as long as there is any probability of good weather. The holes will all be moved slightly so that the greens will not be injured by too much play so late in the season, and improvements are constantly being added to the course. The erection of an earth bunker between the fifth and sixth holes will soon be undertaken and a small building in which tools, etc., may be left is promised in the near future. This will provide a place to leave coats, overcoats, etc., while playing.

CYCLING COMMENT.

Patrick Marron rode to Paterson on his wheel last Sunday.

W. L. Price, agent for the Eldridge Bicycle Company, went to Hartford yesterday on business.

The Crescent Wheelmen bowl a game with the Elizabeth Athletic Club tonight on the former's alleys. The home team will be VanEmburgh, Petrie, Wilbur, Buckle, Stevenson, Maltby, Vail, Price and Lyman.

The team which is to play against the basket ball team of the Tronton Y. M. C. A. on Saturday evening, December 14th, will be selected tomorrow evening at the Y. M. C. A gymnasium.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh That Contain Mercury.

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces, such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

Nothing Like It.

Time brings many changes, but the climate of California, "The Italy of America," and the attractions of the many famous health and pleasure resorts, are the same yesterday, today and forever.

Tourists never will tire of speaking in praise of the soft and balmy air, the profusion of flowers, the magnificent display of fruits, the luxury of seabathing and the beautiful walks and drives.

Then, too, it must be conceded that with such excellent equipment, consisting of Reclining Chair Cars, Pullman Palace Sleepers and Pullman Dining Cars, all heated by steam and lighted with Pintsch Light, the Union Pacific, "The Overland Route," is the tourists favorite. Ask your agent for tickets via this route.

THE TURKISH SITUATION

Problem of Extra Guardships Still Unsolved.

Report that a Specified Time Has Been Granted to the Sultan to Issue Firmans Uncontradicted—A Russian Squadron at Sebastopol—Christians Slaughtered.

Constantinople, Dec. 6.—There is no change in the political situation here. The extra guardship problem is still unsolved, and the rumor that the sultan has been given a specified time within which to grant the firmans demanded by Great Britain, Russia, Austria and Italy, is still discussed and remains uncontradicted by any official source. During the past twenty-four hours there have been frequent cabinet councils at the palace and several exchanges of communications with the representatives of the powers, but no decision seems to have been arrived at by the porte. Said Pasha, the president of the Turkish council of state and formerly grand vizier, has taken refuge in the English embassy at Constantinople, believing himself not only in danger of arrest, but fearing for his life.

Warships at Sebastopol.

Only quite recently Said Pasha was mentioned as likely to be reappointed grand vizier, and, when matters reached a crisis, last week, he was called upon in the very early hours of the morning to do his utmost to persuade the British ambassador at Constantinople, Sir Philip Currie, to order the British gunboat Dryad away from the Dardanelles. Although not successful immediately, Said Pasha succeeded in getting Sir Phillip to once more refer the matter to his government, although he had full power to act, with the eventual result that the Dryad was sent back to Salonica bay. A Russian squadron of seven battleships and nine torpedo boats is anchored off Sebastopol under orders to hold itself in readiness to sail at twenty-four hours' notice.

Many Christians Slaughtered.

On Monday, November 11, the Kurds and Turks attacked Husenik and slaughtered many Christians. Soldiers from Kharpoot went out to meet them and parleyed with the Turks before the attack began. It was plain that everything was planned, for the soldiers, in pretended defense of the Armenians, merely fired over the heads of the Kurds. The Christians were shot down everywhere. The American missionaries have written to their friends in Constantinople that Dr. Barnum applied to the military commander for protection. Some soldiers were sent, but they left directly, except two, who demanded backsheesh for remaining.

GERMANY'S NAVAL POWER.

More Cruisers Needed According to Admiral Werner.

Washington, Dec. 6.—United States Consul Monaghan at Chemnitz, Germany, has supplied the state department with advance notes of an article to be published by Admiral Werner upon the defenceless condition of German commerce in the event of war. The admiral cites figures to show the vast magnitude of this commerce, for the protection of which the government has made the insignificant provision of four fast modern cruisers, and argues for an immediate allowance of 100,000,000 francs ($20,000,000) to build new cruisers.

NEW YORK SHIPS HELD.

A Terrific Gale in the English Channel Delays Vessels.

Queenstown, Dec. 6.—A terrific gale is raging in the English channel and the White Star steamer Germanic from New York was obliged to enter the harbor and anchor in order to land her passengers and mails. The departure of the White Star line steamer Majestic for New York is delayed owing to the lateness of the arrival of the Holyhead mail boat at Kingston.

A SENSIBLE VERDICT.

What the Storekeeper Would Call a Man Under Certain Circumstances.

They were talking about stealing, and the bank president said: "No system will prevent a man who handles large sums of money from grabbing some of it, but a system of embezzlement is different and is very likely to be discovered in a short time. Here we allow clerks and tellers to alternate at the desks, so that each man acts as a check on his predecessor. This scheme is in vogue in nearly all banks and gives general satisfaction, but of course if there is a thief in the house he is going to steal. It reminds me of a story about a fellow who came to the city and after getting along in business for a number of years went back to his native village in New York. There he called on the old storekeeper with whom his folks used to trade, and after inquiring how business was he asked:

"'Mr. Perkins, what system of bookkeeping have you used in the store?'

"The old fellow replied: 'Oh, well, you know, I have no use for any books. I buy for cash and sell for cash and don't keep any books.'

"'Well,' the Chicago man said, 'how many clerks have you?'

"'Oh, three or four.'

"'Well, what is to keep them from cheating and robbing you?'

"'Oh, nothing. They put all the money in the cash drawer, and I take it out at night and put it in my pocket.'"

"Oh, that's no way to do business,' said the Chicago man. 'You ought to keep books and have a system and know just what your clerks are doing.'

"The old fellow said he would think it over, and a few days later he met his young friend and said: 'Oh, say, I got that book business of yours, and it's all right. I'm much obliged for the idea. They can't cheat me now.'

"'Well, how do you do it?'

"'Oh, I've got a book for each clerk and a cash drawer for each one, and every time he sells anything he puts it down in the book and puts the money in the drawer, and at night I foot up the book and the cash has to be the same.'"

"'Well,' the Chicago man protested, 'what is to prevent the clerk from selling something and not putting it down in the book and pocketing the money?'

"The old man looked at his questioner a minute or so as if this thought had not occurred to him, and finally he drawled out, 'Well, a man who would do that would be a ——thief.'"—Buffalo Express.

ROMANCE OF A WEDDING RING.

Lost For Many Years and Restored on the Golden Wedding.

The fourth year of my residence at the palace was marked by a family event—the "golden wedding," or fiftieth anniversary of the marriage of the Comte and Comtesse de Tascher de la Pagerie, which was celebrated at Baden-Baden in the presence of all their children and grandchildren.

A curious circumstance occurred on this occasion which is worthy of mention. The (Princess) Comtesse de Tascher had lost, many years before, her wedding ring, to her great distress, and it had never been found. Shortly before the festivities of the golden wedding the Duchess of Hamilton, on looking over the jewels left by her mother, the Grand Duchess of Baden, whose death had occurred during the preceding winter, found a small packet labeled: "The wedding ring of Amelie von der Leyen, sold by a Jew peddler as having belonged to the Empress Josephine. To be returned." It was evident that the grand duchess, who was the most forgetful of women, had put this away carefully and entirely forgotten it. The Duchess of Hamilton, seeing the inscription engraved inside, "Louis de Tascher de la Pagerie—Amelie von der Leyen," with the date of their marriage, sent it to the count with the above explanation. He kept the matter secret till the "golden wedding," when the ring which had been lost for so long was again placed on the finger of the Princess Amelie von der Leyen on the fiftieth anniversary of the marriage which had taken place under the sad circumstances already related.—"Life In the Tuileries Under the Second Empire," by Anna L. Bicknell, in Century.

Persian Carpets.

Persian carpets, of course, are still, as they have always been, superior in beauty and durability to all others, but their expensiveness disqualifies them from competition with Indian, Turkish and British fabrics and places them in the category of those exceptionally costly "articles de luxe" in the possession of which only the very wealthy may rightfully indulge themselves. A few years ago, at the sale of the Goupil collection in Paris, the equivalent in French currency of $6,000 was paid for one square of "old Persian" measuring 7 feet by 6, and several others of small size were eagerly snapped up at from $2,500 to $4,000 apiece. For an exemplification of their lasting capacities we may quote Sir Murdoch Smith, who states that the floor of the principal pavilion of the Chebel Situn palace at Ispahan is covered with a superb carpet, still in fine condition, which has been in continuous use for 300 years—that is, ever since the time of Shah Abbas, who reigned toward the close of the sixteenth century. Even at the present day in Persia itself as much as $1,000 is often asked and paid for a small carpet.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

No Doubt About His Meanness.

To the large number of stories of the "meanest man" which are frequently related one should be added of a certain Frenchman, famous for his habit of grumbling at everything and on every occasion. He was attacked by inflammatory rheumatism, and was carefully nursed by his wife, who was very devoted to him, in spite of his fault finding disposition. His suffering caused her to burst into tears sometimes as she sat by his bedside.

One day a friend of this invalid came in and asked how he was getting on.

"Badly, badly," he exclaimed. "And it's all my wife's fault."

"Is it possible?" asked the friend in surprise.

"Yes. The doctor told me that humidity was bad for me, and there that woman sits and cries, just to make it moist in the room."—Pearson's Weekly.

To Wed Well.

"Harold, it is necessary," she insisted. "It would break mamma's heart were I not to marry well."

One look into her eyes told him that there was no alternative.

"As you say," he sighed.

Suiting the action to the word, they proceeded to rehearse their wedding twice a day.—Detroit Tribune.

Getting Over a Cough

is easy enough with the help of Randolph's Emulsion. It's a regular step ladder we might say. You get over the cough easily and quickly. In fact, all our drugs are step ladders to help one over every kind of earthly ailment But coughs are what we particularly want to speak of today, for there is a long hard winter before us, and tne person who starts it off with a cough may never see the end of it. Therefore if a cough is what you have take Randolph's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil with phosphoric acid.

THE AZTEC OPAL.

By RODRIGUES OTTOLENGUI.

[Copyright, 1895, by the Author.]

"'You are a detective of experience, Mr. Barnes, and ought to be able to decide which man among us could place his arms around Mrs. Gray's neck without causing her to cry out. But if your imagination fails you suppose you inquire into the financial standing of all of us and see whch one would be most likely to profit by thieving. Ask Mr. Cortlandt.'

"Evidently Mr. Livingstone knows more than he tells."

"Yes; he told enough for one to guess his suspicion and to understand the delicacy which prompted him to say no more. He, however, gave me a good point upon which to question Mr. Cortlandt. When I asked that gentleman if any of the men happened to be in pecuniary difficulties he became grave at once. I will give you his answer."

"'Mr. Livingstone and Mr. Moore are both exceedingly wealthy men, and I am a millionaire in very satisfactory business circumstances at present. But I am very sorry to say that, though our host Mr. Gray is also a distinctly rich man, he has met with some reverses recently, and I can conceive that ready money would be useful to him. But for all that it is preposterous to believe what your question evidently indicates. None of the persons in this party is a thief, and least of all could we suspect Mr. Gray. I am sure that if he wished his wife's opal she would give it to him cheerfully. No, Mr. Barnes, the opal is in some crack or crevice which we have overlooked. It is lost, not stolen."

"That ended the interviews with the several persons present, but I made one or two inquiries from which I elicited at least two significant facts. First of all, it was Mr. Gray himself who had indicated the course by which the yacht was steered that night, and which ran her over the sand bar; second, some one had nearly emptied the oil from the lamps, so that they would have burned out in a short time, even though the yacht had not touched."

"These are your facts? And from these you have solved the problem? Well, Mr. Barnes, who stole the opal?"

"Mr. Mitchel, I have told you all that I know, but I wish you to work out a solution before I reveal my own opinion."

"I have already done so. Mr. Barnes. Here. I will write my suspicion on a bit of paper. So. Now tell me yours, and you shall know mine afterward."

"Why, to my mind, it is very simple. Mr. Gray, failing to obtain the opal from his wife by fair means, resorted to a trick. He removed the oil from the lamps and charted out a course for his yacht which would take her over a sand bar, and when the opportune moment came he stole the jewel. His actions since then have been merely to cover his crime by shrouding the affair in mystery. By insisting upon a thorough search, and even sending for a detective, he makes it impossible for those who were present to accuse him hereafter. Undoubtedly Mr. Cortlandt's opinion will be the one generally adopted. Now, what do you think?"

"I think I will go with you at once and board the yacht Idler."

"But you have not told me whom you suspect," said Mr. Barnes, slightly irritated.

"Oh, that is immaterial," said Mr. Mitchel, calmly preparing for the street. "I do not suspect Mr. Gray, so if you are correct you will have shown more ability than I. Come, let us hurry."

On their way to the dock, from which they were to take the little steam launch which was waiting to carry the detective back to the yacht, Mr. Barnes asked Mr. Mitchel the following question:

"Mr. Mitchel," said he, "you will note that Mrs. Cortlandt alluded to you as 'a crank who collects gems.' I must admit that I have myself harbored a great curiosity as to your reasons for purchasing jewels which are valued beyond a mere conservative commercial price. Would you mind explaining why you began your collection?"

"I seldom explain my motives to others, especially when they relate to my more important pursuits of life. But in view of all that has passed between us I think your curiosity justifiable, and I will gratify it. To begin with, I am a very wealthy man. I inherited great riches, and I have made a fortune myself. Have you any conception of the difficulties which harass a man of means?"

"Perhaps not in minute detail, though I can guess that the lot of the rich is not as free from care as the pauper thinks it is."

"The point is this: The difficulty with the poor man is to get rich, while with the rich man the greatest trouble is to prevent the increase of his wealth. Some men, of course, make no effort in that direction, and those men are a menace to society. My own idea of the proper use of a fortune is to manage it for the benefit of others as well as for one's self, and especially to prevent its increase."

"And is it so difficult to do this? Cannot money be spent without limit?"

"Yes, but unlimited evil follows such a course. This is sufficient to indicate to you that I am ever in search of a legitimate means of spending my income, provided that I may do good thereby. If I can do this, and at the same time afford myself pleasure, I claim that I am making the best use of my money. Now, I happen to be so constructed that the most interesting studies to me are social problems, and of these I am most entertained with the causes and environments of crime. Such a problem as the one which you brought to me today is of immense attractiveness to me, because the environment is one commonly supposed to preclude rather than to invite crime. Yet we have seen that despite the wealth of all concerned some one has stooped to the commonest of all crimes, theft."

"But what has this to do with your collection of jewels?"

"Everything. Jewels, especially those of great magnitude, seem to be a special cause of crime. A hundred carat diamond will tempt a man to theft as surely as the false beacon on a rocky shore entices the mariner to wreck and ruin. All the great jewels of the world have murder and crime woven into their histories. My attention was first called to this by accidentally overhearing a plot in a ballroom to rob the lady of the house of a large ruby which she wore on her breast. I went to her, taking the privilege of an intimate friend, and told her enough to persuade her to sell the stone to me. I fastened it into my scarf and then sought the presence of the plotters, allowing them to see what had occurred. No words passed between us, but by my act I prevented a crime that night."

"Then I am to understand that you buy jewels with that end in view?"

"After that night I conceived this idea—if all the great jewels in the world could be collected together and put in a place of safety, hundreds of crimes would be prevented, even before they had been conceived. Moreover, the search for and acquirement of these jewels would necessarily afford me abundant opportunity for studying the crimes which are perpetrated in order to gain possession of them. Thus you understand more thoroughly why I am anxious to pursue this problem of the Aztec opal."

Several hours later Mr. Mitchel and Mr. Barnes were sitting at a quiet table in the corner of the dining room at Mr. Mitchel's club. On board of the yacht Mr. Mitchel had acted rather mysteriously. He had been closeted awhile with Mr. Gray, after which he had had an interview with two or three of the others. Then when Mr. Barnes had begun to feel neglected and tired of waiting alone on deck, Mr. Mitchel had come toward him, arm in arm with Mr. Gray, and the latter had said:

"I am very much indebted to you, Mr. Barnes, for your services in this affair, and I trust the inclosed check will remunerate you for your trouble."

Mr. Barnes, not quite comprehending it all, had attempted to protest, but Mr. Mitchel had taken him by the arm and hurried him off. In the cab which bore them to the club the detective asked for an explanation, but Mr. Mitchel only replied:

"I am too hungry to talk now. We will have dinner first."

The dinner was over at last, and nuts and coffee were before them, when Mr. Mitchel took a small parcel from his pocket and handed it to Mr. Barnes, saying:

"It is a beauty, is it not?"

Mr. Barnes removed the tissue paper, and a large opal fell on the tablecloth, where it sparkled with a thousand colors under the electric lamps.

"Do you mean that this is"— cried the detective.

"The Aztec opal, and the finest harlequin I ever saw," interrupted Mr. Mitchel. "But you wish to know how it comes to be in my possession? Principally so that it may join the collection and cease to be a temptation in this world of wickedness."

"Then Mr. Gray did not steal it?" asked Mr. Barnes, a touch of chagrin in his voice.

"No, Mr. Barnes, Mr. Gray did not steal it. But you are not to consider yourself very much at fault. Mr. Gray tried to steal it, only he failed. That was not your fault, of course. You read his actions aright, but you did not give quite enough weight to the stories of the others."

"What important point did I omit from my calculation?"

"I might mention the bare arms which Mrs. Gray said she felt around her neck. It was evidently Mr. Gray who looked for the opal on the neck of his sister-in-law, but as he had not bared his arm, he would not have done so later."

"Do you mean that Miss Livingstone was the thief?"

"No. Miss Livingstone, being hysterical, changed her seat without realizing it, but that does not make her a thief. Her excitement when with you was due to her suspicions, which, by the way, were correct. But let us return for a moment to the bare arms. That was the clew from which I worked. It was evident to me that the thief was a man, and it was equally plain that in the hurry of the few moments of darkness no man would have rolled up his sleeves, risking the return of the attendants with lamps and the consequent discovery of himself in such a singular disarrangement of costume."

"It is a beauty, is it not?"

"How, then, do you account for the bare arms?"

"The lady lied; that is all. The arms which encircled her neck were not bare. Neither were they unknown to her. She told you that lie to shield the thief. She also told you that her husband wished to sell the opal to me, but that she had refused. Thus she deftly led you to suspect him. Now, if she wished to shield the thief, yet was willing to accuse her husband, it followed that the husband was not the thief."

"Very well reasoned, Mr. Mitchel. I see now where you are tending, but I shall not get ahead of your story."

"So much I had deduced before we went on board of the yacht. When I found myself alone with Mr. Gray, I candidly told him of your suspicions and your reasons for harboring them. He was very much disturbed and pleadingly asked me what I thought. As frankly I told him that I believed he had tried to take the opal from his wife—we can scarcely call it stealing, since the law does not—but that I believed that he had failed. He then confessed, admitted the emptying of the lamps, but denied running the boat on the sand bar. That was purely accidental. But he assured me that he had not reached his wife's chair when the lamps were brought in. He was therefore much astonished at missing the gem. I promised him to find the jewel upon condition that he would sell it to me. To this he most willingly acceded."

"But how could you be sure that you would recover the opal?"

"Partly by my knowledge of human nature and partly because of my inherent faith in my own abilities. I sent for Mrs. Gray and noted her attitude of defense, which, however, only satisfied me the more that I was right in my suspicions. I began by asking her if she knew the origin of the superstition that an opal brings bad luck to its owner. She did not, of course, comprehend my tactics, but she admitted that she 'had heard the stupid superstition, but took no interest in such nonsense.' I then gravely explained to her that the opal is the engagement stone of the orient. The lover gives it to his sweetheart, and the belief is that, should she deceive him even in the most trifling manner, the opal will lose its brilliance and become cloudy. I then suddenly asked her if she had ever noted such a change in her opal. 'What do you mean to insinuate?' she cried out angrily. 'I mean,' said I sternly, 'that if ever an opal has changed color in accordance with the superstition this one should have done so. I mean that, though your husband greatly needs the money which I offered to him, you have refused to allow him to sell it and yet you have permitted another to take it from you tonight. By this act you might have seriously injured if not ruined him. Why have you done it?'"

"How did she receive that?" asked Mr. Barnes, admiring the ingenuity of Mr. Mitchel.

"She began to sob, and between her tears she admitted that the opal had been taken by the man whom I suspected, but she earnestly declared that she had harbored no idea of injuring her husband. Indeed she was so agitated in speaking upon this point that I believe that Gray never thoroughly explained to her why he wished to sell the gem. She urged me to recover the opal, if possible, and purchase it, so that her husband might be relieved from his pecuniary embarrassment. I then sent for the thief. Mrs. Gray told me his name, but would you not like to hear how I had picked him out before we went aboard? I still have that bit of paper upon which I wrote his name in confirmation of what I say."

"Of course I know now that you mean Mr. Livingstone, but I would like to hear your reasons for suspecting him."

"From your account, Miss Livingstone suspected some one, and this caused her to be so agitated that she was unaware of the fact that she had changed her seat. Women are shrewd in these affairs, and I was confident that the girl had some reason for her conduct. It was evident that the person in her mind was either her brother or her sweetheart. I decided between these two men from your account of your interviews with them. Moore impressed you as being honest, and he told you that one of the ladies suspected him. In this of course he was mistaken, but his speaking to you of it was not the act of a thief. Mr. Livingstone, on the other hand, tried to throw suspicion upon Mr. Gray."

"Of course that was sound reasoning after you had concluded that Mrs. Gray was lying. Now tell me how you recovered the jewel?"

"That was easier than I expected. I simply told Mr. Livingstone when I got him alone what I knew, and asked him to hand me the opal. With a perfectly imperturbable manner, understanding that I promised secrecy, he quietly took it from his pocket and gave it to me, saying:

"'Women are very poor conspirators. They are too weak.'"

"What story did you tell Mr. Gray?"

"Oh! He would not be likely to inquire too closely into what I should tell him. My check was what he most cared for. I told him nothing definitely, but I inferred that his wife had secreted the gem during the darkness that he might not ask her for it again, and that she had intended to find it again at some future time, just as he had meant to pawn it and then pretend to recover it from the thief by offering a reward."

"One more question. Why did Mr. Livingstone steal it?"

"Ah, the truth about that is another mystery worth probing, and one which I shall make it my business to unravel. I will venture two prophecies. First, Mr. Livingstone did not steal it at all. Mrs. Gray simply handed it to him in the darkness. There must have been some powerful motive to lead her to such an act, something which she was weighing and decided impulsively. This brings me to the second point. Livingstone used the word 'conspirators,' which is a clew. You will recall that I told you that this gem is one of a pair of opals, and that with the other the two would be as interesting as any jewels in the world. I am confident now that Mr. Livingstone knows where that other opal is, and that he has been urging Mrs. Gray to give or lend him hers as a means of obtaining the other. If she hoped to do this, it would be easy to understand why she refused to permit the sale of the one she had. This, of course, is guesswork, but I'll promise you that if any one ever owns both it shall be your humble servant, Leroy Mitchel, jewel collector."

THE END.

MONEY AND MAN GONE.

Butcher Warneck Sends His Man to Pay a Bill and He Disappears.

Carl Frecht came to Plainfield from New York about two months ago and secured a position with Richard Warneck, the East Front street butcher. He was apparently very steady in his habits and trustworthy. Yesterday morning Mr. Warneck sent Frecht to the Swift Beef Co. house to pay a bill of $14, and that is the last time he was seen by his employer. He did not pay the bill and Mr. Warneck thinks the men has left town with his money. No effort has as yet been made to find Frecht.

Enthusiastic Salvationists.

There was a very large attendance at the Salvation Army hall last night when the National Staff Band of New York, under the leadership of Adjutant Trumbull, was present.

The latter took charge of the meeting. Testimonies, short interesting talks and prayers were given by the band, also several excellent musical selections. The meeting was one of the best ever held in the hall and was productive of much good.

Methodist Supper to Continue.

The Ladies Aid Society of the Methodist Church call the attention of their friends to the following notice: Owing to the abundant supply of good things furnished for the Supper last evening, they have decided to continue it this evening. A good, hearty meal will be served from 6 p. m. on, for 25 cents. There will be no admission fee. A large supply of excellent home-made candies at moderate prices.

A Novel Trade.

Augustus M. Frazee, of Plainfield, was here on Tnesday to trade crutches with Fred Mildenburger, who was a chum of his at the time both were laid up in Muhlenberg Hospital. "Gus" is minus a leg but looks younger than he did thirty years ago when he ran a daily express between Plainfield and New York.—Bound Brook Democrat.

First Musical.

The first musical of the Thursday Evening Music Club was held last evening in the Olympia. The programme was one composed of nothing but the works of Ethelbert Nevin. The guests were Dr. and Mrs. T. S. Davis, Dr. Ida B. Hunt, Mrs Coard, Mrs. Maxson, Miss Mary Collier, Messrs. Charles Davis, Charles Noble and Mr. Sprowl.

Epworth Gathering.

All the members of the Epworth League are urged to be present at their meeting and sociable this evening in Vincent chapel. Get in line for work in the evangelistic services soon to be held. You are cordially invited to take supper with the ladies. Let there be a general rally.

It Costs to Have Good Roads.

The Board of Freeholders met at Elizabeth yesterday. It was reported that it took $13,960.48 to keep the roads of Union county in repair last year. The last payment of $1,644 on the cost of the Morris avenue road from Hobarts Gap was ordered paid.

SHOOTING THE RAPIDS.

Just Enough Danger Present to Make It a Fascinating Feat.

As we approached the steersman in the first canoe stood up to look over the course. The sea was high. Was it too high? The canoes were heavily loaded. Could they leap the waves? There was a quick talk among the guides as we slipped along, undecided which way to turn. Then the question seemed to settle itself, as most of these woodland questions do, as if some silent force of nature had the casting vote. "Sautez, sautez," cried Ferdinand, "envoyes au large!" In a moment we were sliding down the smooth back of the rapid, directly toward the first big wave. The rocky shore went by us like a dream. We could feel the motion of the earth whirling around with us. The crest of the billow in front curled above the bow of the canoe. "Arrete, arrete, doucement!" A swift stroke of the paddle checked the canoe, quivering and prancing like a horse suddenly reined in. The wave ahead, as if surprised, sank and flattened for a second. The canoe leaped through the edge of it, swerved to one side and ran gayly down along the fringe of the line of billows into quieter water.

Every one feels the exhilaration of such a descent. I know a lady who almost cried with fright when she went down her first rapid, but before the voyage was ended she was saying:

Count that day lost whose low descending sun
Sees no fall leaped, no foaming rapid run.

It takes a touch of danger to bring out the joy of life.

Our guides began to shout and joke each other and praise their canoes. "You grazed that villain rock at the corner," said Jean. "Didn't you know where it was?"

"Yes, after I touched it," cried Ferdinand. "But you took in a bucket of water, and I suppose your m'sieur is sitting on a piece of the river. Is it not?"

This seemed to us all a very merry jest, and we laughed with the same inextinguishable laughter which a practical joke, according to Homer, always used to raise in Olympus.—Exchange.

HUNTING IN NEPAUL.

ON ELEPHANTS MOUNTED, SPORTSMEN BEAT FOR TIGERS.

Other Game, Some Large, Some Small, Is Taken Before the Main Object of the Hunt Is Found—How a Tiger Acts When Wounded—A Frightened Elephant.

By 10 o'clock our howdah elephants are marshaled before the tents, and we mount and stow away our paraphernalia of guns, rifles, ammunition, waterskin, tea bottle, a book perhaps, a gigantic double lined umbrella to be held over us by the attendant in the back seat and a native blanket, folded as a cushion now, but to be unfolded and thrown around us should the wild bees attack. That is the simple kit of him who cares not for luxuries. Half a mile from our camp we enter a stretch of grass in which it would be hopeless to look for tigers, and our 40 elephants are ranged in line in order to beat for game of a less ambitious kind. The order to advance is given, and I sound on a dog whistle the signal of "general shooting." The mahouts, thoroughly alive to the fact that tigers are not likely to present themselves, keep their beasts in rank so regular that no likely patch of cover shall be passed unbeaten, and we are off.

Now from one howdah, now from another, anon from two or three howdahs simultaneously, guns and rifles are fired as birds and beasts rise or break before us. Now falls a black partridge, now a peacock comes to earth with all his panoply of gorgeous plumage, now a hog deer or a cheetul dies, and so our death dealing line moves on, broken only when, for a few minutes, one elephant stops to pad a stag or pig or other game too heavy to be lifted by the elephant's trunk, and handed—or trunked—to the mahout for safe keeping in a bag. Other wild things fall in this improvised battue—swamp partridges (incorrectly styled chikore), hares, and, raised out of a bit of marshy ground, a snipe. But all these smaller creatures, albeit useful for our commissariat, and especially for the standing stewpan, are insignificant by comparison with a splendidly headed sambhur. That gives a glory to our bag that outshines all else. The killing of that noble stag is a fortunate as well as a brilliant achievement, for ordinarily the sambhur only exhibits himself when the shikari, being directed to reserve his fire for tiger, may not shoot him.

We have done fairly well in that strip of grass and now proceed to beat the dry course of a forest stream, in some parts of which there is cover of grass below a shade from the overhanging trees. Here we may, with luck and proper strategy, rouse a tiger; consequently more careful tactics have to be adopted. Three of our four guns are sent as "stops" to advance posts up the nullah, whitherward they make their way by forest routes; one remains to drive along the nullah bed, he being flanked on either hand by beating elephants that shall keep such line as circumstances and the mahouts' sense of honor—a dubious quantity—may permit. Upon all is laid the injunction that there shall be no shot fired save at tiger, panther or bear.

So for some three furlongs the main line wends its way up and along either bank of the nullah, while the stops move forward to head the driven quarry. None of the smaller denizens of the woodland rises or runs unassailed by him who holds the pass. Still for many minutes is the forest silence unbroken by report of fire-arm or other sound, save those which the heavy footed elephants evolve. Suddenly Motimohul, the howdah bearing behemoth of the nullah, dashes her trunk against the ground with resounding noise and forth from out of a dense grass patch a tiger dashes, is seen in time and sorely wounded as it mounts the nullah's bank.

Untouched by bullet, that tiger might have disappeared in the leagues of forests that hereaway extend on three sides; being hit, it turns in its course and springs upon the elephant in the nullah bed some feet below it, reaches the pad and clings there.

Now, if that elephant would but stand for a matter of ten seconds the tiger would receive its coup de grace from him who rides in the howdah. But the intelligence of Motimohul does not grasp the situation. It only rises to the occasion sufficiently to move her to do that which, under the circumstances, is the worst thing to be done. She curls her trunk up to set that out of the way of a tiger that is nowhere within reach of it and bolts blindly. The tiger drops to the ground, shaken and doubtless puzzled, and the curtain drops on act 1.

Fortunately a tiger badly hit is generally a tiger bagged, and this one is in that case. Motimohul is pulled up in something within a quarter of a mile, after several ineffectual efforts to smash her howdah among the trees. The line of elephants, which has broken up in disorder, is rallied, the stops come in from the front, and we, with such orderly arrangement as may be, retrace our steps. We beat the cover of the nullah and its banks with scrupulous attention to every thicket that may hold the tiger. By dint of much forcible language in the vernacular of a country that has a peculiar potency of vocabulary, by dint of lavish promise of backsheesh as well, our mahouts do their duty to some extent—and with success; the tiger rises from out of its grassy refuge, roars and charges—to fall, pierced by half a dozen bullets, just as for a second time it had come home to one of our elephants.

Hurrah! We do not shout thus wise, for we are Englishmen and not emotional. Moreover, our throats are too dry for ejaculation, but we are glad at heart that this splendid creature has been given into our hands, and cheerily we settle down to an early tiffin while the tiger is being padded.—Saturday Review.

The Oldest Herbarium.

The oldest herbarium in the world is that in the Museum Egyptologie at Cairo It consists of an inconspicuous collection of dried plants and vegetables, taken from wreaths and garlands found buried with mummies. These flowers and plants were doubtless placed in the tombs of the dead "by hands that lived and wrought" before Joseph was sold into Egypt, or before Moses led the Israelites through the Red sea.—St. Louis Republic.

Helpless.

In reply to the request for assistance the professor said: "If I could help you I couldn't help helping you. It is because I cannot help you that I cannot help refusing to help you."

The mendicant darted around the corner with terror in his eye and cries of "Help!" in his mouth.—Boston Transcript.

Learn to be pleased with everything; with wealth, so far as it makes us beneficial to others; with poverty, for not having much to care for, and with obscurity for being unenvied.—Plutarch.

WORK AMONG THE UNEDUCATED.

A Missionary Tells of Her Labors Among Southern People.

The meeting of the Home Missionary Society of the Crescent Avenue church, held yesterday afternoon in the chapel of the church, was one of great interest to the large number of members present.

Mrs. Pierson, president of the society, presided and conducted the devotional exercises. Miss Ketcham, the secretary, read the minutes of the preceding meeting, which were approved, also a very interesting letter from Miss Jennie Buchanan, of Mt. Pleasant, Utah. Miss Buchanan has charge of the mission school at that place, and the Plainfield society takes a great interest in her work. She reported having received substantial aid from the society for which she was thankful.

Mrs. Kimball then gave an enjoyable report of the last synodical meeting of the society. This was followed by the reading of a letter by Mrs. Halloway from the Home Missionary Journal of New York.

Mrs. Pierson then spoke of the Dorlon Academy at Hot Springs, Va., where Miss Kate Newhall is at present and working in the school. The school is in great need and the society will render assistance immediately. Mrs. Pierson then introduced Mrs. Grant, of North Carolina, who has been laboring among the Waldonses. Mrs. Grant was attired in wedding style, consisting of a white silk bonnet trimmed with ribbons and flowers. She also wore a lace wrap and a gown dark material. She gave an exceedingly interesting talk of her experience among these peculiar people, showing conclusively that they deserved very much in the way of help, education, etc. She told much about the peculiar habits, customs and manners of these people that was listened to with pleasure by all. The next meeting of the society will be devoted to sewing by the members and the preparation of a barrel to be sent to a mission field.

TOOK A FLYING LEAP.

A Leal's School Student Makes an Acrobatic Jump From a Train.

A jump from a moving train proved very disastrous to Paul Anderson, of Somerville, yesterday morning. Anderson attends Leal's School in this city and comes down on the train every morning. Yesterday morning his train slowed up at Central avenue and Anderson, thinking to take a short cut to the school, jumped off the moving train. It was going faster than he expected and the next thing he knew he was flying through the air. He struck on the side of his face, cutting a gash over his left eye and skinning his face. He went to school, however.

In a New York Hospital.

Joseph B. Gavin, of Columbia avenue, who a few months ago lost his hearing and has since been receiving medical attention from noted specialists was compelled a short time ago to relinquish his business and enter the Eye and Ear Infirmary at Thirteenth street and Second avenue. Mr. Gavin is reported as being somewhat better. Several of Mr. Gavin's friends have called upon him since he has been there and "Joe" was glad to see them.

Superstitious People.

The ladder that crosses the sidewalk from outside the curb line and reaches to the top of the unfinished building of Assemblyman elect Codington on Park avenue, is the means of making many superstitious people cross the street to the easterly side of that thoroughfare to escape walking under the ladder. They claim that bad luck follows one who will walk under a ladder while in such a position as this one is.

Progress.

Man's ingenuity is never dormant: it constantly keeps pace with the demands of the times, and in no line is this ingenuity more evident than in the designing of Christmas gifts, ample proofs of which you will see if you visit Collier's, 103 Park avenue, and inspect the many new, rich, and yet low-priced holiday devices in gold and silver. You will be charmed as well as surprised at the beauty and reasonableness.

The wife of Mr. D. Robinson, a prominent lumberman of Hartwick, N. Y., was sick with rheumatism for five months. In speaking of it. Mr. Robinson says: "Chamberlain's Pain Balm is the only thing that gave her any rest from pain. For the relief of pain it cannot be beat." Many very bad cases of rheumatism have been cured by it. For sale at 50 cents per bottle by Reynolds' Pharmacy, Park and North avenues. T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

RULERS BEYOND THE BROOK.

THEY MEET AND DISPOSE OF MANY BOROUGH MATTERS.

Reports of Officers Received as to Progress of Work in the Various Municipal Departments—Improvements to be Made

The only member absent from the Borough Council meeting last evening was Councilman Peck. After the minutes of the last regular and adjourned meetings were read the financial statement of Clerk Arnold was presented as follows:

	Balance.	Deficit.
Borough	$1,091.32
Fire department	$ 230.19
Light		$ 398.48
Roads	$ 674.30
Poor		$ 388.50
	$1,995.81	$ 786.98
	$ 786.98
Total balance	$1,208.83
Fines		$ 69.60
B. A. Hegeman, Jr.		4.96
Cartmen's license		2.50
Harrison street improvements		110.00
		$187.06

The report was received and filed.

Rev. Jocelyn Johnstone and others asked for a crosswalk on the south side of Mercer avenue, and the matter was referred to the Streets and Public Health Committee.

The monthly budget of bills was presented and later ordered paid after being audited.

Mr. Valiant, from the Laws, Ordinances and Election Committee, reported that the Green brook matter had been referred to the Board of Health and the latter had consulted the Borough Counsel.

Mr. Lounsbury stated that the overcoats for the marshals had been purchased and were now in use, also that a pair of trousers had been purchased for Marshal Lines, who did not get a pair when the other marshals were supplied.

The report was received and filed.

Mr. Smith reported that 2,075 feet had been macadamized on Harrison street and that together with the sand, gravel and grading had cost $640.45. The cost of stone was $313.16, making a total cost, with sundries, of $958.11. A little later the clerk read a report of the street committee which was received and filed.

Mr. Schutt offered a resolution that Eliza McFarland, Abram L. Cadmus and A. E. Hoagland having failed to comply with the ordinance in regard to the laying of sidewalks, that the street commissioner be instructed to lay the walks and the council take steps to effect a lien on the property for the payment. The resolution was adopted. Mr. Howell offered a resolution that a map be procured for the commissioner appointed to assess benefits and damages along the proposed extension of Watchung avenue. The resolution was adopted.

A resolution was introduced by Mr. Valiant which provided for the drawing of a warrant for $848 to pay a note of $800 with interest, to the Gamewell Fire Alarm Company, due December 5th. The resolution was adopted.

Mr. Smith offered a resolution which was adopted that a warrant be drawn for $1,560.90 in favor of Treasurer H. N. Spencer to meet the note of $1,500 with interest due December 10th, and have the same charged to road account.

Mr. Lounsbury offered a similar resolution for the same amount, the same to becharged to the borough account. It was so ordered.

Mr. Lounsbury brought up the matter of the condition of the approach to the Elm place bridge on the borough side. He said that his attention had been called to it and upon investigation found it to be in very bad shape and exceedingly dangerous. The matter was referred to the street committee. They will confer with the Freeholders and see what can be done.

The following is the street committee's report for the past two months, showing expenditures on borough streets:

Brook avenue	$ 14 08
Myrtle "	6 50
Duer street and Mercer avenue, crosswalks	4 74
Johnston's drive	16 89

Polls	89 00
Dogs	260 00
Total	$8,206 58

There being no further business the council then adjourned.

THE RIDDLE RECITAL.

A Small Audience Entertained in a Pleasing Manner.

Before a small, but enthusiastic, audience, George Riddle gave a recital at Y. M. C. A. Hall last evening. The programme was one of unusual excellence and well deserved a crowded house. The first part consisted of several scenes from Victor Hugo's "Lucretia Borgia." The selections gave Mr. Riddle a chance to show his fine ability in tragedy.

The second part consisted of a selection from "The Rivals" by Sheridan, one from Kate Douglass Wiggins' "Village Dressmaker" and "A Piece of Red Calico" by Stockton.

Plainfield has not heard Mr. Riddle before in humorous parts, but he is as good in amusing as he is perfect in his tragedical renditions. The three selections were all full of humor and kept the audience in continual roars of laughter. In the "Village Dressmaker" Mr. Riddle was especially pleasing, his imitation of the village gossip and her sewing being very realistic.

FAIR AND PRETTY.

Final Rehearsal of Drills Being Held This Afternoon.

The final rehearsal of the dances, drills and tableaux for the Firemen's Fair took place this afternoon in the Cycle Academy, and everything went smoothly as far as could be observed. Queen Flora will indeed be a dream—a dream of beautiful tableaux, sweet singing and lovely and exact dances, while those that take part are fair to look upon The Columbia Scarf Dance is another of the most intricate figure dances in which Madame Menzeli's talent abounds. The sabre drill, the sailors' chorus and dance, the lively gypsy, the cute German girls, and many more too numerous to mention, will make the spectacle a bewildering one, and deserves the patronage of everyone. They will be more than repaid for the small outlay. A number of ladies that have charge of the booths were also present to arrange those under their charge.

A Missionary's Encouraging Words.

The Christian Endeavor Society of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church enjoyed a rare treat last evening. The lecture room was crowded with members of the society and their friends to listen to Miss M. C. Holmes, of Syria. Miss Holmes then told the society of her work in the mission field of Syria, and gave a very interesting account of the methods used in reaching the heathen of that country. Every one present was touched with some of the stories told by Miss Holmes, and by her words of encouragement it is certain that the society will take hold of the missionary work which lies before them with renewed and greater zeal.

Concert at Bethel Mission.

The music lovers of Plainfield will be glad to learn that another concert like those so much enjoyed in years past is to be given at Bethel chapel next Thursday evening. The programme is under the direction of the regular precentor, and will consist of songs by members of the Sunday-school. Many of the selections will be the old plantation melodies familiar in times before the war, and now so interesting when revived. Much enjoyment is promised, and a large audience should seize this opportunity for an evening of pleasure.

Receipts Exceeds Expenses.

The managers of the course of lectures now being delivered by Professor Riggs are happy to announce that the proceeds of the sale of tickets is so much in excess of the expenses, that it is expected that one or more lectures will be added to the course which the holders of tickets will be at liberty to attend without further cost.

Evangelistic Meetings.

Col. Hadley's evangelistic meetings in this city will be held Sunday, December 15th and December 22d, the first meeting to be held in Trinity Reformed church. Miss Sarah Wray, the noted singing evangelist, will speak in the Park Avenue Baptist church, Sunday morning, December 15th.

Children Cry for It.

"Omnia" bread is unexcelled for growing children as it builds up their bodies perfectly, makes sound teeth, bone and muscle to perfection. Try it. All grocers are served by the Hygienic Food Co., of Orange.

A School Spread.

The pupils of the Plainfield Business College are preparing to have a spread and sociable on Friday evening, December 20th, at the home of Prof. Ferris on Church street.

ELECT AND SMOKE.

United Workmen Elect Their Officers and Hold a Smoker.

The election of officers and a smoker was the programme at the meeting of Columbia Lodge, No. 58, A. O. U. W., last evening. The following officers were elected: Master Workman, J. W. A. Bauersachs; Foreman, J. T. Dunn; Overseer, E. C. Pease; Guide, Henry Neschwitz; Recorder, Robert H. Loughlin; Treasurer, Henry Leifke; Financier, E. M. Laing; Outside Watchman, M. Koller; Inside Watchman, C. H. Millls; Delegates to Grand Lodge, M. W., W. A. Woodruff, P. M. W., V. W. Nash; Alternates, Henry Leifke, E. C. Pease; Trustee, C. M. Ulrich, one year; J. M. Shepard, three years.

The rest of the evening was spent very pleasantly with refreshments and a smoker.

TWO BURIED ALIVE.

Fatal Landslide at Old Bridge—One of the Victims Dead.

By the falling of an embankment at Old Bridge, near New Brunswick, yesterday, William Hire, aged twenty-one years, was killed, and Elmer Siefert, aged thirty-two, so badly injured that he cannot recover.

The men were working alongside the road in a gravel pit, when the earth tumbled down on them in great quantities without a moment's warning, entombing them. A number of men went to work digging for the bodies, and they were rescued in a short time.

Hire was dead when the workmen reached him, and his body was terribly mangled. Siefert was also badly cut up, and his death is a question of but a few hours.

Lady Cyclers Entertaining

The regular bi-weekly meeting of the Plainfield Lady Cyclers Whist Club were inaugurated on Thursday afternoon, at the home of Miss Lulu Hagan, on Prospect avenue. The meeting was largely attended and the games closely contested, resulting in prizes being won by the following members: Miss Langdon, Miss Maltby, Miss Brown and Miss L. Hagan. Refreshments were then partaken of and the wish was expressed that the further meetings of the club through the winter would be as pleasant as the inaugural one.

Postal News.

The postal authorities at Washington have granted Postmaster Hetfield two assistants for the increased business during the Christmas holidays.

On Monday mornihg Frank J. Quaas, now clerk at Werner's clothing store, will enter upon his duties as substitute clerk at the postoffice.

Assistant Postmaster Geo. Godown is still very ill with heart trouble.

Handsome Residence.

A very handsome $6,000 residence is about to be erected on Stelle avenue for Lawyer L. Dennis, of New York. Both the interior and exterior will be very fine. Clum & Lancaster are the architects, W. H. Brokaw the carpenter, Seaman Williams the mason and C. M. Raybert the plumber. Work will be commenced very soon.

A Big Snap to Boys.

Edsall is offering to boys, free for one week, a big variety of toys, sleds, wagons, velocipedes, etc. Boys read all about the "big snap" in his ad in another column.

Exhibition of Art.

The Camera Club have in preparation a grand loan exhibition of art which will be given about February 1st. It will be the finest exhibition ever given in this city.

Better Time Than at Boston.

The dates for the '96 Christian Endeavor convention are October 7th, 8th and 9th. The programme will probably exceed even that of the Boston convention.

New Enterprise.

The Pike Chemical Company is a new local enterprise, which is placing a cleansing article on the market.

Major C. T. Picton is manager of the State Hotel, at Denison, Texas, which the traveling men say is one of the best hotels in that section. In speaking of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy Major Picton says: "I have used it myself and in my family for several years, and take pleasure in saying that I consider it an infallible cure for diarrhœa and dysentery. I always recommend it, and have frequently administered it to my guests in the hotel, and in every case it has proven itself worthy of unqualified endorsement. For sale by Reynolds' Pharmacy, Park and North avenues. T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

NEIGHBORS' QUARREL AIRED.

LIVELY SET-TO BETWEEN LITIGANTS IN CITY COURT TODAY.

A Petition Presented to the Court Declaring a Family to Be a Nuisance—It Did Not Affect the the Verdict—Other Cases.

A hackmen's quarrel opened the cases in the city court this morning and then, as a grand climax, a scrap between some of the residents of West Sixth street and Manson place.

James MacArdle and John Keely were arraigned before Judge Coddington on the charge of the violation of the hack ordinance. Wm. L. Callahan was the complainant and he charged them with soliciting trade yesterday at the North Avenue station. Callahan brought George Belcher and John Kelley as witnesses. MacArdle said that instead of soliciting a passenger he had merely gone in answer to a question from a woman on the steps. The Judge reserved his decision until next Saturday. City Judge-elect DeMeza represented the two prisoners.

Three little boys, one colored and two white, all under fourteen years of age, were the next to line up in front of the prisoners' rail. They were Harry Boyd, Fred Ammon and Gustav Sutterline, and they were charged with carrying and shooting firearms within the city limits and smashing the switch lights on the railroad. Station Agent Haynes was present and told of the great danger to life and limb on the trains when the switch lamps were destroyed. All three of the boys pleaded guilty, but George W. DeMeza asked for mercy on account of their age.

Judge Coddington did not agree with him, however, and thought that an example should be made of them to prevent any reoccurrence of the shooting. He therefore fined the boys $20 each or thirty days at the county jail. Boyd's fine was paid. The parents of the other boys have not been heard from.

Then came the exciting case of the day which was adjourned from last Monday. The cause of all the trouble and excitement was an old German named Frank Conde, who had been arrested on the charge of using profane and indecent language. The court room in the station house was crowded with witnesses and friends of the two parties. The complaint was made by John Pfeiffer, of Manson place. George W. DeMeza was counsel for the accused. Laura Pfeider, wife of John Pfeider, was the first to be put on the witness stand.

Her story was that a week ago yesterday morning she sent two of her youngest children to the candy store on an errand, and that Conde's daughter-in-law sent her children to throw stones at them, so she sent her older boy to protect the children. Then Conde came out and threw half of a brick-bat at her and called her names.

"What did he call you?" asked the Judge.

"Must I tell?" said the witness.

"We would like to know," replied the Judge, and then shutting her teeth together, she gave the tirade of abuse and disgusting language that she had heard. Her two little boys, one four and one seven years, who could hardly see the Judge, they were so short, substantiated her statements, and all the cross-questioning of DeMeza could not shake their testimony.

Conde was next brought up and it was claimed that he could not speak English, although he seemed to grasp the situation without any trouble. Special Officer Giese acted as interpreter. At first he did not know anyteing about a scrap, but the women in the room warmed up to the fray and Conde soon caught the excitement and began to answer with some interest.

Pfeiffer was given a chance to cross-examine him which he did in German.

"Hold on here" exclaimed DeMeza, as the two grew excited, "we want to be in this," and then the examination was translated. Other witnesses were brought up and high words were exchanged between the excited women. A petition was presented, signed by several of the neighbors, in which they declared the Pfeiffers were a nuisance.

"This shows without a doubt what kind of a woman Mrs. Pfeiffer is" remarked DeMeza.

"Yes," screamed the woman referred to, "you come and live along side of me for a couple of years and I'll show you what I am." The lengthy testimony did not prove anything and after a lively war of words for almost two hours, the Judge decided the prisoner guilty and gave him his choice between a fine of $5 or twenty days in jail. The fine was paid.

—A prayer meeting is to be held at 224 East Front street this evening at 8 o'clock. All welcome.

ENDEAVORERS ANNIVERSARY.

The Seventh-Day Baptist Society Four Years Old.

In place of the regular morning service in the Seventh-Day Baptist church this morning, the fourth anniversary of the Christian Endeavor Society of the church was held. The members of the society were seated together in the front of the church while the Juniors marched in and occupied the first four rows of pews.

The meeting was led by Miss Louise Lewis, president of the society. After singing by the congregation, several anthems by a large chorus choir, and prayer, a collection was taken. Then Miss Bessie Titsworth made her report as secretary. She told how the society had been startad four years ago with sixteen members which has now been increased to sixty-nine. She spoke of the work that had been done and of the great enthusiasm and sociability of the members. She also pointed out the work that had been done by the committees, especially the missionary committee.

Miss Titsworth read the report of of Mrs. H. M. Maxson, superintendent of the Juniors, who were celebrating their second anniversary. The report was encouraging; there are forty-one members while the finances are in a prosperous condition.

In place of the sermon, four papers were read, first by Clarence Rogers whose subject was "The Pledge;" the next was, "Am I My Brother's Keeper?" by Miss Lena Tomlinson; the third was, "The Inspiration Which This Society Gives" by Asa Randolph; and the last "The Relation of the Church and the Society to Each Other" by Mrs. J. G. Miller. The papers were all very helpful and laid great stress on the work of the juniors in preparation for their work in the other society.

The service closed with a short address by Rev. L. E. Livermore, who summed up the substance of the five speakers and gave an illustration of the Sunday-school lesson of the afternoon, "David and Goliath." He made the letters in David's name represent the five talks of the morning and called them Duty, Affection, Virtue, Inspiration and Duty.

A Pink Tea.

A delightful pink tea was given by Mrs. B. A. Hegeman, Jr., at her home in Washington Park, yesterday afternoon, in honor of her friend, Miss Paine, of Wilkesbarre, Pa. Those present were: Mrs. Joy, Mrs. Evans, Mrs. Henry McGee, Mrs. William Roome, Mrs. J. T. Scott, Mrs. C. A. Reed, Mrs. W. A. Saunders and Miss Grace Cooley.

New Uniforms for the Knights.

Three candidates were initiated at the meeting of Perseverance Lodge, No. 74, K. of P. last evening. Representatives from Philadelphia and Cincinnati were present and exhibited samples of costumes to be used in the amplified degree. The matter will be brought up next week for final settlement. It is expected that the lodge will expend about $250 for the costumes.

Jack Sheppard Tonight.

Minnie Lester and her admirable company, band and orchestra will close their engagement at Music Hall tonight with that famous play, "Jack Sheppard." The advance sale for tonight is very large, and we would advise all who intend to attend the performance this evening to purchase their seats early. This is Miss Lester's last appearance on any stage this season.

State Grocers Meet Here.

The State Grocers Association will meet in this city about January 15th, and will be the guests of the local association in their magnificent quarters in the Babcock building. About 200 members are expected and preparations are being made to entertain the association in a very hospitable manner. The election of officers will also take place at that time. J. A. Smith is chairman of the committee of arrangements.

—Attention is called to J. F. MacDonald's new ad in today's Press. Bargains abound there.

When most needed it is not unusual for your family physician to be away from home. Such was the experience of Mr. J. Y. Schenck, editor of the Caddo, Ind. Ter., Banner, when his little girl, two years of age was threatened with a severe attack of croup. He says: "My wife insisted that I go for the doctor, but as our family physician was out of town I purchased a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, which relieved her immediately. I will not be without it in the future." 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by Reynoldss' Pharmacy, Park and North avenues. T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

CONDITION OF BUSINESS

Prolonged Mild Weather Delays Orders.

Activity Only in Woolens, Clothing, Shoes and Hardware—Falling Off in Bank Clearings More Than Offset—World's Available Wheat Supply—Bank Clearings.

New York, Dec. 7.—Bradstreet's today says: General trade continues the features of preceding weeks—smaller volume, quiet in most lines, business being conducted conservatively, activity only among dealers in woolens, clothing, shoes and hardware, and new orders generally of a filling-in character. The season has evidently been a late one, prolonged mild weather having delayed orders until the Christmas demand and the belated autumn request came together. The falling off of 25 per cent. in bank clearings last week (which was unusually heavy, even for Thanksgiving week) is more than offset by a total of $1,247,000,000 clearings this week, 43 per cent. more than last week, 7 per cent. more than in the first week of December, 1894, and 11 per cent. more than in 1893.

Bank Clearings.

The course of prices also shows a more favorable tendency, sugar, Indian corn and wheat showing advances, prices of wheat, flour, pork, rice and tobacco being firm and unchanged, while lower prices are furnished by oats, lard, coffee, cotton, print cloths, petroleum, leather, hides and lumber, coal, southern pig iron, Bessemer pig iron, live hogs and live cattle. November bank clearings are $4,688,594,925, or 9.6 per cent. smaller than October, but 13.6 per cent. larger than November, 1894, and only 14 per cent. smaller than November, 1892, a record month in clearings. With the exception of October and May, this, the total of the month just closed, is larger than any month since May, 1893. Only twice in twelve years has the November total exceeded that for October. At New York the gain over November last year is 16 per cent., while outside of that city the gain is over 11 per cent.

Exports of Wheat.

Stock speculation at New York has been dull except in the industrials, which have been active and irregular. Sugar and Chicago gas led the movement, the latter rallying on a legal decision against the attempt to stop the reorganization, while sugar, after a depression due to an attempt to bring the company before the New York courts, rallied on the declaration of the regular dividend. Railroad stocks have been dull and heavy, and the market seems inclined to wait till the attitude of congress on financial questions is better defined. The foreign exchange market has been dull but firm at 4.89 for demand bills, but $3,100,000 gold has been exported, $500,000 of the amount going to South America. Exports of wheat (flour included as wheat) from both coast of the United States this week (none from Montreal) amount to 3,156,000 bushels, as compared with 2,460,000 bushels last week, 3,011,000 bushels in the week a year ago, 2,558,000 bushels in the week two years ago, and 4,404,000 three years ago.

Dry Goods.

Fractional declines in pig iron prices are regarded as bottom, which, in addition to lower quotations for billets, should have the effect of reducing the price of steel rails, with which, it is thought, business for rail mills may follow. No significance is attached to the recent order for 10,000 tons of English steel rails for a far western railway. In dry goods holiday specialties are more active; cotton goods remain steady, and woolen are in only moderate demand, with the outlook not favoring particular activity early next year. Woolen mills are said to be receiving fair orders for spring.

Available Wheat Stocks.

World's available wheat stocks show a total of 164,000,000 bushels Dec. 1, 21,000,000 bushels less than one year ago. European and afloat stocks are 68,000,000 bushels, which, while larger than one year ago, are much smaller than the corresponding total two years ago. Available wheat stocks in the United States and Canada at this time are the smallest at like dates in three years. November's net increase in world's wheat supplies is about 11,000,000 bushels in round numbers. Total business failures in the United States, as reported to Bradstreet's this week, number 315 against 288 last week, 322 in the first week of December, 1894, 383 in 1893, and 282 in 1892.

Steamship Bought by Japan.

London, Dec. 7.—The British steamer State of California, which has been plying between Glasgow and New York, left London yesterday for Cape Town. It has been rumored that the State of California has been bought by Japan.

The Steel-Rail Pool Reorganized.

Pittsburg, Dec. 7.—The steel-rail pool has been reorganized for 1896, which will be the third year of its existence. No advance in the price of rails is expected.

Labor Day at Atlanta.

Atlanta, Ga., Dec. 7.—Thursday, December 12, will be Labor Day at the exposition and great preparations are being made by local labor leaders to celebrate the day.

Atlantic City, N. J., Dec. 7.—The New Jersey State Sanitary association is in session here. It is the 25th annual meeting of the organization.

HEIRS TO A FORTUNE

A Windfall for Two Franklin, N. J., Brothers.

$100,000, Left by a Brother Whom They Had Not Heard from in Forty-three Years, To Be Divided Between Them—A Story Akin to a Romance.

Newark, N. J., Dec. 7.—A fortune of $100,000 is to be divided between William Barnes of Franklin and his brother, James Barnes of Paterson. It is a windfall, for neither knew of it till yesterday. The story of how this wealth came to them is akin to romance. In their youth William and James lived with their parents and their brother, George, on the heights of Povershun, in Franklin. George, who was ambitious, fretted under the quiet and restraints of farm life. He fell deeply in love with a young woman and spent much of his time in her company. To this attachment, say old neighbors who knew George, his father strongly objected; a bitter feeling arose between father and son, and George was told that he never could marry the girl. The trouble culminated in George's determination to leave home, and, one morning, forty-three years ago, he bade his family farewell. "I am going west," he said at parting, "and I will never come back. If I cannot marry the girl I want, I will live a hermit life. I will never speak to a woman again."

Known as the Hermit.

Long years the family waited for word from the young man, but in vain. The parents died, then the brothers separated and George was given up for dead. Yesterday word came to William and James Barnes that their brother George had been found dead in front of his hut in the Jacksonville mountains, California. The coroner of Tacomah county, who sent the news, said that "the hermit," as he was then known, had lived many years alone, shunning men and never speaking to women. He worked a gold claim of his own. Thirty days ago he was found dead, and papers hid away in the hut showed him to be worth over $100,000. This sum, the coroner stated, will be divided equally between the brothers William and James. Their names, relationship and whereabouts where learned from the hermit's papers.

PEACEMAKER'S USUAL REWARD

Interfered in a Domestic Quarrel and Is Now Dying.

Pittsburg, Dec. 7.—James Graham, aged 23 years, is at the West Penn hospital in a dying condition, the result of an effort to save a wife from her husband's violence. The author of the deadly work is David Rush, and a drunken fit of anger is responsible for the tragedy. Rush celebrated his 59th birthday by entertaining a number of friends. He became intoxicated and abused his wife. Graham interfered and was terribly cut with a pocketknife. He received no medical attention until several hours afterwards, and was nearly dead from loss of blood when discovered. Rush was committed without bail.

DYNAMITE FOR CUBA.

The Steamship Agent Says It Is for Blasting Purposes.

Baltimore, Dec. 7.—A permit to ship 100,000 pounds of dynamite cartridges to Cuban ports was issued by Acting Mayor Henninghausen yesterday. In view of the recent efforts to aid the Cuban insurgents considerable comment was indulged in about town when the issuance of the permit became generally known. The agent of the Numson steamship line in his application stated that the cartridges were to be used for blasting purposes, and that his company had previously shipped thousands of tons of dynamite to Cuba from Philadelphia.

AFTER THE CONVENTION.

A Committee of St. Louis Republicans Leave for Washington.

St. Louis, Dec. 7.—The committee having in charge the raising of funds to secure the holding of the next republican national convention in this city met at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon and reported that $75,000 had been subscribed for that purpose. The committee has a signed guarantee for any additional amount necessary to secure the convention. Headquarters for the St. Louis delegation has been secured at the Arlington hotel and they left via the Baltimore & Ohio road this morning.

Mrs. Kendall Flint Dead.

Haverhill, Mass., Dec. 7.—Mrs. Kendall Flint, sister of the late James H. Carleton, died suddenly yesterday, aged about 55 years. On the death of her brother nearly all of his vast estate was left to her, and on her death was to be divided among the relatives and various organizations. Many public bequests are now made payable.

Reception to Connecticut Delegates

Washington, Dec. 7.—The Connecticut delegation in congress was honored with a reception at the Arlington hotel last night by the Connecticut colony in Washington. From 8 o'clock until midnight a stream of Connecticut people called to pay their respects.

American Apples in England.

London, Dec. 7.—There is a good demand for American apples in Liverpool at from six pence to a shilling a barrel advance. In London Newton pippins brought 14s. to 24s. a barrel and Baldwins 15s. to 16s.

CAPT. HUGHES' TRIAL.

Spaniards Testify That His Vessel Landed Filibusters in Cuba.

Charleston, S. C., Dec. 7.—The case of the United States against the steamship Laurada and Captain Hughes, her master, for an alleged violation of the neutrality laws in carrying men and arms to assist the Cuban insurgents, is now being heard in the United States district court here. The case is one which has excited much interest throughout the country and the court room is completely filled with interested spectators. The first witnesses called were three Spaniards who claim to have been on the Laurada during the October trip to Cuba. These men, all of whom said they were citizens of Spain, gave virtually the same testimony. They said that they had been employed as firemen on the Laurada. The vessel had sailed from New York about 6:30 p. m., October 21. When about two miles off Scotland lightship she had stopped and waited for two tugs which had approached her from the sea. The tugs had put aboard of her thirty-six men and a number of boxes of arms and ammunition. During the voyage the men had drilled constantly below decks and one of them had told the witnesses that they were going to fight for Cuban liberty. The witnesses said that the coast of Cuba had been reached on the evening of October 27. The Laurada had gone in within 200 yards of the shore and then landed the men and ammunition taken from the tugs. The vessel had then gone to Kingston and taken in a cargo of fruit. The witnesses said that when they returned to New York Captain Hughes had not paid their [illegible] and that they had gone to the Spanish consul. They admitted that Pinkerton men had approached them and that they receiving $2 per day and their expenses from the Pinkertons.

NO NEW TRIAL FOR DURRANT

The Condemned Murderer Smiles at the Judge's Remarks.

San Francisco, Dec. 7.—Judge Murphy, in denying the motion yesterday for a new trial for Durrant, said: "No fair, conscientious and honest jury could have arrived at a different result. In the justness of your conviction the court expresses its full and entire concurrence. There are no circumstances to mitigate the atrocity of your crime; it stands almost without parallel and without the semblance of palliation." Judge Murphy then ordered that Durrant be turned over to the warden of San Quentin penitentiary within ten days and to be kept in close confinement until the day of his execution, for which, however, no time was fixed. Durrant heard his fate without the twitch of a muscle. He stared at the judge as defiently as though he was being arraigned on some trivial charge of contempt of court. When it was all over, he sat down, leaned over to his father and smiled.

$275,000 FOR GOLF.

A Magnificent Club House and Grounds Decided Upon

Tarrytown, N. Y., Dec. 8.—Members of the Dobbs Ferry millionaire club are about to organize a new golf club to be known as the Ardsley Golf club. They will also build a $25,000 club house on the grounds now being laid out for a golf course, which will be five miles in length, and costing something like $250,000, will be the finest in the world. Among the gentlemen interested in the casino and golf club are Willie Dunn, the champion golf player of of America, George Livermore, John D. Rockefeller, William Rockefeller, Edwin Gould and other well-known millionaires.

MEROLOE GUILTY OF MURDER.

Killed a Man While His Victim Was Begging Mercy on His Knees.

Scranton, Pa., Dec. 7.—Grescenzo Meroloe was convicted of murder in the first degree yesterday afternoon. Meroloe shot Emanuel Loro, a barber, in Old Forge, on June 17, 1894, in broad daylight in the presence of nearly a dozen people. Loro had dunned Meroloe for 15 cents, and though the barber fell on his knees and begged for mercy, five shots were fired at him, several of which took effect. Meroloe escaped and was at large for over a year, finally being run down in Boston.

Slightly Misunderstood.

We were talking of wrecks at sea. I have been in several and am still alive to tell the tale. The most remarkable of all was the loss of the Oregon. Mystery still hangs around it. Its sinking was like the sinking of an island city off the coast of Spain. There was one incident connected with the going down of this magnificent steamship that invariably causes me to laugh when I think of it. Mr. and Mrs Collis P. Huntington were among the passengers, returning from a tour of Europe. In the excitement of getting off in the boats they were separated, Mrs. Huntington, with other ladies, being hurried away in one of the large boats forward of the second cabin. The sea was almost calm, but the boat was so heavily loaded that the gunwales were within an inch or two of the water, and a slight movement caused it to dip. Suddenly Mrs. Huntington, who had kept up her courage well, sprang up and shouted in a tearful voice:

"My Collis! Oh, where is my Collis?"

She clasped her hands and looked anxiously toward the fast sinking ship.

"Sit down!" roared one of the sailors as the water ran over the side.

"But my Collis! Oh, where is my Collis?"

"Sit down, I say! D—n your collars! You ought to be glad you saved yourself!"—New York Press.

The Use of Weeds.

"It is a very common thing," said an old farmer, "for people to grumble about weeds and wonder of what use they are in the economy of nature. Indeed a great many persons appear to think that they are of no value whatever except as a means of discipline to tillers of the soil. I admit that they have their inconveniences, but so have most of the things we have to encounter during our lifetime. If farmers and gardeners only realized it, weeds are among their best friends. There is nothing more valuable as a fertilizer than a big pile of weeds and sod and the roots that are dug up out of the garden. Properly cared for and allowed to decay, then mixed with some good land dressing and put back into the earth, they furnish precisely the nutriment that the growing plants require.

"For some reason weeds do not seem to rob the soil as most ordinary garden and field products do, and it is not anything uncommon for farmers to allow some wornout field to lie fallow for a few seasons and recuperate. An enormous quantity of weeds will spring up, which will, after scattering seeds galore, wither down and die and return to the soil whence they sprang. A few seasons of this kind of treatment furnishes the earth with a sufficient supply of nutriment to make it again valuable for crops."—New York Ledger.

Calcutta's Docks.

Among the most notable systems of dock construction achieved by modern engineering science Calcutta may be said to present a conspicuous example. The entrance to these docks is through a channel 80 feet wide, and a lock 60 feet wide, terminating in a basin measuring 600 by 680 feet. Two entrances, 60 by 80 feet wide, lead from this basin into the dock proper, which is 2,600 feet long, 60 feet wide for the greater part of its length, and covers 34½ acres, two dry docks also leading off from the basin, one of them 520 feet long and the other 350 feet. While the river is low these waterways are supplied with fresh water from the neighborhood, and elaborate provision is made to remove the mud from this water before it is pumped into the basin. The docks are equipped with 56 movable hydraulic cranes, of which 50 are constructed to lift as much as 1¾ tons, while the remainder can handle weights of 5 tons, all of them overhanging the quay 29 feet, and operated by water under pressure, as are also the lock gates, capstans and swing bridges about the docks. The water is under a pressure of 700 pounds, and is furnished by two pairs of hydraulic engines, each of 230 horsepower.—New York Sun.

THE SULTAN INCENSED

Said Pasha's Action Causes a Sensation.

A Native Statesman of the Highest Rank Seeking Asylum in a Foreign Embassy Believed To Indicate an Extremely Critical Situation—Refuses To Leave Shelter.

Constantinople, Dec. 7.—The fact that Said Pasha has sought refuge in the British embassy has caused a great sensation in all circles, and is a general topic of conversation. It is impossible to foresee the outcome, but the fact of a native statesman of the highest rank seeking an asylum in a foreign embassy is recognized everywhere as indicating an extremely critical situation, which, it is believed, may become a turning point in Turkey's history. The immediate and precise causes of the ex-grand vizier's action are unknown, but they are not far to seek. It is stated that the sultan desired Said Pasha to reside in a chalet in the Yildiz park that was formerly occupied by Midhat Pasha, the ill-fated founder of the young Turkey party and the man who gave Turkey her first constitution. Said Pasha, however, realized the meaning of the invitation and declined to take up his residence in the chalet. It is also known that the sultan has been for some time trying to induce him to reassume the grand vizierate. Said Pasha invariably declined to again take the office unless the present conditions of the government were charged.

Would Listen to No Appeal.

While the sultan was pursuing his efforts in this direction, Said Pasha was one day detained in the palace for many hours, and it seemed as though he would be detained as a prisoner. His health would not permit his being imprisoned for any length of time. Apart from this he undoubtedly had serious grounds for seeking the sanctuary of the embassy. When the sultan heard what his ex-grand vizier had done he was greatly incensed and made several vain attempts to induce him to return to his residence. His majesty sent Tewfik Pasha, with Said Pasha, the president of the council, to the embassy at half-past 1 o'clock in the morning, where they had a long interview with the refugee. They made all manner of promises in behalf of the sultan if he would return to his home. They declared that nothing would happen to him; but Said Pasha, with an ever-present knowledge of the value of imperial promises, declined to leave the safe shelter he had found. Then Tewfik Pasha vainly appealed to Sir Philip Currie to compel Said Pasha to leave the embassy. Later, Tahisin, the sultan's first secretary, remained with Said Pasha for two hours vainly pressing him to alter his decision. He also tried to induce him to reassume the grand vizierate, but no argument that he could advance or any appeal that he could make had any effect.

CHRISTIAN PASTORS KILLED.

Four Persons Butchered for Refusing To Become Moslems.

Constantinople, Dec. 7. — Advices have been received from Harpoot by the representative of the United Press showing that three Protestant pastors, Rev. Mr. Tanzarian at Itchhach, Rev. Mr. Kriker at Kos and Rev. Mr. Atlasian and wife at Hesenik, have been murdered for refusing to abjure their faith and embrace Islamism. At Gemerek, near Kaisarea, the Turks and Christians united and barricaded the streets and repulsed four attacks that were made upon them by Circassians.

AMERICAN ARMOR THE BEST.

Big Order Just Awarded by the Russian Government.

Bethlehem, Pa., Dec. 7.—President Linderman of the Bethlehem Iron company has received a cablegram from Lieut. Meigs at St. Petersburg, Russia, giving particulars of a test of side armor plate for the czar's new battleship Sevastopol. The plate was subjected to a severe ballistic test. The projectile penetrations were very slight and there were no cracks at all. The test resulted in the Russian government accepting 550 tons of Harveyized side armor, and proved that American armor is the best made in the world.

To Save Her from Rabies.

Columbus, O., Dec. 7.—A fund is being raised to send little Gertrude Hemel, who was bitten by a dog suffering with rabies two weeks ago, to a Pasteur institute for treatment. She is the five-year-old daughter of a poor widow. Harry T. Reed, who was bitten by the same dog three weeks ago died yesterday in terrible agony.

Hay Crop.

Canajoharie, N. Y., Dec. 7.—The hay crop of this year in the middle states is reported by the Hay Trade Journal to be forty-one per cent less than last year, while that of the eastern states is within one per cent, of the yield of 1894. The deficit is being drawn from Quebec, where a large crop was raised last season.

Gov. Hastings' Illness Not Serious.

Philadelphia, Dec. 7.—Gov. Hastings, who was seized with a chill at Gettysburg on Wednesday, is in this city, having come here to consult his physician. His condition is not at all serious.

A Gas Well Near Buffalo.

Buffalo, Dec. 7.—A gas well at Windom, just beyond the city limits, has been shot with nitro-glycerine and the volume of gas is said to be 300,000 feet in twenty-four hours.

TARIFF QUESTION AGAIN.

A Bill in the House To Restore Certain McKinley Bill Sections.

Washington, Dec. 7.—Congressman Morse of Massachusetts will on Monday introduce the following bill, to provide for the existing deficiencies in the revenue and move its reference to the committee on ways and means. "Be it enacted, etc., that on and after January 1, 1896, there shall be levied, collected and paid upon all articles imported from foreign countries and mentioned in schedules G, J, K and L of the revenue act approved October 1, 1890, the duties imposed in these schedules; also upon earthenware, both decorated and plain, the duties named in paragraphs 84 and 85, schedule B of said act; upon tin plates the duties named in paragraph 121, schedule C of said act, and upon gloves of all kinds the duties named in paragraphs 343 to 350, inclusive, in schedule N of said act." This bill revives the McKinley bill in the sections named. It reviews the agricultural schedule of 1890, which embraced more careful duties for the defense af agriculture, especially along the sea coast and the northern border, than any previous law had contained. It also revives the schedule relating to flax and hemp and their manufactures, the schedule as to silk goods and the schedule as to wool and woolens, besides the special provisions relating to earthenware, tin plates and gloves.

A SHAME TO THE NATION.

Matthews' Report Regarding Annapolis Naval Academy.

Annapolis, Md., Dec. 7.—Commodore Matthews has made a report to Secretary of the Navy Herbert upon his recent investigations of the condition of the naval academy. The report states that the academy is a shame to the nation and a disgrace to the navy. The educational departments are all right, but the accommodations are most miserable. It is recommended that every building now used by the cadets be razed to the ground. Several of the structures have been condemned as unsafe, unhealthy and ill-adapted for their purposes. On the whole, the report sums up the academy as in a bad plight and demands the prompt attention of congress. The plan proposed for improvements contemplates the expenditure of about $6,000,000, but only comparatively small amounts would be required for each year.

GALE ON ENGLISH CHANNEL.

A Number of Maritime Disasters Already Reported.

London, Dec. 7.—The heavy gale that set in Thursday continued yesterday and last night, and a number of maritime disasters have been reported. The river Mersey is full of weather-bound steamers. A few that ventured to put to sea were compelled to run for Holyhead or elsewhere for shelter. A brig has been driven ashore at Ronsay, one of the Orkney islands. It is believed that her crew landed on Eyilshay, a small island to the eastward of Ronsay. The steamer Topaz was abandoned by her crew in a sinking condition off Start point. Two steamers which were near by took off the crew in small boats. One of the men belonging to the sinking steamer was drowned. Minor casualties are reported from many places.

LANGERMAN RELEASED.

New York's Recorder Probably Anticipated Action of Supreme Court.

New York, Dec. 7.—Recorder Goff, before whom W. L. S. Langerman was convicted by a jury of criminal assault upon Barbara Aub, and afterwards acquitted by the recorder on the confession of Miss Aub that she had committed perjury, and who after a scathing arraignment of Langerman's past record committed him to the the house of detention under heavy bail to serve as a witness against Miss Aub, late yesterday afternoon released Langerman. Langerman was before the supreme court on habeas corpus proceedings at the time and would probably have been released by that tribunal had Goff not anticipated such action.

An Ohio County Commissioner Absconds with a Brakeman's Wife.

Newark, O., Dec. 7.—Herbert Atherton, county commissioner, has absconded, deserting his family and taking $5,000 with him, having mortgaged his property for all it was worth. It is believed he has gone with the wife of a railway brakeman.

A WOMAN APPOINTED.

Miss Bennett Chosen to a Chair in Boston University.

Boston, Dec. 7.—Miss Malvina M. Bennett, a graduate of Boston university C. L. A., '78, has been appointed to the chair of public speaking and vocal interpretation in that institution. Miss Bennett is the first woman to gain a professorship in the university.

American Catholic League.

Baltimore, Dec. 7.—The American Catholic league will be incorporated here to-day. It is founded on broad, patriotic lines and based on the essential principles of free institutions. The emblem of the league is two American flags at an angle, with a Roman cross between, surmounted by a crown.

Capt. Lothaire To Be Tried.

London, Dec. 7.—A dispatch from Brussels says it has been arranged that Captain Lothaire, the Congo State officer who is charged with having illegally executed Stokes, a British trader in Africa, shall be primarily tried by a Congolese court at Boma.

Chief of New York Police.

New York, Dec. 7.—Peter Conlin, who, on the retirement of Thomas Byrnes, was made acting chief of police, has been appointed chief by the board of police commissioners.

ENGLAND'S REPLY HERE

Lord Salisbury's Answer on Venezuela Arrives.

Ambassador Pauncefote Will Deliver It to Secretary Olney Today—Cannot Be Made Public on This Side of the Atlantic Until After the President's Return.

Washington, Dec. 7.—Lord Salisbury's reply to Secretary Olney's dispatch, which, according to the president's message, "called upon the British government for a definite answer to the question whether it would or would not submit the territorial controversy between itself and Venezuela in its entirety to partial arbitration," was received by Ambassador Pauncefote last evening. It will be handed to Secretary Elney to-day. At the same time the formal reply was transmitted to the British ambassador here, another copy, according to diplomatic custom, was handed to Mr. Bayard, our ambassador in London, through whom, last July, Secretary Olney's original note was presented to the British foreign office, Sir Julian Pauncefote being then absent in England on vacation. This copy was undoubtedly placed in Mr. Bayard's possession some days before the president's message was presented to congress. It seems strange that in a matter of such importance some inkling of its contents should not have been communicated to Secretary Olney prior to the framing of the president's message. Bearing in view this point, the passage in the message in which the president says that the United States will not be "satisfied if one of the powers concerned is permitted to draw an arbitrary line through the territory in debate and to declare that it will submit to arbitration only the portion lying on one side of it," will be regarded as having much significance. There is a promise in the president's message that when the text of the answer of the British government, "expected shortly," shall have been received "further communication on the subject will probably be made to congress." Of course this cannot be done while the president is absent, and the probabilities seem to be that the correspondence will not see the light until after the Christmas holidays, unless it should be made public on the other side of the Atlantic.

ROBBED HIS CLIENTS ALSO.

Late Developments in Altoona's Absconding City Solicitor's Case.

Altoona, Pa., Dec. 7.—Some new developments in the case of absconding City Solicitor Ambrose has come to light and it is now proven that he did not leave the city while insane as his friends contended. It is stated that he took along with him in his sudden flight $2,500 belonging to three of his clients. Several days before Mr. Ambrose left Altoona, Sylvester Bender paid over to him $1,582 which was to have been devoted to paying a claim on his property. The payment was not quite due and the party to whom it was to be paid refused to accept it because he wanted the interest which would accrue. Mr. Ambrose then put the money into the bank to his own private account and the day before he left drew it out. Ex-sheriff J. C. Hughes lost $500 and Sheriff Bell of this city loss $700 in the same way. Other property owners who gave Mr. Ambrose money to be paid in building associations to settle claims against their property are becoming alarmed. Nothing has been heard of the whereabouts of the missing official.

WATERS ALIVE WITH DUCKS.

The President's Chances for a Big Bag of Game Are Brilliant.

Norfolk, Va., Dec. 7.—The lighthouse tender Maple with President Cleveland, Secretary of War Lamont, Capt. Wilde and Dr. Bryant on broad remained last night off Currituck light and proceeded this morning for Hatteras, where, according to reports, thousands of ducks are hovering about the waters. At Cape Channel, near Hatteras, blinds have been provided for four people and in one of these blinds, the president will secret himself early Monday morning and wait for the game. The presidential party will not reach Hatteras before to-night and Sunday will be devoted to rest and preparation for Monday's shoot.

TO OPPOSE AHLWARDT.

Tammany Hall Meeting of Hebrews Tuesday Night.

New York, Dec. 7.—Edward Margelois, head of the Hebrew association of the same name, said last night: "There will be a meeting held by Hebrews in Tammany hall Tuesday night next to oppose Ahlwardt, who is advertised as coming here to drive the Semitic race out of business. Ahlwardt has served three terms in prison in Germany, and is just now only six months out of jail."

Increased Reward for Purvis.

Jackson, Miss., Dec. 7.—Gov. Stone has increased the reward for Will Purvis from $250 to $750. Purvis, who was under sentence to hang December 12, was released from jail by a mob some weeks ago. He is the same one who was hanged a year ago, but who escaped death through the bungling or connivance of the sheriff.

Shots in the French Chamber.

Paris, Dec. 7.—The police have learned that the man who fired the shots in the chamber of deputies, causing great extitement, but no other harm, is a shopman named Lenoir. He is 23 years old. It is believed that he is insane.

The air of injured innocence which Editor Runyon assumes would make a horse laugh—if such a thing were possible.

Senator Voorhees is quoted as saying that a resolution would probably be introduced during the session of the Legislature for an expert examination of the books of the office of Secretary of State Kelsey.

The curtains are drawn on the cider joints today, but tomorrow they will be up, the fiery fluid will gozzle from the inebriating incubators, and old topers and topers not so old will jostle and leer at respectable people passing along the public thoroughfares. The cider joints ought to be closed up.

Today's Daily Press consists of twelve pages. In the supplement the plumbers and the building ordinances are published, besides a well-selected amount of interesting stories. The supplement will be a handy sheet to preserve for future reference to these two important ordinances which the city is about to adopt.

It will be found by reference to the plumbing ordinance in another part of this paper that a severe penalty will be imposed upon any person who makes any additions or changes of any character or who makes any connections with the sewer until a plan clearly showing the whole plumbing system has been filed with and approved by the Board of Health at their office, Room No. 4, No. 109 Park avenue. The sewer pipes must be carefully ventilated and the work must not be covered until examined, tested and approved.

Great Reduction in Time to California.

Once more the Northwestern Line has reduced the time of its trans continental trains, and the journey from Chicago to California via this popular route is now made in the marvelously short time of three days. Palace drawing-room sleeping cars leave Chicago daily, and run through to San Francisco and Los Angeles, without change, and all meals en route are served in dining cars. Daily tourist sleeping car service is also maintained by this line between Chicago and San Francisco and Los Angeles, completely equipped berths in upholstered tourist sleepers being furnished at a cost of only $6 each from Chicago to the Pacific Coast. Through trains leave Chicago for California at six p. m. and 10.45 p. m. daily, after arrival of trains of connecting lines from the east and south. For detailed information concerning rates, routes, etc., apply to ticket agents of connecting lines or address: H. A. Gross, G. E. P. A., 423 Broadway, New York, or T. P. Vaille, S. E. P. A., 112 South Fourth street, Philadelphia, Pa. tf.

The doctors approve of Scott's Emulsion. For whom? For men and women who are weak, when they should be strong; for babies and children who are thin, when they should be fat; for all who get no nourishment from their food. Poor blood is starved blood. Consumption and Scrofula never come without this starvation And nothing is better for starved blood than cod-liver oil. Scott's Emulsion is cod-liver oil with the fish-fat taste taken out.

THE UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT GRANT.

"Pura Blood" an Unprecedented Success.

People who cannot go to Hot Springs Arkansas, and be cured of blood diseases by the treatment there given, fully appreciate the fact that the United States Government, under grant, have permitted the famous Curative Waters of Hot Springs, Ark., to be used in the preparation of "Pura Blood," and thus placed within their reach.

Eighty per cent of the diseases with which the human family suffer today are produced by poisons in he blood and the consequent derangement of the life-giving and sustaining fluid. It requires no effort of the imagination then, to understand why blood diseases are so prevalent. Neither does it require argument to tell you that the world-renowned healing waters of Hot Spring, Ark., which, under grant from the United States Government, are permitted to be used in the preparation of "Pura Blood," have been curing all these conditions for the last century. A few bottles of "Pura Blood will invigorate the entire system, and cleanse the blood of all impurities. As a tonic for young and old, for weak and feeble, it has never had an equal. "Pura Blood" is for sale by druggists, price $1. Billups & Co., of No. 26 Cortlandt st., New York, are sole agents. Descriptive book containing physicians' indorsements, sent to any address free.

Castoria is Dr. Samuel Pitcher's prescription for Infants and Children. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other Narcotic substance. It is a harmless substitute for Paregoric, Drops, Soothing Syrups, and Castor Oil. It is Pleasant. Its guarantee is thirty years' use by Millions of Mothers. Castoria destroys Worms and allays feverishness. Castoria prevents vomiting Sour Curd, cures Diarrhœa and Wind Colic. Castoria relieves teething troubles, cures constipation and flatulency. Castoria assimilates the food, regulates the stomach and bowels, giving healthy and natural sleep. Castoria is the Children's Panacea—the Mother's Friend.

Castoria.

"Castoria is an excellent medicine for children. Mothers have repeatedly told me of its good effect upon their children."

DR. G. C. OSGOOD, Lowell, Mass.

"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quack nostrums which are destroying their loved ones, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other hurtful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves."

DR. J. F. KINCHELOE, Conway, Ark.

Castoria.

"Castoria is so well adapted to children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me."

H. A. ARCHER, M. D., 111 So. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Our physicians in the children's department have spoken highly of their experience in their outside practice with Castoria, and although we only have among our medical supplies what is known as regular products we are free to confess that the merits of Castoria has won us to look with favor upon it."

HELEN'S FOLLY.

By KATE RICHMOND.

Before she was 18 Helen Tryon married for love. At 25 she found herself bankrupt of everything. She lived, and with the stubborn tenacity of her nature she braced herself to endure existence, but she neither hoped nor feared anything. She ate and drank and slept. The mechanical routine of the days repeated itself, but she had come to a dead stop. She had lost all courage, all faith. A bare, blank wall faced her. There was nothing more to be enjoyed nor suffered. She had had everything and lost everything.

If she had consciously recognized all this, there might have been some hope of reaction. When one appreciates the dramatic effect of circumstances, a new interest in new circumstances is apt to be not far off. But Helen was capable of no such attitude toward herself. One saw it in her face—dark and thin and changeless as a statue's. She had great dark eyes, but they never varied their dreamy, unheeding look. Her voice was low, soft and monotonous, and yet she was not at all a dreadful person to live with. It was impossible that her story should not cast its shadows over the household, but when it was once settled that Helen's experience had exempted her from all the ordinary rules that bound the others matters adjusted themselves, as they always do, and the happy current of commonplace living flowed around her undisturbed.

She was slender and graceful, strong, too, as these slight built New England women are often enough. At 17 she had not been handsome, but she had had that air of any possibility of beauty which is better than defined prettiness. She was shy, reserved and cold, with the positive, repelling power of strong natures and with the Puritan traditions of training superadded. Under it she was willful, headstrong and passionate, never capable of seeing more than one side of a subject and always glorifying that side with the whole force of a tropical imagination rigidly repressed and totally ungoverned.

It was just then that in a school vacation she visited a friend in one of the shadiest and oldest and steadiest of Connecticut villages. While she was in the house there came out of the southwest a young man who claimed blood relationship with the family. It was just in the days when Bret Harte's heroes stood foremost in the ranks of popularity. The inborn rebellion against conventionalities in Helen's blood caught eagerly at the picturesque freedom and wildness of these characterizations. She could not realize that one redeeming trait may not suffice to make a whole life tolerable. Payne Morse was as handsome in his bloud way as a young demigod. He had the slow, soft speech of the plainsman; he swore no oaths, in her presence at least; he conformed to the requirements of a community in which a revolver and a lariat rope were alike uncalled for and outlandish with a good natured toleration that had in Helen's eyes immense piquancy and magnanimity. Then he rode like a centaur, and the accomplishment was so novel in that corner of the hills that it seemed almost like something unlawful and ungodly. Somebody in a wild fit of speculation had shipped east a trainload of mustangs in the illusive hope that they might be broken for use among the quartz ledges. They kicked, they bucked, they sat on their haunches and squealed their wrongs aloud in every variation of the equine tongue, and at last Payne Morse was appealed to, as being only a little less savage than the mustangs, to see if he could do anything with them.

He found himself able and apparently enjoyed the work. His fearless riding, his quiet, merciless mastership of the untamed brutes, completed the conquest of Helen's fancy.

That was in leafy June. In September she went back to school. A month later she left the recitation room one day, put on her hat, walked out of the house and to the railroad station. In the next city Payne Morse awaited her. They were married within the hour, and before sunset they told the story in the Tryon sitting room.

Helen was not defiant. She was quiet, rather sad, but no more repentant or regretful than a block of marble. Mr. Tryon recognized the trait by sympathy perhaps. He looked at the two as they stood in the middle of the room. Mother and sister had withdrawn a little. Helen's will was a thing that most of the household did withdraw from. She stood by her husband's side, slight, erect, her hand on his arm, but not leaning on him at all.

"You are aware, sir," Mr. Tryon said, "that this child is a minor? By the law I could take her from you."

"But you will not?" The question was half assertion.

"No, I shall not. She has chosen. She must learn life in her own way. I shall try to make no difference between her and the others, and may the Lord have mercy on you both," he added half under his breath.

For a month the two staid under the home roof. Helen's mother put down intuition and instinct with a strong hand, magnified the superficial charms of the man and was able at last to say, "It was irregular, improper, wrong, but we can't help liking him."

Helen's sisters, two of them, really did like him. The careless, easy, unconscious dash of his manner, his unfailing, elaborate if somewhat florid courtesy, the air of vague romance that seemed to make the atmosphere in which he breathed—all appealed to their ideal of the chivalric and poetic. He did not talk much of himself, but his half impersonal stories of wild adventures and reckless daring opened vistas into a limitless wonderland. Mr. Tryon treated him politely always and never said a word for or against him.

Then Helen took the few thousand dollars for which by right she would have waited till she had reached her majority and went with her husband into the then half savage depths of the Colorado cattle ranges.

For four years her letters came regularly. From the very first there had been little of personal record in them. What she hoped or feared, enjoyed or suffered, no one had any way of guessing. It was the kindest thing to read nothing more than appeared on the surface. But at the end of that time Payne Morse was tried and sentenced to confinement for life for participation in a daring train robbery. She simply sent the papers in which the matter was recorded.

Mr. Tryon followed his telegram with all the speed possible. And so Helen Morse came home again, a statuesque shadow of herself—she and her baby, of whom the whole family made an object of worship.

One more blow remained to fall. A year later the baby died. The newspaper that told its death told, too, the death of its father, shot while trying to escape from the prison in which he was confined.

Helen wore black after that—perhaps for her baby's death, perhaps for the memory of the man who had treated her with a cruelty she never told nor hinted at, perhaps for herself, because she had outlived everything. At any rate, she went in somber garments, and no one questioned or remarked.

And so up to this night, the night of her twenty-fifth birthday, when they were all sitting about the tea table and talking of Harry's prospects. Harry had bought a share in a Texas ranch, and he and his partner were going to rough it alone in their cabin among the grass and sheep. Harry was enthusiastic, forestalling a little and unconsciously the character he was to assume by and by.

"Now, Mr. Micawber!" Grace said mockingly. "Mother, you ought to give him a tin plate and cup and keep silver forks out of his sight. And, Harry, you'll have to cut the acquaintance of boiled shirts unless you boil them yourself, and then you'll have spasms over the starch."

Helen looked up and said in her slow, impassive way, "Why couldn't I go and keep house for you, Harry?"

Silence fell about the table. The idea had never presented itself to one of them, but now all at once it did not seem so impracticable. No fancy of Helen's ever did for Helen.

"I have seen something of the life," she said. "There is nothing in it that I cannot face. I do not mind the solitude, and a house is more comfortable with a woman in it."

And so it was settled. She went about her preparations with a straightforward, unhurrying readiness that admitted of little assistance. In 10 days the brother and sister started, and the family felt somehow as if there had been a death as well as a departure.

In those days the railroad lines were everywhere incomplete. Helen, alighting from the train at its farthermost point of advance, found herself with 500 miles of stage riding before her. With her usual silence, she did not even comment on the discomforts of the journey. She was the only woman in the great swinging coach. The other passengers were men, bronzed and bearded, in flannels and sombreros, and with more or less of the furniture of an armory about them. They paid her a great deal of deferential attention and were assiduous in supplying every want, real or imagined. And Helen took it all, as she did everything else, with a gentle kind of half unobservant gravity that seemed to be very puzzling to their minds.

On the second day, well among the mountains, swinging down a long incline among the dark shadows of the pines, there was a sudden, abrupt report of firearms, a plunging, lurching motion of the coach, a sudden uproar of voices without, and Helen, crushed down into the lower corner of the vehicle, with a smothered impression of several tons of kicking humanity over and above her, heard "road agents" uttered somewhere in the mass and knew what had befallen them.

One by one the passengers were extracted.

"There'a lady in there," a voice said.

"We'll come to her presently. Seat yourselves on that log, gentlemen. Here she is. Now, madam," offering a diamond ringed white hand.

Up rose Helen, as little disheveled as it was possible for a woman to be under the circumstances, and was assisted up and out by a masked man with the easiest elegance of demeanor.

"We are sorry to inconvenience a lady," a quiet voice said, "but it is one of the unpleasant necessities of business. I suspect we have made a mistake. We took this to be the paymaster's trip down to the mines."

"We are sorry to inconvenience a lady," a quiet voice said.

Helen bowed composedly and took her seat beside the others, and then, under cover of half a dozen revolvers, there was a rapid and exhaustive collection of valuables from the party. Helen was not molested; no one spoke to her. In the first minute of the attack some one had thrust a heavy wallet into her hand. She held it carelessly with her handkerchief and the gloves she had taken off and a book to which she had clung unconsciously through all the confusion. None of her belongings was touched or looked at.

"The Pine Valley coach will be along before morning. We can only say we are sorry for the blunder," and with a courteous gesture of farewell to Helen the party rode away.

Both leaders lay dead in their tracks. Clearly there was nothing to do but to wait for the Pine Valley coach. Helen was made comfortable with shawls and wraps on a bed of pine boughs and fell asleep quietly under the stars. She did not wake even when the coach came up.

"Now, Helen," a voice said, and she opened her eyes to find Harry standing beside her, and with him a tall figure, dark in the starlight. "Another road agent?" she said, half asleep.

Harry laughed. "We don't know what he may develop into. At present he is Frank Bronson."

Helen rose to her feet, broad awake at once.

"You've had a stirring introduction to your new life," a pleasant voice said, "and popular report makes you out a heroine."

Helen flushed a little resentfully. He might have been talking to a girl of 16 in that voice of easy patronage. She was silent. Harry, used to that peculiarity, did not notice.

Frank Bronson began again, "I'm afraid you'll be inconveniently crowded, Miss Tryon."

"I beg your pardon," in her slow, cold way, "I am Mrs. Morse."

They came out just then into the glare of the lamps. Bronson looked at her curiously.

"Harry did not tell me," he said, with a sudden air of constrained bashfulness.

At the journey's end the passenger whose pocketbook she had saved took a great solitaire diamond off his little finger. "A memento, madam, simply a memento. The ring was in the wallet. You saved me $15,000 last night by your presence of mind."

She would not take it, but a few weeks later there came to her through the postoffice the stone reset in another ring heavy enough for an armlet. She smiled, slipping it over her slender finger. Then she met Bronson's eyes watching her.

"My good deeds pursue me. I am 'the heroine of Pine Gulch.' Would you have suspected it? And there is no address." She dropped the ring into his hand and walked away.

They were settled now in their new home. A very sketchy sort of home it was, but enough for the needs of a climate where a house is not needed much more or much oftener than an umbrella. They had camped with the luxuries of wall tents while the young men did their own building. A sitting room, two sleeping rooms and a kitchen, that was all, and the canvas of the tents made an awning under which a hammock might be swung. The new pine boards were aromatic in the hot sunshine; the conventional requirements of living were reduced to their very simplest form.

It was a solitary enough life for a woman. One of Harry's experimental gang of Chinese workers had been detailed to kitchen duties, and the peace of the house was profound. But Helen liked it. Dreamy and silent she was still, but somehow, little by little, she seemed to come back toward human sympathies and interests. Half unconsciously her black garments were laid aside as oppressive in the heat of the long, bright days. The young men coming home at night found a white draped presence awaiting them. Harry thought without spoken comment that something of her girlhood as he remembered it was coming back into her face and into the rounding outlines of her figure. Once or twice he heard an echo of the old imperious inflections of speech when something went wrong in the simple programme of their housekeeping. Once or twice she laughed aloud at some of Sam Lee's achievements. At least the old monotonous calm was broken. She had fits of depression, felt keenly in the sensitive household atmosphere.

It was the evening after the coming of the ring. Helen found herself at the very bottom of her register of feeling. They were all out of doors in the large starred, dewless southwestern night. The two men, outstretched on their blankets, lay silently smoking. Helen, swinging in her hammock, was speechless too. By and by Harry asked her some trivial question, and the voice that answered him was hoarse with tears. He took no notice, and a minute after she went into the house. Harry followed her and came back after awhile, his own voice not oversteady.

"That girl has broken down at last. It's the first time in years, and not easy years either. I doubt if any one has seen her cry since she came home."

"Mrs. Morse?"

"Who else?" testily. "How I hate the name! I never think of it if I can help it. You don't know the story?"

"I have guessed—that is, I mean I couldn't help knowing there was something painful. Mrs. Morse is young to be a widow."

"She is 25," brusquely. "Helen always would have her own way. She had it when she was 17 and married a scoundrel. He got a life sentence for train robbery and was killed trying to make his escape from prison. She got the news the day her only child was buried."

Bronson gave a half groan, a sound almost like a sob, as Tryon paused in his blunt recital.

"That was two years ago. She never whimpered under it, and tonight she is crying as if she would kill herself. And I don't know but she will. Think of a woman's life going to wreck like that!"

Whatever Bronson may have thought, he said nothing. There was a long silence and much tobacco smoke.

"Don't they take something?" he said hesitatingly after awhile. "A cup of tea or something? I'll broil a quail if you like."

"That's so," accepting the suggestion cheerfully. Then they went out into Sam Lee's shining little kitchen and pottered about with the best of intentions, but with much disturbance of small, jingling movables. Helen's crying was over now. She lay prone and nerveless, with the exhaustion of such tears. She heard the uproar among the pots and pans and wondered faintly about it.

Harry opened the door finally, with a laden tray in his hands.

"I made the tea," he explained breathlessly, "and Bronson cooked the bird, and we couldn't find the bread."

Helen sat up and pushed the damp hair back from her face.

"Bronson thought of it," he said persuasively "I'd try to eat a little." And Helen drank her tea and nibbled her bird with an unsmiling sense of the unfitness of things when meat and drink were offered as a remedy for such troubles as hers.

But it did her good. She slept dreamlessly that night, and if she came out to breakfast with heavy shadows under her eyes the sad lipped mouth had lost a little of its rigid line of pain.

There had been an epidemic of lawlessness through the country for the last few weeks. The particular manifestation of the disease was horse stealing. Now, to take a man's horse was generally worse—for the community—than taking his life. The public sense of justice did not always wait for the slow and rather uncertain action of the law. Harry rode away that evening without defining his business, and Bronson found Helen alone in her hammock, as usual.

These two did not find talk necessary. They had reached that grade of acquaintanceship where long silences are unremarked. A soundless half hour passed. Helen lay with half shut eyes, watching the broad flood of sunset light die out of the sky. Bronson was smoking. When the cigar was quite done, he rose deliberately and stood beside her. In the faint light, in her white gown, her 25 years rolled back and left her in girlhood again.

"Helen," he said, touching a fold of her dress with softly reverent hand.

She looked up at him with an instant's surprise; then her eyes fell.

"Forgive me," he said humbly. "I have not seen many women. When you came, it was like a revelation. And now I know that I love you."

She opened her lips to speak, but he stopped her.

"I know," he said. "Harry told me your story. Won't you dare trust another man?"

There was something very childlike in the simplicity of the question. She half smiled. Then all at once the past rushed over her.

"No," she said wildly, rising to her feet. "All that has gone by forever. You do not know what you are saying. A woman who has lived through such a degradation of ill treatment and cruelty as I—who has so utterly mistaken herself and all the meaning of her life—has no right to listen to such words as you have spoken."

"Helen," he said, touching a fold of her dress with softly reverent hand.

They were standing face to face. She put out her hands with a helpless, strengthless air of repelling protest. Perhaps he misunderstood the gesture. He took them in his own and held them firmly and gently. She did not resist the clasp, standing mute and miserable. Perhaps until that hour it had never occurred to her that any renewal of that old story could be possible. She had felt herself set apart from all the common lot of women. That he seemed so innocently and so completely to ignore such tragic facts as her life held beat down all her guard and swept away the landmarks which had been the dreary reminders of her past folly and sin.

He was what that other had been, a plainsman, reared among the influences of an almost lawless community. Always on the edge of the advancing wave of civilization, where the other had grown reckless, he was grave and self contained. He knew books better than many who had lived among them; there was a gentleness in his speech which meant something better than mere sweet temper, and Helen was woman enough yet to feel the fascination of his muscular strength—the very clasp that held her, gentle as it was, was irresistible if he chose to have it so.

"At least I love you," he said at last. "You know it now," with a long breath, as of relief. "I have not my secret to keep and shall never love any one else."

She smiled again through all her trouble. He believed in himself with such manifest faith.

He released her hands. She went back to her hammock and he to his blanket, and silence fell again between them.

Harry came back while they were still in their places.

"We're getting it down fine," he said abruptly to Bronson. "I've been over to Morgan's. We know how many there are in the gang, and we have descriptions of the principal leaders. It's a regularly organized thing. The leader is a Captain Gordon. He'll find himself captained with a short rope if the league gets hold of him. We know pretty well their headquarters."

Helen turned languidly.

"What makes you involve yourself in such a thing?" she said. "It's so much easier to keep out than to get out."

"Suppose you should lose Rebecca some night?"

"I shouldn't like it. But, oh, Harry, you don't want blood on your hands."

"And I don't want to lose my horses," he said doggedly. "If it comes to that, it's their own fault. They know the risks they take."

Helen said no more. Bronson had not spoken at all. He asked an unimportant question or two, and then the subject dropped.

That night every horse worth taking was stolen from the Tryon and Bronson ranch, and with the rest Helen's Rebecca. But the third day afterward Rebecca was found in the morning tied before the door, with as handsome a bridle and lady's saddle as the country afforded and with a card appended, "Captain Gordon's compliments to Helen Tryon."

"He ought to have said to the heroine of Pine Gulch," Harry said, with deep disgust. "Perhaps Mrs. Morse is in it, too," Bronson suggested shyly. "You're quite sure that Captain Gordon isn't a friend of yours? Appearances are against you. First the diamond"— and he stopped short as the tears rose in Helen's eyes.

"I didn't mean anything," he explained humbly to Harry afterward.

"Who ever supposed you did? Do you imagine you are ever going to understand what a woman finds to cry about?" he said wrathfully. "They don't know themselves half the time."

But, after all, it was not Helen at whom he was storming. An extra meeting of the Horse Thief league was summoned. No results followed, and a month wore away peaceably.

Time did not stand still for Helen and Helen's lover. He did not again refer in words to that declaration of his, but not an hour spent in her society did not plead his cause. He took it for granted that his love for her was a thing complete of itself, without hope of return. Perhaps that attitude was his strongest plea. Something in his patience seemed wonderful to her. She could as soon have built the pyramids. She was one of those positive people to whom no half measure is possible. That a man should make such an avowal as that and then should let the days go on in such commonplace, cheerful, unmarked fashion roused a new, wondering interest in her mind.

Little by little, unconscious of the gradations of feeling, her whole mental attitude changed. She owned now with a shudder that if Payne Morse were to cross her path for the first time she would probably be repelled rather than attracted. She had fallen in love with an ideal, and the living, breathing facts did not bear out the fancy. And the next shock was to realize that she had not yet done with ideals, and today's hero was in nowise like yesterday's.

Clearly Helen Morse's days of passive suffering were over. She was silent still, but her silence was dreamy instead of coldly hopeless. And unwonted bursts of petulance stirred the even tenor of the days.

"What has happened to Helen?" Harry asked wonderingly one day. "Well, anything is better than seeing her go about like a galvanized corpse, as we did for three years."

But Harry was too much absorbed in devising schemes whereby Captain Gordon's band might come to grief to heed such small bits of melodrama as falling in love, hopelessly or otherwise.

One night it came to pass that after one of the brief, tremendous storms of wind and rain peculiar to the latitude Helen answered her brother's hail from the outer darkness and opened the door to find him and one of the herders holding between them a motionless dead weight and recognized the white face of Frank Bronson's.

"Is he dead?" she asked quietly.

"I don't know. Only stunned, I fancy. Set Sam Lee to heating water and rummaging our flannels. A tree fell as we were coming through the timber and knocked him out of his saddle. What a mercy you are not of the screaming, fainting kind!"

Harry was giving explanations and orders in a sort of running accompaniment that barely veiled his own anxiety. Helen, pale, silent and helpful, obeyed implicitly. When Bronson opened his eyes at last, her face was the first he saw as his swimming vision steadied itself. He put out his hand, and she laid hers within it. There was a good deal in the act. She was not a woman prodigal of such expressions. The heavy blue eyes opened with eager inquiry.

"You must be very quiet," she said, with a smile. She did not withdraw her hand, and with a long sigh of relief he turned toward her and fell asleep.

He was out and about his business next day, though in a rather shaky fashion. All day Helen went about with a half guilty, half happy strain of feeling on her heart. As the time came for his return she went and stood before her glass, for the first time perhaps in years, with a critical and anxious look at the reflection therein. She was too pale. Sorrow and loss had left her face scarred with their traces. What had she to do with love? The fit of self distrust left a tremor in her manner that even Harry noticed.

"I believe you are living back again," he said. "At this rate, Helen, you'll be a schoolgirl again before you know it."

Her lips quivered in a painful half smile. He plunged on: "Did you ever see any one change so, Frank? No, you are not living back. You are going to begin over again, my girl." And he stooped and kissed her. They were not a demonstrative family, the Tryons. She flushed with a pleased surprise. And, dinner being over, he and Bronson rode away in pursuance of some of their horse thief plans. They had not been gone many minutes when there came the sharp clatter of a horse's hoofs up to the door, and Bronson flung himself out of the saddle.

"Is it true?" he asked eagerly.

"It is quite true," slowly and almost solemnly.

"Oh, my darling"—he had her in his arms; she felt his tears on her face, his kisses on her lips—"what have I done to deserve such happiness?"

She clung to him then with a little cry. "Oh, Frank, everything failed me once! If that comes again, I shall die."

He held her close against his breast.

"It shall never come again," he said softly.

And then in a minute more he was gone.

All of this out of doors, where any one might have seen and heard every word. But who was there to see in that wide, green, empty world? The silence was absolute. She stood listening to the clank of his horse a little before she went back into the house, thinking, with a happy smile, how the world had changed.

She sat sewing the next day, swinging lazily in her low rocker. Sam Lee was pattering softly about on the bare boards of his kitchen floor. The south wind, sweeping through the wide open door, tossed her hair about her forehead. Outside the green and sunny silence seemed rhythmical in its boundlessness.

A shadow fell across the doorway. Helen, looking up, saw a tall man standing there, clad in all respects as the other men of the region were. The wide hat, the blue flannel shirt, with its white ornamental stitchings, the jangling spurs and the high riding boots were all common enough. But Helen's heart beat a little faster as he addressed her after the stereotyped fashion:

"Are the bosses here?"

"Both are on the range. They will not be at home before night."

She had risen to answer him and stood with her hands on the back of her chair, a little paler than usual and a growing look of terror in her widening eyes. He had not removed his hat, and his face was heavily bearded. They stood silent for a little space, and then he bared his head with a sudden gesture.

"Helen, don't you know me?"

She neither cried out nor fainted. She stared at him with a fixed horror in her face.

"Yes," she said in a dull sort of way; "you were Payne Morse."

"Were? Do you take me for a ghost? No. I'm all alive. You don't ask me to come in—no matter"—crossing the threshold—"no matter. I've something to say, and now's the best time to say it."

He crossed the room and closed the door that led into Sam Lee's domain. She stood watching him with bloodless face and staring eyes

"Don't look so frightened, child." There was something of the old musical ring in his voice that had once been so sweet in her ears. With the memory she shuddered through all her frame.

"Do you hate me as much as that?" facing her and looking down on her with half amused eyes. "Well, I was a brute, but we had been such fools."

He paused as if waiting for her to speak.

"Let me look at you. You haven't grown younger, and you really thought me dead? Well, I had a narrow chance for it. Look." He turned his face and showed the track of a bullet across the temple and side of his face. "The officers knew better, but they let it go at that. They didn't care to report a successful escape."

Still she stood mute.

"Can't you speak? A man might think you were not glad to see him."

"It is such a surprise," she half whispered, with rigid lips.

"No doubt. Is that fellow going to marry you? I happened to be in the neighborhood last night and got the benefit of that scene. Nice thing for a man to be looking at. His own wife too. I'd a great mind to send a bullet through his head."

"He did not know. He was as innocent as I was."

"Oh, no doubt—quite. No, Helen, that's not fair. I always did do you justice in my heart in spite of your infernal temper. But what I came here for today was to ask what he meant."

"He did mean that I should be his wife."

"Well," doubtfully, "the law frees you. If he's going to marry you, I suppose it's all right."

"Oh, Payne, can't you see—it's all over. How can I marry with you living? I was happy for the first time in all these years," piteously. "I have been so hopeless, so despairing, and it seemed as if I might live on forever."

"Where's the baby?"

"Dead," with a little moan.

A faint quiver crossed his face. "It's a good thing maybe. And so you won't marry because I happen to be alive? And you don't love me either. Women are queer things."

"What are you going to do?" wildly "Must I go with you?"

"Go with me? No, thank you. I shall get away from here shortly. I had business here, and I give you my word that I did not know you were here when I came. But we shall finish up shortly now, and then I'll be off. And look here—you shan't be fooled again. I'll make certain that you are told when I do go."

She had been standing all the while. He came close to her now.

"Can't you give me a kiss?" stooping his still handsome face toward her.

"Oh, no, no!" She shrank back, shivering.

"And I your husband too! You took it much more coolly the other night," with a careless laugh. "Well, goodby. I shan't see you again most likely. He's a handsome fellow—not much better than I was before I got this beauty mark, though—and just as likely to be no better sort."

She sank down on the floor as he went out. By and by she pulled down the pillow from the couch near by and lay there sobbing and shivering. Sam Lee, coming in for directions for the evening meal, found her with closed eyes, and fancying her asleep spread a shawl over her and left her, following the devices of his own heart over the cook stove.

She heard the men coming at last—Bronson and her brother—and met them at the door, so white, so desperate looking that both drew rein and sat staring at her speechlessly.

Bronson sprang to the ground at last and took her in his arms. She put him away with a trembling hand, not looking at him.

"Harry, Payne Morse is alive."

"How do you know?"

"I've seen him. He has been here."

"Today?"

"Only a little while ago. It was no mistake. I talked with him. What shall I do? What shall I do?"

Bronson was leaning back against his horse, a bewildered look of agony on his face. But as she turned toward him he answered her appeal. He came forward and put his arm about her.

"You see, I love your sister," he said to Harry. "She would have been my wife. She shall be now if she will. But, whatever she decides, I love her and always shall." He spoke very slowly and distinctly. "You hear me, Helen. Whatever comes, I will not fail you to the end."

For one minute she lay her head against his shoulder. Then with a sob she turned away and entered the house.

After all, human everyday life is not a favorable background for tragedy. The awful happenings drop beneath the current, and the ripples run over them, and half the time we forget them unless it happens to be our own hearts that are aching. Before 48 hours had passed the little household was going on in its old way apparently.

It was on the evening of that second day that Harry came back from his weekly visit to the postoffice at the station.

"I've got it sure," he said to Bronson. "The Denver police have sent me a photograph of Captain Gordon. Good looking rascal," handing over the card. "We can't miss with that."

Bronson scrutinized the likeness carefully.

"It's a marked face. That scar across the forehead is peculiar and not easily hidden."

"Want to see it, Helen? If in your walks abroad you meet Captain Gordon, you'll know him."

She glanced at it and turned a livid face toward him.

"Harry, it's Payne—Payne Morse."

"What the devil am I to do? Poor Helen, she's made trouble for somebody her whole life through. I'm head and front of it all, and I can't go ahead with the thing now, for her sake—and you're no better off. I'll go down tonight, put the thing into Mason's hands and clear the country till it's over with. We'll have to start for Denver tomorrow without an hour's delay, and Helen will have to stay here alone. I'll get Mason's wife to come over, if she will have her. It's the best way I see out of a bad bargain."

That was Harry Tryon's way, settling everything offhand, but the plan was carried out, and Helen found herself solitary. Mason's wife came over, but was quickly recalled by the needs of a sick baby. Happily Helen had steady nerves and a controllable imagination. Of real danger there was very little, and she was glad to be alone.

Of what was going on about her she knew nothing. She had never taken much interest in the happenings of the country and gave no thought to the subject that had been Harry's great interest for so long. Sam Lee's work being done, he had sauntered off to the cabins down in the timber. Helen was swinging in her hammock as usual, dreaming dreams and seeing visions in such dreary fashion as her past gave reason for. Still, with all the sadness, there was a dreamy quiet which was not wholly pain, and with the silence, and the starlight, and the slow, monotonous rocking of her swinging cradle she fell asleep.

"Helen!"

"Yes," she said drowsily and fell asleep again.

"Helen!" the word was spoken a little louder. A hand touched her. She sprang up broad awake now. Payne Morse stood before her.

He was bareheaded, without his coat; a blood stained sling held his right arm; a torn handkerchief was knotted round his head; he was haggard and ghastly. She knew it all at once. It was two hours since she had heard shots in the timber and had lain idly speculating about echoes and the distance the sound had come.

"They are after me. Can you help me?" he said in a hoarse gasp.

"What can I do?" But it was not a question of helplessness. She was thinking hard.

"They will come here," he said.

"Yes, I suppose so. Yes, I will do my best," slowly.

"I've been hung and shot," with a most unmirthful laugh. "The rope broke, and the fool that fired didn't break anything. I ought to get off after that."

She answered him not a word, but after a moment's thought, "You can come in here," opening the door of her room. One end had been partitioned off as a closet and storeroom. She dragged down a mattress and blankets.

"I will do my best," she said again slowly. She did not look at him. She spoke as if her lips were stiffened.

"You're a plucky little soul," lightly. The man's daredevil recklessness was uppermost again. "You know who you are entertaining? Not an angel unawares. I'm Captain Gordon."

"Yes, I know."

"All right then. Mind one thing—they are not likely to use you—a woman—roughly. If it comes to that, I shall appear on the scene."

"I'm not afraid. Don't talk any more, please," in a tired sort of way.

Then she lighted her room and began dressing leisurely. The occupation had its object. Sitting still was impossible while she waited.

But when a sharp rap sounded peremptorily through the house she started

She started with every nerve.

with every nerve. Her voice was steady enough, however, as she went to the curtained window

"Who is it?"

"Morgan from over Point."

"Captain Morgan? Yes, I know. If you will find your way in, I will join you presently."

She heard the tramp of feet making their way uncertainly into the unlighted room. She did not hasten; every soft fold of lace about her throat was settled carefully to its place, and she went back to adjust a slipping braid of hair as if the most critical and fastidious of morning callers awaited her. Something of the dramatic instinct must have been born in her. She stood in the doorway presently, holding the lamp far above her head that she might see her visitors, a graceful, white clad shape, with shining eyes and flushed cheeks. The men rose involuntarily.

"I am Mrs. Morse," she said quietly. "My brother, Mr Tryon, is not at home."

"Don't be alarmed," Captain Morgan said reassuringly. "We are the vigilance committee searching for the captain of the horse thief gang. He escaped us a few hours ago and came this way."

She thought of the shooting and hanging while this soft voiced vigilant was making his explanation. She moved forward and put her lamp down on a table before she answered.

"He visited us some time since," with a half smile. "You know we lost all our horses."

"I knew you were here alone and thought he might take advantage of the fact. Nobody knows how much information he has."

She shook her head.

"Captain Gordon hasn't frightened me," she said calmly. Then she glanced at the men. They were all splashed and travel torn.

"Could I offer you any refreshment," she said half timidly, "for yourself or your horses? I have heard my brother speak of you frequently," with the smile that years ago Payne Morse had found so bewitching.

She looked so frail and slight, so entirely different from the southwestern feminine development, that Morgan, a great, good natured giant, found himself abashed. As for his companions, they stood with their guns in the hollow of their arms, holding their hats awkwardly and uneasily. They were rough riders and straight shots, but this slender woman upset their nerves.

"We're about played out," Morgan said, "the horses at least. He won't be likely to get far tonight," with a significant glance at the man nearest him, "and we couldn't do much anyhow. It is going to be blacker than pitch. If you don't mind our camping on the place—you don't look much like work, Mrs. Morse, but I'm not a bad hand at a frying pan myself."

"Certainly, gentlemen," with sweetest courtesy. "You know the way to the corncribs, and," putting out a pair of slender, browned hands, "I'm not as helpless as I look."

So she and Captain Morgan made coffee, fried bacon and baked biscuit, while the men fed their horses and arranged sleeping places for themselves.

"Don't that beat anything you ever saw in your life in the way of a woman?" one of them said after a long reconnoissance through the kitchen window. "And there's Morgan," with awe in his voice, "talking away to her as chipper as a jaybird."

They rode away in the gray of the morning. All day long she ministered to the man who had wrecked her life. There was little talk. They could not venture on that. He slept like a worn-out man who makes the most of his chances in safety. When night came again and again, Sam Lee left the house alone. Then, clad in Harry Tryon's garments and riding Rebecca, Payne Morse made his way to a signal station on the railway 10 miles away.

"Goodby," he said. "You'll not be likely to see or hear of me again. For your sake it's almost a pity that they didn't make an end of me."

"Don't say that, Payne. We'll live out our lives. Yours might have such chances if you chose to use them."

"Goodby, my girl." He stooped and kissed her cheek. "If I could go back again—well, we wouldn't get married."

Harry Tryon came back three or four days later. He knew about the dispersing of the gang and the hanging of two or three of its members.

"And Payne?" Helen asked.

"They told me he escaped," not meeting her eyes.

Then she told him.

"By Jove, Helen! They never suspected, that's certain. After that I wonder if there's anything you can't stand. Listen, Payne Morse is dead."

He had risen and was holding both her hands as she sat before him.

"I know it's true," he said earnestly. "I saw him. He was taken out of the train at the junction where I waited. Died of heart disease, they said, without a struggle or a word."

He spoke slowly, as if to give her time to take in the significance of his words. Her face whitened slowly, and as he finished she dropped at his feet in a faint like death.

She was married in the dim twilight in the old church at home, with just her mother and sisters near her, and her father watching her with softened eyes. The organ murmured in full, soft chords, but there were no strangers, no bridal display. As she stepped out into the sweet spring evening the young faint crescent of the moon met her eyes.

"It's the beginning," Frank whispered softly, bending down that she alone might hear.—Overland Monthly.

The Blind Guide In the Capitol.

"Did you ever hear about the first guide at the capitol? He was stone blind. Don't believe it? Well, I don't blame you, for in his day only a few people knew he was blind, and even those he took through the big building suspected that he could see." The speaker was John B. McCarthy, the private secretary of Senator White and a veteran newspaper man.

"The blind guide was old 'Professor Donaldson,' as we called him in those days. He made his living for 20 years by showing visitors about the building and followed that calling until 1873. I used to wonder how he knew when to turn in the corridors, but he told me one day that he not only knew the distances from one point to another, but that he wanted no better guide than the drafts of air. They never failed to make his location known to him. Donaldson would go into the senate gallery with a party and point out the senators, whom he would describe, locating them at their seats. It was all right if they were on hand, and if they weren't the visitors would generally be too dazed to know the difference. Another strange thing about Donaldson was that he was an inveterate gambler. He would make money in the daytime and stake it on poker games at night. He carried a small black boy around with him on those occasions, and the duty of the pickaninny was to tell him what cards he had. Then he played, and played well too."—Washington News.

The Original Martinet.

Lord Wolseley, in a dissertation on the discipline of the French army in the reign of Louis XIV, mentions that the instruction of the infantry was intrusted to a General Martinet, "whose name is still a synonym for unrelenting strictness in the punctual performance of all duties, no matter how small and apparently unimportant." The noble and gallant biographer of the hero of Blenheim likewise states that it was General Martinet who replaced the pike with the bayonet. In the second Dutch war he introduced the use of copper pontoons. Pierre Larousse, on the other hand, says that Martinet, notwithstanding his talents and the important services which he rendered to his country, never rose beyond the rank of a colonel of infantry.

Lord Wolseley has omitted to record another notable invention of General or Colonel Martinet. He introduced into the French army the celebrated "cat with 12 tails" of cords or leather, which still bears his name in France and is used to beat clothes and sometimes children with. As to our own military cat-o'-nine tails, its origin is a mystery. The old correctional whip of justice had only three lashes, and the importation of a cat with nine is sometimes ascribed to William III, who brought over with him to England in 1688 several regiments of Dutch guards, in whose ranks the strictest discipline was maintained. —Sala in London Times.

Courtship by Proxy.

"Courtship by mail is apt to be dangerous," said Harry F. Potter of Baltimore. "A great many more marriages are arranged in this way than is generally supposed, and statistics do not prove that they turn out on the average any worse than others. I am personally acquainted, however, with one case in which a man married a lady with whom he had not even corresponded. A young lady for a joke answered a matrimonial advertisement, taking into her confidence a friend who was as full of fun as herself. When it came to the point of exchanging photographs, she sent her friend's, and when, a few weeks later, a letter came inclosing a railroad ticket, an enthusiastic offer of marriage and a request to come on at once, the originator of the joke thought matters had gone far enough, and showing the letter to her friend told her she proposed to tear it up and drop the correspondence. The friend, however, had become impressed with both the photograph and eloquence of the distant wooer, and without telling any one of her intentions she kept the appointment, met the stranger and married him. Probably a more remarkable outcome of a joke and of courtship by proxy has seldom taken place."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

What's In a Name?

Count Raphael Cohen, head of the famous Belgian banking firm, who purchased his title of count, has a tendency to drop the name of Cohen and to retain that of Antwerp, Anvers being the Gallicized equivalent of Antwerp, Count and Countess C. d'Anvers sounding much better than Cohen of Antwerp. Old Baron Oppenheim, who was aware of this weakness on the part of the Antwerp Cohens, finding on one occasion their names inscribed on the register of a hotel as "Comte et Comtesse C. d'Anvers," wrote his own name immediately underneath as "Baron O. de Cologne."—San Francisco Argonaut.

Consumption—

in this disease is what physicians constantly are on the look-out for, knowing that it means the end. Just keep up the strength; keep the body nourished properly, so that waste of tissue is checked, and with proper medicines death is delayed indefinitely, or a permanent cure, as has been proved in thousands of cases is accomplished. To effect this much desired result, give the patient

Bovinine

Dr. W. E. S. Preston, House Physician of the "House of Rest for Consumptives," of Tremont, N. Y., says, "I have never known a case where the stomach has rejected Bovinine. In cases of collapse, so common among consumptives, we always use it." Bovinine being easy to take, and quick of assimilation and a wonderful food product, at once starts on its mission of creating strength, flesh and blood. It tones up the vital organs and by thus invigorating them, enables them to throw off disease and gives to the sufferer a new lease of life where such a thing is possible.

Pineola Cough Balsam

is excellent for all throat inflammations and/or asthma. Consumptives will invariably derive benefit from its use, as it quickly abate the cough, renders expectoration easy, assisting nature in restoring wasted tissues. There is a large percentage of those who suppose their cases to be consumption who ate only suffering from a chronic cold or deep seated cough, often aggravated by catarrh. For catarrh use Ely's Cream Balm. Both remedies are pleasant to use. Cream Balm 50c per bottle; Pineola Balsam 25c. at druggists. In quantities of $2.50 will deliver on receipt of amount. ALWAYS CRIMINAL.

BLACK RECORD FOR CENTURIES OF A ROMAN VILLAGE.

Artena Infamous For the Crimes of Its Inhabitants Seven Centuries Ago and Outlawed by a Pope—Crime Hereditary In Some of the Families.

"A Country of Born Criminals" is what Professor Sichele of the University of Pisa entitles his article on Artena, an Italian village, in a recent issue of Archives d'Anthropologie. The province of Rome has long been famous for crime, and Artena, a Roman village of about 4,000 inhabitants, is the most strongly criminal community in the province. That has been its reputation since the middle of the twelfth century.

Artena, or Montefortino, as it was anciently called, stands on a hill 400 feet above sea level and is on the edge of a mountain range. The inhabitants are mostly farmers, and they till a rich soil, so that there is no deep poverty in the region. The conditions and surroundings are such as to encourage the rugged virtues. The place has, from a military point of view, an almost impregnable site, and its earlier name commemorated this fact. Perhaps the earliest mention of the place in Italian history occurs in 1155, when the frequency of crime is noted. Pope Paul IV issued an edict against the place in 1557, describing its inhabitants as of notoriously evil life. He ordered that the castle, "a nest of robbers," be destroyed and that all the male inhabitants be banished, and decreed that any man who met them might kill them. The edict was, in fact, one of outlawry against the male population. His holiness named among the crimes of Montefortino not only robbery, but also murder and assaults upon the papal soldiery.

The pope's tremendous edict did not depopulate the place or greatly change the character of its inhabitants for any long period, for the crimes of Montefortino appear and reappear in Italian history from that day to this. Professor Sichele sketches the criminal history of Montefortino for the last half century. During that period the vendetta has reigned there unchecked. From 1851 to 1868 the courts were powerless to deal with the accused, because it was impossible to obtain evidence to convict. An official report in 1872 described the place as a stronghold of murderers, assassins, extortioners and incendiaries, active night and day. It was declared that the criminals of that day were the children of criminals who had perished in the galleys or on the scaffold, and that they had organized a monopoly of the profitable industry of crime. It was about this time that the village, as if anxious to forget its past, changed its name to Artena. But crime has since increased rather than diminished, and the criminals of today bear the same names as the hereditary criminals of more than 20 years ago. The assizes of 1879, 1881 and 1883 were fruitless, as no one was convicted of serious crime, though there were many indictments. Between 1879 and 1886 Artena had four mayors, and the life of each was attempted. One was actually assassinated, and the other three were wounded. One was shot in broad daylight in the market place, but the would be assassin was not punished.

Between 1853 and 1872 there were 42 murders and assassinations at Artena. This would be at a mean annual rate of 52.5 per 100,000. The rate throughout Italy has varied in recent years from 7.73 to 16.80 per 100,000, and the mean annual rate throughout Italy is 9.38 per 100,000. The number of murders and assassinations at Artena between 1873 and 1888 was 37, or at the rate of 61.50 per 100,000. The mean annual number of such crimes per 100,000 throughout the whole province of Rome is 25.40. In other words, the rate at Artena during the last period named is more than double that of the province. The rate for various European countries is 0.94 to 12.67.

Artena is equally notorious for lighter crimes. Between 1853 and 1872 there were 164 assaults with attendant wounds. This would be at the rate of 205 per 100,000. In the same period there were 66 highway robberies, or at the annual rate of 85 per 100,000. The annual rate for assaults throughout all Italy is 34.17 per 100,000, and for highway robbery 3.67 per 100,000. Artena had between 1853 and 1872 116 thefts, or at the rate of 145.5 annually per 100,000 and between 1873 and 1888 127, at the rate of 211.5 per 100,000. The rate for all Italy between 1879 and 1887 was 47.36 per 100,000.

At the recent assizes at Artena 32 persons were accused of crime. There were 8 charges of highway robbery, 3 of murder and 1 of assassination. There were more than 40 persons strongly suspected of crime, but the number of accusations was reduced in order that fewer persons in the community might be interested against the administration of justice. The old names again appeared among the accused. It seems that crime is hereditary in comparatively few families. One of these families is the Pomponi. They have been famous for generations. The father has served a long term in jail; the mother was imprisoned for 30 years; three of the sons have been sentenced to long terms, and the fourth, a lad of 13, escaped conviction because of his youth. Pasquale Villani, a famous rogue, called himself the "mirror of the country," meaning that he was a model of virtue. Francisco Bucci, on being reminded from the bench by the presiding judge that he had sought to draw an acquaintance into a criminal affair, proudly replied:

"What need have I to ask aid in committing a crime? I am equal to pillaging a whole village single handed."

The prisoners had no shame in their career, and there was great competition as to which of them should have his picture made for an illustrated paper of Rome.

The characteristic of these people under accusation is usually an absolute silence. Witnesses are reticent and timid. One unwilling witness, however, let drop the incriminating word paranza. The usual meaning of paranza is a subgroup of the Italian criminal society called camorra. This last has a great chief, while the paranza is a group under a small chief, with treasurer, secretary and other officers. It is supposed that the camorra does not exist as such at Artena, but that the paranza is a small, independent organization of local criminals. The law of the paranza at Artena, as of the camorra elsewhere, is silence, reciprocal false testimony in court, defense of the accused with the aid of a common fund, and death to informers. Pasquale Villani was at once chief and treasurer of the Artena paranza. He furnished false witnesses, paid the attorneys and watched the trial with the utmost care.

PRUSSIAN HORSES.

The Famous Stud Farm That Supplies the German Army With Animals.

In the easternmost corner of Prussia, near the village of Trakehnen, is a famous horse breeding establishment which was started by the father of Frederick the Great. This great stud farm is still carried on with characteristic energy, and not only provides the German army with the hundred thousand horses which it requires in times of peace, but does much toward keeping up a high general standard among the horses of the country. Nearly every farm in east Prussia is devoted to this one occupation, and the German army gets many more horses from this little corner than from anywhere else in the kingdom. The author of "The Borderland of Czar and Kaiser" gives an admirable picture of the gentleness and docility of the Trakehnen thoroughbreds:

We pulled up in a field where were 100 3-year-old stallions running free, and watched by two herders, each bearing a long whip, which he cracked now and then as a warning that some one of the herd was straying.

The herd appeared very quiet, and paid little attention to our carriage as it drove up close to them on the grass. The major said they were as gentle as sheep and not half as shy, and at his invitation I jumped from my seat and walked up to them, into the very midst of them, strolling in and out among them, patting them on the nose or flank, wherever I happened to be nearest them.

To secure this result a prize is offered to those herders whose horses show the most confiding disposition at the approach of man.

One evening we went to see the horses called home from the pasture. They came in troops of hundreds, and gathered in large inclosures facing the stables. The main body divided itself according to color, the blacks going to one corner, the browns to another, the bays to a third; of whites or grays I saw no specimens.

Here and there would be one that had mistaken his corner, or was seeking forbidden company out of mischief. The keeper had no difficulty in bringing him to his right senses, however, by simply calling his name and waving his hand in the direction of the corner to which he belonged. The colt thus addressed invariably leaped out from the corner to which he was an intruder and galloped straight to the corner whose color matched his. This we saw done many times over, and it never failed.

The Two Matches.

One day there was a traveler in the woods in California in the dry season, when the trade winds were blowing strong. He had ridden a long way, and he was tired and hungry and dismounted from his horse to smoke a pipe. But when he felt in his pocket he found but two matches. He struck the first, and it would not ignite.

"Here is a pretty state o' things," said the traveler. "Dying for a smoke. Only one match left, and that certain to miss fire. Was there ever a creature so unfortunate? And yet," thought the traveler, "suppose I light this match and smoke my pipe and shake out the dottle here in the grass. The grass might catch on fire, for it is dry like tinder, and while I snatch out the flames in front they might evade and run behind me and seize upon yon bush of poison oak. Before I could reach it that would have blazed up. Over the bush I see a pine tree hung with moss. That, too, would fly in fire upon the instant to its topmost bough, and the flame of that long torch, how would the trade wind take and brandish that through the inflammable forest? I hear this dell roar in a moment with the joint voice of wind and fire. I see myself gallop for my soul, and the flying conflagration chase and outflank me through the hills. I see this pleasant forest burn for days, and the cattle roasted, and the springs dried up, and the farmer ruined, and his children cast upon the world. What a world hangs upon this moment!"

With that he struck the match, and it missed fire.

"Thank God," said the traveler, and he put his pipe in his pocket.—The Late R. L. Stevenson in Longman's Magazine.

Victoria's Coronation Ordeal.

Victoria's coronation ceremonies, according to The Woman at Home, lasted more than four hours, and throughout the queen played her part with wonderful composure. Care, says the same writer, had been taken to provide a crown suitable for her small head, but no one had thought about reducing the size of the orb which she was required to carry in her tiny hand. "What am I to do with it?" she asked in concern. "Carry it, your majesty," replied Lord John Thynne. "Must I? It is very heavy," the queen answered in a tone of amazement. However, it was too late to protest, and she obeyed the exigencies of the situation. A worse mistake had been made with regard to the ruby coronation ring. The jeweler had made it to fit her majesty's little finger, whereas the archbishop declared that according to the rubric it must be put upon the larger finger, and accordingly forced it into that position. The queen bore her painfully swelling finger with the same heroism that she carried the weighty orb. Afterward the finger was so much swollen that it had to be bathed in ice water before the ring could be drawn off.

Animal Superstitions.

In the east it is commonly said that ten animals were admitted to paradise. (1) The dog Kratin of the seven sleepers of Ephesus; (2) Balaam's ass, which reproved the disobedient prophet; (3) Solomon's ant, which reproved the sluggard; (4) Jonah's whale; (5) the ram of Ishmael, caught by the horns, and offered in sacrifice instead of Isaac; (7) the camel of Saleb; (8) the cuckoo of Belkis; (9) the ox of Moses; (10) the animal called Al Borak, which conveyed Mohammed to heaven. The following are sometimes added or substituted: The ass on which our Saviour rode into Jerusalem; the ass on which the queen of Sheba rode when she visited Solomon.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Frank and Explicit.

A city visitor in a country town had a tea party given in her honor, where she says she watched the country folk spoil their pleasant customs by imitating city artificiality. One old maiden, however, relieved unconsciously the boredom of the afternoon. "Will you have milk and sugar in your tea?" she was asked. "Sugar, if lump; if not, no. Milk, if cream; if not, no."—Boston Transcript.

ALONG THE WAY OF LIFE.

When sorrows come at flood tide pace,
Where hope and joy lie sleeping,
Handmaids of grief and pain have place
And hold the soul in keeping.
When grim despair sits at the helm,
Anear the breakers' roaring,
When waves of trouble fain would whelm
Afar from haven or mooring.

When tears no more from a loving eye
Course down a cheek once ruddy,
And hearts alarmed at the warning cry
Respond with throbbings bloody,
Sad, sad the day and drear the hour
When hope sits faint and pleading,
When the eye hath lost its tearborn power,
And hearts fall prone, unheeding.

Then comes the time when life no more
Holds fast the soul of sorrow,
Which fain would seek an unknown shore,
And another life tomorrow.
Where tears no more unbidden start,
And life has brighter skies,
Where a contrite spirit and broken heart
Our God will not despise.

THE CELEBES VOLCANOES.

They Are Said to Be the Most Dangerous In the World.

"There are few people who know that the south Pacific volcanoes are the most destructive in the world," said the Rev. Dr. William E. Houston. "I have been a great student of these volcanoes, and have spent much time visiting them. The volcano districts of the Bay of Naples and Sicily are small as compared with those of the northern peninsula of the island of Celebes, just to the east of Borneo, in the south Pacific ocean. Vesuvius and Etna are insignificant as compared with the volcanic chain that studs this island region. One or the other of the volcanoes in this great chain is continually belching forth streams of lava and great stones, then fluid clay that runs red, blue and gray. The Donda, 9,000 feet high, and the Sapoetan, 6,000 feet, are the two greatest volcanoes of the district.

"Each of them has been in eruption several times during the last 100 years. Were it not a sparsely settled country the loss of life would be great. Klabat, or Two Summits, another terrible volcano, is marked by a great lake in its crater, and not far away is Deuwa Doedara, Two Sisters; still another is Lakon, which local tradition says is inhabited by an evil spirit, and from which there came a terrible eruption about 500 years ago that devastated the entire district. All of the islands around the north end of Celebes are volcanic. The archipelago that leads to the Philippean islands, to the north, is dotted with active mouths of fire, important among which is the superb pyramidal volcano Aboe, which, translated, means ashes, and Gunova Aiva, which, in all probability, has been the most destructive volcano the world has ever known. These islands are owned by Holland. The people are Malays and Alfooroos; the most civilized population of the coast being Malay, the savage tribes of the interior, Alfooroos. There are many tribes in Celebes, some of Papuan, others of Philippine origin. The Bougis tribe also dominates. During the present century thousands of the inhabitants of Celebes were buried beneath the streams of hot ashes and lava thrown out by volcanic eruption, utterly overwhelming them in molten sheets. All these islands are nevertheless a paradise of luxuriant vegetation, and their virgin forests have never felt the touch of an ax."—Kansas City Times.

She Was Cautious.

Here is an example of woman as a diplomatist. Mrs. A. had gone away from home for a day's visit. During her absence her fellow townswoman, Mrs. B., decided, after the pleasant, rural, self inviting fashion, that she would spend the night with Mrs. A. In spite of Mrs. A.'s absence the thing was easy to accomplish, for the latchkeys of the two houses were alike. Mrs. B. therefore effected an entrance, and found the house deserted. "Oh, well, I'll just wait till Mrs. A. gets home," she said to herself. Night came. Still no Mrs. A. "I won't light a lamp," philosophized Mrs. B., "because seeing a light in the house might scare Mrs. A. clear out of her senses."

So the unexpected guest sat in the dark awaiting the arrival of her hostess. At last the rattle of Mrs. A.'s key was heard in the door latch. She entered the house and slowly made her way to the "sitting room," of course unconscious that there was another human being within breathing range. "Don't be frightened, Mrs. A.," suddenly spoke a voice from the darkness. "It's only I, Mrs. B. I didn't light a lamp for fear you'd be scared, you know, and"— But the diplomatic Mrs. B. never finished her sentence, for just here Mrs. A. fell on the floor in a dead faint. "It was queer she should have been so scared," said Mrs. B., afterward, "for I took every precaution not to frighten her."—New York Sun.

Just the Coat For Him.

A man, having a heavy overcoat on, was walking one very hot day into the country, and having a good distance to go thought of leaving his coat at a cottage. Seeing no cottage near, he conceived an idea, and pulling off his heavy coat he pinned to it a piece of paper having the following words written upon it, "Don't touch this coat; it has got the smallpox." Then he placed the coat under a hedge and went on his way.

After having completed his journey he started back, returning to the spot where he had left his coat, and to his astonishment the coat was gone, and only the piece of paper remained, with the inscription, "Thanks for the coat, old chappie; I have got the smallpox," on the other side of the paper.—London Tit-Bits.

The Only Gold Toilet Set.

The only complete gold toilet service in the world belongs to the khedive of Egypt. It was made in London, and consists of 28 pieces. Each piece bears the monogram of the khedive in diamonds, the same being surrounded by a fillet in imitation of that of the Grand Turk. Upward of 3,000 diamonds and over 1,200 rubies were used in decorating these golden toilet articles. The body of each piece is of 18 carat gold, and all are inclosed in a diamond incrusted ebony case.—St. Louis Republic.

No Excuse.

She (just kissed)—How dare you, sir?

He—I hope you will pardon me; I didn't think.

She—Think? Of course you didn't think. But your inability to think is no excuse for your conduct. I suppose you mean to tell me that if you had stopped to think, you would not have wanted to kiss me.—Indianapolis Journal.

CHOPIN PLAYED.

And Under the Circumstances It Was Music to Be Remembered.

Mrs. Anne Thackeray Ritchie tells a pretty story of a famous player and composer whom she calls "My Musician." She was living in Paris with her grandmother, and one day, to her positive fright, was taken to drive by a Scotch lady, a spinster, tall and thin, one of three sisters, for all of whom her grandmother had a great regard. "She spoke to me, I believe," says Mrs. Ritchie, "but my heart was in my mouth. I hardly dared listen to what she said." The carriage turned into a side street and presently stopped at a door.

Miss X. got out, carefully handling a heavy basket, and telling the little girl to follow, began climbing the shiny stairs. She rang a bell and the door was opened by a slight, delicate looking man with long hair, bright eyes and a thin, hooked nose.

Miss X. put down her basket, caught both his hands in hers, shook them gently, and began to scold him in an affectionate, reproving way for having come to the door. He laughed, said he had guessed who it was, and motioned the two to enter. In the room was no furniture except an upright piano and a few straw chairs.

Miss X. inquired after his health. Had he slept? He shook his head. Had he eaten? He shrugged his shoulders and pointed to the piano. He had been composing something; would Miss X. like to hear it?

She would, certainly, but it would tire him. It could not be good for him.

He smiled again, shook back his long hair and sat down. And then the music began, and the room was filled with continuous sound, he looking over his shoulder now and then to see if his hearers were liking it.

"The lady sat absorbed," says Mrs. Ritchie, "and as I looked at her I saw tears in her eyes—great, clear tears rolling down her cheeks, while the music poured on and on.

"I can't, alas, recall that music! I would give anything to remember it now, but the truth is, I was so interested in the people that I scarcely listened. When he stopped at last and looked round the lady started up.

"'You mustn't play any more,' she said. 'No more, no more, it's too beautiful'—and she praised him and thanked him in a tender, motherly, pitying sort of way, and then hurriedly said we must go, but as we took leave she added, almost in a whisper, with a humble, apologizing look:

"'I have brought you some of that jelly, and my sister sent some of the wine that you fancied the other day. Pray, pray try to take a little.'

"He shook his head, seeming more vexed than grateful, but she put him back softly, closed the door upon him and the offending basket and hastened away. As we were coming down stairs she wiped her eyes again.

"By this time I had got to understand the plain, tall, grim, warm hearted woman. All my silly terrors were gone. She looked hard at me as we drove away.

"'Never forget that you have heard Chopin play,' she said, with emotion, 'for soon no one will hear him play any more.'"

CURIOUS FISH.

Keep Their Eggs In Their Mouths—Their Natural Pockets.

In the sea of Galilee—or Lake Tiberias, as it is also called—there is a strange fish named the Chromis simonis, which is more careful of its young than fish generally are. The male takes the eggs in his mouth and keeps them in his natural side pockets, where they are regularly hatched and remain until able to shift for themselves. By this ingenious arrangement the brood is comparatively guarded against its natural enemies. It is easily fed, too, but it is a puzzle how the little ones escape being eaten alive. A month ago, says a traveler writing to a religious contemporary, I found in my net a number of these fish without eyes.

Others of the species, when I lifted them up, dropped a number of little fishes out of their mouths, which swam away hastily. The natives explained the phenomenon. The blind chromis is the victim of sea hawks. When these birds have eaten their fill, they begin to look out for tidbits. After catching a fish they hit its forehead with their sharp beak, knocking out the middle part, in which their eyes are set. The bony structure is dropped into the water, but the eyes are eaten by the birds with great relish. Strangely enough, the fish generally survive this rough treatment. The wound heals up quickly in water, and they continue to ply the lake for food as if nothing had happened.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Pianos.

Somebody has aroused to the fact that pianos, of all furniture, remain the same dreary, stiff, coffin finished pieces they have always been. The upright has a few possibilities, though not what it should have, but the grand is still hopeless. Why piano makers, exclaims this apostle of reform, continue to use the same old and ugly models, with great knobs and senseless twistings and horrid posts for legs, is a mystery, when a graceful case of polished light wood, with slender legs arranged in clusters, and plain panels, would find eager buyers. Such a piano in wood to match the finishings of the room, oak, maple, cherry, would be harmonious and inconspicuous. It could be treated more elaborately with really graceful carvings or inlays of other woods, and, if an upright, the back could be made beautiful by a carved wood latticework.—New York Times.

Pointed.

It is said there is a voter living near Hagerstown known as Old Uncle Zeb. He does not decide who to vote for until he has met the representatives of each candidate and had a conference. A local Hurst politician met Old Uncle Zeb one day and said: "Well, Uncle Zeb, who are you going to vote for?" "I dunno, I dunno," the old man replied. "I need a double barreled shotgun mighty bad. I calc'late to do a lot of hunting this winter. I dunno who I'll vote fer."—Baltimore News.

"We did," replied Orris Stuffykness; "it was 14 blocks, on me troth, from the theater to the station, and two constables and a landlord were after us every step of the way."—Washington Star.

AN ORDINANCE

Governing Plumbing, Drainage & Ventilation.

Be it ordained by the Board of Health of the City of Plainfield, as follows:

Section 1. Every person engaged as a master plumber or foreman plumber or building contractor in the city of Plainfield shall appear in person at the office of the Board of Health before beginning any work, and register his name, residence and place of business on blank forms furnished for the purpose, and in case of removal shall make change in said register accordingly.

Section 2. Before any portion of the plumbing and drainage system of any building shall be constructed or any existing system altered or added to, there shall be filed in the office of the Board of Health a plan thereof signed by the owner, showing the said plumbing and draining system entire, from its connection with the sewer, cesspool or vault throughout the entire building, together with the location of all fixtures, traps, ventilating pipes, etc. No portion of the work shall be executed until the plan has been approved by a representative of the Board of Health and the name of the plumber who is to do the work has been affixed to the said plan.

Section 3. When the plan of any plumbing and drainage system is filed in the office of the Board of Health a fee of three dollars shall be paid to said Board to defray the expenses of inspecting and filing the plans and superintending the testing of the work, as provided in section 31.

Section 4. The Board of Health shall be notified promptly by the plumber when the plumbing and drainage work of any building, or any portion thereof, is completed and ready for inspection and testing. All inspections and testings shall be made during business hours as soon as possible after such notification. Any such system put in and covered before inspection by a representative of the Boardof Health must be uncovered for examination.

Section 5. No privy, vault or cesspool shall be constructed until a written permission has been obtained from the Board of Health; and no permission will be given for a cesspool where sewerage is provided adjacent to the property.

Section 6. Before laying the drain from the building to the cesspool or vault, and after the trench is graded, the bottom of the trench must be carefully rammed to avoid unequal settling of the drain. After the pipe is laid, as the trench is filled the earth must be tightly rammed as near as possible to its original compactness. Tunneling is prohibited. When the ground is made or filled in, the drain, extending from the cesspool or vault to the foundation wall, must be of extra heavy cast-iron pipe, of such diameter as may be approved. Such pipes should be laid with the joints properly caulked with lead. Where the soil consists of a natural bed of loam, sand or rock, the drain may be of hard, salt-glazed and cylindrical earthenware pipe, laid on a smooth bottom, free from all projections of rock. The space between each hub and the small end of the next section must be completely and uniformly filled with the best hydraulic cement. Care must be taken to prevent any cement passing into the drain to become an obstruction. No tempered-up cement shall be used. A straight-edge must be used inside the pipe, and the different sections must be laid in perfect line on the bottom and sides.

Section 7. Where a building is to be connected with a cesspool or vault, it must be connected by a drain not less than four inches in diameter, having a fall of not less than one-quarter of an inch to the foot. Old drains can be used for new work only when made to conform in all respects to the foregoing regulations governing new drains.

Section 8. All horizontal drains within and to a distance of not less than six feet from the wall of any building shall be of cast-iron, with caulked, leaden joints, or wrought-iron screwed joints, and shall be so located as to be readily accessible for inspection. The house drain within buildings shall be securely hung on the cellar wall or properly suspended from the cellar ceiling, unless this is impracticable, in which case it must be laid at a uniform grade, upon a bottom of hydraulic concrete. The house drain shall have a fall of at least one-quarter inch to the foot, and more, if possible. When a pipe passes under the wall of a building, there shall be a relieving support to prevent the pipe being broken by settling of the foundation. Said drains shall be provided with openings for cleansing purposes, the same to be closed by gas tight plugs.

Section 9. All iron pipes must be sound, free from holes, and when laid under ground shall have a uniform thickness of at least one-quarter of an inch. Where the building is over sixty feet high above the curb, pipes of the following weights shall be used, with extra heavy fittings:

2-inch	5-½	pounds	per	lineal	foot.
3	" 9-½	"	"	"	"
4	" 13	"	"	"	"
5	" 17	"	"	"	"
6	" 20	"	"	"	"
7	" 27	"	"	"	"
8	" 33-½	"	"	"	"
10	" 45	"	"	"	"
12	" 54	"	"	"	"

Section 10. All drain, soil, waste, vent and supply pipes shall be as direct and concentrated as possible, protected from frost and readily accessible for inspection and convenience in repairing. When necessarily placed within partitions or in recesses in walls, soil and waste-pipes must never be covered except with woodwork, said woodwork to be fastened with screws (never with nails) so as to be readily removed.

Section 11. Every vertical soil and main waste-pipe must be of cast or wrought iron, and when it receives the discharge of fixtures on two or more floors, it must extend at least two feet above the highest part of the roof or coping, except in flat-roof houses, in which case it shall extend at least six feet above the roof, and in no case shall it be less than four inches in diameter above the roof, and a strong wire basket shall be provided and securely fastened to such pipe. Each length shall be securely fastened, and each line of soil or waste-pipe shall rest at its foot on a pier or foundation to prevent settling. All joints in cast-iron drain, soil or waste-pipes must be so filled with oakum and lead and hand-caulked as to make them gas-tight.

Section 12. Every plumbing system when connected with a cess-pool or sewer shall be provided with a ventilating pipe, which shall in every case extend at least four feet above the roof, and the upper opening must be at least eight feet above or twenty feet from any window or door of the building or adjoining building and this ventilating pipe shall be clear and not less than four inches in diameter throughout its entire length, from the cess-pool or street sewer. The vertical soil or waste pipe may be used as a ventilating pipe, but if so used it must be clear and unobstructed by trap or otherwise.

Section 13. All changes in direction in cast or wrought iron pipes shall be made with bends or curved pipes, and all connections with Y branches and one-sixteenth or one-eighth bends, if possible.

Section 14. Soil, waste and vent-pipes in an extension must be extended above the roof of the main building, when otherwise if not so extended they would open within twenty feet of the windows or doors of the main house, or the adjoining house.

Section 15. The least diameter of soil-pipe permitted is four inches. A vertical waste-pipe into which a line of kitchen sinks discharges must be at least three inches in diameter, if receiving the waste of five or more sinks, and shall have two-inch branches.

Section 16. Where lead pipe is used to connect fixtures with vertical soil or waste pipes, or to connect traps with vertical vent-pipes, it must not be lighter than—

1¼	inch	2½ pounds.
1½	"	3 "
2	"	4 "
3	"	5 "
4	"	6 "

Section 17. All connections of lead with iron in soil, waste or vent pipes must be made with a brass sleeve or ferrule of the same size as the lead pipe, put in the hub of the branch of the iron pipe and caulked with lead. The lead pipe must be attached to the ferrule by a wiped or over-cast joint. All connections of lead waste and vent-pipes shall be made by means of wiped joint.

Section 18. Every water-closet, urinal, sink, basin, wash-tray, bath and every tub or set of tubs and hydrant waste-pipe must be separately and effectively trapped. Urinal platforms, if connected to drain-pipes, must also be properly trapped, and a supply of water so arranged as to always maintain the seal of said traps. In no case shall the waste from a bath-tub or other fixture be connected with a water-closet trap.

Section 19. Traps must be placed as near the fixtures as practicable, and in no case shall a trap be more than two feet from the fixture. Each and every trap shall be ventilated by a special vent-pipe of suitable size extending at least two feet above the highest part of the roof of the house, or into a special pipe erected for ventilating purposes only, in which case the area of the special vent must be increased as it passes upward so as to correspond to the combined area of all branch vents passing into it. Mechanical traps or vents may be substituted where it is necessary or advisable, but only after approval by the Board of Health.

Section 20. The vent-pipe for each water-closet trap shall be at least two inches in diameter, and for traps under other fixtures not less than one and one-half inches. In all cases vent pipes must be of lead, cast or wrought-metal, and have a continuous slope to avoid collecting water by condensation.

Section 21. Vent-pipes must extend two feet above the highest part of the roof or coping, the extension to be not less than four inches in diameter, to avoid obstruction from frost. No vent-pipe shall be used as a waste or soil pipe.

Section 22. Over-flow pipes from fixtures must in each case be connected on the inlet side of the trap of the same fixture.

Section 23. No safe under any fixture shall be provided with any drip, waste or notice-pipe. The waste-pipe from refrigerators shall in no case be connected directly with any soil or waste-pipe, or with any drain or sewer, or discharge upon the ground.

Section 24. The sediment-pipe from kitchen boilers if connected with sewer must be efficiently trapped.

Section 25. Water-closets must never be placed in an unventilated room or compartment. In every case the compartmet must be open to the outer air, or be ventilated by means of a shaft or air-duct. Water-closets will not be permitted in cellars except under special permit.

Section 26. All water-closets within the house must be supplied with water from separate tanks or cisterns, the water of which is used for no other purpose. Provision shall be made for amply flushing each closet whenever used. A group of closets on the same floor may be supplied from one tank. Pan-closets and hollow plunger-closets are prohibited.

Section 27. Water-closets, when placed in the yard, must be so arranged as to be conveniently and adequately flushed, and their water supply pipes and traps must be protected from freezing. The compartment of such water-closets must be properly ventilated.

Section 28. All waste, overflow or vent-pipes shall be of lead, cast or wrought metal.

Section 29. Rain-water leaders must never be connected with the sewer pipe nor used as soil, waste or vent-pipes, nor shall any soil, waste or vent-pipe be used as a leader.

Section 30. No steam-exhaust, blow-off or drip-pipe from a steam boiler or engine shall connect either directly or indirectly with the sewer.

Section 31. Every new plumbing system, including those altered, must be tested by the plumber in the presence and to the satisfaction of the officer designated by the Board of Health; all defective joints must be made tight and other openings made impervious to gases. Defective pipe must be removed and replaced by sound pipe.

Section 32. In cases where a building is found to be in an unsanitary condition through defective plumbing or otherwise, the directions of the Board of Health concerning changes and repairs shall be complied with within such reasonable time as may be designated under penalty of ten dollars per day thereafter until such work is done, not exceeding one hundred dollars in any one conviction.

Section 33. No person shall place or deposit in any water closet or waste, soil or ventilating pipe, refuse materials, large pieces of paper or other substances liable to clog the pipe or trap.

Section 34. Any person or persons or corporation violating any of the provisions of sections 1, 2, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, or 33 of this ordinance, shall on conviction thereof, pay a penalty not less than twenty-five dollars nor more than one hundred dollars for each and every offense.

CORPORATION NOTICE.

Notice is hereby given that the following Ordinance has been introduced before the Common Council, read the second time and ordered engrossed preparatory to its third reading, and that it is the intention of the Council to adopt the same.

Plainfield, N. J., Dec. 5th, 1895.

J. T. MAC MURRAY, City Clerk.

AN ORDINANCE
TO CREATE THE OFFICE OF INSPECTOR OF BUILDINGS AND TO DEFINE HIS POWERS, DUTIES AND COMPENSATION.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. That there shall be appointed by the Common Council within thirty days after the approval or final adoption of this ordinance, and annually thereafter, on the first Monday of February in each year, an officer to be known as Inspector of Buildings, who shall be either an architect, carpenter, mason or other mechanic. The term of office of every person so appointed shall expire on the first Monday of February following the month of his appointment. His duties shall be such as devolve upon him as Inspector of Buildings by the laws of this State, and this and other ordinances of the City of Plainfield, and his compensation shall be the sum of five hundred dollars per annum. For brevity, said officer is hereinafter designated as Inspector.

Section 2. That the said Inspector is hereby charged with the performance of all services necessary to ensure the strict enforcement of the ordinances of the City now existing or that may be hereafter adopted, relating to the erection, construction or alteration of buildings therein. He shall keep a record of all applications for permits and preserve and properly index such drawings as may be filed of all plans on which permits shall be granted.

Section 3. That after any permit shall have been granted as aforesaid, it shall be the duty of the said Inspector diligently to inspect said building while in course of erection, and to see that it is constructed in conformity with the ordinances of the City relating thereto. The said Inspector shall also keep a full and complete record of all buildings in course of erection or alteration, their style and proposed uses, and make a report of the same in writing once a month to the Common Council.

Section 4. That for the purpose of ascertaining all violations of ordinances designed for the more effectual prevention of fires, it shall be lawful for him, the said Inspector, whenever he shall have good and sufficient reason to believe that any of such ordinances are being violated, to enter into or upon any lands or building for the examination of hoistways, trapdoors, fire-places, hearths, chimneys, stoves and pipes thereto, receptacles for ashes, ovens, boilers, heaters and chemical apparatus, which may be dangerous as tending to cause or promote fires; and it shall be his duty to direct the owner or occupant of any defective building, by notice signed by said Inspector, to alter the same in such manner and within such reasonable time as he may deem necessary. He shall also examine, at reasonable hours in the daytime, and it shall be lawful for him for that purpose to enter into and upon all buildings and places where any gunpowder, saltpetre, hemp, flax, tow, hay, rushes, firewood, boards, shingles, shavings, or other combustible materials may be lodged; and whenever he shall discover any violation of any of such ordinances, or anything that is detrimental to public safety, he shall notify in writing the owner or occupants of the building wherein such unlawful or unsafe conditions exist to immediately cause the same to be corrected, and it shall be the duty of the person so notified to comply with such notice. And in case of the neglect or refusal of the owner or occupant of such building, or the possessor of such combustible materials to correct said unlawful and unsafe conditions and to alter, remove or secure the same within the time and in the manner directed in said notice, the person offending shall on conviction thereof pay a penalty of five dollars for each and every day after the expiration of the time in such notice stated he shall neglect or refuse to comply, not exceeding one hundred dollars in any one suit.

Section 5. That in case the Chief Engineer of the Fire Department of said City shall be either an architect, carpenter, mason or other mechanic, he may be appointed to said office of Inspector of Buildings, and hold both offices at the same time, and in that case, he shall devote all his time to the performance of the duties of said offices.

Section 6. All ordinances or parts of ordinances inconsistent herewith are herby repealed.

AN ORDINANCE
RELATING TO THE CONSTRUCTION OF BUILDINGS.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. Before the erection, construction, removal or alteration of any building or structure, or any part thereof, or any platform, staging or flooring to be used for seating or standing purposes is commenced within the City limits, the owner or his agent or architect shall obtain a permit therefor from the Inspector of Buildings, and unless such permit shall expressly waive the same, shall submit to the Inspector of Buildings such drawings as may be necessary to show the construction of the building or structure, and a detailed statement, in duplicate, of the specifications, on appropriate blanks to be furnished by the Inspector, giving also the location, the proposed use of the building or structure, which shall be accompanied with a statement in writing, sworn to before any person authorized by law to administer an oath, giving the full name and residence of the owner or of each of the owners of said building or proposed building, staging or flooring.

If such operation is proposed to be made by any other person than the owner or owners in fee, the person or persons intending to make such erection or alteration shall accompany the application for permit with sworn affidavit, giving the full name of the owner or owners of the land, and also of every person interested in said building or proposed building, either as owner, lessee or in any representative capacity.

Such statement may be made by the agent or architect of the persons or persons hereinbefore required to make the same, and any notice served upon such agent or architect shall be binding upon the principals.

Said sworn statement and copy of application and plans shall be kept on file in the office of the Inspector, and the said operation or any part thereof shall not be commenced or proceeded with until said statement and plans shall have been so filed and approved by the Inspector in writing.

A permit may be granted for the erection or construction of any part of a building, when accompanied by a statement and plans of said portion, before the entire plans and detailed statements of said building have been submitted.

Ordinary repairs may be made without notice to the Inspector, but such repairs shall not be construed to include the cutting away of any constructional support, whether wall, pier, column, girder or beams, or the removal, change or closing of any staircase or exit.

All applicants for permits shall be passed upon by the Inspector within ten (10) days from dates of eceiving the same respectively.

All permits to construct or alter any building shall be valid for one year from the date thereof and no longer.

Permits for removal shall specify the time within which the removal shall be made.

As herein used, the term "removal" means to change the location of building or structure.

To take down or remove shall be termed "demolition."

Section 2. Outside of the fire limits prescribed herein, buildings of frame or wood may be erected subject to conditions hereinafter prescribed for chimneys, flues, hearths, steam or heating flues, electric wiring or any fire-causing factor of construction.

Frame buildings to be occupied or used as a stable, workshop or manufactory shall not be built or so used if more than thirty (30) feet in total height.

No frame or wood dwelling house hereafter erected shall exceed fifty (50) feet in height to highest point on main roof.

In no case shall a wooden building be erected within three (3) feet of any inside line of a lot, unless the space between the studs of any and every such side be filled in solidly with not less than two (2) inches of brick or other hard fireproof material.

When three (3) or more frame houses are built continuous the dividing wall between each house is to be of brick not less than eight (8) inches thick above foundation wall to a point up to the under part of the roof.

No spire or tower of wood shall be built or rebuilt within the City limits to a greater height than sixty (60) feet.

Section 3. All excavations to be made and protected as per Section 13.

Section 4. All cellar or basement walls for frame buildings, outside of the fire limits, shall be not less than eight (8) inches thick; if of brick, to a depth of eight (8) feet below grade in street; and to be not less than eighteen (18) inches thick and well bonded if of stone. If of greater depth than above, or if carried up eight (8) feet or more above grade to frame, the foundation wall is to be not less than twelve (12) inches thick if of brick, and not bonded if of stone.

All foundations below grade to be laid in good lime or cement mortar mixed with sharp sand.

Section 5. All frame or wooden buildings exceeding a height of fifteen (15) feet shall be built with sills, posts, inter-ties or ribbon strips, plates and rafters, all of suitable and sufficient size, to be properly braced and framed, and with suitable studs set at proper distances apart, with fire cut-off at each floor. The floor beams shall not be less than two (2) inches in thickness and ten (10) inches in depth, except third story or attic beams which may be two (2) inches in thickness and eight (8) inches in depth, well bridged.

Whenever frame construction is of wood, even if partially or wholly covered with veneer of brick or stone, it shall be deemed a frame building.

Section 6. The removal of any wooden building or structure from without to within the fire limits is absolutely prohibited, and if accomplished before discovery the Common Council may, at its discretion, order its return or demolition within twenty-four hours after notice, at the expense of owner or owners of said building.

Section 7. The fire limits of the City of Plainfield are hereby established so as to include all that district of said city contained within the following boundaries, and also within the space of one hundred and fifty (150) feet beyond and parallel to the centre lines of the streets or avenues constituting the said boundaries: Beginning at the point of intersection of the centre line of Washington Avenue with the City line in Green Brook; thence along the centre line of Washington Avenue to the centre line of West Front Street; thence along the centre line of West Front Street to the centre line of New Street; thence along the centre line of New Street to the centre line of West Fifth Street; thence along the centre line of West Fifth Street and East Fifth Street to the centre line of Washington Street; thence along the centre line of Washington Street to the centre line of East Front Street; thence along the centre line of East Front Street to the centre line of Elm Place; thence along the centre line of Elm Place to its intersection with the City line in Green Brook; thence along the City line in Green Brook to the place of beginning.

Section 8. Every wooden or frame building, with a brick or other front within the fire limits, which may hereafter be damaged by fire, the elements or otherwise, to an amount not greater than three-fourths the total immediately previous value thereof, may be repaired or rebuilt pursuant to the provisions of this ordinance.

But, if such damage shall amount to more than three-fourths such value, then such building shall not be repaired or rebuilt, but shall be demolished.

Section 9. Should the decision of the Inspector or of Appraiser as hereinafter prescribed permit of the repair or restoration of any building, every damaged wall or part thereof shall be repaired or restored to its full original strength, but only within the limits of its original height and other dimensions and uses.

Section 10. The previous value of such building and the proportion of such damage, the extent of re-use of any wall or walls or parts without repair, and the amount of repairs or restoration may be determined by the Inspector, subject to appeal as hereinafter provided.

Upon the written demand of the owner or owners of such premises, to be sent to the Mayor, he shall appoint one appraiser and one appraiser shall be selected by said owner or owners.

They shall at once examine the said premises, and if they agree their decision is to be stated separately in writing and sworn to, and shall be final and conclusive.

Should these two appraisers not agree, they shall select a third appraiser or umpire to take part in such impartial and disinterested examination and verdict.

The joint decision of any two of them is to be stated separately in writing and sworn to, and shall be final and conclusive.

Each appraiser is to receive ten ($10) dollars for such service, to be paid by the owner or owners of said building before said report is filed, and no repairs or alterations except to the extent necessary to make safe as directed by the Inspector, shall be made or begun until said report is filed and permit obtained.

Said report is also to include a separate detailed statement in writing as to causes or probable causes of damage, and of the general or special conditions making favorable thereto in each case, and may also include the suggestions of the appraisers as to effective future remedy and prevention.

These reports are to be kept carefully filed by the Inspector in a special docket, to be known as the Fire Inquest docket.

Section 11. Temporary one-story frame buildings within the fire limits may be erected for the use of builders within the limits of lots whereon or adjacent to where buildings are in course of erection, upon permit of Inspector, said structure to be used only for the purpose specified.

Temporary stagings, platforms or floorings for seating or standing purposes may be constructed of wood, upon filing of plans and permit from Inspector.

All temporary structures of wood are to be demolished by owners upon the completion of purpose specified.

Fences of wood shall not be over ten (10) feet in total height.

Signs of wood shall not be erected over two (2) feet high on any building.

Piazzas or balconies of wood, not to extend in height more than three (3) feet above the second story floor beams, may be erected upon any detached dwelling house, occupied by not more than three (3) families.

One wooden bay or oriel window may be built of wood upon any face or front of any building, if but one (1) story in height and not more than one-third of the width of said face or front.

If but two stories in height and of said proportionate width, it may be constructed of wood, but shall be covered with metal, slate or tile.

If of any greater height or dimensions, or more than one is desired on any side or face, it or they shall be wholly built of fireproof material.

The roofs of all permanent new wooden constructions are to be covered with metal, clay tile or slate.

Existing shingle roofs may only be repaired or renewed on old lines and heights.

If altered or reconstructed in any way, a metal, clay tile or slate roofing is to be substituted.

Sheds of wood not over fifteen (15) feet to highest point of roof, and constantly open on at least one side, with the closed sides and roof thereof covered with metal, clay tile or slate, may be built on permits from the Inspector, but no fence shall be used as any side of such shed.

Exterior privies, wood or coal houses not exceeding one hundred and fifty (150) square feet in superficial area and not over eight (8) feet in heigh, may be built upon permit from the Inspector, with roofs only, covered with metal, clay tile or slate.

NEW BUILDINGS WITHIN THE FIRE LIMITS.

Section 12. The walls of all buildings within the fire limits other than frame buildings and constructions herein authorized, shall be constructed of stone, brick, iron or other hard incombustible material, and the several component parts of such buildings shall be as hereinafter provided.

The height of all walls shall be measured from the curb level at the centre of the building, to the top of the highest point of roof beams on flat roofs, or to the average or middle height of gable or all high pitched ridge roofs having no deck.

When the walls of a structure are twenty-five feet or more distant from every street line, then the average level of the grades at walls may be taken instead of curb.

If the wall is practically entirely carried on iron girders supported by masonry piers or iron columns, the measurements as to height may be taken from the top of such girder, for such wall only.

The width of buildings for the purposes of this ordinance shall be construed by the direction in which the beams are placed, the lengthwise of the beams to mean the width wise of the building, and the bearing walls are those on which the beams are carried.

Section 13. All excavations shall be properly guarded and protected by the person or persons causing the excavation to be made, so as to prevent the same from becoming dangerous to life or limb; and shall be sheet piled where necessary to prevent caving in of adjoining earth.

Whenever an excavation for building or other purposes shall be intended to be, or shall be, carried to a depth of more than ten (10) feet below the street curb, the person or persons causing such excavation to be made shall at all times, from the beginning to the completion thereof, at his or their expense, preserve any adjoining or contiguous wall or walls from injury and support the same by proper foundations, so that the said wall or walls shall be, and remain practically as safe as before such excavation was begun, whether the said adjoining or contiguous wall or walls are down more or less than ten feet below the street curb.

If such excavation shall not be intended to be, or shall not be, carried to a depth of more than ten (10) feet below the street curb, the owner or owners of such adjoining or contiguous wall or walls shall preserve the same from injury and so support the same by proper foundations to full depth of such excavation, that it or they shall be and remain practically as safe as before such excavation was begun, and for that purpose shall be permitted to enter upon the premises where such excavation is being made, when necessary, and shall complete the same within reasonable time.

If in either case entry at reasonable times is refused, the Inspector may determine such difference, or prescribe the best and most practicable way of making safe as herein required.

If an adjoining party wall is intended to be used by the person or persons causing the excavation to be made, and the use of such wall is approved by the Inspector, then the said person or persons causing the excavation to be made shall at his or their expense amply protect and secure such party wall by proper foundations as before described.

If the person or persons whose duty it shall be to preserve or protect any wall or walls from injury shall neglect or fail so to do, after having had twenty-four hours' notice from the Inspector, then the Inspector may enter upon the premises and make same secure and safe at the expense of the person or persons last herein referred to.

Section 14.—Except on rock bottom all foundations shall have footing courses, and all footing or base courses under foundation walls shall be laid not less than three (3) feet below the permanent surface of the ground, on a good solid bottom; and in case the nature of the earth and the character of the building should require it, on a bottom of driven piles or laid timber, of proper kind and sufficient size and thickness, or such other approved foundation as the Inspector and the nature of the case may require, to keep and maintain the walls firm and secure.

All piers, columns or posts, resting on the earth, shall be set upon a solid bottom, in the same manner as required for the foundation walls.

Except in the case of adjacent excavations as hereinbefore provided, should any grade be lowered the foundational supports shall be also carried down to the depth above prescribed.

The footing or base course under all the foundation walls, and under all piers, columns or posts resting on the earth shall be of stone or concrete, and if under a foundation wall shall be at least six (6) inches wider than the bottom width of the wall; and if under piers, columns or posts, shall be at least six (6) inches wider on all sides than the outside bottom lines of said piers, columns or posts.

Except that in case of dwellings, where a good gravel bottom exists, the footing or base course may be only four (4) inches wider instead of six (6) inches wider, as hereinbefore provided.

The thickness of all footing courses shall be not less than one-third their width, but no concrete footing course shall be less than six (6) inches thick.

All base stones shall be well bedded and laid crosswise, edge to edge.

Section 15.—In buildings, where the space under the sidewalk is utilized, a sufficient stone or brick wall shall be built to retain the roadway of the street, and the side, end or party walls of such building shall extend under the sidewalk, of sufficient thickness, to such walls.

The roofs of all vaults shall be of incombustible material.

Openings in the roofs of vaults for the admission of coal or light shall be covered with lights of glass in iron frames, or with iron covers having a rough surface, and rabbeted flush with the sidewalk; these lights shall not be more than four inches square.

When areas are covered, iron, or iron and glass combined, stone or other incombustible materials shall be used, and sufficient strength in such covering shall be provided to insure safety to persons walking on the same, and to carry the loads which may be placed thereon.

Open areas shall be properly protected with suitable railings.

Section 16.—Foundation walls shall be construed to include all walls and piers below the curb level or tier of beams nearest to the curb level intended to serve as supports for all superimposed weights.

All foundation walls shall be built of stone or brick.

If built of stone they shall be at least eight (8) inches thicker than the wall resting upon it, to a depth of not more than ten (10) feet below curb.

If built of brick, they shall be at least four (4) inches thicker than the wall resting upon it, to a depth of not more than ten (10) feet below curb.

All stone walls shall have at least one header extending through the wall in every three (3) feet each way, of good flat stones.

All stone to be laid on its natural bed, to be built flush and true with struck joints, on inside, and all foundations below grade to be laid in good lime or cement mortar.

Section 17.—When walls herein prescribed are of diminishing thickness upwards, the said decrease of thickness shall be construed to mean at the top line of tier of beams nearest to the height specified.

The ends of all wooden beams in all walls, especially in all party walls, are to be separated by at least four (4) inches of brick work.

And in eight (8) inch walls, to be strapped together on the tops of every fourth beam strongly spiked, for cross tie.

As many stories as desired may be placed within the given total heights.

If a greater height than seventy-five (75) feet is desired for the walls of any building, the entire building must be built of approved fireproof construction.

If any tower, or part of any building or structure is to be built of a greater height than seventy-five (75) feet above curb, it shall be built of fireproof materials as approved by the Inspector.

Section 18.—All outside walls of dwelling houses within the city limits shall not be less than eight (8) inches thick, if under and not more than twenty-four (24) feet above curb level.

If over twenty-four (24) feet and not over fifty (50) feet above curb level, the walls shall not be less than twelve (12) inches thick.

If over fifty (50) feet and not over sixty (60) feet high, the walls shall be sixteen (16) inches thick to the height of fifteen (15) feet above curb level, and not less than twelve (12) inches thick from thence to top.

If over sixty (60) feet and not over seventy-five (75) feet high, the walls shall be sixteen (16) inches thick to the height of twenty-five (25) feet above curb level, and not less than twelve (12) inches thick from thence to top.

All party and interior walls over twenty-five (25) feet high, and not over forty (40) feet high, shall be not less than twelve (12) inches thick to the height of fifteen (15) feet above curb level, and not less than eight (8) inches thick from thence to top.

All party and interior walls over forty (40) feet high, and not over fifty (50) feet in height above curb level, may be built twelve (12) and eight (8) inches respectively in thickness, but no such wall shall have a vertical portion eight (8) inches thick more than twenty-five (25) feet in height.

All party and interior walls over fifty (50) feet high, and not over sixty (60) feet in height, may be built twelve (12) and eight (8) inches respectively in thickness, but no such wall shall have a vertical portion eight (8) inches thick more than twenty-five (25) feet in height.

All party and interior walls over sixty (60) feet high, and not over seventy-five (75) feet in height, shall be not less than sixteen (16) inches in thickness to the height of fifteen (15) feet, and from thence upward twelve (12) and eight (8) inches respectively in thickness, but no such wall shall have a vertical portion eight (8) inches in thickness more than fifteen (15) feet in height.

Section 20.—Excepted from the requirements of previous sections are all dwelling houses built in continuous blocks of three (3) or more, when each is not more than twenty-two (22) feet wide, forty-five (45) feet deep, and thirty-five (35) feet in height, which may have interior and party walls only, of brick, not less than eight (8) inches thick above foundations. And also:

All the walls of dwellings not more than twenty-two (22) feet wide, forty-five (45) feet deep, and not more than twenty-five (25) feet or two (2) stories in height may be built not less than eight (8) inches thick above foundation.

One-story structures not over twenty (20) feet wide, thirty-five (35) feet deep, and fifteen (15) feet in height, may be built with all the walls not less than eight (8) inches in thickness.

Section 21.—In dwellings where the distance between the bearing walls is not over thirty-three (33) feet, and no clear span is over twenty-six (26) feet, brick partition walls not less than eight (8) inches thick, nor more than thirty (30) feet high, may be built to support the floors.

Over any room with a clear span of more than twenty-six (26) feet, proper supports of iron or masonry, of approved sizes and strength, may be used to support walls or floors, inclusive of support from overhead trusses or girders, but in every such case the bearing walls shall be increased four (4) inches in thickness for every twelve and one-half (12½) feet or part thereof that said span is over twenty-six (26) feet.

Where dimensions of buildings are given in the preceding sections, the width or depth may be changed, providing the area is not increased and additional inside walls are added if deemed necessary by the Inspector.

Section 22.—The outside or party walls of warehouses, stores and factories shall not be less than twelve (12) inches thick, if under and not more than forty (40) feet in height.

If over forty (40) feet and not over sixty (60) feet in height, the walls are to be sixteen (16) inches thick to the height of twenty-five (25) feet, and not less than twelve (12) inches thick from thence to top.

If over sixty (60) feet and not over seventy-five (75) feet in height, the walls are to be twenty (20) inches thick to the height of twenty-five feet, and from thence sixteen (16) inches thick to a height of fifty (50) feet above curb, and from thence twelve inches thick to top.

Front and rear non-bearing and intermediate bearing walls may be four (4) inches less in thickness than is above given, in buildings not more than twenty-five (25) feet clear span between walls, provided none are less than twelve (12) inches thick, and piers or columns supporting ends of girders are of sufficient strength.

When bearing walls are less than twenty-five (25) feet apart, or are intersected by cross walls, or strengthened by piers of sufficient size, the Inspector may permit the reduction of thickness of interior walls in just proportion to such added strength, except on walls less than forty (40) feet in height.

Where the clear span exceeds twenty-five (25) feet in any part of a building the walls supporting said span shall be four (4) inches more in thickness than is in this section specified, for every twelve and one-half (12½) feet or fraction thereof, that said span exceeds twenty-five (25) feet.

Where any bearing wall or part thereof shall, in its horizontal section or plan be weakened by excess of flues or openings, or at any other point not herein provided for, the Inspector shall require its amendment to a sufficient total bearing thickness.

Section 23. In all warehouses, stores and factories over twenty-five (25) feet in width between walls, in which there shall be brick partition walls, or girders supported on iron or wooden columns or piers of masonry, the said partition walls or girders shall be spaced not more than twenty-five (25) feet apart on longitudinal centres, and the columns, girders or piers shall be of sufficient strength and size to bear safely the weight and strain to be imposed upon them.

Section 24. The walls of churches, theatres, foundries, machine shops and other buildings of a public character, shall in no case be less than is in this ordinance specified for warehouses; and said buildings shall have in addition thereto such piers or buttresses as in the judgment of the Inspector may be necessary to make a safe and substantial building for its purpose.

Section 25. In all walls the same amount of materials herein required for walls, may be in part used in piers or buttresses, provided the wall or bars between shall be of a thickness approved by the Inspector.

The inside four (4) inches of all walls may be built of hard burnt hollow clay or porous terra cotta blocks, if laid at the same time with brick work and properly bonded into the walls and of the same dimensions as the brick used.

In all walls that are built hollow, the separating space shall not be counted in the total thickness of wall, but the same quantity of material shall be used as if it were built solid as herein provided. No such hollow space shall exceed four (4) inches in width, nor shall such wall be built unless the parts of same are strongly bonded together by proper ties either of brick, stone or iron placed not over twenty-four (24) inches apart each way.

Recesses may be left in the foundation for walls of lower stories, but in no case shall these walls be of less thickness than the walls of third story, or less than eight (8) inches.

No recess for alcoves, water or other pipes shall reduce to less than eight (8) inches in thickness at that point.

If it is desired to increase the height of any existing party or independent wall, when said wall is less in thickness than is herein required, it shall be done by a lining of brick work to form a combined thickness with the old wall of not less than four (4) inches more than is required for a new wall at total height desired, and no lining shall be four (4) inches thick for more than one story or fifteen (15) feet.

Said lining is to be supported on proper foundations, and whenever four (4) inches thick is to be applied only to firm, cleaned wall and thoroughly anchored by wrought iron anchors driven into the old wall.

No existing wall shall be used for party wall or other purposes unless approved by the Inspector, and all supports of walls shall be only of brick, stone or iron.

The walls of each story shall be built up to the full thickness to top of beams.

All walls shall be carried up to all roof sheathings, and to top lines of all cornices, and all party walls shall be built twelve (12) inches above the roof and coped with stone, iron or terra cotta.

No coping wall shall be less than eight (8) inches thick.

In all buildings occupied by three (3) or more families over a lower portion used for any other purpose than a dwelling, the hall partitions of first story and basement shall be of brick or other fireproof material and underside of staircases covered with metal lathing and plaster.

All walls shall be properly bonded together, or anchored to each other by tie anchors built not less than sixteen (16) inches into side walls every six (6) feet in height, anchors to be not less than one and a half by three-eighths of an inch in size.

All walls shall be anchored to each tier of beams with iron anchors not more than eight (8) feet apart, and extending to within at least four (4) inches of the outside face of the wall; between all openings there shall be at least one anchor, and where beams with anchors rest on partition or girders, in two or more lengths across the building they shall be strongly bolted or strapped together to obtain cross tie.

All walls to be strongly braced during their construction from the beams of each story, and when required and necessary shall also be braced from the outside until the building is enclosed.

All piers shall be built of stone or brick laid in cement mortar; all isolated stone piers to carry girders supporting walls, or columns or posts over, shall be well bonded and well covered on all exposed sides.

Isolated brick piers shall not, in height, exceed twelve (12) times their least dimensions.

Every brick pier less than nine (9) superficial feet in area at its base, supporting any beam, girder, arch or column on which a wall rests, or lintel spanning an opening over ten (10) feet and supporting a wall, shall at not greater intervals than thirty (30) inches apart have built into it a bond stone not less than four (4) inches thick, or a cast iron plate of sufficient strength, and of the full size of pier.

Under all iron beams, girders, trusses, columns of posts there shall be a cap or template of sufficient size and thickness, of stone or iron.

Ashlar shall not be counted as a part of the thickness of walls as herein provided, unless built and bonded as prescribed for foundations, and the walls so faced laid with, and ashlar bedded in, cement mortar.

All stone used for the facing of any building or part thereof, shall not be less than four (4) inches in thickness, to be strongly bonded or anchored to the backing.

Section 26. The brick used in all buildings shall be good, hard, well burnt brick, every sixth course to be a header course; all to be ly filled joints, to be built to true lines and carried up plumb.

Where walls are faced with brick in running bond every sixth course shall be bonded with whole brick diagonal bonders, or by splitting the face brick into halves and backing the same with a continuous row of headers.

The sand used in all buildings shall be clean, sharp grit sand.

All mortars to be thoroughly mixed by careful and persistent working.

Cement mortar shall be made of sand and cement in the proportion of not more than three (3) parts of sand to one (1) part of cement, and shall only be used immediately after being mixed.

Lime mortar shall be made of not more than four (4) parts of sand to one (1) part of lime, and shall not be used until throughly slaked.

Cement and lime mortar shall be made of three (3) parts of sand, one (1) part of cement, and one (1) part of lime.

Concrete for foundations shall be made of two (2) parts of sand, one (1) part of cement, and not more than five (5) parts of small, clean broken stone or good sharp gravel, all to be carefully mixed immediately before using.

Section 27. All openings for doors and windows in all buildings shall have a good and sufficient arch of stone or brick, well built and keyed and with sufficient abutments, or a lintel of iron of sufficient strength, or of stone not less than four (4) inches thick, with a bearing not less than four (4) inches at each end.

When the lintel is of less thickness than the wall to be supported, there shall also be a good timber lintel with bearings of not less than three (3) inches, and a double rowlock or bonded arch turned over same.

Section 28. In computing the weight of walls: Brick work shall be estimated at 115 lbs. per cubic foot; facing stones shall be estimated at 160 lbs. per cubic foot.

The safe bearing load for good brick work shall be estimated at 8 tons per su. ft. when laid in good lime mortar; 11½ tons per su. ft. when laid in good cement and lime mortar; 15 tons per su. ft. when laid in good cement mortar.

The strength of floors to be estimated for in buildings, in addition to the weight of materials, is to be not less than: For dwellings, 75 lbs. upon every su. ft. of surface; for office purposes, 100 lbs. upon every su. ft. of surface; for public assembly, 120 lbs. upon every su. ft. of surface; for stores, warehouses, etc., 150 lbs. upon every su. ft. of surface; for all roofs, 50 lbs. upon every su. ft. of surface.

Section 29. Every iron column, post or other vertical support, and all trusses, beams and girders shall be of sufficient strength to bear safely its intended total load, and if of iron, the manufacturer or contractor shall cause to be plainly marked upon said girder or column, the weight it will safely sustain, and no greater weight shall be imposed thereon. All beams and girders to have ample bearings upon sufficient capstone or templates of stone or iron.

Iron supports to walls, whether beam, girder or column shall, if required, be thoroughly incased with brick or other approved fireproof material.

Section 307. No wooden floor beam shall be less than two (2) inches in thickness and ten (10) inches in depth. Except third story or attic beams which may be two (2) inches in thickness and eight (8) inches in depth.

All header and trimmer beams shall be double or one inch thicker than the beams, and where more than six (6) feet long shall be hung in stirrup irons.

All floor and roof beams to have bearings of not less than four (4) inches at ends, and where they rest upon brick or stone walls, shall be cut to a bevel of three (3) inches on their depth.

All wooden beams shall be framed away from all and every kind of flue in walls and chimneys, the trimmer beam to be at least eight (8) inches from the inside of any flue in a straight way, and four (4) inches away from the outside of a chimney breast, and the header not less than two (2) inches from brickwork.

All tiers to be strongly bridged with sufficient rows of continuous herringbone bridging well nailed for every ten foot span.

Each tier of beams to be anchored to all walls every six (6) feet with one and one-half by three-eighths inch wrought iron anchors well secured to side of beams.

All timbers and wooden beams to be free from weakening imperfections, and of full strength of dimension and kind.

Stud partitions are to be continuous wherever practicable, that is, to run down between the beams and rest on the plate of the partition below.

All wooden girders supporting beams shall be carried by brick piers, or iron, locust or other suitable hard wood posts of sufficient strength, on proper foundation.

Section 31. Every hoistway opening is to be provided on each story with a substantial railing, and strong battened trap door securely hinged, such railings and doors to be kept closed at all practical times, except when in actual use by occupants of builings, but especially to be carefully closed each and every day at the completion of business.

Any failure to provide such trap doors, and for every neglect to close the same as herein prescribed, the owner or occupant of said building shall be respectively liable for the violation of this ordinance.

The interior of all elevator or dumb-waiter shafts to be lined with metal or covered with metal lathing and plaster. The doors at each story to be covered with metal on the inside.

Section 32. In the fire limits, all roofs and cornices, the tops and sides of all dormers and gables, all balustrades, pediments and details generally, both constructional and ornamental, shall be of slate, metal or terra cotta.

All cornices and other metal features to be secured to brick work with iron anchors.

The roof sheathing of every building shall in no case be extended across the front, side or end of any party wall.

All buildings shall be provided with metallic gutters and water leaders, the latter in no case to discharge upon the sidewalk.

The roofs of all buildings within the fire limits shall have a scuttle or bulkhead, covered with approved fireproof material, with fixed ladders or stairs of iron leading thereto. No scuttle is to be less than two by three feet in size, and the frames of all bulkheads are to be filled with brick or fireproof block.

All skylights shall be made only of metal and glass.

Section 33.—No chimney shall be built upon any floor, or be supported in whole or part with wood, but shall be wholly supported on stone, brick or iron.

Corbelling out a chimney shall not exceed eight (8) inches, in not less than six (6) courses of brick, and if supported by piers, said piers shall not be less than twelve (12) inches on the face, and be properly bonded into the wall.

All fireplaces shall have hearths of brick, stone, slate, or tile, not less than eighteen inches in width, to be supported on arches of brick or stone, and under all portable ranges such hearths shall be at least sixteen (16) inches wider on front than depth of range.

All floors under kitchen cook stoves and other stoves shall be covered with metal the same to extend at least one (1) foot, on all sides, beyond base of said stoves.

All stud partitions back of portable kitchen ranges shall be framed sixteen (16) inches higher than smoke pipe opening and one (1) foot wider each side of range, and the opening filled in with brick or fireproof blocks. No stove shall come within two (2) feet of any wooden partition. No wood work shall cross the brick breast of any portable range.

All ash holes, ash houses or ash depositories of any kind shall be built wholly of brick, stone, iron or fireproof material.

All smoke flues with walls less than 8 inches thick shall be lined on the inside with cast iron or fireproof terra cotta pipe, to be built in with brick work, from the bottom of the flue or from the throat of the fireplace, and shall be carried up continuously to the extreme top of chimney, which is to be not less than three (3) feet above the roof, to be coped with stone, terra cotta or iron.

All smoke flues for manufacturing or steam power boilers shall be built with double walls, with an air space between, the inside four (4) inches to be of fire brick or fire clay slabs or blocks laid in fire mortar, to the height of twenty-five (25) feet from the bottom.

All such flues to extend at least ten (10) feet above the highest point of any roof within a radius of fifty (50) feet, and be covered on top with a heavy wire netting.

The fire backs of all fireplaces shall not be less than eight (8) inches thick of solid masonry.

The brickwork on outside faces of all fireplace flues shall not be less than eight (8) inches, unless lined with tile.

All blind and dead flues to be shut off at the underside of the beams of each story.

Section 34. No wooden casing, furring or lath shall be placed against or cover any smoke flue or metal pipe used to convey hot air or steam.

All such flues to be covered with metal lathing, and all flues to be left smooth and clear on the completion of building.

No stovepipe shall pass through any floor or roof of any building or through any woodwork or partitions, unless protected by a double collar of metal or terra cotta with holes for ventilation, and not less than three (3) inches of air space between.

All stovepipes shall in all cases be kept twelve (12) inches away from all beams or unprotected woodwork; if protected by metal work the least distance from woodwork shall be six (6) inches.

All smokepipes from laundry stoves or any kind of heating furnace or boiler must be kept at all points not less than eighteen (18) inches from all unprotected woodwork.

If protected by metal the least distance from the woodwork shall be six (6) inches.

Where such pipe passes through any woodwork or partition it shall be protected by an iron thimble with at least eight inches of brick work around it, or a double collar of metal or terra cotta with holes for ventilation and not less than six (6) inches of air space between.

Section 35. All brick set hot air furnaces shall have two covers, with an air space of at least four (4) inches between, the top to be of brick or metal supported by iron bars, to be made perfectly tight, and there shall not be less than four (4) inches of space between the ceiling or floor beams and top.

All brick set furnaces except hot water furnaces shall have two four (4) inch well bonded brick walls with a not less than three (3) inch air space between. In every case to be built at least four (4) inches from all woodwork.

All portable hot air furnaces shall be kept at least two (2) feet away from any unprotected woodwork or ceilings (plaster not inclusive), and when protected by metal lining the distance shall not be less than one (1) foot.

No furnace shall be placed upon a wooden floor, but if such floor is adjacent thereto, the furnace must in every case be set upon brick or stone base of full size of furnace and to extend not less than two (2) feet beyond the furnace in front of the ash-pan.

Section 36. All hot air flues or shafts in stone or brick work to be lined with metal or burnt clay pipe.

All hot air flues in stud partitions shall be made double, with not less than one-half inch air space between, the back and sides of said channel and all other contiguous beams or woodwork to be lined with metal.

The outer faces of all hot air flues to be covered with metal lathing.

Horizontal hot air pipes shall not be less than three (3) inches below plaster ceilings, and where carried through wood partitions or floors they shall be guarded by either a double collar of metal with two (2) inches of air space and with ventilating holes, or be surrounded by brickwork at least four (4) inches in thickness.

Section 37. Registers shall not be located within four (4) feet distant horizontally from the furnace. When registers for hot air furnaces are placed in any woodwork or combustible floors the sides shall be lined with tin. All register boxes to be made of tin plate with flange, the register to rest upon the same, the sides of boxes to be not less than two (2) inches from all woodwork.

All indirect radiator boxes and all wooden boxes and casings enclosing steam pipes shall be lined with iron or tin.

Section 38. No steam pipe shall be placed within two (2) inches of any timber or woodwork unless same is protected by a metal covering, when the distance shall not be less than one (1) inch.

All steam or hot water pipes passing through floors and ceilings and plastered partitions shall be fully protected by a metal tube one (1) inch larger in diameter than the pipe, and the space filled in with mineral wool, asbestos or other approved non-combustible material.

All cutting of beams for gas, water or other pipes shall be not more than three (3) feet from bearing of beams, and shall be not more than two (2) inches in depth in any case.

Section 39. Every electric wire for furnishing light, heat or power, led into any building from the outside thereof, shall have proper and sufficient appliances to cut off the current where it enters the building.

All isnide wires shall be properly insulated and all work throughout be in accordance with the rules and requirements of the Underwriters' Association of this Department, a copy of which said rules and requirements shall be kept on file in the office of said Inspector.

Section 40. No gas burner, unless protected by a bell, shall be placed less than three (3) feet below any ceiling or woodwork, and all side lights and swinging brackets shall be so placed as not to endanger any woodwork, curtains or other combustible material.

Section 41. Every dwelling house occupied by three or more families above the first story, and every building already, or to be erected, occupied or used as a hotel, lodging or boarding house, school, theatre, or place of public assembly, and every factory, mill, manufactory or workshop, hospital, asylum, or institution, or office building shall be provided with suitable strong iron fire escapes as may be determined by the Inspector, to be constructed in such manner as he may direct and approve.

The owner or owners of any building upon which any fire escape may be erected is to keep the same in good repair, and no person shall at any time place any encumbrance whatsoever thereon, or remove or disturb any part thereof without committing a violation of this ordinance and incurring penalty and fine thereof.

Section 42. In all buildings of a public character, such as hotels, churches, theatres, restaurants, railroad depots, public halls, and other buildings used or intended to be used for purposes of public assembly, amusement or instruction, the halls, doors, stairways, seats, passageways and aisles,

The New Jersey Athletic Club bowlers went to Cranford Tuesday and were defeated by 1461 pins to 1531 pins.

The Roselle bowlers beat the Cranford team on the Roselle alleys in two games on Thursday evening. Roselle's scores were 753 and 893 and Cranford's 717 and 746.

The second game in the Central Journal Bowling League which was scheduled for November 18th between the New Jersey Athletic Club and the Crescent Wheelmen, was postponed until Monday evening when it will be rolled at Bergen Point.

By the defeat of the Union County Country Club last night the Park Club bowlers take the lead in the Standard League. The scores of the two games are as follows:

PARKS.	1ST GAME.	2D GAME.
Brooks	157	129

Four straight victories and not a defeat. That looks pretty good for the Crescent Wheelmen, does it not? And first in the Central Journal Bowling League, too. Last evening the tail-enders in the league, the Elizabeth Athletic Club, came up and tried to bowl against the Crescent Wheelmen. The first frame showed the Crescents in the lead by eighteen pins, and then they ran away from the visitors, gaining at every frame until 136 pins separated the two at the last frame. It was a regular deluge and the Elizabeth boys were buried under the ruins. Captain VanEmburgh did the best for the Wheelmen and managed to bring down all the pins with one or two balls. The "Terrible Ten" were not all present, and those that were, found their opponents of an unterrified kind. The individual scores were:

CYCLING COMMENT.

The question of the L. A. W. giving up its government of racing next season is being discussed by prominent wheelmen throughout the country. Chief Consul Potter, of the New York State division, is in favor of the change, and says thousands of wheelmen would come into the league if so much time should not be given to racing interests, to the detriment of other members.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh That Contain Mercury.

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces, such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

Important Facts.

If you have dull and heavy pain across forehead and about the eyes; if the nostrils are frequently stopped up and followed by a disagreeable discharge; if soreness in the nose and bleeding from the nostrils is often experienced; if you are very sensitive to cold in the head accompanied with headache; then you may be sure you have catarrh, and should (immediately) resort to Ely's Cream Balm for a cure. The remedy will give instant relief.

VANDALISM.

The Savagery of Some People Who Call Themselves Civilized.

The savagery of savages is as nothing to the savagery of some creatures who are brought up in civilized communities and call themselves civilized also. We have few records of Indians or Zulus wantonly destroying pictures or books or statuary unless they thought them "bad medicine" and held devils. Yet how far could one of our city thugs and loafers be trusted in the presence of a work of art or a thing of beauty? It seems to be a sort of instinct with him to throw a stone whenever he sees flowers or ornaments or to pull out a knife and hack at them, or to upset or scratch or injure them. In a certain blind and brute way, perhaps, his conduct gives him a flattering sense of power. He cannot make anything useful or beautiful himself, but he can destroy it.

The only way to cure these vandals appears to be either to educate them early or drown them. Drowning is the least expensive, but there is a public prejudice against it, so for a few centuries we must expect to see our public buildings defaced, our metal work bent and scratched, our plate glass broken, our street lights shattered, our pictures jabbed with canes and umbrellas, our mirrors marked with initials carved by diamond rings, our rugs and carpets and woodwork spat upon, our walls scribbled with names, our streets made depositories of filth and our books torn and dog eared, for it takes a long time to cure a vandal of his vandalism. One needs to begin with his father.

There is so close a relation between the wantonness of the destroyer and the darker deeds of the criminal that perhaps we are justified in keeping a suspicious watch on any man, woman or child who will destroy plants, books and pictures or throw stones at helpless animals. The excessive aggression that mutilates and makes ugly will trespass on others' enjoyments, rights and properties with but little more development. This is seen particularly in the case of burglars. These fellows, not content with stripping a house of all they can get, not infrequently destroy what they cannot carry away. They burn papers, tear paintings from their frames, smash furniture, break glass and otherwise act like incarnate fiends. It might not be a bad idea in case of the capture of these men to impose sentences graded to accord with the amount of damage they had worked. It would make others of their tribe a little more considerate—perhaps. On general principles these wanton destroyers should go to prison, anyway.—Brooklyn Eagle.

How Father Maloney Helped the Church.

"Father Maloney was one of the best known and best loved men in Nevada," remarked an old mining man, "and I am sure he did as much for the church as any two men in the state. When Father Maloney solicited subscriptions for a new church, men who never gave before dug down deep into their pockets and donated with an appearance of cheerfulness that was surprising. One day he walked into a saloon where a big poker game was running. He watched the play till he could speak without interrupting and then said:

"'Gentlemen, we are trying to get money enough to build a new church here. Do any of you feel disposed to help us out?'

"A big, rawboned fellow, who had been losing steadily and was consequently in no pleasant mood, growled:

"'I'll rastle you for $40.'

"Without a word Father Maloney produced the amount and laid it on the bar. The gambler looked surprised and hesitated, but when the other players commenced to jeer him he got up and covered the priest's wager. They pulled off their coats and squared off. Father Maloney commenced playing for an opening in a manner that showed he was no stranger to the sport. The big fellow made a rush and threw out a long arm to clinch his opponent around the neck. Quick as a flash Father Maloney grabbed his wrist with both hands, turned and threw the big fellow clear over his shoulder. He struck on his back with a crash that made the glassware behind the bar rattle and jump. Father Maloney quietly donned his clerical coat, pocketed the stakes and watched the big fellow pick himself up painfully.

"'My friends,' said he, 'I would have been very thankful for $10. I had to be a little undignified, but I have made $40 for the church.'"—San Francisco Post.

Glave's Heroic Task.

In 1893 Edward James Glave left New York, bent upon one of the most hazardous tasks which this century has afforded. His purpose was to proceed from Zanzibar to the strongholds of the Arab raiders far in the interior of the dark continent and there to obtain such exact information as to the strength, system and sources of supplies of the African slave dealers as would enable the civilized powers now interested in Africa to proceed intelligently toward the eventual suppression of the horrors of the cruel traffic in human lives carried on by Arab man hunters. Entirely alone, save for a dozen native carriers, he was to make his way past the great lakes and deadly swamps to the headwaters of the Kongo, and thence across the continent to the west coast, relying almost entirely upon his skill with the rifle to provide food for himself and his followers, for it was only by going in this way, in the guise of a hunter, that he hoped to obtain the information he wished. The Arabs would not be likely to molest a single hunter, whereas they might attack and destroy a small armed force coming among them or flee from a superior force, in either case defeating the ends of the expedition.—"Glave's Career," by Robert Howard Russell, in Century.

Corners.

Few women realize the decorative possibilities of corners. The result is that even in pretty and artistic rooms the corners are too often left bare, the walls being allowed to meet in hard, straight lines, with nothing to break their monotony. Before attempting to alter this, however, it is well to recognize fully that corner decoration must depend somewhat upon the architectural qualities of the room. When an apartment is small, the corners should not be filled up, nor cut off by placing pieces of furniture diagonally across them, for this only diminishes the apparent size of the room. When the ceiling is low, nothing should be put into corners which does not carry the eye beyond its own level. It is, therefore, only in large rooms that we can have absolute freedom in corner decorating.

A Surprise.

Lady—You know, I wish my portrait to be a total surprise for my husband.

Artist—Yes, madam, I understand.

Lady—And you will try not to have too strong a likeness, as I would not like him to recognize it at the first glance.—London Tit-Bits.

AN INDIAN LOVE SONG.

His winter home the bear forsakes;
The red deer swims the shining lakes;
Up foaming falls the salmon leaps;
The wild sheep halts on dizzy steeps;
The swans are northward flying.
With laughing voice the rivers run,
Their billows flashing in the sun.
It is the moon of sprouting grass;
A thousand warm, sweet breezes pass
Through lofty pine tops sighing.

With bounding steps the antelope
Springs lightly down the mountain slope;
To verdant plains the bison hies;
The eagle mounts the morning skies,
And all the birds are mating.
With life and joy all things are bright:
Come forth, my love, my soul's delight;
Thy wigwam's folds throw wide apart!
For thee, oh, dear and tender heart,
Thy lover true is waiting.

NOT CHOLERA GERMS.

A Hawaiian Reassured as to Some Roots He Saw In His Poi.

An incident is told by ladies who deal out rations to needy natives at the central depot of the Hawaiian Relief society about an aged native and his allowance of poi.

"Poi for six," cried out one of the ladies as she handed a rusty old bucket to one of the native attendants.

"Poi for six," cried the attendant as he returned the bucket filled with the substance.

The native received his allowance and started to walk away when something in the bucket seemed to have the effect of hypnotizing him. His eyes started from their sockets and the cold beads of perspiration on his forehead indicated fear of some kind.

Returning the bucket to the lady at the window, he pointed to some yellow specks in the poi, well distributed throughout the whole mass. "He kumu kolera kela" (those are cholera germs), said the native, who had evidently not been educated in the science of bacteriology.

The lady tried to explain that the yellow specks were the roots of the taro, which sometimes get into the poi when the tubers are too closely scraped. This was beyond the comprehension of the man, and the lady was about ready to give up when a young native stepped forth, and tapping his fellow countryman on the shoulder launched forth in the following scientific explanation:

"All the poi in this place has been cooked. If those are germs, they are dead ones, for the doctors tell us cooking will kill germs. Now, then, you will have no trouble after eating that poi."

"Oh, all right," said the native, and taking the bucket once more from the lady he walked away perfectly satisfied.

A matter of considerable interest, though not generally known, comes up in connection with this story. A great many natives are of the opinion that the germs of cholera can be seen with the naked eye. They catch fish, and if they see nothing suspicious, use them as food without further thought about the matter.—Pacific Commercial Advertiser.

A Welsh Rabbit.

The original proprietor of a chophouse in New York married one of three sisters named Pray, the other two becoming the wives of Barney Williams and William J. Florence. The three widows are still alive. Browne's associations brought about him many actors, and today the place from which his widow receives an income, although she does not manage it, is a midnight resort for the actor colony in the metropolis. The preparation of the rabbit there is a simple process. The toast is very thin and very crisp. It is placed on a plate, which itself is placed on a very warm stove until it becomes too hot for the touch. In a saucepan is thrown a sufficient quantity of rather "sharp" cheese and the utensil is held over an intensely hot fire. As it melts a small quantity of stale beer or old ale is poured in and the mixture rapidly stirred about. It quickly reaches a smooth, creamy consistency, and is then poured over the toast and served to the waiting eater with flying footsteps. He throws over it a dash of red pepper, a little bit of English mustard and some Worcestershire sauce, and washes it down with good draft ale. If he fails to use the condiments mentioned, he will have little blue devils running over his breast all night long, but if he follows these instructions his sleep will be restful and his dreams blissful. If only some Philadelphia restaurant would try this simple plan and not endeavor to make rabbits smooth and creamy by additions of cream and the yolks of egg, how happy we might be.—Philadelphia Times.

Frightening Children.

A writer in The Popular Science Monthly, writing on "Children's Fears," brings to mind the practice—in vogue for centuries, and in all lands—of frightening children with tales of robbers, ghosts and manifold dangers. There are many parents who follow this custom, seeking to quiet their little ones, to induce obedience and indeed to hush them to sleep, with stories of wild beasts, hobgoblins and other dreadful creatures. Frequently the injury done in this manner to the imagination of the child lasts for years. Many adults can recall how they were pursued in their teens and into their twenties by the ghastly terrors created in childhood by the deceptions of those who had them in charge. The wickedness and cruelty of this practice ought to be apparent to any one who will stop to think. How dreadful a thing it is to people the childish imagination with spectacles of danger and hideous pictures of all sorts of foes, lying in lurk to devour! Is there anything more cruel and mean than to hush a timid child in its couch, and force it to sleep by crowding the darkness of its bedchamber with monstrous shapes and frightful specters?—Central Christian Advocate.

The Baron's Nap.

Sir Frederick Pollock, chief baron of the English court of the exchequer, took a nap pretty regularly about midday. His waking was comical. For when his "40 winks" ended, he would start to seize a pen, and with imperturbable gravity say to the arguing counsel, "What page was your last citation?" The harmless deceit was humored by the bar, and only once did it provoke tartness. This came when an old sergeant retorted, "Did your lordship refer to the last citation made before your lordship gave Somnus a new trial, or the citation I made when your lordship produced a gap in my argument?" Nothing nettled, Baron Pollock imperturbably answered, "The one immediately preceding the gap."—San Francisco Argonaut.

To prose once signified to write in prose rather than in verse, and a prosy man was one who preferred to clothe his ideas in prosaic rather than in metrical form.

Sorrow has not been given to us for sorrow's sake, but as a lesson which we are to learn somewhat, which once learned it ceases to be sorrow.—Carlyle.

Getting Over a Cough

is easy enough with the help of Randolph's Emulsion. It's a regular step ladder we might say. You get over the cough easily and quickly. In fact, all our drugs are step ladders to help one over every kind of earthly ailment But coughs are what we particularly want to speak of today, for there is a long hard winter before us, and the person who starts it off with a cough may never see the end of it. Therefore if a cough is, what you have take Randolph's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil with phosphoric acid.

MUNYON'S

RHEUMATISM CURE.

Mr. L. C. Griffith, Who Suffered for Years With Rheumatism and Heart Disease and Was Scarcely Able to Waik, States that He is Entirely Cured.

Mr. L. C. Griffith, Carversville, Pa., says: "I was troubled with heart disease for years and at times had spells when I was like one dead, would sink away and become cold, helpless and unconscious. Two years ago I had erysipelas, and this was followed by a severe form of rheumatism which spread to all parts of my body. I could scarcely walk, my hands were so drawn out of shape that I could not use them, and I was almost a cripple when I began taking Munyon's Rheumatism Cure. Our home physician had treated me for months but in five days after beginning Munyon's pills I could walk around and now I am perfectly well. Munyon's Rheumatism Cure has made a complete and wonderful cure of all my troubles."

Munyon's Rheumatism Cure is guaranteed to cure rheumatism in any part of the body. Acute or muscular rheumatism cured in from one to five days. It never fails to cure sharp, shooting pains in the arms, legs, sides, back or breast, or soreness in any part of the body in from one to three hours. It is guaranteed to cure lameness, stiff and swollen joints, stiff back, and all pains in the hips and loins. Chronic rheumatism, sciatica, lumbago or pain in the back speedily cured.

Munyon's Remedies are absolutely harmless and effect positive and permanent cures. A separate specific for each disease. At all druggists, mostly at 25c a bottle.

Personal letters to Prof. Munyon, 1505 Arch st., Philadelphia, Pa., answered with free medical advice for any disease.

VERY TRULY YOURS.

"Very truly yours," she wrote,
Ending up a dainty note
Where apple blossoms perfume shed.
Did she know in sending this
She would fill my heart with bliss
If she meant just what she said?

Now or never, came the thought.
Ask her! Ask her! Yes, I ought
If e'er I wish to call her mine.
I'll ask her, fairest of her race,
And take as omen of my case
The ending of her written line.

Impatient fever burned my brain.
Would my daring be in vain?
Would she spurn my love so true?
"Very truly yours," she wrote.
Ending up a loving note,
"And forever all for you."
—Ned Whately in Detroit Free Press.

SHE WASN'T GREEN.

A Confiding Maiden From the Country Who Knew a Thing or Two.

She was such a pretty girl. Sweet 17—just budding into fair womanhood. She had been reared among the blue grass hills of old Kentucky, and this was her first visit to the city. She was the guest of the mother of her intended husband.

Everything had been done to make her visit a pleasant one, and the dear little thing had been moving in a perfect elysium of bliss. Charley, dear Charley, h been her constant companion, and this, with the wonderful sights to be seen in greater Cincinnati, had caused the little maiden's heart to overflow with joy. One night Charley suggested going to the Grand Opera House. The simple village maiden had never been to the theater, but she had heard much of it and determined that she would be as blase as any of the audience.

They reached the theater early. Very few had arrived. The lights were low. They sat and talked awhile. Oh, she was so happy. Just then the electric lights were turned on to their full power, and she naively remarked that "she had seen no one bring in more lights," but still she was so happy.

The play began. She sat entranced. To her poor Rip was the dearest, sweetest, good for nothing old fellow in the world. When the curtain arose on the fourth act, and Mr. Jefferson is discovered as old Rip, after his sleep of 20 years, she turned to Charley and remarked: "Why, Charley, who is that old man? I haven't seen him before."

Charley replied: "Why, that's Jefferson as Rip. He is supposed to have been sleeping for 20 years and has grown very old."

The dear, sweet young thing cast a reproachful look out of her bewitching eyes upon her intended husband and said: "Oh, Charley. I know I am from the country. I know that I am what you city people call 'very green;' but, really, I am not that green. I have watched Mr. Jefferson carefully all the evening, and I know that old man there on the stage is not he. Oh, no, I'm not that green."

Then the curtain fell and they went out. —Cincinnati Tribune.

Electrocuted.

Another case is presented demonstrating that "death by electricity is painless." This time the victim is Newsdealer Joseph Nauert of Sayville, who furnishes the evidence himself from his personal experience. He declares that he has, in a way, been electrocuted twice, and knows by what authority he speaks. Having been sentenced to die by the electrical chair and as he was a firm believer that such a death was painless he submitted manfully to his fate. He was placed in the executioner's chair and the appliances adjusted to his person and the electrical current turned on when he shot off immediately into dreamland. He says he could hear distinctly all that was said about him, but experienced no physical pain whatever. After the lapse of 30 minutes he distinctly heard the doctors pronounce him dead.

He was then taken to the dissecting table, but when the point of the surgeon's knife pricked his breast he suddenly revived and put in a protest against the knife business until he was fully dead. He was then snatched back to the electrical chair and was again subjected to a second shock, which he says reduced him again to unconsciousness, and he thinks the second trial would have been a success had not his wife just then poked him in the ribs and demanded that he should turn over and stop waking up the whole household with his unearthly snoring.—Brooklyn Times.

The Ambitious Graduate.

"Harold!"

The indulgent father of the young man who had just gone through college laid his hand on his son's shoulder.

"Harold," he said, "I don't grudge a dollar of the thousands I have spent in educating you. I have supplied you liberally with the means to enable you to fit yourself for any career. If you fail, it will not be my fault. I am still ready to help you in any way you can reasonably ask. You have had a long course of preparation for success in life and now it remains for you to say what vocation you will choose. Don't fear to aim high, my boy. What shall it be?"

Touched deeply by this evidence of paternal pride and devotion, the young man answered:

"If I can have my way about it, dad, I think I'd like to be a retired army officer on half pay."—Chicago Tribune.

Their Epitaph.

Mamma—Promptly, my child.—New York Sun.

THE ART OF WALKING.

Training to Take Long Tramps Without Becoming Wearied.

A gentleman of this city who is famous as a scholar and remarkable as a pedestrian of enormous staying powers explained to me recently that the reason why so many persons seem to be unable to make long walks is that they do not understand the proper management of their bodies in such efforts.

"An ordinary statement concerning the act of walking," he said, "is that it consists of a series of interrupted falls. In other words, walking depends chiefly on the action of gravity as it affects the human body while in movement. I discovered long ago that walking, as it is ordinarily performed, is by no means a series of interrupted falls.

"Of course it is a fact that walking includes interrupted falls, but there is nothing either explanatory or profound in the statement of that reality. The same might be said of standing with the same lucidity, for when one is standing he is subject to the law of gravity. He would fall were his fall not interrupted by his legs.

"As a matter of fact, walking is a muscular projection of the body in any direction by means of the legs' muscular movements, the two legs never leaving the walking surface at the same time. As we usually walk we stand erect. When that is done, gravity does not move the body forward. On the contrary, its force it exerted downward in a perpendicular line. The movement of the body forward is secured by a rise and push, as, for example, when standing on the left leg the right foot's heel is raised from the ground, and the ball of the foot and its toes yet touching a push is given whereby the body is projected forward. The right foot is then carried forward and serves as the body's support while the left foot's heel in its turn is raised and the body is moved forward by a second push. Gravity is present, naturally, but the walking depends on the pushes as its source and constant cause.

"But while falling is an inconsiderable part in ordinary walking as we walk in the streets erect and dignified, it may be applied to long distance walking with wonderful success. But he who cultivates such walking must be prepared to give up an elegant appearance for the time being. Some persons seem to be able to walk extraordinary distances without extraordinary fatigue. Others seem unable to do so. For my own part I have observed that while I can walk only a few miles in the city before I look longingly on the street cars, I can take a 20 mile walk across country without disastrous results save to the larder.

"My method for long distance walking is as follows: Assume something of a bicycle hump, lean forward, give no push with the feet; depend altogether for momentum on the force exerted by gravity, which, by your interruption of it, serves to carry your body forward. You must also bear in mind that short rather than long steps are the rule, and also that the advancing foot must never touch the heel first, but always the toes and ball of the foot. Indeed your gait has a sort of shuffle in it and is not pretty, but is tremendously effective."—New York Herald.

Java's Island of Fire.

The greatest natural wonder in Java, if not in the entire world, is the justly celebrated "Gheko Kamdka Gumko," or "Home of the Hot Devils," known to the world as the "Island of Fire." This geological singularity is really a lake of boiling mud, situated at about the center of the plains of Grobogana, and is called an island because the great emerald sea of vegetation which surrounds it gives it that appearance. The "island" is about two miles in circumference, and is situated at a distance of almost exactly 50 miles from Solo. Near the center of this geological freak immense columns of soft, hot mud may be seen continually rising and falling like great timbers thrust through the boiling substratum by giant hands and then again quickly withdrawn. Besides the phenomenon of the boiling mud columns there are scores of gigantic bubbles of hot slime that fill up like huge balloons and keep up a series of constant explosions, the intensity of the detonations varying with the size of the bubble. In time past, so the Javanese authorities say, there was a tall spirelike column of baked mud on the west edge of the lake which constantly belched a pure stream of cold water, but this has long been obliterated, and everything is now a seething mass of bubbling mud and slime.—St. Louis Republic.

Some Conductors.

"Did you ever notice," asked a woman of her companion in a surface car the other day, "how well some conductors 'keep house' in their domain? This one we have now, for example; he keeps his eye on his company, making each one occupy only his allowance of seat and watching vacancies to seat his standing passengers. I've sat wedged in a few inches of seat sometimes when persons at the other end of the seat had room to spare. Women often spread themselves unnecessarily, and men square around to look out of all windows, taking up undue room. All such thoughtless acts should be looked after by a conductor, but few pay any attention. When I notice a systematic, observant official on the platform, like ours today, I know that I am to be kept in order, but I know, too, that my neighbors are as well, and I am to have my full rights as a passenger."—New York Times.

Her Eye For a Bargain.

"My wife found a poker chip in my pocket the other morning," said the man about town.

"Was she angry?"

"Very. She asked me how much it cost. I told her 50 cents, and she said that a man always got cheated; that the thing was nothing but celluloid."—Washington Star.

A CHALLENGE.

Poets are silent, sir, you say?
But, hark ye, I would ask you, pray,
Doth any seed bear flower or fruit
Without a growing time? The root
Must first push out in silence; then
"As Aaron's rod blooms poet's pen!"

Thoughts are his seeds—so soft they stir,
Still in the dark held prisoner,
He scarce dare draw his breath for fear
The embryo's lost. How should he steer.
Thought laden, then 'mid gaping mirth,
While all his branchlets strive for birth?

Have patience with the tortuous root
That toils in darkness ere a shoot
May rise to gladden watchful eye
Or merge in earth's fertility.
A poet's verse, as light as air?
Ah, sir, it's root is otherwhere!
—From "Idyls of Love and Life," Edith G. Adams.

PETER STUYVESANT.

His Experience With the Nine Men of New Amsterdam.

When Peter Stuyvesant arrived in New Amsterdam as the director general he strutted about like a peacock, "as if he were the czar of Muscovy," as a chronicler puts it. He was called "Pegleg Pete" from his wooden leg with its silver bands, or "hard koppig Piet"—Peter the hard headed.

Stuyvesant had strict orders to give the people a share in the government of the town. So he called an election of 18 men by the settlers in Manhattan, Breuckelyn, Amersfoort and Pavonia, and of the 18 he selected nine, who were the first representatives of popular government in these parts. And a hard enough time they had of it with hard koppig Piet.

The nine grappled with the liquor problem. "Almost one full fourth part of the town of New Amsterdam" was devoted to saloons, which sold liquor to visiting Indians and made of the little town a sort of hell on earth. Then, as later, white men also sold firearms to the Indians as well as liquor. One of the nine did this. Even the agent of the Rensselaer, the patroon of Albany, did so until Stuyvesant sent troops to persuade him otherwise. But Stuyvesant did the same thing himself in spite of prohibition by the home government.

When the nine quarreled with Stuyvesant about taxes there was trouble. They electioneered from house to house against Stuyvesant, and he retaliated by throwing their secretary, Adriaen van der Donck, into jail. The nine sent an appeal to Holland, and good and wise was it in its terms. They asked:

First.—Abdication of power by the Dutch company in favor of the states general.

Second.—A public school with at least two good masters.

Third.—For godly, honorable and intelligent rulers, because a covetous governor makes poor subjects.

The states general fairly tried to remedy matters, but Stuyvesant was too far away to restrain. He drove the nine out of their official pew in church, arrested Van Dincklagen, his vice director, persecuted the Lutherans and the Quakers, stirred up Indian insurrections and in general conducted himself like the obstinate old man he was.

Popular government began indeed with the nine, but it took more than 100 years and two revolutions to establish it thoroughly.—New York Recorder.

The Anatomy of an Oyster.

Every oyster has a mouth, a heart, a liver, a stomach and other necessary internal organs, including a set of cunningly devised intestines. The mouth is at the small end of the oyster's body, near the hinge of the shell. It is oval in shape, and, though not readily discovered by an unpracticed eye, may be easily located by gently pushing a blunt bodkin or similar instrument along the folds of the surface of the body at the place mentioned. Connected with the mouth is the canal which the oyster uses in conveying food to the stomach, from whence it passes into the curious little set of netted and twisted intestines referred to in the opening.

To discover the heart of an oyster, the fold of flesh which oystermen call the "mantle" must be removed. This is fatal to the oyster, of course, but in the interest of science and for the benefit of the "curious," it is occasionally done. When the "mantle" has been removed, the heart, shaped like a crescent or horned moon, is laid to the view. The oyster's heart is made up of two parts, just like that of a human being, one of which receives the blood from the gills and the other drives it out through the arteries. The liver is found in the immediate vicinity of the heart and stomach, and is a queer shaped little organ, which is supposed to perform all the functions of a blood filter.—St. Louis Republic.

Choosing a Novel.

A writer lets out a secret regarding the way in which young women read novels:

It was in the tramcar, that place in which the experiences are varied enough to make a man cosmopolitan if he will study them. Two girls are talking of what they read.

"Oh, I choose a novel easily enough," one said. "I go to the circulating library and look at the last chapters. If I find the rain softly and sadly dropping over one or two lonely graves, I don't take it, but if the morning sun is glimmering over bridal robes of white satin, I know it is all right and take it, and start to buy sweets to eat while I read it."—London Standard.

Business and Theology.

The congregation of a church in Scotland finding itself unable to pay the salary of its minister, a soap firm offered to pay $500 a year for five years, on condition that its advertisement be hung in front of the gallery of the church. The offer was accepted. And now the congregation can learn how to be morally and physically clean at the same time.—New York Tribune.

Smoke and Bacteria.

Professor Hajak of Vienna has declared that smokers are less liable to diphtheria and other throat diseases than nonsmokers in the ratio of 1 to 28. The learned Dr. Schiff also gives us to understand that smoking is always positively forbidden in bacteriological laboratories, because it is known to hinder the development of the bacteria.

Birmingham, England, is the greatest brass making town in the world, and it keeps in steady employment an average of 7,000 brass workers. Paris comes in a good second.

AN ARGUMENT.

They Almost Came to Blows The Trouble Soon Discovered and Everything Now all Right.

It was a quarrel amongst the organs of a man's body.

The man was sick, and his doctor's didn't know what ailed him or how to cure him.

The liver and lungs, the spleen the stomach and the heart all "pitched into" the kidneys.

"It's your fault," said the liver. "You have cerwork to do and you don't do it. It is your place to filter all the poisons and impurities out of the body, and you are not doing it.

"As a consequence," said the stomach, "we are all being clogged. poisoned and irritated. I am irritable and only half digest the food they are forcing into me. Here's the liver all clogged and torpid, the lungs are all choked up, we don't get half enough oxygen, the head is aching, the nerves tingling, the back is aching, and the poor heart is laboring like a sledge-hammer.

"Even the joints and muscles cry out with rheumatic pains."

"But we can't help it," said the kidneys. "We can't do impossibilities. We are sick and weak ourselves and cannot do our work. Of course, these poisons collect in the blood and irritate and disease you. The moment we stop work you feel it. Your health always did and always will depend on our activity."

And just then an ordinary, every-day, common-sense doctor who knew his business was called in and prescribed Dr. Hobb's Sparagus Kidney Pills.

The Kidneys promptly responded and set cheerfully to work with renewed strength and vigor; the Uric Acid, the waste products of decay and of fever, the ashes of digestion and all the poisons and impurities in the blood were cast out.

"Well, that's something like it," said the Lungs. "I'll pitch in and do my work now," said the Stomach.

"What a relief," said the Liver and the Heart, and the Joints and Muscles joined the chorus.

The quarrel was over. It was a happy family, working harmoniously once more.

This sounds like a fairy story, but it is'nt. It's cold, hard, solid facts and common sense.

And you can prove it to your satisfaction at any time for 50 cent .

High School Notes.

The regular meeting of the Kappa Delta Phi was held in the High School building yesterday afternoon. President Wilbur F. Cornwell called the meeting to order for the last time in his term which expired with the close of yesterday's meeting. The programme consisted of accounts of some of the greatest inventors and inventions. William Charles Buell spoke of the inventions of the great American Oliver Evans. Wilbur F. Cornwell gave a very pleasing account of the early clock inventions in Venice. J. Hazelwood Craig spoke to the society of Robert Fulton and his inventions Charles M. Dolliver took for his subject the invention of the cotton gin by Eli Whitney. The subject chosen by Henry Eggerding was John Ericson. Paul W. Kimball related to the society the process of making steel without the use of fuel. Charles Noble spoke about the recent discoveries in illuminating gas, and Ernest Swayzee spoke on Eli Whitney After the programme the usual business meeting was held. Charles Noble, Charles M. Dolliver and J Hazelwood Craig were appointed by the chair to draw up a new and improved constitution; the old constitution having been lost during the summer vacation. As it was the regular time for the election of officers the following were elected: President, Charles Noble; Vice-president, Charles M. Dolliver; Secretary and Treasurer, William Charles Buell; Critic, Willbur F. Cornwell. As there was no other business which could come properly before the society, the society adjourned for one week. The subject of next week's meeting will be "Great Cities of the World."

For the Boys.

The boys' song service at the Y. M. C. A. tomorrow at 4:15 p. m. will be a specially attractive one. Miss Grace Overton will recite, and there will be special music. The musical part of the meeting will be longer than usual, and the speaking will be brief. Every boy under fifteen should try to be present.

An Explosion.

A tube connected to the boiler in the Columbia Cycle Academy blew out yesterday morning at about six o'clock, smashing a wooden door to splinters and breaking one of the doors to the furnace. No one was injured.

Nothing Like It.

Time brings many changes, but the climate of California, "The Italy of America," and the attractions of the many famous health and pleasure resorts, are the same yesterday, today and forever.

Tourists never will tire of speaking in praise of the soft and balmy air, the profusion of flowers, the magnificent display of fruits, the luxury of seabathing and the beautiful walks and drives.

Then, too, it must be conceded that with such excellent equipment, consisting of Reclining Chair Cars, Pullman Palace Sleepers and Pullman Dining Cars, all heated by steam and lighted with Pintsch Light, the Union Pacific, "The Overland Route," is the tourists favorite. Ask your agent for tickets via this route.

The Tea Habit.

"The tea habit is growing on the law abiding people of this peaceful community," says the Philadelphia Record. "The victims drink this beverage as the hardened drunkard drinks whisky. This is the opinion of a local physician of prominence, who has made a study of the matter. 'The intoxicating effects of tea,' said he, 'are not appreciated as fully as they should be. Cheap or improperly brewed tea is known to have caused many functional derangements of the gravest character. Many of the victims, not knowing that their troubles are due to tea drinking, suffer from headache, and often from persistent dizziness and indigestion. Despondency and palpitation of the heart are also among the complaints. Lastly, that dread enemy of every man, insomnia, has many victims among the lot. These are certainly a batch of troublesome symptoms of which any pernicious drug should be proud. There is a great difference in the physiological effect of tea on the system. When it has been used to excess for a considerable period, well defined symptoms supervene. There can be added to the list already given hallucinations, nausea, anorexia, prostration and anxiety and a peculiar kind of intoxication, ending, after hours of vigil, in a torpor from exhaustion.'"

"Say 'Your Grace,' Boy."

The Duke of Hamilton's harriers hunt during the season in this neighborhood, and the "meet" is a welcome relief from the monotony of rural life. On one of these occasions not long ago, when the duke himself was present, the services of a bright Suffolk youth were requisitioned to hold his grace's horse. The duke addressed some kindly remark to the boy, who promptly replied, "Yes, sir!" "Why don't you say 'your grace?'" interposed one of the attendant horsemen. "Say 'your grace,' boy!" Whereupon the youngster reverently put his hands together and audibly recited the words, "For what we are about to receive," etc. Not so bad for silly Suffolk! It needs scarcely be said that he presently had due cause for thankfulness.—Gentleman's Magazine.

The Word Blackguard.

The expression blackguard originally indicated the scullions, kitchen boys and pot washers who brought up the rear when a great man's household was moving from place to place. As these persons were by no means choice in their language or elegant in their deportment, the word was soon applied to those who in speech or action resembled them.—St.

REV. MRS. COLLMAN.

Her Father, Her Boy and Herself Praise Paine's Celery Compound.

Women preachers, as well as women lawyers, women voters, women bicyclists and women in business are making it more and more apparent that "the gentler sex," is not necessarily "the weaker sex," morally, mentally or physically.

Rev. Mrs. Lydia Collman is an example of the womanly woman whose influence for good in the community is on a par with that of the manly man.

She is not one of that silly class of persons who, broken down in health by mental or bodily strain, not quite sick enough to be abed, put of thinking seriously of getting well.

Improperly nourished nerves and poor blood soon pile up a desperate number of disorders.

On the other hand, when reduced health and spirits are early recognized and courageously taken in hand at once, when Paine's celery compound is used to restore the integrity of the nerves and blood, no further troubles is to be feared.

Paine's celery compound at once corrects any unhealthy condition of the nervous system. It forwards the richest possible elements of growth to every nerve cell and the remotest nerve thread throughout the body.

Paine's celery compound positively and permanently cures every form of nervous debility and exhaustion—melancholia, hysteria, headaches, dyspepsia, neuralgia and disordered heart and liver.

The great number of enthusiaetic, unstudied testimonials from men and women living in widely-separated states is one of the best evidences of how Paine's celery compound is regarded all over the country.

Woman's pecular life brings a languor and listlessness that are best met at Paine's celery compound. The dispirited condition, the backaches, the neuralgic headaches, the sleeplessness and nervous debility, that so frequently attack women when their blood is robbed of its vitality is soon dispelled when Paine's celery compound is used.

Mrs. Collman, writing October 30 from her home, 157 Scott st., Wilkesbarre, Penn., says:

"Fully appreciating the benefits from the use of Paine's celery compound I recommend it to others. Suffering from sleeplessness and nervous debility, I was persuaded to use this truly greatest of remedies. Although I can have every medicine from my brothers, the druggists here, I gave Paine's celery compound a trial, and must confess only to my benefit. My only boy, four years old, was also treated with it, and his nervousness has disappeared. My father, Rev. C. Kuehn, with whom I live, thinks a great deal of Paine's celery compound I shall always keep it in the house."

There are untold numbers of women who are working and worrying enough to drive them into their graves if Paine's celery compound were not always in their homes to strengthen and restore their brains and nerves when there was great need of it.

STUDENTS VOLUNTEER SERVICE.

A Novel Service to Help the Physically and Spiritually Helpless.

A very interesting and helpful meeting was held at the Congregational church last evening. The meeting was called a "Student Volunteer Service."

C. W. Wisner, Jr., '76, of Princeton, who is greatly interested in the student volunteer movement, made a very earnest address on the work to be done among the physical and spiritual helpless and poor people. He told something of the amount of work to be done all over the world and spoke especially of the everyday work to be done.

John C. Whiting, '98, of Amherst, also spoke very helpfully. He told of the value of the Bible and the necessity of searching its pages. He suggested many lines of thought and asked a number of searching questions which he left for his hearers to answer to themselves.

A collection was then taken up while an instrumental quartette, composed of Charles Davis, Gilbert Lovell, Lindley Hillman, violins, and Walter Serrell, flute, rendered the "Choral" by Bach, in a very enjoyable manner.

The meeting was led by John V. Beekman, Jr., President of the Christian Endeavor Society, under whose auspices the meeting was given.

Flynn Becomes Insane.

Peter Flynn, an ex-police officer, of Elizabeth, and a veteran of the late war, was last night removed from the Alexian Brothers' to the Union county jail. He has become violently insane. He was employed as a gatetender on the Long Branch Division of the Jersey Central, but suddenly attacked Martin Healy, another gateman, with a club two weeks ago. For this assault Flynn was discharged. This is believed to have been the beginning of his mental derangement. He is fifty-two years old and has a family.

The Eden Musee.

A partial rearrangement of the wax groups at the Eden Musee has been made durtng the past week, and in the main hall the Japanese juggler's group has been thoroughly remodelled. On account of the troubles in Turkey the figure of the Sultan among "The Rulers of the World" attracts special attention. Another figure just remodelled is that of Gen. Jose Marti, the Cuban patriot. New groups are being made as rapidly as possible, and some of them will soon be placed on exhibition.

Where Credit is Due.

That North Plainfield has excellent roads no one can deny, and the fact is due in no small degree to the earnest efforts of Councilmen Smith, Lounsbury and Schutt, of the street committee. Every dollar that is expended on the street shows value received.

Semi-Annual Conference.

The semi-annual conference of the Union County Christian Endeavor Union will be held in the First Presbyterian church at Roselle on Friday evening, the 13th inst., and the programme committee have arranged for a meeting of unusual interest.

Another Leak Discovered.

The source of the gas that has been so strong in the manhole at the corner of West Front street and Central avenue, has been discovered by the gas company's men. A leak was found in the gas main at Central avenue and West Second street and repaired.

New Chairman.

Owing to the resignation of G. F. Brown, as chairman of the lookout committee of the First Baptist church Christian Endeavor Society, Herbert Case has been appointed to take his place. Mr. and Mrs. Brown are in the south for their health.

The wife of Mr. D. Robinson, a prominent lumberman of Hartwick, N. Y., was sick with rheumatism for five months. In speaking of it. Mr. Robinson says: "Chamberlain's Pain Balm is the only thing that gave her any rest from pain. For the relief of pain it cannot be beat." Many very bad cases of rheumatism have been cured by it. For sale at 50 cents per bottle by Reynolds' Pharmacy, Park and North avenues. T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

ANOTHER GALA SIX DAYS.

THE FIREMEN'S FAIR OPENS TONIGHT IN ALL ITS SPLENDOR.

A Number of Original Dances Will Be Introduced, the Most Prominent of Which Is the One Dedicated to the Firemen.

Again Plainfield is to have a gala week and the firemen are the entertainers this time. For another week the Columbia Cycle Academy is to be the centre of attraction for old and young. A mammoth fair, with everything from a baby's rattle to a glass of soda, is to be held, while one of the principal attractions is to be a series of dances and drills arranged for the occasion by Madame Elizabeth Menzeli Bartlett.

A Daily Press reporter was one of the privileged few who were allowed to witness the last dress rehearsal. Many of the booths were left from the Kirmess, as were also all the decorations overhead, but several new booths had to be erected and the rat-tat-tat of the hammer was a steady accompaniment for the dances.

The cantata "The Flower Queen" was the first to be rehearsed after the grand march. There are many pretty tableaux in this cantata and the girls who took part in it did surprisingly well for a rehearsal. The frog dance, which is introduced in the cantata, was very good, and those who saw it could not but agree with the young soloist that "the funniest thing's a frog."

Then followed others, Spanish, scarf and village dances, while a motley throng of swordsmen, flowers, firemen, firewomen, if there is any such thing, and other dancers that watched the stage and the pretty manœuvers and tableaux that followed each other in rapid succession. But the best of the rehearsal was the firemen's drill and it promises to be just as popular during the week. In rushed the fire lads and laddies with axes over their shoulders, the two companies headed by their respective chiefs. Graceful manœuvers and lively marching were the first part of the drill, when suddenly the fire gong behind the scenes rang out an alarm. There was a rush across the stage, all was excitement and everything in apparent confusion, but buckets and extinguishers were soon ready while a squad of firemen brought in a ladder and a line of hose. The flames lighted up the scene and made the bright shirts of the firemen seem all the brighter. In the window of the burning house was seen a ghastly face, the firemen gazed at each other in horror, the ladder couldn't be placed in position before the flames would reach him. Then—but perhaps it is unfair to give away the secrets of the rehearsal, but only let it be said that the drill is a great success and Chief O'Brien is the hero of the occasion.

Thomas Schaeffer gave an exhibition of his wonderful club juggling acts at the rehearsal, but he is known too well to need an introduction to the Plainfield public. He has improved, of course. Prof. O'Brien was there too, and those that attended the Kirmess know what he is when it comes to clog dancing.

The booths are fast assuming their fair costumes, and the large hall of the Academy will again be that sight of Fairyland that so dazzled the gaze of those that attended the Kirmess. There are to be lots of new attractions too, among which is "Thorma," or "the floating bust," as it is called; a a phonograph, a fortune-telling tent, besides hosts of other things.

Plainfield is noted throughout the State for its excellent fire department, and it is these same men that protect us from the disastrous flames, who give the fair. The fire department is a good thing, the fair is a good thing, too, so, in the phraseology of the day, "push it along." The fair opens this evening and will be held every evening this week. Saturday there will be a matinee.

A Mammoth Persimmon.

Louis Mohring, of Linden avenue, received a persimmon from Tampa, Florida, Saturday morning, that weighed eight ounces and measured over three inches in diameter. The persimmon was exhibited in Collier's window this morning.

Contractors Have No Rights.

It should be noted, for the benefit of the local plumbers and persons laying house connections, that the contractor for laying the connections from the sewer to the curb has no rights or preference over the local men for work between the curb and the house.

—The ancestral party at the Congregational church will be held on Wednesday, December 18th, instead of Wednesday, December 11.

REFORM IN CIDER JOINTS.

Curtains Drawn on These Places for the First Time Yesterday.

Reform is beginning to creep into the cider joints. For the first time in their existence these inebriating incubators in the business section of the city had shades drawn on their windows yesterday, which obstructed the view of how they conduct their nefarious business. On the interior, too, signs were posted with the inscription of "no loitering allowed." Heretofore these places have been filled almost to overflowing with a motley gang of men who were drinking the "temperance drinks" to go forth with befuddled brains and unsteady gait to leer at and lurch against respectable people on the public thoroughfares. It was observed that there was less of this conduct yesterday than on any recent Sunday, which gives evidence that the cider joints are selling with more discretion than was the case before The Press called attention to this municipal disgrace. The curtains on the cider joints not only need to be drawn, but the doors barred and the faucets of the cider barrels plugged on Sundays.

Off for California.

Mrs. L. A. Dunn and son, Master Harry Louis, who have been visiting relatives and friends in Plainfield and vicinity since September 30th, leave for their home, Pasadena, Cal., on Saturday evening next, via. the Royal Blue Line, leaving New York at 12:15 midnight. Mrs. E. J. Higgins, of Flemington, and Miss Lillian A. Force, of 82 Duer street, the Borough, will accompany Mrs. Dunn. The former will spend the winter with a sister who lives in Pasadena and Miss Force will enjoy the balmy air of Southern California at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Dunn during the winter, spending a portion of the time at the summit of Echo Mountain with her cousin, F. S. Dunn, who formerly resided in Plainfield, but who is now in the employ of Prof. Lowe, projector and builder of the great Mt. Lowe cable railroad, one of the grandest pieces of mountain railroad engineering in America.

Still a Candidate.

Senator Foster M. Voorhees is still a candidate for the presidency of the Senate. He claims that he has six Senators with him, and should he receive the support of the three Democratic Senators, which support they have voluntarily offered, he will have an excellent chance. He will not seek the aid of the Democrats, but there is no law to prevent them casting their votes for him.

Senator Voorhees states that he is not a candidate for any office that is to be vacated during the term of Governor Griggs. At the end of his Senate term he is going to practice law for all that it is worth.—Newark Advertiser.

Marriage Announced.

The marriage is announced of Miss Sadie Keenan, formerly of East Fifth street, to Andrew Peiffer, also of this city. Mr. and Mrs. Peiffer are living in Elizabeth.

WHAT IS IT?

Dr. Hedges Pronounces It to be the Skull of a White Person.

The skull which has adorned the window of The Daily Press office for the last few days has been the object of considerable speculation. The original theory that it belonged to an Indian was supported by some. Others thought it was the skull of a Negro, while still others were positive that it had been the head of a white person.

On Saturday evening a Daily Press reporter took the skull to Dr. E. W. Hedges who was of the opinion that it belonged to a white man or woman, as it was not shaped like those of either an Indian or a Negro. This makes the theory that the family graveyard of some old settler had been unearthed seem the most plausible. The manner in which they were buried, one above the other, does not appear to follow out that chain of reasoning, though.

Three Years' Experience With Painless Dentistry.

Three years ago Dr. Charles R. Thiers' painless dentistry first became known in Plainfield. With the administration of a new anæsthetic which he at that time introduced, and which he has since greatly improved, his patients are enabled to undergo various dental operations without pain. Three years of experience has not shown one single case where the anæsthetic produced an unfavorable result. The extraction of teeth is no longer a thing to be dreaded at Dr. Thiers' office, No. 13 Grove street.

Dr. M. B. Long, ex-President of the Union County Medical Board, says of it in a letter:

Dr. Charles R. Thiers, My Dear Doctor: Having twice submitted to your method of painless extraction of teeth, I do not hesitate to announce that it was entirely successful.

M. B. Long, M. D.
Ex-President State Medical Board of N. J. 415 Park avenue.

Christian Endeavor Officers.

The following officers have been chosen by the Christian Endeavor society of the First Church of Christ for the ensuing year: President, Charles H. Lewis; Vice-president, Miss Mabel Wilson; Corresponding secretary, Mrs. Ella Hand; Recording secretary, Miss Lillian Sutton; Treasurer, Mrs. Lou Wilson; Organist, Miss Mabel Benner; Assistant organist, Mrs. B. W. Hand; Chorister, H. VanMiddlesworth. The society has thirty-three active members, five associate and seven honorary.

How Small When You Think of It.

Two dollars per year is only about four cents per week. This is all that the organized Aid Association asks, and you can justly say to everyone who begs of you that if they will go to the office of the association and leave their name they will surely be cared for if they are worthy. Send subscriptions to Reynolds' drug store and ask for printed copies of the annual reports of the committees, and of Col. Tyler's valuable contribution to the literature of organized charities.

The Benefit Concert.

The programme for the grand concert at Y. M. C. A. Hall next Thursday, for the benefit of the German Lutheran church, has been completed. Prof. Janke will not be able to take part, and his place on the programme will be filled by Miss Annie Hardenbergh, contralto in the Crescent Avenue church choir. The entire programme will be published on Wednesday.

C. H. Rugg, of East Second street, is the only Odd Fellow in Plainfield who wears a "Veteran's Jewel," having been a member for twenty-five years, which is the qualification.

A Growing City.

The Plainfield contractors and builders say that the past year has been a most excellent one as there has been a great deal of building going on in this city.

Major C. T. Picton is manager of the State Hotel, at Denison, Texas, which the traveling men say is one of the best hotels in that section. In speaking of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy Major Picton says: "I have used it myself and in my family for several years, and take pleasure in saying that I consider it an infallible cure for diarrhœa and dysentery. I always recommend it, and have frequently administered it to my guests in the hotel, and in every case it has proven itself worthy of unqualified endorsement. GEORGE C. GODOWN DEAD.

THE RAVAGES OF A BRIEF ILLNESS TAKES HIM FROM THIS WORLD.

A Favorite Among All His Acquaintances and a Faithful Man at His Duties in the Postoffice—Sketch of His Life.

There is scarcely a person in this vicinity who was not deeply grieved when the news of the sudden death of Assistant Postmaster George C. Godown was received last evening.

One week ago last Friday he was taken with a bilious attack and was obliged to go home, and from that time his strength seemed to grow less. On the Wednesday following he felt slightly better and thought he would go to the office, which he did in a carriage. He remained but a short time, however, and returned again to his home when he rapidly grew worse until he passed away last evening about 5 o'clock. He was conscious up to within an hour of his death.

Mr. Godown was well known and a universal favorite. He was faithful to all, and his genial way was a marked feature in his life and character.

He was born at Limeport, Bucks county, Pa., in June, 1860, and was the only child of Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Godown. When three years old he with his parents moved to Sandy Ridge, Hunterdon county.

He lived there seven years, during which time he attended school. In 1870 he came to Plainfield, where he remained for some time attending school at intervals. In 1880 he secured a position as clerk with M. C. Dobbins in his cigar store, at that time at the corner of Park avenue and Second street. When E. R. Pope was appointed postmaster by President Arthur in March, 1882, he secured a position as stamp clerk. The office was then located on West Front street where Fulper's grocery is at present. During the term in 1884 Mr. and Mrs. Godown moved to Minnesota, remaining there two years. On their return George was engaged as a clerk in the Windsor Hotel at Trenton. From there he went to Point Pleasant and took a similar position, after which he returned to the Windsor Hotel for a time. He then came back to Plainfield, and when the late William L. Force was appointed postmaster by President Cleveland in September, 1887, he returned to the post office as money order clerk, and has been in the office ever since E. R. Pope's second term and J. M. Hetfield's present administration. Upon the latter's appointment he was made assistant postmaster, which position he has filled with perfect satisfaction to his employer and with credit to himself.

His happy and bright disposition won him many friends while in his business he was an expert and perfectly trustworthy.

This morning Postmaster Hetfield draped the general delivery window with crepe while at the top was placed an excellent photograph of decedent.

In the home his place can never be filled, so closely knitted were the home ties, and at the postoffice he will be greatly missed by all. He was exceedingly popular with everyone, for whom he always had a good word.

The funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 from his late home, 402 Central avenue, and burial will be made in the family plot at Sandy Ridge, Wednesday morning.

Well-Known Man Dead.

Henry A. Ostermoor, a well-known resident of Netherwood, died at his home on Belvidere avenue this morning after a ten-days illness of Bright's disease. Mr. Ostermoor was in the upholstering business in New York, and made a specialty of furnishing large halls, churches, etc. He was very well liked by all who knew him and has a large circle of friends. A wife, two sons and a daughter survive him.

E. W. Hicks for Adrain's Place.

Petitions to ask Governor-elect John W. Griggs to appoint Edward W. Hicks Prosecutor of the Pleas for Middlesex county are in circulation in Middlesex. Mr. Hicks represented Middlesex in Trenton last session, and was re-elected this year with an increased majority. Mr. Hicks is a stanch Republican.

Cheap for Cash.

A raffle was held in North Plainfield, Saturday evening, for a valuable horse. Jedediah M. Smalley was the lucky man and held the number that was drawn. The horse, which was a very good one, cost Mr. Smalley thirty-seven cents.

Unbecoming Conduct.

John T. Hayward was expelled from a tribe of Red Men, at Jersey City, last week, because he married a second wife before the first one had been buried two weeks. The tribe considered the act one unbecoming an Improved Red Man.

THE BEAUTIFUL SNOW IS HERE.

It Comes as the First Taste of Winter and Many Rejoice.

Tiny particles of the beautiful frozen flakes of congealed water, transparent in the moonlight, drifted lazily towards old Mother Earth last night at 9 o'clock and this morning the vision of humanity was greeted with an immaculate expanse of snow, covering all places save those swept by wintry blasts. It was the first real snow storm of the season. It brought joy to the mind of the ambitious youth in the expectancy of enjoying winter sports, and to the liveryman and coal dealer it was a forerunner to a regular harvest of Uncle Sam's golden coins; to the man about the house it brought visions of shovels and great banks of snow to be shoveled away to open an avenue of egress from fireside to business; to the merchant a brisk increase in trade is one of the necessary adjuncts; to the plumber it is the means of transforming him for the time being into an autocrat and a miniature mint; to humanity at large it comes as the first taste of winter, and we are all glad of it.

Mrs. Miller's "At Home."

The last and most successful of the pleasant "at homes" of Mrs. Isaac L. Miller, of Watchung avenue, was held Saturday afternoon and evening. There was a very large attendance. The parlors were charmingly decorated with immense chrysanthemums and potted plants. The dining table presented a pleasing appearance with its decorations of smilax and pink roses. Mrs. Miller and Miss Miller were assisted in receiving by Mrs. Howard Fleming, Mrs. John Gray Foster, and the Misses Daisy Shephard, Gertrude Baker, Annie K. Miller and Marion Bowen.

Lecture at All Souls Church.

A regular meeting of the study class, carried on by the Alliance of Unitarian and Other Liberal Women, will be held in the lecture room of All Souls church tomorrow afternoon at three o'clock. Mrs. Charles T. Catlin, of Brooklyn, a prominent member of the Brooklyn Woman's Club, will give a paper on the lives of Margaret Fuller and Sister Dora, as typical examples of self-culture and self-sacrifice, and there will be an opportunity for general informal discussion. Admission will be free and visitors will be cordially welcomed.

Missionary Women of the State.

The Women's Auxiliary of New Jersey will hold a missionary meeting Tuesday, Dec. 10th, in the Church of the Redeemer at 3 p. m. Addresses will be made by Miss Emory, of New York, and Mrs. Williamson, of Elizabeth. All interested are cordially invited.

When They Take Hold.

The new city officers-elect will assume their several duties on Monday, January 6th.

When most needed it is not unusual for your family physician to be away from home. Such was the experience of Mr. J. Y. Schenck, editor of the Caddo, Ind. Ter., Banner, when his little girl, two years of age was threatened with a severe attack of croup. He says: "My wife insisted that I go for the doctor, but as our family physician was out of town I purchased a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, which relieved her immediately. I will not be without it in the future." 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by Reynoldss' Pharmacy, Park and North avenues, T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

BIG GUN REPUBLICANS

Meeting of the National Executive Committee.

Work of Selecting a City in Which To Hold the Next National Convention Will Not Be Begun Before Wednesday—The Fight a Free One at Present.

Washington, Dec. 9.—The rotunda of the Arlington hotel presented an animated scene early this morning. Everywhere republican politicians of national repute were to be found. "Joe" Manley of Maine, Chauncey I. Filley of Missouri, Fessenden of Connecticut, Payne of Wisconsin and Clarkson of Iowa, were conspicuous among the throng. Senator Aldrich of Rhode Island looked in for a short time to renew his acquaintance with some of his New England friends. Senator Sherman of Ohio, fresh from a long conference in the upper rooms of the hotel with Mark Hanna of Cleveland, and others of the Ohio friends of Gov. McKinley, shook hands with Senator Carter of Montana, the chairman of the national republican executive committee. This afternoon the eleven members of the executive committee, of which Mr. Manley of Maine is chairman, will meet in the gentleman's rooms at the Arlington to dispose of certain unfinished business remainining over since the last campaign. The first meeting of the full committee will be held at 2 o'clock to-morrow. Every member is already in the city, or is represented by proxy. It is not unlikely that Tuesday will be devoted to a discussion of such routine matters as will naturally form a part of the committee work, and that the placing in nomination of the cities which are seeking the honor of entertaining the convention will be postponed until Wednesday. The committee will thus be two days in session.

The Fight for the Convention.

It does not appear to-day that any of the contesting cities has at this time any especial advantage in the race. Editor H. E. Osborne of Los Angeles, speaking for the California delegation, expresses himself as very hopeful of success. Mr. Osborne says that San Francisco will start with nine votes from the Rocky mountain country which will not desert San Francisco under any circumstances. He claims two votes in New England and a number of others in the west, mindle, and trans-Mississippi country. He predicts that San Francisco will show a greater strength on the first ballot than any of its competitors. The committee from St. Louis, headed by Mayor Walbridge, arrived last night at the Arlington and at once opened their headquarters. One St. Louis delegate, speaking with a United Press correspondent, expressed the belief that, while St. Louis' claims will be vigorously opposed by the friends of other cities, victory will at last perch upon her banner. Without attempting to disparage the rival claimants, he directed especial attention to the central location of the Missouri metropolis, to its splendid railway connections, its numerous and commodious hotels, etc.

New York Too Far East.

New York, which is also a claimant, is not regarded seriously. The western men regard New York as being too far east to justify sending the convention there and it is also though that the enormous population surrounding the city would so completely swallow up the convention that its identity and prominence would be practically destroyed. Information was received this morning that the committee of New Yorkers who will visit Washington in its behalf will not reach here until late this afternoon. They also will establish headquarters at the Arlington. The Pittsburg committee are expected today. The Ohio people are scrupulously refraining from participation in the the struggle for choice of location, contenting themselves with booming the candidacy of Gov. McKinley and leaving the choice of place to the friends of the various cities. They express the hope, however, that the convention may go to some central city and are inclined to believe that ultimately Chicago or St. Louis will be selected.

No Majority on First Ballot.

The number of votes cast in the committee will be fifty-three. This will be one each from the forty-four states and seven territories, including Alaska, the Indian Territory and the District of Columbia, and those of Senator Carter of Montana, the chairman, and Mr. Bliss of New York, the treasurer of the committee. It will thus be seen that twenty-seven votes are necessary to a choice. A careful inquiry among committeemen and others this morning reveals the fact that no one city will have a majority of votes on the first ballot. To an unprejudiced observer it is evident that San Francisco, Chicago, St. Louis and Pittsburg will be well represented at the start.

Severe Storm in Sicily.

Rome, Dec. 9.—Violent storms are prevailing in Tuscany, Calabria and Sicily. Several wrecks have been reported and it is feared that a number of lives have been lost.

Another Italian Cruiser for Turkey.

Rome, Dec. 9.—The cruiser Piemonte, which was ordered a few days ago to rejoin the Italian squadron in the Levant, has started from Naples for the east.

Marlboroughs at Monte Carlo.

Monte Carlo, Dec. 9.—The Duke of Marlborough and his bride, formerly Miss Consuelo Vandertilt of New York, have arrived here.

MILITARY CADETS.

Congress To Be Urged To Change the Manner of Their Selection.

Washington, Dec. 9.—The report of the board of visitors to the West Point military academy urges congress to pass an act which will permit the appointment of twenty cadets by the president, one by each senator and one by each representative and delegate, increasing the strength of the corps from 371, as now authorized, to 469. It is recommended that the present law regarding examinations for admission to the academy be repealed and the following enacted: "Appointees of the military academy shall be examined under such regulations relative to time, manner, place and subjects of study as may be prescribed from time to time by the secretary of war." The report discusses at length the low standard for admission to West Point as compared with Yale, Harvard, Princeton, Johns Hopkins university, or the better colleges of the United States and the military schools of Europe, and says there seems to be no reason for committing the power of fixing the requisites for admission to the naval academy to the secretary of the navy which could not be urged in favor of giving the secretary of war the same power regarding West Point.

APACHE MURDERERS.

Troops on Their Trail, But the Indians Will Probably Escape.

Deming, N. M., Dec. 9.—News from the scene of the murders in Arizona committed by renegade Apaches from the San Carlos reservation states that the troops from forts Bayard and Grant are on the trail and that it leads to the line of old Mexico into the Sierra Madre mountains, the strongbold of the renegades for years. By treaty soldiers can cross the international boundary to pursue the Indians, but the country is so rough and mountainous that it is very improbable that they will ever get within one hundred miles of the murderers. In all, six murders are reported. A party of miners from Duncan, Arizona, left in advance of the soldiers, heavily armed and well mounted, and at last accounts were following the Indians within two hours. These crimes are the work of a few murderous bucks and do not indicate an outbreak.

DECORATED BY SPAIN.

Two British Lieutenants Honored for Gallantry in Cuba.

Madrid, Dec. 9.—A dispatch to the Imparcial from Havana says that the military decoration of the Red Cross has been accorded to Lieuts. Churchill and Barnes of the British army for gallantry displayed by them during the recent engagement between the government forces and the rebels commanded by Gomez and Maceo. Lieut. Churchill is a son of the late Lord Randolph Churchill. Both he and Lieut. Barnes were with the Spanish forces under Gen. Suarez Valdez in the battle on December 2 at La Reforma and were complimented in the official reports.

PATRIOTS OF AMERICA.

A New Secret Order To Restore the Bimetallic Standard.

Chicago, Dec. 9.—A national secret political order, founded by William H Harvey, the author of "Coin's Financial School," will file articles of incorporation with the secretary of state at Springfield within the next few days. It is to be known as the Patriots of America, and its sole object is the restoration of the bimetallic standard. Charters, it is said, have been made out and will be sent immediately to at least 1,400 lodges in various parts of the United States.

PLOTTED AGAINST THE KING.

Many Americans Accused by the Corean Government.

London, Dec. 9.—A dispatch from Shanghai says that the Corean government has asked the Russian and American legation to surrender or disclose the whereabouts of Li Han Shin and other conspirators recently taking refuge in the legations. The Corean government accuses many Russians and Americans of sharing in the plot against the king.

Against Women Preachers.

Memphis, Tenn., Dec. 9.—At the Mississippi Methodist conference south, in session at Yazoo City, Bishop Duncan ruled emphatically that the Methodist church does not recognize the right of women to preach, but adheres to the doctrine of St. Paul on the subject. Considerable feeling has been aroused on the question in Mississippi and Tennessee, many laymen taking issue with the bishops.

H. Thane Miller Dead.

Cincinnati, Dec. 9.—H. Thane Miller, the blind president of the Mount Auburn institute, died of heart disease early yesterday morning. He was famous all over the country through his connection with the Y. M. C. A. He had taught at the institute the last twenty years.

Christmas Gift for Her Friend.

Boston, Dec. 9.—Mrs. Cleveland has purchased a life-sized intaglio of a child holding lilies, entitled "Blessed Are the Pure in Heart." It is to be sent to England as a Christmas present from the president's wife to her friend, Mrs. Curzon, nee Leiter.

A Preacher Commits Suicide.

Golden, Mo., Dec. 9.—Hiram Hillard, a Baptist preacher 82 years of age, cut his throat and then jumped from a high bluff yesterday. Poor health was the cause.

Prince Murat Dead.

Paris, Dec. 9.—Prince Louis Murat, a member of Gen. Duchesne's staff in Madagascar, has died from malaria. He was 23 years old.

GEORGE A. SALA DEAD

Well-Known English Journalist and Author.

A Contributor to Many Newspapers and Magazines and a War Correspondent in Several Countries, Including America During Our Late Civil War—Some of His Works.

London, Dec. 9.—Gerge Augusta Sala, the well-known journalist and author, died yesterday at Brighton, where he had been ill for a long time.

George Augustus Henry Sala was the son of an Italian gentleman, who married a favorite English singer of West Indian extraction. He was born in London in 1828, was brought up with a view to following art as a profession, but quitted it for literature, and became a constant contributor to Household Words. He was an extensive and regular contributor to the Welcome Guests, the founder and first editor of the Temple Bar Magazine, for which he wrote the stories of "The Seven Sons of Mammon," and "Captain Dangerous," afterwards republished as separate works; wrote for several years in the Illustrated London News, the Hogarth papers in the Cornhill Magazine, and a story entitled "Quite Alone," for All The Year Round, which appeared in a separate form in November, 1864.

"America in the Midst of War."

He went as special correspondent of the Daily Telegraph to the United States in 1863, and on his return at the close of 1864 he published the result of his observations under the title of "America in the Midst of War." He wrote in 1864 a series of graphic letters for the Daily Telegraph from Algeria, and revisited Algeria and Morocco in 1875. In 1870 Mr. Sala was at Metz and in eastern France as war correspondent for the Daily Telegraph. After witnessing the fall of the empire in Paris on Sept. 4 he went to Rome to record the entry of the Italian army into the Eternal City. In January, 1875, he visited Spain on the occasion of the entry of Alfonso XII. On his return in April he was dispatched to Venice to describe the fetes consequent on the interview between the Emperor Francis Joseph and King Victor Emmanuel, and he afterward published his impressions under the title of "Two Kings and a Kaiser." In December, 1876, he visited Russia as special correspondent for the Daily Telegraph, and traveling from St. Petersburg to Moscow proceeded thence to Warsaw, and subsequently traversed the length of the empire to observe the mobilization then in progress of the Russian army, ultimately reaching Odessa and Constantinople by the Black sea in time for the opening of the conference on the eastern question.

Some of His Works.

His best known works in addition to those already mentioned, are "How I Tamed Mrs. Cruiser," published in 1858; "Twice Around the Clock" and "Journey Due North: a Residence in Russia," in 1859; "The Baddington Peerage," "Looking at Life," and "Make Your Game, a Narrative of the Rhine," in 1860; "Dutch Pictures, with Some Sketches in the Flemish Manner," in 1861; "Accepted Addresses," "Ship Chandler, and Other Tales," and "Two Prima Donnas and the Dumb Poor Porter," in 1862; "Breakfast in Bed," and "Stange Adventures of Captain Dangerous," in 1863, "Paris Herself Again," and "America Revisited," in 1882; "A Journey Due South," in 1885. A description of a visit to Australia in that year was published in the Daily Telegraph, under the title of "The Land of the Golden Fleece." Mr. Sala's autobiography was published early in 1895.

HE AIDED DR. MOORE.

A Manchester, N. H., Bank Cashier Short in His Accounts.

Concord, N. H., Dec. 9.—Another sensation remains to be added to those connected with the career of Dr. J. C. Moore of Manchester. After laying quiet for a month the secret has leaked out that D. Warren Lane, cashier of the Merchants' National bank of Manchester has been found to have a shortage of $44,000 in his accounts. He has resigned and turned all his property over to the bank, being left penniless. Cashier Lane's shortage was incurred by holding and carrying drafts of Dr. Moore unknown to the bank officials.

A Policeman Kills Himself.

Pittsburg, Dec. 9.—Edward Milligan, an Allegheny policeman, committed suicide yesterday at his boarding house in that city by shooting himself. He had been on the police force for twelve years. He suffered from nervous prostration as a result of sunstroke several years ago.

R. C. Livingston Dead.

New York, Dec. 9.—Robert Cambridge Livingston, well known in society and club circles in this city, died yesterday at his home at Islip, Long Island, of Bright's disease, aged 49 years. He was treasurer of the National Express company.

Morgan Guilty of Murder.

Omaha, Neb., Dec. 9.—The jury in the case of George Morgan, accused of the murder of Ida Gaskill, a girl 11 years of age, only five weeks ago, brought in a verdict yesterday, finding Morgan guilty and sentencing him to be hanged.

The Gold Reserve Increased.

Chicago, Dec. 9.—During the past ten days the gold reserve has been increased $200,000 through the Chicago sub-treasury by money received from country banks.

THE WEEK IN CONGRESS

No Calendar and No Order of Business.

Pending the Filling of Committee Vacancies But Little Business Can Be Done--Behring Sea Matter in the Senate—House May Adjourn Until Wednesday.

Washington, Dec. 9.—The second week in the senate will be an undeterminable quantity. Pending the filling of committee vacancies but little business can be transacted, and it is not expected that these vacancies will be supplied until the latter part of the week, if then. There is no calendar, and no order of business has been agreed upon. To-day, however, Mr. Morgan will call up his resolution referring that part of the president's message relating to the payment of the British Behring sea claims to the committee on foreign relations, with instructions to examine into the question of liability to Great Britain and report to the senate by bill or otherwise. The speech which Mr. Morgan has carefully prepared to accompany his motion will consume the greater part of the afternoon. It is understood to be a severe arraignment of the administration and a caustic criticism on the "officious intermeddling," as he terms it, of the British ambassador, who, in an official dispatch to the British foreign office, made public first in London and afterwards in this country, controverted some of Mr. Morgan's statements on the floor of the senate. Mr. Morgan originally strongly antagonized the proposition to pay Great Britain the lump sum of $425,000 for the alleged illegal seizure of Canadian sealers, prior to the award of the Paris tribunal (of which he was a member), without an investigation, and as the president has again recommended such payment the Alabama senator, it is understood, will present his reasons for opposing the payment of the British claims in detail, and in his most vigorous style. His speech will probably create considerable sensation.

Judge Peckham's Nomination.

On Tuesday Mr. Cullom will address the senate on his resolution relative to the Monroe doctrine, and the Illinois senator will take strong grounds for pronounced American policy in our dealings with other nations. This afternoon a special meeting of the judiciary committee will be held to consider the nomination of Rufus W. Peckham to be associate justice of the supreme court. As there appears to be no objection to this nomination it is believed a confirmation will speedily follow the favorable report it is expected the committee will make at the next executive session. Senator Hill reached Washington Saturday night and will be at the meeting of the judiciary committee, of which he is a member. It is asserted that the notable visit in company with Secretary Lamont paid to the attorney general on "legal business" a few weeks ago had reference to Judge Peckham's nomination.

No Programme in the House.

No programme of business has been arranged for the house this week, nor can any be until Speaker Reed announces the committees, and thus provide the necessary machinery for full operation of the body. Two diametrically opposite reports were in circulation yesterday regarding the speaker's intentions. One was that the committees would be announced today or Tuesday; the other that the list would not be made out until just before the adjournment for the holidays. The best judgment seems to be that the speaker will not be prepared to-day to name the committees, and that the house will adjourn until Wednesday or Thursday and thus permit members to attend the meeting of the national republican committee, called to select the place of holding the convention in 1896.

THE PRESIDENT'S DUCK SHOOT.

To-day and To-morrow Will Be Spent at Hatteras.

Norfolk, Va., Dec. 9.—The Violet with President Cleveland and party aboard was anchored off Roanoke island all day Sunday. During the night the party went down to Hatteras where two days will be spent. Early Wednesday morning the Violet will start on the return trip, stopping for a day at Roanoke marshes arriving here Thursday. The president is reported well.

3,000 Hands Temporarily Idle.

McKeesport, Pa., Dec. 9.—The butt-weld department of the National Tube works has closed down and will not start up again until the first of the year, giving about 3,000 men and boys a month's vacation. The cause of the shut-down is to make repairs.

Brakeman's Peculiar Fatality.

Terre Haute, Ind., Dec. 9.—Oliver Tarbert, a railroad switchman, was instantly killed yesterday in a peculiar manner. With a lighted lantern in his hand he was passing an oil tank box car when an explosion occurred which sent his body fifty feet into the air.

Bank Robbed by Safe Blowers.

Oronogo, Mo., Dec. 9.—The bank of Oronogo was robbed by safe blowers about midnight. The books of the concern were burned and $1,300 in money stolen.

Capt. Bassett's Condition.

Washington, Dec. 9.—The condition of Capt. Bassett, the venerable doorkeeper of the senate, is unchanged today. He is very feeble.

FRIGHTENED THE SULTAN.

He Thought a Man with a Petition Intended To Kill Him.

London, Dec. 9.—A dispatch from Constantinople, dated Dec. 6, says that on Friday, during the Selamlik, when the sultan goes to the mosque to perform his devotions, an incident occurred that caused a great commotion. As the sultan was leaving the mosque a man in Turkish dress, holding a petition in one of his hands, pushed through the cordon of military guarding the route and threw himself in front of the imperial carriage. He was immediately arrested and hustled off to prison. The affair created much excitement, owing to the general feeling of anxiety. The sultan was completely unnerved, and his face was deathly pale. There is no doubt that he thought an attempt was about to be made on his life. The contents of the petition are unknown. The dispatch adds that all the representatives of the powers have now received instructions from their governments to insist upon the admission of second guardships to Constantinople. Action on the demand is therefore imminent. Said Pasha, the ex-grand vizier, still remains at the British embassy, where he sought refuge, believing that his life was in danger. He is obdurate to all the sultan's appeals to leave the embassy. His majesty requested the diplomats of the other powers to make representations to Said, but they will make no attempt to bring pressure to bear upon him. They will leave him entire liberty of action in the negotiations between himself and the palace.

HAYWARD STILL BITTER.

Would Like To Wreak Vengeance on His Brother Before Being Hung.

Minneapolis, Dec. 9.—When Harry Hayward heard the news of his doom from Sheriff Blomberg he did not lose his great nerve and at once entered into a violent denunciation of his brother Adry. "That's a long time to wait for a railroad train," he said, when the sheriff informed him that his death warrant had been fixed for execution Wednesday. Hayward then dictated the following statement: "A short time is as good as longer time and I am as ready now as I ever shall be. I had rather be hung than go to Stillwater jail for life. If the governor would come over here and talk with me I would tell him some things. I've had a good time here and I will have a good time yet. I have no kick coming. They ought to go back to the old times. People are too soft-hearted now. If I had Adry here I'd put his eyes out and I'd have Blixt look on; then I'd cut them up and throw them to the dogs. I'm not made of milk and water."

IS GEN. HARRISON TO WED?

Mrs. Dimmock Distressed That Such a Report Had Been Circulated.

New York, Dec. 9.—A dispatch from Washington was published here yesterday stating that Mrs. Dimmock, a niece of the late Mrs. Benjamin Harrison, would shortly marry the ex-president. Regarding the report a reporter called on Mrs. Dimmock at her home, No. 40 West Thirty-eight street, in this city. She courteously begged to be excused, and, in reply to a query as to the truth of the report, sent back word that she was much distressed to think that such a report had been circulated, and that she must be excused from saying anything. A member of the family supplemented Mrs. Dimmock's reply by saying that Gen. Harrison was the proper person to be seen upon this matter.

W. M. WILLETT DEAD

He Abandoned the Pulpit To Become a Hebrew Professor.

Jersey City, Dec. 9.—Prof. Wm. M. Willett died last night at his home in this city from debility incident to old age. He was born in New York and was 93 years old. He was a member of the Willett family, after which Willett street was named. His great-great-grandfather was the first mayor of New York, he having been appointed by Gov. Nichols in 1667. Deceased was a pioneer of the Methodist church in the United States and made a name as a preacher, but abandoned the pulpit to become Hebrew professor of Wesleyan university at Middletown, Conn. He afterwards occupied the same chair at the Biblical institute at Concord, N. H.

HOPE FOR MRS. MAYBRICK.

The Home Secretary Will Reconsider Her Case.

London, Dec. 9.—Sir Matthew White Ridley, the home secretary, has undertaken to reconsider the case of Mrs. Florence Maybrick. Mrs. Maybrick's friends are hopeful that Sir Matthew will find grounds to release the prisoner.

Celebrated Her 100th Birthday.

Concord, N. H., Dec. 9.—Mrs. Lydia O. Tenney yesterday quietly observed the 100th anniversary of her birth. She is in excellent health and spirits. Her faculties are practically unimpaired, and she does not appear to be over 70. Mrs. Tenney has had nine children, of whom Daniel C. Tenney, a prosperous farmer, now in his 75th year, is the only survivor.

Approves the Ambassador's Action.

London, Dec. 9.—Lord Salisbury has sent a message to Sir Philip Currie, the British ambassador, expressing his approval of his conduct in harboring Said. In the meantime the gates of the embassy are closed and a force from the Imogene patrols the grounds.

Surrounded by Police Spies.

Constantinople, Dec. 9.—The British embassy is surrounded by police spies. A trustworthy writer declares that twelve hundred Armenians and ten Turks have been slain in Sivas.

Duchess of York's Accouchment.

London, Dec. 9.—The accouchment of the Duchess of York is daily expected.

THE GERMAN CAPITAL

Matters of General Interest from Berlin.

Impartial Comment on President Cleveland's References to the Fatherland in His Message—Destructive and Fatal Gales—Brilliant Winter Season.

Berlin, Dec. 9.—Amongst the chorus of press declarations against President Cleveland's references to Germany in his recent message to congress, and threats of bringing into action Germany's power to make reprisals, the Vorwarts, the principal socialist journal, is notably impartial and its clear-sighted article stands almost alone in warning Germans that the industrial supremacy of the United States must be admitted. "It is based," the article says, "upon the inexhaustible natural wealth of the country and is enormously developed by enterprise and the technical skill and intelligence of workmen who are less oppressed than the workingmen of impoverished Europe. The prosperity of America is growing yearly and even its steel and iron products are now excelling those of European countries." The Vorwarts advises the critics of President Cleveland to place less reliance upon the argument that America needs German wares.

Census of Germany.

The census of Germany, which was taken last Monday, was the most careful and thorough ever known. The questions asked involved in every particular employment, physical condition nationality and religion and everything calculated to place the authorities in possession of all the facts of social and individual life. Many of the newspapers complain, however, that the system has become too inquisitorial. The sum of the results will not be known for some time, but the figures show that the population of Berlin is 1,674,112, which is an increase of only six per cent. during the last five years as compared with an increase of twenty per cent. in the previous five years. As the suburbs, where the population now overflows, are not included in the city the returns give a false impression of the spread of the capital.

Great Damage by Gales.

The gales which prevailed throughout Germany, with their resultant damage, still continue. At Bremen, Hamburg and Kiel there have been numerous shipping casualties, steamboat traffic has ceased, and inland traffic is greatly impeded. The rivers Fulda, Saale, Jaget, Kocher and Kinzig have overflowed their banks, inundating great tracts of land. The loss of life and property has been heavy, but details are difficult to obtain as yet. At Oldenburg a workshop was blown down yesterday while twenty-five men were at work within. Three men were killed and seven were seriously injured. The Hankhausen inn at Oldenburg was struck by lightning and set on fire and destroyed, and three persons were burned to death. The dykes of the Baltic-North sea canal at Randsburg, Holstein, have burst and other damage to the canal is reported. The Copenhagen mail has been stopped, vessels not daring to venture out, and an immense amount of loss of property in Jutland is reported.

The Winter Season.

Despite the cabinet troubles arising from differences between Herr von Koeller and the other ministers, and the impending crisis at Constantinople fashionable and official circles in Berlin are looking forward to a brilliant winter season. The ex-Empress Frederick has arrived in Berlin for a stay extending over the carnival festivities and Princess von Hohenlohe and her daughters resumed their residence at the chancelleric on Thursday. The presence of these personages in Berlin always implies the coming of numerous members of the continental aristocracy for the season. M. de Szogyeny-Marich, the Austrian ambassador, inaugurated a series of dinners on Thursday, at which United States Ambassador Runyon, Prince and Princess Radziwill, Count and Countess Potocki, Count von Lerchenfell, Dr. de Araujo, the Brazilian minister, and other distinguished persons were guests.

De Kay's Fencing Club.

Charles De Kay, United States consul-general here, has secured twelve charter members of the fencing club which he is forming in Berlin, including Prof. Miller, J. B. Jackson, secretary of the American embassy; Lieut. Vreeland, the American naval attache; P. Knowles, Capt. Evans, American military attache; Secretary Squires, United States Vice-Consul Zimmerman and Lord Greville. Herr Dowe, the tailor who invented the bullet-proof coat, is dying at Wiesbaden. He has been married to his companion on his recent tour, Miss Drane, the champion rifle shot.

May Never Be Inentified.

Buffalo, Dec. 9.—The body of the young lady who committed suicide a week ago yesterday is likely to be buried among the unidentified dead. It is not that of Miss Bertha Stewart of Lyndock, Ont.

Big Blaze in Chicago.

Chicago, Dec. 9.—Fire in the notion house of H. B. Wolf & Co., yesterday, caused a loss of between $200,000 and $300,000 on the stock and abont $80,000 on the building.

Italy's Duty on Wheat.

Rome, Dec. 9.—The government has under consideration a proposal to increase by fifty centimes the duty on imported wheat.

Seven cities want the National Republican convention of 1896.

There is talk of changing the name of New Brunswick to Brunswick. Quite proper to drop the new. It is a misnomer.

Now is the time when the venturesome youngster goes forth with a pair of skates and comes back from an experience which the newspapers term as a "narrow experience from drowning."

Thirty-two men have held the office of Speaker of the House of Representatives, and more than twenty of them have been candidates for nomination for the office of President. Several of them were nominated, the number including Henry Clay, John Bell and James G. Blaine, but James K. Polk was the only man who held the office of Speaker who was afterward elected President. Polk was the thirteenth Speaker of the House, and his nomination for President was an accident, the result of a deadlock.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Bert Bodine, of Grandview avenue, returned from Lambertville yesterday.

Miss Ayers has accepted a position as clerk in Edsall's Commercial Palace.

H. B. Newhall, formerly of East Seventh street, was the guest of Plainfield friends yesterday.

Miss Adriene Allison, of Brooklyn, is visiting her sister, Mrs. August Trust, of Somerset street.

Miss Anna McQuade, of Brooklyn, spent Sunday with Miss J. I. Philpitt, of West Front street.

C. W. Wisner, Jr., of Princeton College, spent Sunday with J. V. Beekman, Jr., of West Eighth street.

Mr. and Mrs. Warmer S., Young, of Harlem, were in town over Sunday visiting Mr. and Mrs. R. F. R. Huntsman.

Mrs. C. K. Crook, of Brooklyn, who has been visiting her sister, Mrs. Jas. Philpitt, of West Front street, for the last four months, has returned home. Mrs. Philpitt accompanied her for a visit.

THEATRICAL.

The man with a hobby is no longer considered eccentric, but a man who nurses and cares for two hobbies is still worthy of more than passing notice. Mr. Thomas. J. Grady, of the Jolly Old Chums Company, has a penchant for Boutonnieres and an equally strong passion for scarf pins, the maintenance of both of which has caused him considerable money and worriment; the flower which adorns his coat lapel must be perfect in color and shape, and perfectly fresh so that Mr. Grady finds it necessary to renew floral adornments very frequently. His other hobby has probably cost him more money than his first as he now has in his possession thirty of the handsomest scarf pins in New York; he has one for every day in the month and they are the quintessence of neatness.

—See the pawnbroker's advertisement in another column.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Jackson spent yesterday in town.

Mrs. Fred Canfield, of Somerville, is the guest of Plainfield friends.

Mr. and Mrs. John L. Edsall have named their young daughter Gladys.

A slight improvement has been noted in the condition of Abram Hooley.

Miss Graff, of Newark, Delaware, is a guest at the home of Charles W. McCutchen of Rockview avenue.

Captain Doane, of LaGrande avenue, has returned from a pleasant visit in New York, with relatives.

Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Lowry, of Central avenue, left for Philadelphia Saturday where they will visit friends.

Mrs. Charles Naylor, of Brooklyn, is visiting at the home of her mother, Mrs. S. Sanders, West Second street.

Mrs. Fred Knowland, of Logan's Ferry, Pa., who has been visiting friends in this city, has returned to her home.

Miss Jessie Stevens, of Park avenue, is still confined to her home by illness. There is, however, a slight improvement.

Assistant State Secretary A. B. Clemens, of the Y. M. C. A., spent Sunday in Plainfield, the guest of friends.

James C. Smith, of Elmwood place, has received word from his daughter, living in Newark, that her daughter is very ill.

Miss Nettie Hickman, of Brooklyn, has been visiting at the home of her uncle, A. C. LaBoyteaux of Fairview avenue.

Miss Stella Place, daughter of Charles Place, of Grove street, is spending a few weeks with out-of-town relatives.

The engagement is announced of Miss Mary E. Thorn, of East Second street, to William C. LaRue, of New Brunswick.

Miss Carrie Gardner, of East Fifth street, is very much improved in health, which fact her many friends will be pleased to learn.

Mr. and Mrs. TenEyck, their daughter, Mrs. Harris and her son, Lloyd, of South Plainfield, spent yesterday with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Conover, of Elmwood place.

Miss Sadie Blimm, of Somerset street, and Miss Lucy Crosson, of West Front street, were the guests Friday of Miss Sophie Rudd, of New York, formerly of this city.

The engagement of Miss Adelle Hunter, of West Seventh street, to Edward Meaney, also of this city, is announced. The marriage will take hlace about Christmas week.

In the New York society notes of last week the name appears of Miss Daisy Shepard receiving at the large coming out reception given Thursday afternoon by Mr. and Mrs. William Warner Hoppin, to introduce their daughter, Miss Esther Hoppin.

George L. VanEmburgh, of East Second street, was suddenly stricken with colic last evening while at the evening meal. Dr. Jenkins was summoned and remained with him until 9 o'clock when the excruciating pain subsided. Today he is much better and if the weather permits he will be able to be at the store tomorrow.

Great Reduction in Time to California.

Once more the Northwestern Line has reduced the time of its trans-continental trains, and the journey from Chicago to California via this popular route is now made in the marvelously short time of three days. Palace drawing-room sleeping cars leave Chicago daily, and run through to San Francisco and Los Angeles, without change, and all meals en route are served in dining cars. Daily tourist sleeping car service is also maintained by this line between Chicago and San Francisco and Los Angeles, completely equipped berths in upholstered tourist sleepers being furnished at a cost of only $6 each from Chicago to the Pacific Coast. Through trains leave Chicago for California at six p. m. and 10.30 p. m. daily, after arrival of trains of connecting lines from the east and south. For detailed information concerning rates, routes, etc., apply to ticket agents of connecting lines or address: H. A. Gross, G. E. P. A., 423 Broadway, New York, or T. P. Vaille, S. E. P. The game in The Standard League scheduled for tomorrow night between the Roselle Casino and the Park Club, will be rolled tonight on the Park alleys.

The bowling team of the Crescent Wheelmen leave on the 7:03 train this evening for Bergen Point, where they will roll their first game away from home against the New Jersey Athletic Club. A number of rooters will accompany them as well as a male quartette to furnish music during the evening.

BASKET BALL.

Physical Director D. A. McPhie has organized two basket ball teams among the members of the Junior Department, and a game will be played on Christmas Day. The two teams will be known as the Plainfields and the North Plainfields. They will be composed of the following: Plainfield—Fred Hunt, James T. Taylor, A. R. Fisk, C. W. Fisk, Homer Smith, Theodore Hazell, Will Whiting. North Plainfield—Fred Overton, Fred Bonny, John Hull, Aubrey Hull, Donald A. McGee, M. Slater, Harvey Linbarger.

The regular basket ball season opens at the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium Saturday evening with a game between the Plainfield Y. M. C. A. team and a team from the Trenton Y. M. C. A. The Trenton boys are crack players and hold the championship of New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware and Maryland. An admission of twenty-five cents to non-members, and fifteen cents to members will be charged to pay the expenses of the visiting team. A return game will be played at Trenton on January 14th. The team that has been chosen to represent Plainfield consists of George Proctor Smith, captain, right forward; Garfield Pike, left forward; Henry Jessup, right wing; Burt Wyckoff, centre; Thomas A. Cuming, left wing; F. B. Egan, right guard; Webster Littell, left guard. The team will play the "scrubs" tomorrow and Friday evenings for practice.

WITH ROD AND GUN.

Welden Jones and Charles C. Lister went after rabbits this morning.

"Spielder" Wesh shot a large red fox in Ash Swamp Saturday afternoon.

Dr. Adams and Gus Smith will go to Barnegat Bay this week on a duck shooting tour.

Theodore Glazner, of Plainfield, P. H. Gilroy and William Bartell, of Rahway, B. Darrell and Fred Bleader, of Elizabeth, bagged twenty rabbits and eight quail Friday. One of the party, a much better shot than the others, with true aim hit the side of the mountain and brought down several choice cobble stones at a single shot.

Nothing Like It.

Time brings many changes, but the climate of California, "The Italy of America," and the attractions of the many famous health and pleasure resorts, are the same yesterday, today and forever.

Tourists never will tire of speaking in praise of the soft and balmy air, the profusion of flowers, the magnificent display of fruits, the luxury of seabathing and the beautiful walks and drives.

Then, too, it must be conceded that with such excellent equipment, consisting of Reclining Chair Cars, Pullman Palace Sleepers and Pullman Dining Cars, all heated by steam and lighted with Pintsch Light, the Union Pacific, "The Overland Route," is the tourists favorite. Ask your agent for tickets via this route.

CALIFORNIA CONDOR.

A RARE BIRD WHOSE EGGS ARE VALUED AT $18,000 A DOZEN.

A Species That Is Becoming Extinct, Like the Great Auk—Dangers and Hardships That Collectors Endure—Other Oological Information.

It is not generally known that among the fads of the day the collecting of birds' eggs is one that interests the cultured and wealthy, and one that may be very expensively indulged in, while it affords a mild recreation to thousands of individuals of moderate means. The scientific collection of birds' eggs has, in fact, become a fascinating avocation, and, rightly studied, a pursuit to which the systematic study of birds, their biology and the laws governing their evolution is largely indebted, as acknowledged by no less an authority than Professor Huxley himself, who showed that a study of the markings and shape of the eggs of the species aided materially in establishing the close relationship of the limicolæ (plovers) and the gaviæ (gulls and terns).

Aside from its scientific value, the collecting of birds' eggs entices the enthusiast by the marvelous diversity in size, shape and markings of the eggs, fitly painted by nature herself to adorn the richest cabinet.

The raptores, or birds of prey, are a favorite family with oologists, largely from the endurance, daring and nerve requisite in scaling cliffs and lofty trees to secure their eggs, which are often, as in the case of the golden eagle, beautifully marked. This grand eagle seldom attacks the plunderer of its eggs, though it is unsafe to anger the majestic bird when its nest contains young. The eggs are two and sometimes three, large and show great variation in the markings of purple, lavender and rich brown, blotched or suffused over the surface of the shell. In California, where these eagles are most numerous, a lofty live oak tree is frequently selected as a site for the huge nest of sticks, with its lining of Spanish moss, used by the birds year after year for generations. A ledge on a cliff is also a common nesting place, and out in Wyoming an eagle has found a perfectly safe place to raise its young on the flat top of a giant rock. The nest is in plain view, but is inaccessible.

The California condor—a bird with a sweep of wing 10 feet from tip to tip, and the largest bird of flight in the world, not excepting the great Andes condor—is a species of much interest to zoologists from the extreme rarity and value of its eggs. This condor is becoming extinct, like the great auk, and as if it had a forecast of its impending doom, it resorts to the most precipitous mountain, where, on some craggy and perhaps inaccessible steep, it deposits its single egg of pale, greenish blue in a cave. But seven eggs are known in collections, and the value of one (considering the probability of the great bird's early extinction) is very great. More than $1,500 has been paid for a single egg of the great auk, of which there are 68 eggs in existence. America can claim two eggs of the great auk—one at Vassar college and one at the Academy of Natural Science in Philadelphia. The latter collection held for many years among the rarities an egg of the California condor, but it mysteriously disappeared a few years ago, and it is supposed some scientific kleptomaniac thought it no sin to transfer the treasure to his own collection, where he is holding it for a raise in price.

Information as to the nesting habits of the California condor has been exceedingly limited, and until 1889, when an egg was taken for H. R. Taylor, editor of The Nidiologist, no eggs had been taken since the fifties. The taking of this egg showed the nesting time to be early in May, and that but one egg is laid. The collector secured the great egg after a hazardous climb down a rope, which he had fastened to a bush on the bluff above. The condor's egg was found lying in a hollow in the cave, with a few feathers for a nest. The condors had been frightened off by the discharge of the collector's gun and fortunately did not return while he was in the cave. He had not come prepared to carry any eggs, but taking off his shirt he wrapped the egg in it and lowered it to the bottom of the cliff, himself following in safety.

Mr. Walter E. Bryant, for many years curator of birds in the California Academy of Sciences, showed what a collector may endure for science on one of his expeditions to lower California, Guadaloupe island, lying 150 miles off the coast of lower California, was almost an unknown territory to bird students, and he determined to visit it. The island is uninhabited, and vessels do not usually pass near it, so it was some time before he managed to secure passage on a freight schooner. They landed him with a limited supply of provisions, agreeing to return for him in a week.

The week passed, but the schooner came not, and Mr. Bryant found himself marooned. He had collected a large lot of rare specimens and discovered several new species of birds. From never having seen the face of man many of the birds could be caught by hand. Delightful as the location was for the enthusiastic ornithologist, the vanished supply of provisions made his position on a lonely island unenviable. He was reduced to dining on shellfish and such birds as he could secure and did not escape to the mainland until three weeks afterward, when the schooner returned to the island and took off the naturalist and his specimens.

The nests of nearly all birds are most interesting, and in them the zoologist finds much to study and admire, from the tiny lichen covered, downy home of that fairy, the humming bird, to the gigantic structure of the fish hawk, or osprey. One of the most curious of nests is that of the California bushtit, cunningly woven of moss, down and lichen. It is pensile, like a long purse, with a tiny round entrance hole near the top for the bird, which is not one-tenth as large as its wonderful nest.—San Francisco Examiner.

Unconverted.

The Paris Figaro tells the following story of the late Bishop Cordier of Pnom-Penh: As he found no Christians in the capital of Cambodia, he decided to begin at the top and convert King Norodom. His majesty expressed great interest in the new faith and appointed a special interpreter to translate the catechism and the words of the bishop for him. The ruler was ready to be baptized when he happened to learn that Christianity only permitted a man to have one wife. He proposed to the bishop to induce the pope to allow him as a special favor to have at least 20 wives. When this demand could not be granted, he decided to remain a heathen.

HONEYBEES.

The Sweating Process—What It Does and What It May Do.

Clover and sanfoin produce ten pounds of honey per acre each fine day, and as they flower twice and remain in full blossom for a week at a time the 75 acres, if properly worked by the bees, are expected to yield more than 10,000 pounds of honey. The triumph of the "sweater's" art is in inducing the bees to fetch this enormous quantity of honey without neglecting the arrangements for storing it in the hives. The honey, being liquid, must be bottled, and bees will only put it in comb of the exact size and texture which instinct has taught them. Combmaking is also much lighter and safer work than honey gathering, with its dangers from storms, wasps and birds. Young bees are generally told off for the purpose, while their elders go afield. But conscience will not allow a bee to stay at home if he is not wanted to work.

The beekeeper therefore makes it his business to provide ready made foundations for the cells, stamped in real wax, and of the natural size. He also removes the combs full of honey, spins them around in a tin churn, and replaces them in the hive empty—a hint which the bees take as an invitation to refill them. The ancient taskmaster said, "Ye are idle, ye shall have no straw." The modern beemaster says, "Ye are industrious, here is the straw ready chopped." The bees seem delighted to make the most of the opportunities so thoroughly provided for them. By using the mechanically stamped "foundations" for their cells they make a more perfect and symmetrical comb than is often constructed without help. The bottoms being regular, no "crooked comb" is ever built upon it. The size stamped is also uniformly that of worker cells. Thus there is no room for drone cells, producing bees which cannot be "sweated" or made profitable in any way.

The visible results of the system are a vastly increased store of honey—nearly 1,000 pounds were recently made by the bees of 15 hives—and so far no sign of "overstrain" among the bees. When the system has had another 2 years of trial, it may possibly show certain strains developing a tendency to forget how to construct comb foundation, just as some breeds of fowls are forgetting how to hatch their eggs.—London Spectator.

IBSEN'S DISCOVERER.

The First Translation of "The Doll's House" Not Published.

Notwithstanding the interest taken in Ibsen today very few people know who it was that discovered the genius of the great northerner. Two years before the first printed translation of "The Doll's House" was issued Ernest Oppenheim, while traveling in Scandinavia, read this wonderful play in the original. Quick in thought himself, he recognized immediately in the author one of the greatest thinkers of the time. So for his own pleasure, with but little thought of publication, he made the first English translation of what is now Ibsen's most famous work.

When he returned to America, the manuscript was seen by a literary friend who had some knowledge of publishers' needs. The name of Ibsen was comparatively new and the subject too daring as an experiment. So he advised Mr. Oppenheim not to attempt to get the book published unless he did it in England. More instantly important affairs pushed this manuscript aside, and two years afterward some one else gave Ibsen to English speaking peoples. The first translation is still in existence, and except for here and there an unimportant word it reads like the generally known edition.

An acquaintance of Mr. Oppenheim was talking to him one day about Ibsen's usefulness to the world.

"Why," he exclaimed, "Ibsen does nothing but point out to us the weak, the inefficient part of life. He shows but the poor piece of the day. He will not expose our virtues—only our faults."

Mr. Oppenheim shrugged his shoulders. "Is that not enough for one man to do?" he asked. "We cannot all of us see all of life."—New York Herald.

Torture In Punishment.

The constitution of the United States and the constitutions of the various states, in prohibiting cruel and unusual punishments, were not fighting an absurdity. The use of torture in legal processes was not, when these instruments were framed, so remote as it is now.

When Sir Thomas Dole came as high marshal to Virginia, he crushed a conspiracy by killing the ringleaders by torture.

One had a bodkin thrust through his tongue and was chained to a tree until he died; others were broken on the wheel. It is quaintly stated that Sir Thomas was "a man of good conscience and knowledge in divinity."

Dole's date was 1611. The next notable instance of the use of torture was in 1692, in the Salem witchcraft excitement, when Giles Cory was pressed to death—the "peine dure et forte," the most horrible of deaths.

Executions were in public throughout the east until comparatively recent times. When Quelch, the pirate, and six others were hanged in Boston, Sewall wrote in his diary: "When the scaffold was let to sink, there was such a shreech of the women that my wife heard it, sitting in our entry next to the orchard," though the gallows was a mile away and the wind unfavorable.

The use of torture to wring the truth from witnesses is said to have been recognized as legal in Austria until well within the present century.—New York Recorder.

Let the Children Play.

It is too often true of the unhappy children who are forced to rise too early in their classes that they are conceited all the forenoon of life and stupid all its afternoon. The vigor and freshness which should have been stored up for the purposes of the hard struggle for existence in practical life have been washed out of them by precocious mental debauchery—by book gluttony and lesson bibbing. Their faculties are worn out by the strain put upon their callow brains, and they are demoralized by worthless childish triumphs before the real work of life begins. I have no compassion for sloth, but youth has more need for intellectual rest than age, and the cheerfulness, the tenacity of purpose, the power of work, which make many a successful man what he is, must often be placed to the credit not of his hours of industry, but to that of his hours of idleness in boyhood.—Huxley.

Water.

So penetrating is water at high pressure that only special qualities of cast iron will withstand it. In the early days of the hydraulic jack it was no uncommon thing to see water issue like a fine needle through the metal, and the water needle would penetrate the unwary finger just as readily as a steel one is easy enough with the help of Randolph's Emulsion. It's a regular step ladder we might say. You get over the cough easily and quickly. In fact, all our drugs are step ladders to help one over every kind of earthly ailment But coughs are what we particularly want to speak of today, for there is a long hard winter before us, and the person who starts it off with a cough may never see the end of it. Therefore if a cough is what you have take Randolph's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil with phosphoric acid.

SHERIFF'S SALE—In Chancery of New Jersey. Between George M. Phillips, complainant, and The Rising Sun Brewing Company, et. al., defendants. Fi. fa. for sale of mortgaged premises.

By virtue of the above stated writ of fieri facias to me directed, I shall expose for sale by public vendue, at the Court House in the city of Elizabeth, N. J., on at two o'clock in the afternoon of said day, all the tracts or parcels of land and premises hereinafter particularly described, situate, lying and being in the city of Plainfield, and the township of Fanwood, in the county of Union and State of New Jersey:

First Lot—Beginning at a point in the middle of Cherry street, and is a corner of Israel D. TenEyck's lot (formerly); thence running along Cherry street, in the middle thereof, north forty-seven degrees west twenty-four feet and two inches to a point in the centre of said street, and is a corner of lands of Sarah F. Randolph; thence along the line of that lot south forty-five degrees west one chain to a corner in George W. Force's line; thence along his line south forty-five degrees east thirty-one feet eleven inches to said Force's corner; thence along his line south forty-five degrees west twenty-two feet to a point in said Force's line; thence with said TenEyck's (formerly Cook's) line south forty-five degrees east five and one-half links to a stone, another of TenEyck's corners; thence with Cook's line north forty-five degrees east twenty-four feet ten inches to another of TenEyck's corners; thence with TenEyck's line north forty-seven degrees west ten feet and one inch, more or less, to a point in range with the southeasterly side of the brick building situate on the lands hereby conveyed; thence northeasterly along the southeasterly side of said brick building ninety-four links to the middle of Cherry street and place of beginning.

CHAPTER I.

One fine summer day in 1886 a young stranger arrived at the Littlefield Arms by the station omnibus. He happened to be the only passenger by the noon train, and he alighted briskly, with a handsome alligator skin bag, a slim silk umbrella and a traveling rug. His portmanteau had been taken down from the top of the omnibus, and in defiance of the baggage smashers looked quite fresh and new.

The young man made haste to register in the pretty little office, where the dapper young clerk kept a glass of fresh roses and honeysuckle on his desk. A good room was assigned to the stranger, and he went to it at once, asking that his luggage be sent up.

The proprietor of the Arms, Eben Hitchcock, sat tilted back against the wall inside the office railing, his spectacles very low down on his bulbous nose, reading his morning paper. Now he looked up, caught the eye of Starbuck, the clerk, motioned with his head in the direction the young man had gone and said, "What name?"

"Hapgood, sir. A. Hapgood, Dunbarton. O. N. May mean Ohio, and it may mean Oregon."

"Hapgood," repeated Mr. Hitchcock, pursing his lips and puckering his eyelids. "Don't know anybody of that name round these parts except old Simon Hapgood at Bolton, five miles away in the country, and they do say he's on his last legs. Was paralyzed some months ago, and there ain't anything alive about him but his eyes. Hullo," said he as his eye again fell on the paper. "Here's a notice of old Hapgood's death. Died last Tuesday, it seems, and the funeral takes place today.

"Tell you what, Starbuck," he went on, after chewing half a minute on a toothpick he held between his lips, "I do remember all about it now. Old Si had a brother Job, who moved west a number of years ago, and news came back he had made money. I shouldn't be a bit surprised if this was Job's son come to look after the property, for they do say the old man has put away a pretty pile in bonds and good securities, and the farm is worth something. He was a trading man years ago and a kind of speculator in butter and cheese and farm produce and has always been more of a hoarder than a spender. Uncle Si was married twice, but he never had any children of his own. Two old women, sisters to his last wife, lived with him, and Elsie Ray, great-niece to his first wife. There's been talk he would leave all he was worth to this girl; but, now this western Hapgood has come snooping round, we shall see. Old Simon was a close, snug man and odd as Dick's hatband, but he was pretty good to his wife's kin, but when it came to disposing of property he may have thought of his own flesh and blood—folks generally do."

"The young fellow looks like a dude," said Starbuck, with his back turned, "a western dude. You wouldn't think he had sprung from such homespun people as the Bolton Hapgoods."

"No, you wouldn't," returned Boniface Hitchcock, "and it's all conjecture anyway, but I'll bet you a leather sixpence I ain't much out in my reckonin. Tall oaks from little acorns grow. This young fellow evidently feels his oats, but you'll see if he's too grand to take old Simon's money."

Mr. A. Hapgood of Dunbarton, O., at that moment came into the office. He appeared to be a very tall oak indeed and walked and looked and spoke as if conscious of his own importance. He passed out onto the pleasant porch paved with brick and with vines wreathing the pillars, and taking a cigar from its case stood there as if to be gazed at and admired. Eben Hitchcock, in his loose alpaca coat, with his waistcoat open and watch chain dangling, tipped Mr. Starbuck a wink and strolled out to the porch as if to note the time of day on the town clock that adorned the front of the old First church just across the way. In a few moments he came back looking rather chopfallen and disgusted.

"Can't make anything out of that fellow," he muttered to himself. "Puts on more airs than if he was president of the United States. I guess if he is one of the Bolton Hapgoods he's ashamed of his folks."

Meantime the young man had strolled away down Main street, swinging his stick and conscious that the eyes of Littlefield were upon him. He liked the appearance of the town and had noted as he was driving through in the omnibus the breadth of the shady streets and the dignified seclusion of the best old houses. It had occurred to him then that he might some day come to live in the neighborhood. Why should he give himself away to Eben Hitchcock, the hotel proprietor? He certainly looked as if he belonged to one of the first families by right of descent, and he was conscious that his merits were quite equal to his personal appearance. Were you to ask how Mr. A. Hapgood of Dunbarton, O., had acquired such a large opinion of himself, I can only say it was probably born with him, for it is often noticed that one chick of a humble brood will strut and crow and plume himself beyond all that was ever seen before in the farmyard, and the plain birds will in time begin to look up to this magnificent one and to admire him as the great member of the family.

Thus it happened with the Dunbarton Hapgoods. Arthur had told his father before he was 18 that he stood on a higher social plane than his parents, and now the old man was dead, and Uncle Si was lying in his coffin, and he found himself the head of the house, with the ambition strong within him to raise the name of Hapgood to a noble position in the social scale. He had purchased a newspaper on the train and had seen the notice of Uncle Si's death. He could easily reach Bolton, as he conjectured, in time for the little, plain, rustic funeral, when the eccentric, silent old man would be laid away in a grass corner of the Bolton burying ground, where for many years a board sign had stood nailed to a post and bearing the following legend: "This plot of ground is reserved for Simon Hapgood and his two wives, and no other corpse is to be laid here."

But Arthur Hapgood had no taste for funerals, especially of the humbler sort, and it was not in his line to pay even this external mark of respect to the memory of a queer old fellow who had not adorned society nor added glory to the family name, whose one admirable act had been the act of dying intestate and leaving all he was possessed to his worthy nephew. Arthur therefore determined to loiter about Littlefield until the funeral was well over, and then without fuss or hurry to present himself at the farmhouse in Bolton. Now, Arthur, as he strolled along under the shade trees of Main street, took a letter from his inner coat pocket and looked it over. It was written in a neat girlish hand, began with "My dear sir" and ended with "Yours respectfully," and was signed with the pretty name of Elsie Ray. It was written merely to inform Mr. Arthur Hapgood that his Uncle Simon, having had a third stroke of palsy, was in a dying condition; that as no will had been found and as none was believed to be in existence it was thought best to inform the nearest relatives of the facts detailed. Elsie Ray had also added that Uncle Simon was entirely speechless and had been so for some months, and the end could not be far distant.

Arthur Hapgood already knew that Elsie Ray was Uncle Simon's great-niece by marriage, and he conjectured that she had played the part of the old man's housekeeper and nurse. Of course she had not a shadow of legal claim upon him or the estate; but, though the little note was penned in a stiff and formal style, there was something in the neat handwriting and in the pretty, girlish name of Elsie Ray that excited his interest. Little Elsie, he said to himself, if she is nice looking and attractive and docile, we will see what can be done for her.

Elsie Ray stood in the great farmhouse kitchen at Bolton, the Hapgood homestead, as it was called, for several generations of Hapgoods had lived and died in that place. It seemed to her now that the great chimney stack, and the blackened beams overhead, and the polished floor boards, and the smooth hearthstone, where Uncle Si's chair was drawn up, must know that something had happened—they looked so still and clean and meditative, as if the old house were remembering all the births and deaths and changes and losses and crosses and sorrows that had taken place under its aged roof. Elsie had stopped the great clock in the corner and pulled down the shades, and now she paused involuntarily to hear the tap of Uncle Si's thick oak stick on the floor above. No; it would never sound again. There was something stark and white lying under the sheet in Uncle Si's chamber that made her shiver slightly as she thought how she had laid it out with her own hands.

Uncle Si Hapgood had lived out his life in his own peculiar fashion. He was secretive and silent by nature, and it was the wonder of the neighborhood that he should have "buried" two wives, and it is safe to say that his two spouses who were laid away in the burying ground corner had never quite fathomed Uncle Si. But still he had a kind heart in his odd, undemonstrative composition and took more pains to cover up his good deeds than others do to make theirs known. He had taken the orphan girl from the poor place in the town when the widowed mother had died and left her alone and had given her home and shelter and such schooling as was to be had in Bolton and not a little affection of a peculiar kind, for Uncle Si was always half ashamed of the soft places in his nature, and nothing ever disturbed the shy, bashful man like acknowledgment of his good deeds.

Now Uncle Si was dead. He had breathed his last in her arms, keeping hold of her warm little hand till he cast off the lifeline to enter upon the great mystery. It was all very strange and solemn to Elsie and not a little grewsome to think of Uncle Si lying stark on the bed where the palsy had nailed him so long. The oak stick at the headboard he would never use again to summon his faithful nurse. Uncle Si could not speak—his eyes only were alive, but there was a pained and pathetic look in them in those last hours, and it seemed to Elsie, who tried to interpret every least sign the old man made, that he would have given worlds to tell her something that lay on his heart and conscience. He pointed vaguely with his trembling hand, even while the gray death shadow was stealing over his face, to a corner of the chamber, where, against the faded wall paper, hung a framed copy of the Declaration of Independence, much fly specked, and above it a mourning piece in a black frame put up for his first wife, Betsy Lee, and representing a tall woman with corkscrew curls, with her handkerchief to her eyes, bending over a tombstone shaded by a painfully symmetrical weeping willow.

Elsie had laid out Uncle Si, assisted by Mrs. Mead, a capable neighbor, who had now gone home to prepare supper for her children, but had promised to come back and watch with Paul Raynor that night over the dead. The two old women whom Elsie called Aunt Prissy and Aunt Hetty, though they were in no way related to her, being the sisters of the last Mrs. Simon Hapgood, whose maiden name was Nancy Hingham, occupied the great front room, formerly the keeping room of the farmhouse which Uncle Si, many years before, had given up to their use. It was spotlessly clean, and the sun came in pleasantly at four large windows. The furniture, of a beautiful antique type, belonged to the old sisters. Some of it had come down from the great Governor Hingham, their ancestor, of colonial fame, and was garnished with brasses and claw feet and quaint carvings that would have filled the soul of an antiquary with delight. The governor's portrait, in a full bottomed wig, with shirt ruffles, hung against the chimney piece over the Hingham coat of arms and was the pride and glory of the keeping room.

A high post bed, with fringed dimity tester, stood in the east and west corners of the room. In the daytime they presented the appearance of two symmetrical mounds of feathers covered with album quilts, pieced by the old ladies in their youth, and curtained below with flowing white valances. The old women had each her own things, her own ways, her own corners and cubbies. She never encroached on her sister's domain. They even at times cooked their own little messes on their own part of the kitchen fire, which they ate each on her own side of the table. Miss Prissy had a blue teapot and Miss Hetty a brown one, and there were separate tea caddies, for Prissy abhorred Oolong, while Hetty doted on it. Aunt Prissy kept a Maltese cat, while Hetty's was yellow, and the tabbies always lay on their own corner of the rug and lapped milk out of separate saucers.

Uncle Si indulged the old women in all their little whims and fancies, for, as he always said, with a sly wink, "there's nothing like letting folks have their own way if a body's to live in peace and quietness." But, though the two old sisters were so sturdily individual about trifles, there were singular bonds of sympathy between them, as is apt to be the case with people who have lived together all their lives. Aunt Prissy and Aunt Hetty were a unit as to the great dignity and distinction of the Hingham family, descended from the colonial governor whose faded portrait graced their chimney piece. They were also one on the subject of Sister Nancy's condescension in marrying plain Simon Hapgood, and on the honor they had done said Simon in allowing him to feed and shelter them in their old age. They were one, too, in their bodily sensations, for when Prissy felt shooting pains in her right arm Hetty was almost sure to feel them in her left, and when one took to her bed from any cause whatever the other was sure to follow in a few hours.

Now they were both very low over the death of Uncle Si, for in spite of these pretensions they were tender hearted, simple old creatures. Cataracts were coming over both of Prissy's aged eyes, and she had injured herself with weeping. Poor old Hetty's grief had increased her deafness to an alarming point. Elsie had just put them to bed like two babies, tucking each one up under her album quilt. They wore nightcaps, with broad starched ruffles and muslin bows on top, and lying in bed under the tester the bows stood up above the pillow like the ears of a white rabbit, and under them were the withered up faces, now clouded with grief.

The house was quiet save for a deathwatch ticking away in the wall that seemed to thrill every fiber of the woodwork. Elsie was half afraid to stay there with that something overhead that was no longer Uncle Si. She opened the door and stepped out to the warm, breathing world and shut it softly behind her. The light was low and made a ruddy, golden glow over the fields. The wind was in her hair and lifted the little tresses off her forehead and waved the little locks about her neck. Elsie's face was picturesque rather than beautiful. The upper teeth pushed out the red lip ever so little, and the nose was slightly retrousse. The forehead was broad and low, and the brown eyes full of a loving, ardent light. Her form was light, elegant and agile, equal to much fatigue, made for endurance, but almost perfect in its graceful lines. She was country bred and had the elastic step that flies over the ground with a swish of the skirts and the motion of a swallow skimming low. Her tint was brown from much exposure to sun, and a slight glow came through the healthy tanned check, while the thick curly hair was ruffled on her head like the breast of a bird on a windy day. There was something birdlike, too, in the quick glance of her eye.

Now Elsie skipped to the top of a little knoll and looked down the road toward the town to watch for Paul Raynor, who had taken the old gray horse and chaise to summon the Littlefield undertaker and was to advertise the funeral at Bolton, a small hamlet half a mile from the farm. The road stretched away quite lonely and treeless, white with dust and with a flock of yellow butterflies chasing up and down over the wayside thistles. The smoke was going up from Mrs. Dean's chimney down the road among the maple trees, and the fields of growing grass and grain lay in an enchanted silence.

CHICAGO.

Glowing Tribute to the City by One of Its Own Papers.

Chicago is responsible for this fad which has got possession of other cities in the length and breadth of our land. We refer to the craze which has given us the "greater New York" agitation, the "greater Providence," the "greater Boston," the "greater Wichita" and so on ad infinitum.

There has never been any talk of a greater Chicago, for the reason, we suppose, that Chicago's greatness has at all times been regarded as superlative. It is this conceded greatness which has set the others to thinking, to planning, to scheming. It has given birth to the impulse which inspires other towns and cities to hump themselves. Chicago is so great that she has power not only to sustain herself, but also to provide all the rest of the country with ambition and energy. It has been scientifically demonstrated that enough nervous energy is wasted daily in Chicago to conduct all the business of the world two weeks at a gait more rapid than that pursued by the average business man of St. Louis in the discharge of his affairs.

We see the influence of Chicago manifested very clearly in the flutter which has agitated the presidents and trustees of eastern colleges ever since Chicago university came into existence. Before that happening those eastern fellows didn't care booh for and didn't say booh to the west. They were sure of the west. But now that Chicago has a university—the university, if you please—mercy sakes alive! what a shaking up of the old dry bones there is down in Yankeedom! What a scared lot they are! Why, we've had them on the run for the last two years, and we're going to keep them on the run too. What sweet things they say of the west now! How particular they are to visit us, and address our alumni dinners, and dance attendance upon us, and curry favor with us. We wonder whether they really suppose we are such blind idiots as not to see that they are scared—scared almost to death!

The colleges of the country, the business of the country, the art, the literature, the sciences—all feel the influence of Chicago and are responding to it. Because Chicago is great, everything associated and identified with her must be great. She is the fountain head of American spirit, enterprise and energy; she is the leaven that leaveneth the whole lump!—Chicago Record.

The Shadow Cast by Shakespeare.

One of the best and most curious proofs of the supremacy of Shakespeare among English writers is to be found in the length and depth of the shadow that has been cast by his fame. There is hardly a writer in the century of his apparition but has suffered from the brightness of that neighborhood. The works of great Elizabethan and Jacobean dramatists were ransacked for 100 years to illustrate Shakespeare's poorest jests before they were edited for their proper merits. Beaumont and Fletcher may thank their mighty contemporary, and him alone, that their plays, for all the wit and romance that enliven them, have remained a part of the scholar's furniture. The greater British public has its Shakespeare and will none of them. The brave array of Caroline poets, Herrick and his company, long bore a twofold burden of neglect. They were not Shakespeare, and they were not of his age. Only recently have they been securely reprinted.

Backward the shadow lies deeper. Marlowe, Greene, Peele and the rest, as dramatists and predecessors of Shakespeare, have had their full share of attention, but the whole mass of literature that went to the making of Shakespeare, the output especially of the earlier half of Elizabeth's reign, has, with this exception, been scarcely reprinted in modern days. So innocent and plenary has been the confidence of his countrymen in Shakespeare's thievery that they have trusted him to steal them all that was good in English literature during the years of his upbringing. —W. E. Henley in Fortnightly Review.

Napoleon's Grand Army.

In order to apprehend Napoleon's supernal greatness it is essential at this period of his life to shut out of view the man and politician and fix the eye again on the general; to see him, moreover, solely as a strategist. It may be said that he was for the first and last time unhampered. His political independence and personal popularity were alike secure. His army was the best in Europe, composed of young and well drilled conscripts, who had been 18 months under arms, with a large nucleus of trained veterans. Of the generals who commanded the seven corps destined for Germany only two, Augereau and Bernadotte, were over 40 years of age. The emperor himself, Soult, Lannes and Ney were 36, Davout was 35 and Marmont only 31. Of the division commanders one-half were between 30 and 40, while only a single one was 50. Not one of these men was commonplace. They knew their profession and had practiced it with success; they were without an exception self reliant and enterprising, familiar with their leader's methods and requirements.—Professor W. M. Sloane's "Life of Napoleon" in Century.

Buckboards of Northern Maine.

The buckboards of northern Maine are strange looking vehicles and resemble closely the accepted pictures of Noah's ark. They are altogether unlike the buckboards of the Adirondacks. The body is made of long, narrow boards and upon this is fastened a round bellied top, very much like the old fashioned sedan chair. Usually there is a decoration of faded streaks of blue paint, which add to its quaintness and ancient appearance. The cover is usually of canvas or rubber from which most of the color has faded. These buckboards do not look at all strong or steady, but they are used on the roughest roads and traverse ditches, rocks and stumps with impunity. They are very comfortable and easy to ride in, and it is remarkable how much can be packed away in them. Probably no other vehicle could stand an equal strain or give equal comfort on some of the wood trails on which they are used.—New York Sun.

Walking Made His Feet Bigger.

"Will walking increase the size of your feet? Well, I just guess—that is, it has in my case," said one of the most popular of the coroner's deputies. "When I first came to this office, I wore only a No. 6 shoe. Now I take a 7. I have no doubt the increase in size is due to the great amount of walking I do."—Philadelphia Call.

Young Life Cut Short.

In the death of Miss Lillie E. Miller, of 817 West Third street, which occured Saturday afternoon, Plainfield loses a most estimable young woman. She had been ill for a long time, and death resulted from consumption. Miss Miller was a faithful Christian and was regular in her attendance upon divine service whenever possible. A very large circle of friends extend their sympathy to the bereaved family in their hour of sadness.

The funeral services will be held this evening from decedent's late home. The interment will be at Lebanon, Pa.

A Fire in Rutherford.

A large portion of the business section of Rutherford, N. J., was burned early this morning. The fire began shortly before midnight and burned until daylight. The local fire companies were unable to cope with the flames, and the Passaic fire department was summoned to the scene. The firemen worked energetically and succeeded in saving much valuable property.

Miss Aub Pleads Guilty.

Barbara Aub, who was indicted for perjury for her testimony against W. L. S. Langerman, was arraigned today before Judge Cowing in General Sessions in New York. When she was bruoght to the bar, and the clerk of the court informed her of the charge against her, and asked her the usual question whether she pleaded guilty or not guilty, her answer was, "Guilty."

THE FIREMEN'S FAIR STARTS.

THE ATTRACTIONS ARE VARIED ENOUGH TO INTEREST ALL.

The Hall Prettily Trimmed, Booths Artistically Arranged, and the Dances and Drills Performed with Fine Effect.

The Firemen's Fair is here at last and another week of excitement and pleasure has begun. Last evening the fair opened and about 600 people turned out to see what kind of an entertainment the firemen had prepared, and greatly were they pleased with what they saw.

Long before the hour set for the programme to begin the crowd began to swarm in and steadily the number increased. There was a slight delay at the start, as might be expected on the first night, but soon the orchestra struck up an opening selection. Then the curtains were drawn aside and in marched the dancers headed by Thos. Shaeffer, with his baton in his hand. Out to the front of the stage went the varied assemblage—Flowers, Fairies, Frogs, Swordsmen, and fire lads and lassies, all in their different costumes. Back and forth they marched and counter-marched, in twos, fours and single file until their manœuvres carried them behind the scenes.

Following the procession came the operetta "Queen Flora's Dream." It opened with a beautiful tableau, in which the Flowers, Butterflies and Fairies were grouped about the throne of the sleeping Queen Flora with Stella, Queen of the Fairies, keeping watch over her. Then quietly they all disappeared and the Queen awoke. After a little dialogue, the Flowers were guided to the stage by the dainty Stella, and then followed a pretty combination of tableaux and intricate figures, while the colored lights added to the artistic effect.

The Flower Dance, led by the Misses Goff, Guinee and Day, was the first of the dances given by the young girls who took part in the cantata. Then the three graceful Daisies, the Misses Lizzie Guinee, Susie Goff and Lizzie Day, danced together. There was a pause in the music and a lively air was played, while in hopped a strange-looking creature whose "pants and coat of bottle-green and yellow embroidered vest" made him easily recognizable and then Charles McCann, whose smiling face looked out from within his strange garb, sang "The Funniest Thing's a Frog." He was soon joined by a band of similar creatures who danced and jumped about much to the delight of the audience. Miss Anna Daly, the pretty Queen Flora, sang "Sleep Nightingale," and then followed the Butterfly and the Roses and Fairy dances, the last of which was particularly pleasing and ended with a tableau that called forth loud applause. The Butterfly Dance was led by the Misses Walsh and Higgins. Miss Daly as Queen Flora and Miss Katherina Roach as Stella, took their parts with great success.

Thirty small boys, in sailor costumes, sang the chorus to the solo, "The Ship He Loved," by Will Lawlor, while Miss Elida Hughes danced the sailor's hornpipe in a most pleasing manner.

The Columbia Scarf dance was something entirely new, but the effects produced by the red, white and blue scarfs, and the dancers in their white costumes, were charming and pleased the artistic as well as the popular eye. This dance was led by the Misses Lizzie Day, Anna Daly and Josephine Murphy, and included many pretty tableaux.

Prof. W. J. O'Brien's clog dance was greatly applauded, and he responded to the loud applause with a jig. Then followed the Gypsy dance, in which twelve girls, costumed in white waists with orange scarfs, and red and black skirts, danced in wild, rhythmic measures, led by the Misses Honan and Walsh. The "Perle Andalusia" was gracefully danced by Miss Lizzie Day, and her brilliant Spanish costume added to the pretty effect. The grand Roman saber drill, led by John Butscher and Thomas Quinn, showed that plenty of hard work had been spent in preparing for it, and the young men passed through the difficult manœuvres without any noticeable mistakes.

Thomas Shaeffer was the next attraction on the programme, and he showed his complete command over the flying Indian clubs, using one, two and finally three at a time.

Then came the firemen's drill and there was a look of expectancy on every face as the red-shirted fire lads and lassies entered the stage on a run, headed by the two chiefs, Miss Mary Callahan and W. J. O'Brien. They all wore the regular uniform of the firemen, hat, belts and all, while Chief Callahan looked charming in her uniform of white and light blue. Chief O'Brien wore the fire hat which ex-Chief A. L. Saltzman wore to so many fires. They came in on a run and the drill was carried on with a dash and spirit that pleased all. After executing several manœuvres the alarm bell behind the scenes sounded and the next instant the scene was illuminated with red fire. There was the rush and hurry for buckets and extinguishers, while a line of hose was dragged in. But the occupant of the burning house, an old woman, had to be saved and a sheet was stretched to catch her as she jumped from the window. Her spinal column seemed to be exceptionally weak or else the shock of the fall was too much for her and all the exertions of the firemen could not bring her back to life. The ladder was now placed in position and Chief O'Brien scaled it just in time to rescue a baby. Then, with the baby in the Chief's arms, the corpse of the other inhabitant at his feet, and the rest of the firemen grouped in picturesque attitudes about him, the curtain went down.

Those that took part in this dance were Miss Callahan and Prof. O'Brien; and the Misses May Day, Fanny Moore, Katie Higgins, Vanatta, Motley, Taynor, Walsh, Honan, O'Kiefe, Brizzard, Smith, Jones, and Messrs. J Moran, M. Higgins, C. Ginna, D. Ginna, M. Owens, J. Bagley, Sherman, M. Kane, J. Kane, and F. Huff.

That ended the programme, but by a little hustling a space was cleared in the centre of the room, and dancing was the order of the evening.

The appearance of the interior of the Columbia Cycle Academy was certainly very beautiful. Flags of all sizes hung from the beams that support the roof, while small flags lined the sides of the hall. The booths all presented a gala appearance while a choice display of everything was set before the eyes of the would be purchaser.

The two storied booth to the left of the stage was divided into the Oriental and Russian booths and here Mrs. Abner Bartlett, Jr., assisted by the Misses Angelina, Adele and Stella Feytell, sold trinklets, rugs and other articles of Oriental make, while Miss Sumbatoff represented the Russian nation in the booth.

A variety of fancy and useful articles were on exhibition at the German booth as well as toys and games, and here Mrs. C. Miller, assisted by Mrs. Benjamin Moore, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Briggs, Miss Van Fleet and Miss Briggs reigned supreme. Art and fancy were catered to at the next booth and Mrs. Joseph C. Blimm, assisted by the Misses Blimm, waited on those who came to the booth.

The Useful booth attracted many and Miss Hubbard, assisted by Mrs. C. J. Newman, Miss Newman and Mrs. J. Hope, took care that none escaped without making a purchase. Piles of canned fruits, vegetables and meats, suggested the grocery and all the good things were chaperoned by Mrs. William Chamberlain, assisted by Mrs. S. F. Johnson, Miss Dora Martin and Miss Jennie Martin.

While the booths were pleasing to the sight, taste was catered to at the refreshment booth, which was under the charge of Mrs. J. Blimm, chairman, assisted by Miss R. Verdon, and the waitresses were the Misses Rafferty, Doyles, Neumann, Meier, Stuart and Schelvin.

"Thorma" attracted many within its tent to view the wonderful things there.

One of the most popular attractions of the fair, especially to the firemen, was the phonograph, which was under the charge of J. VanEps and Fred VanEps. The instrument was made by Fred VanEps and testified to his great ability in that line, for it was unusually clear and distinct, while the different selections were greatly enjoyed by all who heard them.

The flower booth was very charmingly arranged and here Miss Lang was in command, and was assisted by Mrs. E. Hill and the Misses Volker, Mehl, Koler, Minnie Zeisz, Sadie and Anna Searing.

Carl Kearth also had a booth were his soft drinks were sold.

A fair without candy would be Hamlet with Hamlet left out, and so the candy booth was one of the most liberally patronized. Mrs. Auguste L. Saltzman was in charge of this booth and was ably seconded in her efforts by Mrs. Suydam Fritts and Miss Augustine Lissignolo.

The forune tellers tent was a place of mystery and here the Great Zingarilla told of the future, while her beautiful Gypsy maidens, the Misses Sadie Blimm and Angelina Feytel, beguiled the passersby into the shades of the Gypsy booth to await their turn in the fortune-telling tent.

While much credit is due to the firemen and their wives, sisters and sweethearts, who assisted in making the event such a success, too much praise cannot be given to Madame Elizabetta Menzeli-Bartlett who arranged the dances. Her patience in dealing with the children has wrought wonderful results and difficult and intricate manœuvres were executed in a way that showed that much time and labor had been expended on them. Most of the dances were arranged especially for the fair and their success reflects much credit on Madame Bartlett.

INTERESTING AND INSTRUCTIVE.

Various Fields of Missions Talked Of By Christian Endeavorers.

A missionery meeting of the Christian Endeavor Society of the Trinity Reformed church was held last evening in the lecture room of the church, which proved very helpful to all who attended. The meeting was in charge of Mrs. F. Adams. The first paper, on India, by Miss Lizzie Dunn, was well written, after which Mrs. J. M. Tier spoke on India, and was followed by Miss Gertrude Tier, who gave interesting and carefully prepared information regarding the missionery work in China. Japan was next heard from through Miss Martha Anthony, who read an interesting paper on the subject, and also by a few well-chosen remarks from H. J. Martin. The medical missionery work in Japan was excellently treated by Master David Wyckoff. Arabia was then clearly and forcibly held up to the young people by the pastor, Rev. Cornelius Schenck, and the pressing needs of sending more Gospel light into South America was clearly shown by E. E. Anthony. During the evening the Misses Laura Wyckoff and Minnie Wyman sang a duet with Miss Nettie Krietling as accompanist.

MAY LOSE HIS SIGHT.

Joseph Brown Now Under Treatment in Muhlenberg Hospital.

Joseph Brown, foreman over the lathes at the Potter Press Works, who received a serious injury to his left eye about six weeks ago, and who underwent several operations at a New York hospital for the removal of the piece of steel which was embedded in the sight of the eye, returned to Plainfield a week ago, and is now under the care of Dr. F. C. Ard at the Muhlenberg Hospital. Mr. Brown is progressing towards recovery as well as can be expected, but it is feared the sight will be gone. As soon as it is prudent for him to be around he will resume his former position at the works.

Strike on School House Work.

The masons employed on Public School No. 1 at Elizabethport, went on strike yesterday afternoon over the employment of non-union men by Alexander Kerr, a boss mason, who had a sub contract to lay brick work in the basement of the school in connection with the putting in of the heating opparatus. The masons erecting the building are employed by Robert Wilson. The carpenters threaten to go out today. The strike will likely be settled this morning.

The Firemen Take the Cake.

One of the features of the refreshment table at the Fireman's Fair last evening was a very large and handsome cake, with a firemen's badge on top, donated to Mrs. Blimm and Miss R. M. Verdon, who have charge of the refreshment department, by Mrs. J. W. Reinhart.

Scenic Views.

Views of scenery in the Great Northwest, Dakota, Montana, etc.; also Highlands of the Hudson, Mohawk Valley, Niagara Falls, Empire State Express, and others will be shown at the new and novel entertainment "Art in Advertising," in Y. M. C. A. Hall, this evening at 8 o'clock.

Petit Jurors.

The following petit jurors from this city were drawn at Elizabeth this morning to erve at the January term of court: Abram Angleman, Jacob S. Kingley, Frank H. Martin, George Nolan and George Whitlock.

Major C. T. Picton is manager of the State Hotel, at Denison, Texas, which the traveling men say is one of the best hotels in that section. In speaking of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy Major Picton says: "I have used it myself and in my family for several years, and take pleasure in saying that I consider it an infallible cure for diarrhœa and dysentery. I always recommend it, and have frequently administered it to my guests in the hotel, and in every case it has proven itself worthy of unqualified endorsement. SACREDNESS OF SACRAMENT

REV. JOCELYN JOHNSTONE ON THE INDIVIDUAL COMMUNION CUP.

He Declares That the Sacrament Should Not be Administered From a Multitudinously Laden Tray—Annihilates Sanctity.

Rev. Jocelyn Johnstone has the following in this month's Advance on "The Common Chalice:"

The readers of The Advance have been shocked during the last month by an oblique attack made on the most sacred of our Christian ceremonies. The assault has been made by a public lecturer, assisted by the physicians of Plainfield. I yield to all of these gentlemen the credit of being influenced solely by a sense of their duties to scientific truth. But I desire on behalf of the Episcopalians of this city, to protest against an agitation which suggests an undemonstrated terror to those who partake of the common chalice in the celebration of Holy Communion. At a period in our scientific history when destructive bacilli are multiplying and running riot in the minds of all who profess and call themselves scientists, it becomes the duty of everyone who is not an alarmist to raise his voice in protest against the attack made upon the common chalice. We can say unaffectedly, in spite of our Episcopalian superstitions! that we render homage to modern empirical science. But we do so at times with many misgivings. We have been enlightened during the last decade with so many revelations of the dangers by which we are beset in our perilous warfare with the ubiquitous disease germ that we can no longer eat nor drink nor sleep with any high degree of comfort. The physicians and lecturers of Plainfield have set themselves to the task of creating an impalpable monster more terrorizing than that of Frankenstein. In a few years, if science accumulates its warnings, we shall be reduced almost to the point of starvation; for if the modern germ theory be added to the physiological studies of the public schools, the rising generation will be afraid to eat any food except that which is sterilized in vacuo.

The unscientific public, of whom the writer is a humble representative, has, however, one strong consolation left it in the fact that the germs "that are for us are more than those that are against us," and we shall probably continue to eat and drink after the manner of our rude ancestors without any qualms of the scientific conscience.

The use of the common chalice in the service of Holy Communion fulfills a purpose, the realization of which is so dear to the religious life of Christian men and women that it will never be abolished—at least in the Episcopal church. Without entering on any theological controversy we can safely say that it stands today, as it has done for nearly two thousand years, as the divinely appointed object lesson of the common brotherhood of man. Those who kneel before the altar and partake of the communion cup know that their act represents the bond of unity which knits together those who are made one in the mystical body of Christ, which is the company of all faithful people. The sacredness of the Sacrament and its sanctionsof fraternity would be annihilated if the members of a Christian congregation were to partake of the Sacramental wine either from a multitudinously laden tray, or through a private portable tube. The very thought of such a revolution of the simple service handed down through the centuries, simply overwhelms the imagination.

The writer of this article is a humble searcher after scientific truth, and is anxious to receive from the apostles of the germ theory an explanation of the following facts: In England there are about twenty thousand priests of the Anglo-Catholic church. (He takes England as an example because he is familiar with its statistics.) The clergy of the Church of England celebrate Holy Communion—some of them hundreds of times in the year.

Those who are familiar with the rubrical constitution of the Episcopal church are aware that the officiating priest is commanded not only to communicate himself, but also to consume reverently all that remains in the chalice. He does so by pouring water into the cup and then drinking its contents. If, then, the alarmist theory of the Plainfield physicians and lecturers be scientifically true, the clergy of the Church of England must be so thoroughly germ-cankered and diseased that they go down to death in tottering decay. But English statistics, drawn from the books of the insurance companies, have demonstrated the fact that the clergy of the Church of England have a higher average of life than any other class in the community. How, we ask, is this reconcilable with the warnings of the Plainfield physicians and lecturers who urge all modern Christians to ignore the plain command of the Catholic Church: "As often as ye eat this bread, and drink this cup, ye do show forth the Lord's death till He come."

PRIMARY TEACHERS.

Quarterly Meeting of the Union Held Yesterday Afternoon.

The quarterly business meeting of the Primary Teachers Union was held at the Y. M. C. A. building yesterday afternoon with twenty-three members present, and the president, Miss Nettie Beeching, in the chair.

The devotional exercises were conducted by Mrs. Darby, and Miss Haff taught the lesson on ways and means of teaching. Following this the treasurer's and secretaries' reports were read by Miss Haff. The latter report showed good atttendance and an increased interest. Mrs. Powlison was then elected second vice-president, and Miss Bainbridge third vice-president. Mrs. Powlison, Miss Maggie Roeap and Miss Bainbridge were selected as a committee on securing teachers for the lessons. The following were chosen as press committee: Mrs. Mosher, Miss Haff and Miss May E. Howlett.

Miss Beeching, as a member of the State Council, then presented an informal report of the recent meeting she attended at Trenton, and stated that it had been decided to hold three summer schools this year instead of one. Asbury Park and Schooley's Mountains had been selected thus far, and the third place would be decided upon later. The local union discussed the public meeting which will be held about January first, after which the meeting adjourned.

TAKING OATH OF OFFICE.

Newly Elected City Officials Sworn in Last Night.

There was a general shaking of hands at the Mayor's office last evening at half past five when the newly elected city officials gathered there to take the oath of office. The following were sworn in by Mayor Gilbert: City Judge-elect DeMeza; City Treasurer-elect, Titsworth, School Trustee-elect Abbott; Councilman-elect Barrows; Freeholder-elect Coward; Councilman-elect Serrell; and City Collector-elect Bird.

Royal Arcanum Officers.

The following officers were elected at the meeting of Plainfield Council, No. 711, Royal Arcanum, last evening: Regent, Henry C. Adams; Vice regent, M. L. Bullock; Orator, Murray Burtis; Past regent, Adrian M. Rea; Secretary, F. J. Pope; Collector, Eliott Burr; Treasurer, D. W. Littell; Chaplain, Edward C. Pease; Guide, J. E. Townsend; Warden, Charles Roberts; Sentry, James K. Arnold; Trustees, A. W. Rand, F. S. Green, A. W. Kleinecke; Medical Examiner, Geo. W. Endicott, M. D.; Representative to Grand Council, Adrian M. Rea: Alternate, P. A. Emmons.

Two Organizations Merged.

At a meeting of the Men's Association of Grace P. E. church last evening the association was merged into the Brotherhood of St. Andrew under the title of Grace Chapter, and the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Director, George S. Clay; vice-director, George M. Randall; secretary, F. G. Moore; treasurer, F. R. Stevens. The next meeting will be held Wednesday evening, January 8th.

Postoffice Closed This Afternoon.

Postmaster Hetfield obtained permission from Washington last evening to close the postoffice this afternoon from 2:30 to 5 o'clock on account of the death of Assistant-Postmaster George C. Godown. The employes at the office will attend the funeral this afternoon at 3:30.

Dr. Ryman Tonight.

The Epworth League of Monroe Avenue chapel have provided a treat for their friends in securing Dr. Ryman to lecture for them tonight. Those who have heard Dr. Ryman will not lose this opportunity to hear him again. The lecture will be free.

When most needed it is not unusual for your family physician to be away from home. Such was the experience of Mr. J. Y. Schenck, editor of the Caddo, Ind. Ter., Banner, when his little girl, two years of age was threatened with a severe attack of croup. He says: "My wife insisted that I go for the doctor, but as our family physician was out of town I purchased a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, which relieved her immediately. I will not be without it in the future." 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by Reynoldss' Pharmacy, Park and North avenues. T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

DOESN'T MISS HIS WIFE.

THE MARITAL BLISS OF MR. AND MRS. JOHN MORECRAFT SEVERED.

Owing to the Lack of Work the Husband Was Unable to Provide Necessary Support—His Wife Goes to Other Friends

After a year and a half of married life Mr. and Mrs. John Morecraft, of East Front street, have separated and no longer live under the same roof. Mr. Morecraft is a carpenter by trade and has been supporting his wife on the wages he received. Of late, however, he has been working less than usual and his income has been accordingly decreased. His wife has been feeling the reduction and claims that she was not furnished with even the bare necessities of life.

Saturday, matters came to a climax, and Mrs. Morecraft made another appeal for food, clothing and fuel, but her husband informed her that if she didn't like it there she might go somewhere else, and so she decided to go.

She packed up her trunk with her belongings, but fearing her husband's anger, she went to see Chief of Police Grant and asked for protection. Officer Frederickson was detailed to give the desired protection. When she returned to her home she found that her husband was not there, so she and her trunk were carried to the home of her sister in North Plainfield, where she will remain, while her husband is left to shift for himself. When Mr. Morecraft discovered that his wife had left he took the matter coolly and he made no attempt to persuade or force her to return.

Esteemed by Fellow Workmen.

Andrew Gunn, of New York, who expired suddenly while at work last Wednesday was a prominent member of the Amalgamated Society of Engineers, and of the Central Labor Union, of New York. He was well known and much esteemed in this city by members of the Machinists' Fraternity, and his sudden death is regretted. Deceased was only thirty-eight years of age, and leaves a wife and five small children. He was interred in Woodlawn cemetery, and his funeral was largely attended, a number going from this city.

Something Never Before Done.

Harry M. Jaquett, the popular clothier and haberdasher at 123 East Front street, will sell men's and boys' clothing at prices altogether different from those to which you have been accustomed to paying. It means a much greater saving than you can actually realize until you see the goods yourself. The great inducement for the holidays, until January 1, 10 per cent will be allowed on all winter clothing. Remember this is on overcoats and suits for men, boys and children. Such an inducement has never before been made in Plainfield at this time of the year.

Along Legal Lines.

Summons have been issued by Justice Newcorn in the cases on contract of Frucht against Wolf and Linke against Hipp, which are returnable Tuesday, December 17th. Justice Newcorn has also issued an execution in the contract case of Appleby against Mortimer. The contract cases of Boone against Proud, Newman and McCarty were tried this morning in Justice Newcorn's court, and judgment was rendered for the plaintiff in each case.

Master Johnnie's Party.

Master Johnnie Carney, of 40 Craig place, gave last evening to twenty-four of his playmates a birthday party, the occasion being his eleventh birthday anniversary. The evening was delightfully spent in playing games, singing songs, and recitations, and to the amusement of all that rising young musician, Master Clarence Mills, rendered several difficult selection upon the violin, accompanied by Mrs. John Kulp of Bayonne City.

Entertaining the City Fathers.

Councilman Charles J. Fisk will entertain Mayor Gilbert and the members and members-elect of the City Council at dinner at the Union County Country Club, Friday evening, December 13th, at 7 o'clock.

Body Taken to St. Louis.

The remains of the late Henry A. Ostrmoor, of Netherwood, was taken to St. Louis this morning on the 10:44 train, where interment will be made.

The wife of Mr. D. Robinson, a prominent lumberman of Hartwick, N. Y., was sick with rheumatism for five months. In speaking of it, Mr. Robinson says: "Chamberlain's Pain Balm is the only thing that gave her any rest from pain. For the relief of pain it cannot be beat." Many very bad cases of rheumatism have been cured by it. For sale at 50 cents per bottle by Reynolds' Pharmacy, Park and North avenues. T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

BUTCHERY OF CUBANS

Peaceful Residents Shot Down by Spaniards.

Defenseless Women and Children Among the Slaughtered—Government Forces, Defeated, Vent Their Fury on Peasants—Bloody Scenes Near Cayo Espiro.

New York, Dec. 10.—The Cuban revolutionary party has received a letter from a witness of barbarities committed by Spaniards after their defeat by insurgents at Cayo Espino, which is on the boundary line between Mantanzas and Santa Clara. The letter is as follows: Two brothers, Miguel and Jose Gonzales y Hernandez, were owners of a plantation and lumber mill in Cayo Espino, about a league distant from Aguada de Pasageros. A colony grew around them. At about 10 o'clock on the morning of Nov. 6 the insurgent forces, 1,500 strong, all cavalry, commanded by Gen. Perez, Col. Lacret and the Nunz brothers, arrived and pitched their camp. At 3 o'clock their sentries exchanged shots with the cavalry of the Spanish under Col. Molina, about 250 strong. Gen. Perez ordered 800 of his men to go back to the plain at Flontine, about a quarter of a league distant. He kept the rest in ambush in some banana fields, near the plain. With 100 men he went to the aid of his vanguard against Molina's column. Molina hastily retreated, leaving eleven dead, seven wounded and three prisoners, one of them a lieutenant, and eighteen horses in the field, besides some arms.

Vented Their Fury on Defenseless.

In the meanwhile the Spanish troops were approaching upon the dwellers of the mill. They could not, with the children, go to the woods. Finally they decided to hide in a hole in the sawdust of the mill, and twenty-seven persons crowded into it. A Chinaman named Andres hid under a space made by the fly-wheel of the engine. Jose Looves, a lumberman; Miguel, a Chinaman, 80 years old; Felicians and Miguel Lopez, guides, and Phillipine Castillo, a workman for Count Romeso, hid in the kitchen of the house of the workman, Jose Caro, where they thought they were out of danger. The veteran, Paucho Perez, who, with one hundred cavalrymen, had won such a signal victory over the forces of the enemy, when he heard that Col. Molina, commanding the forces that had been defeated, was protected by a large force and that they were advancing again to the place of battle, retired to a convenient place with the majority of the forces of Nunez and Lacret to await again the attack of the Spanish troops. The enemy advanced to the Sierra, refusing the battle that was offered to them by the conquerers of Col. Molina. They vented their fury, instead, on defenseless peasants.

Butchery Without Mercy.

A portion of the Spanish soldiery entered the kitchen of Caro and shot the five persons hiding there, heedless of their appeals and protests of innocence. Another group of soldiers, when they heard the cries of the children proceeding from the sawdust in the hole, began to fire into it, wounding several, among them a child and Josi Gonzalez, part owner of the mill, who had shown his head to tell them who they were. Gonzalez fell into the lap of his son Miguel, a child fourteen years old. Francisco Gonzalez, brother of Josi, came out, crying to the butchers: "We are the owners; we are peaceable citizens, stop firing!" It was all in vain. Spanish officer shot him through the skull. These people had to stay for twelve hours longer, the living, wounded and dead together in a mass. The Chinaman, Andres, was shot through and through. At daybreak some Spanish forces, under Major Mitjaris, arrived with the principal owner of the mill, Miguel Gonzalez. Gonzalez was then informed of the fate of his brothers, and Col. Molina consented to the removal of the people from the hole. Gen. Prats, the Spanish commander, ordered that nobody should protest or complain.

Houses and Stores Looted.

Gonzalez and his wife returned with two caskets the next day, but one of them was taken by the colonel for Lieut. Bisbal, who had been killed by the Cubans. Subsequently they buried twenty-one victims of the assassination. Meanwhile the Cubans had set at liberty two prisoners, one a civil guard, who refused to return to the Spanish ranks and immediately joined the Cubans. The insurgants lost one man, who was immediately shot by Col. Molina. The mill has been abandoned, the women and children rushing to the towns, and all the able-bodied men joining the ranks of the Cubans. The Spanish troops knew well who occupied the sawdust pit—laborers, women and children. The column raided the houses and stores, looting jewelry, clothes and money, the stolen articles being afterwards publicly sold in Colon. A Cuban who surrendered on coming in was immediately shot.

All on Board Drowned.

Amsterdam, Dec. 10.—An unknown three-masted schooner has been lost off the island of Ameland, in the North sea, four miles north of the coast of Friesland. Everybody on board of the vessel was drowned.

Navigation Closed for the Season.

New York, Dec. 10.—The Albany line steamboats made their last trip on the Hudson yesterday, making it the close of the steamboat season on the Hudson.

HAYWARD STILL DEFIANT.

He Talks Flippantly About His Execution Set for To-morrow.

Minneapolis, Dec. 10.—Harry Hayward, who is to die to-morrow, paced his narrow prison cell this morning, while within 100 feet the carpenters clattered boards and drove nails, heralding to the restless wretch the fact that his scaffold was in process of erection. Harry had not been informed as to the work, but at the first sound he said with a laugh to his guard: "They are off. They can't hang me but once," he continued, "and I guess that I can stand that. Say, if I take the rope all right and await until they cut me down, will they let me go if I get up and walk?" and at this he laughed most heartily. "I figure that I won't be hurt at all. I won't know just when it occurs, unless some devil who stood waiting for me told me all about it afterwards, for the doctors say that there is nothing but a sudden soothing, dreamy feeling and then—a blank. If the d—— thing works all right I won't care. Somehow or other I believe in a hereafter, but it is such an uncertain quantity that I don't take in much gospel stuff. I guess that I will trust to luck and do the best I can after I get into the next world." He then became sullen, but finally exclaimed: "There they go again, hammering on that scaffold. That's right. I hope they have good men and will make it strong."

SAID PASHA RETURNS HOME.

The Sultan at Last Persuades Him To Leave the British Embassy.

Constantinople, Dec. 10.—Notwithstanding the general belief that the ex-grand vizier, Said Pasha, would persist in his reported determination to leave the country, an important change has been made in his plans. It appears that the sultan has at last persuaded him to forego his intention of remaining under the protection of the British ambassador, for last evening he left the embassy and returned to his residence. It is believed that the resolution adopted at the meeting of the representatives of the powers on Thursday to the effect that the powers would support him should he again accept the post of grand vizier was an important factor in causing him to reconsider his determination to expatriate himself. As yet there is no indication of what his future course will be. It is officially stated to-day that there is perfect quiet in all the provinces except Zeitoun, where the Armenian rebels are still in possession of the town.

CLERK KERR'S REPORT.

Money Disbursed by Him in the House Since July 1, 1894.

Washington, Dec. 10.—The report of James Kerr, clerk of the house, which was presented to congress on December 2, shows that from July 1, 1894, to June 30, 1895, he disbursed $801.832.86, and from July 1, 1895, to December 2, 1895, the sum of $189,780.89. His report also contains a recapitulation of the disbursements made by him during his term as clerk—December 8, 1891, to Dec. 2, 1895—which payments represent the expenses of the house of representatives during that period except the salaries and mileage of members, which are paid through the sergeant-at-arms. The disbursements from Dec. 8, 1891, to Dec. 2, 1895, include clerk hire. Members and delegates, $474,146; salaries of officers and employes, $1,745,918; salaries of capital police, $77,970; stationery, $243,153; miscellaneous items, $159,754; and aggregate, $2,865,987.54.

CAPT. HUGHES HELD.

Must Answer for an Offense Committed on the High Seas.

Charleston, S. C., Dec. 10.—Judge Brawley of the United States district court handed down his decision in the case against Capt. Samuel Hughes, the master of the steamship Laurado, which was charged with violating the neutrality laws of the United States. Judge Brawley holds that while there is no proof of an expedition begun within the territory of the United States, there is sufficient proof of an offense committed on the high seas to justify further investigation. He therefore issued an order holding Capt. Hughes under bond for trial at the approaching January term of court for the eastern division of South Carolina.

TWO MORE BODIES RECOVERED

Only One Corpse Now Remaining in the Tillie Foster Mine.

Brewsters, N. Y., Dec. 10.—At the Tillie Foster mine last evening two more bodies were recovered, making a total of twelve so far taken out. The bodies unearthed last night were those of Italians and were mangled beyond recognition. They were picked up in pieces. There is still one body, that of an Italian, missing.

Big Bill of Costs.

Pittsburg, Dec. 10.—The bill of costs, aggregating $900, in the case of Andrew Wall, vice-president of the Fidelity and Columbia Building & Loan associations of Washington, recently convicted of conspiracy and sentenced to three months' imprisonment, is the largest bill of costs ever filed in a criminal case in this county.

Hurd Repeats His Confession.

Biddeford, Me., Dec. 10.—Frederick Hurd, who killed his father Saturday and confessed the deed to the city marshal Saturday night, has repeated his confession to the county attorney, giving the details substantially as before. He will be arraigned to-morrow.

Princeton's Football Captain.

Princeton, N. J., Dec. 10.—Garrett Cochran, '98, has been elected captain of the Princeton football team for the season of '96.

FIGHTING IN AFRICA

Italian Troops Massacred by Abyssinian Forces.

Fourteen Italian Officers and 700 Troops Known To Have Been Killed and 300 Are Missing—Makonnen's Overtures for Peace Were Only a Ruse.

Rome, Dec. 10.—The army of Abyssinia, consisting, according to report, of 20,000 men, was surprised Sunday by five companies of Italian troops under Maj. Tosselli at Ambalagi. Gen. Arimondi, with another body of Italian troops, advanced to the support of Maj. Tosselli, but was stopped by the enemy. A severe battle was subsequently fought. Gen. Arimondi repulsed successive bodies of Abyssinians, but could not reach Maj. Tosselli. The latter's troops had exhausted their ammunition. As soon as the enemy learned this they charged upon the Italians, nearly all of whom were massacred. It is known that fourteen Italian officers and 700 men were killed, while 300 are missing. Gen. Baratieri is hastening to engage the enemy.

Excitement in Rome.

The cabinet discussed the situation of the Italian troops and decided to send reinforcements, ammunition and artillery to them by the first transport, which will probably start this evening. The public is much excited over the news of the defeat. It is supposed that Ras Makonnen's recent overtures for peace were a ruse, of which Major Tosselli was the victim. It was announced this morning that Gen. Arimondi, who went to succor Major Tosselli, engaged the Abyssinans and stopped their advance. The enemy's loss was severe. Gen. Arimondi has safely reached the vicinity of Adigrat.

TWENTY-EIGHT LIVES LOST.

Foundering of the Steamer Principia After an Outbreak of Fire.

Leith, Scotland, Dec. 10.—The British steamer Principia, Capt. Stannard, from Shields Nov. 13, via Dundee Nov. 16, for New York, took fire in the forehold when about forty miles north of Cape Wrath on the northwesternly extremity of Scotland. She ran for one of the Faroe islands, struck a rock and went down with twenty-seven of her crew, only one person being saved. A passenger named Jackson was also drowned. The member of the crew who was saved was Henry Anders of Rostack, Germany. He was taken from the water after clinging to wreckage for eighteen hours. The circumstance that led to the steamer striking the rock grew directly out of the fire. The captain's object in running his vessel before the wind was to counteract whatever draft might be created by her forward progress. Some time before the steamer struck the fire burned through the fore hatch and a great volume of smoke and flame poured out of the hold, completely obscuring the view ahead. The vessel therefore had to be navigated blindly, and she struck before it was known that she was so close to land.

LIZZIE SCHAUER FREE.

Released from the New York Work House by the Supreme Court.

New York, Dec. 10.—Amelia Elizabeth Schauer, the 18-year-old girl who was committed to the work house on Blackwell's island by Magistrate Mott in the Essex Market police court last week, on a charge of soliciting men in the street at night, was brought before Justice Andrews in supreme court chambers yesterday on a writ of habeas corpus. There was also a writ of certiorai issued by Justice Andrews calling for all the papers in the case. The question which Justice Andrews was to decide was not whether the girl was guilty or innocent, but whether the evidence placed before Magistrate Mott was sufficient to warrant his action in committing her. The justice, after hearing argument, ordered the girl's discharge. In discharging the girl Justice Andrews said there was not sufficient evidence that she was even loitering.

PREBLE VS. YATES.

Verdict for Plaintiff Sustained by U. S. Circuit Court in Boston.

Boston, Dec. 10.—The United States circuit court has overruled the motion for a new trial in the case of Sarah H. Preble vs. H. M. Bates et al. The plaintiff sued the defendants, composing the firm of Bates & Walley, brokers, to recover damages for losses sustained by her in consequence of her son Edward Preble speculating in defendants' place of business. The plaintiff secured a verdict for a large amount several months ago.

YALE UNIVERSITY.

Students of Good Standing Excused from Examinations.

New Haven, Conn., Dec. 10.—It is officially announced that forty-two students of good standing in the course in Yale university will be excused from the semi-annual examinations. This probably forecasts a general adoption of the plan, and is the first step in this direction.

Rutherford's Fatal Fire.

Rutherford, N. J., Dec. 10.—Valentine George, who cut his throat through grief for the loss of his employer, Chas. Vorwald, who perished in the fire which destroyed his store Sunday night, is in a precarious condition in the hospital here. The property loss by Sunday night's fire is placed at about $40,000.

Delicate Dress Goods,
Some gowns are so dainty in the weave, so delicate in tint, that they seem to soil by being look at—one or two wearings making them unpresentable—not useless. We make a specialty of cleaning fine fabrics—the more delicate the material, the better the results. Sometimes an accident will ruin a gown, without injuring the texture. We dye them then, sometimes we get a prettier effect than the original color. Fine goods stand re-dying. The finer the material, the better the new color. We charge so little for cleaning or dyeing, that even if you are in doubt as to the results, it's worth while to experiment.

TO BE SELECTED TO-DAY

Republican National Convention City for '96.

The Work Pushed Ahead of Other Business To Permit Certain Gentlemen To Return Home—One Hour Allowed Each City To Present Its Claim.

Washington, Dec. 10.—Some time this afternoon the executive committee of the national republican committee will announce the name of the city chosen in which to hold the convention next year. Contrary to general expectation yesterday morning, the work of selecting a city was pushed ahead of other business on account of the desire of a number of gentlemen who are here to push the claims of their respective cities to return home. It did not take the committee more than ten minutes yesterday to discover that the plan of facilitating the work proposed by Messrs. Carter and Manley, which looked to the placing of the different cities in nomination at once, was not satisfactory. All of the number, without exception, insisted that they were not ready to present their claims, nor would they be until Wednesday. Nevertheless, the meeting was held. After some delay a quorum was secured. Those present were:

The Members Present.

M. H. De Young, California; Samuel Fessenden, Connecticut; D. J. Layton, Delaware; Perry H. Carson, Washington; J. C. Long, Florida; W. W. Brown, Georgia; George L. Shoup, Idaho; W. J. Campbell, Illinois; J. N. Huston, Indiana; J. S. Clarkson, Iowa; Cyrus Leland, jr., Kansas; Albert H. Leonard, Louisiana; Joseph Manley, Maine; James A. Gray, Maryland; George L. Maltz, Michigan; R. G. Evans, Minnesota; R. C. Kerens, Missouri; John M. Thurston, Nebraska; G. A. Hobert, New Jersey; Cornelius N. Bliss, New York; H. C. Hensbrough, North Dakota; W. M. Hahn, Ohio; Isaac Trumbo, Utah; H. L. Swords, Iowa; Thomas H. Carter, Montana; W. F. Forrester, proxy for W. D. Bradley, Kentucky; J. F. Saunders, Colorado; Henry C. Cowles, North Carolina; E. M. Brayton, South Carolina; William Lamb, Virginia; N. B. Scott, West Virginia. Chairman Carter called the meeting to order and stated that the purpose of making nominations at once was to permit a number of gentlemen to return home who would otherwise be compelled to remain in Washington until after this had been done. He was willing, however, in view of the opposition to postpone the matter until Tuesday (to-day).

One Hour for Each City.

Mr. De Young moved that when the committee adjourned it should be to meet at 10 o'clock Tuesday (to-day), when the nominations shall be made. Mr. De Young also moved that, while the number of speakers should be unlimited, not more than one hour should be allowed to each city to present its claim. Both motions were adopted. Upon motion of Mr. Hahn of Ohio a committee of five was appointed, consisting of himself as chairman, Messrs. De Young of California, Clarkson of Iowa, Manley of Maine, and Campbell of Illinois, to draft a telegram to W. O. Bradley of Kentucky, one of the members of the executive committee, congratulating him upon his election as governor of that state, and extending the hope that his inauguration today may be attended by all the favoring conditions which his personal and political worth demand. The meeting then adjourned.

To Meet in Open Session.

A meeting of the executive committee was held last evening in Chairman Manley's room to discuss the arrangements for to-day's meeting. The national committee will sit in open session to hear the claims of San Francisco, St. Louis, Chicago, Pittsburg and New York. At the conclusion of the speech-making the committee will go into executive session and select the convention city.

THE EUROPEAN STORMS.

Much Damage in Switzerland—Wrecks on the Italian Coast.

Berne, Dec. 10.—The severe storms which have prevailed over Switzerland during the last few days, as well as throughout Europe in general, have caused great damage, especially in the villages in the mountain districts of Switzerland. An earthquake shock was felt at Hasli, also known as Ober-Hasli, in this canton.

Much Damage in Italy.

London, Dec. 10.—A dispatch from Rome announces that numerous wrecks have occurred during the great storms which have swept over Italy. Much damage has been done, especially along the coasts.

Statistical Expert Evans Resigns.

Washington, Dec. 10.—As a result of friction in the bureau of statistics between Mr. Ford, its chief, and C. H. Evans, statistical expert, the resignation of the latter has been tendered and accepted.

Further Settling of Grace Island.

St. Johns, N. F., Dec. 10.—There was a further settling of part of Harbor Grace island last night, rendering the lighthouse unsafe. The government is taking steps to remove the structure.

Herr Dowe Dead.

Berlin, Dec. 10.—Herr Dowe, the inventor of what he claimed to be a bullet-proof coat, died last night a Wiesbaden.

LINGS IN CONGRESS

Only Business of Minor Importance Transacted.

Mr. Cullom's Address on the Monroe Doctrine Occupying the Attention of the Senate To-day—A Pension for Mrs. Gresham—First Bill Passed in the House.

Washington, Dec. 10.—Although congress has not yet settled down to active work some little business of minor importance is being transacted. In the senate, Senator Caffery of Louisiana took the oath of office for his new term, beginning March 4 last. Among the numerous pension bills introduced and referred was one by Mr. Voorhees, dem., Ind., to pay a pension of $200 a month to the widow of the late Secretary of State Gresham. A bill to prevent citizens of the United States from soliciting or accepting titles, patents of nobility or degrees of honor from foreign nations under penalty of fine and disfranchisement was introduced by Mr. Allen, pop., Neb., and referred to the committee on foreign relations. It exempts from its provisions ecclesiastical titles and degrees. A resolution calling on the president for copies of all correspondence in the state department on the subject of the trial and imprisonment of John L. Waller by the French authorities at Madagascar was introduced by Mr. Baker, rep., Kan., and was agreed to. The second bill passed in this session was one, on motion of Mr. Pasco, dem., Fla., appropriating $1,500 for a survey and plans of improvement at the entrance of Biscayne bay, Fla. Senator Morgan's speech yesterday on the subject of the Behring sea indemnity was a severe denunciation of the president's action in the matter. He presented figures showing that the actual amount due, excluding the claims of American citizens, was only $96,102, instead of $425,000, as proposed by Mr. Gresham. The greater part of to-day's session of the senate will probably be taken up with the address of Mr. Cullom on the subject of the Monroe doctrine.

House of Representatives.

The house will not convene to-day until 1:15 and it is expected that the session will be short. Yesterday the house was in session only an hour and fifteen minutes and almost that entire time was spent in the discussion of resolutions for the appointment of minor officials and employes of the house, including those by courtesy given to the minority and selected by the democratic caucus. The first bill passed this session was that changing the collection limits of the port of Chicago so as to include the state of Illinois. Mr. Price, dem., La., made his first appearance at this congress and took the oath of office.

PECKHAM'S NOMINATION.

Senate Judiciary Committee Orders a Favorable Report.

Washington, Dec. 10.—The senate committee on the judiciary has ordered a favorable report on the nomination of Rufus W. Peckham of New York to be associate justice of the supreme court of the United States.

ASK FOR AN EXTENSION.

Whittnen, Burdet & Co., Boston Wholesale Clothiers in Trouble.

Boston, Dec. 10.—The wholesale clothing house of Whitten, Burdet & Co., has asked its creditors for an extension of time of from four to twelve months. It is stated that the firm owes about $210,000. According to the statement made by a member of firm the house, which is probably the largest wholesale clothing house in Boston, should come out all right with the desired extension of time, which will probably be granted. Horatio Burdet says: "We have asked for an extension of time for four, six, eight and twelve months, and more than three-quarters of the creditors have agreed. Warm weather and the dullness in the trade have been the cause of the trouble. We shall pay 100 cents on the dollar." The firm failed six years ago for $1,200,000.

VON KOELLER'S RESIGNATION.

The Kaiser Allows Him to Retain His Title and He Is Decorated.

Berlin, Dec. 10.—In accepting the resignation of Baron von Koeller, the Prussian minister of the interior, Emperor William permitted him to retain his title and rank as minister of state, and decorated him with the order of the Red Eagle.

Well-Known Conductor Dead.

Rochester, N. Y., Dec. 10.—James C. Van Dake died of pneumonia at his home in this city yesterday, aged 55 years. He was for many years a conductor on the Niagara Falls branch of the New York Central road and was widely known by travelers from all parts of the United States and Canada.

Guardian of Her Husband.

New York, Dec. 10.—Mrs. Annie Roberts has been appointed a committee of the person and property of her husband, David H. Roberts, who was several days ago adjudged insane by a sheriff's jury and is now in an asylum in Liverpool. Her bond is placed at $100,000.

Boy Train Wreckers Held.

Rome, N. Y., Dec. 10.—The final hearing of the inquest in the train wrecking case took place last evening and resulted in Hildreth, Hibbard, Bristol and Plato being convicted with intent to cause said accident and to commit murder and robbery.

The City Improvement Society of New Brunswick, will distribute receptacles for scrap paper and other things about the city next week, in spite of the refusal of the Board of Education to allow the society to locate cans in front of the school buildings. The members of the society were displeased at the manner in which the Board of Education treated their movement, and made a caustic reply in the local newspapers. The society is increasing in membership, and has drawn up plans for numerous improvements about the city. The iron barrels, which are to bear the name of the society, have arrived. The principal objection of the Board of Eductation to the society's plan was to have the school children pick up dirty papers from the streets, especially on their way to school. The school children are in sympathy with the movement, and many have signed pledges to assist in beautifying the city.

If N. O. Nelson, the millionaire manufacturer, profit-sharer, single-tax advocate, and all-round philanthropist of St. Louis, doesn't lose confidence in human nature, it will be because he has that faith which is the evidence of things not experienced as well as of things not seen, says the Evening Post. Mr. Nelson began to experiment in profit-sharing ten years ago. In order that his employes could not object, he did not reduce a single person's wages. Then at the end of the year he cast up his accounts, and, taking all the profits above a certain per cent. on his capital, etc., divided it among his employes. He did the same thing the next year, at no time reducing wages a cent. The men who shared this profit began to think, or at least two or three began to think for the rest, as is usually the case. The more they thought, the more firmly they became convinced that they had a grievance against Mr. Nelson. "He was holding back," according to their reasoning, "a part of their wages till the end of the year." This trouble was gotten over somehow, but it has broken out from time to time. Mr. Nelson has clung to his theories, however, and his St. Louis business is still being conducted on the profit-sharing plan. Mr. Nelson determined a few weeks ago to go still further; with characteristic liberality, he proposed to take all the risk of failure. His factory is located across the river at Le Claire, Ill. He determined to sell this factory outright to his employees, letting them pay for it, not out of their wages, but out of the profits of the concern. The result was a strike. The men did not propose to have a factory given to them against their will. If Mr. Nelson wished to give them anything it must be in the shape of wages, and paid every Saturday night. Any other plan interfered with their ideas of independence and American manhood. Meantime they would be content to continue work at the old scale.

Great Reduction in Time to California.

Once more the Northwestern Line has reduced the time of its trans-continental trains, and the journey from Chicago to California via this popular route is now made in the marvelously short time of three days. Palace drawing-room sleeping cars leave Chicago daily, and run through to San Francisco and Los Angeles, without change, and all meals en route are served in dining cars. Daily tourist sleeping car service is also maintained by this line between Chicago and San Francisco and Los Angeles, completely equipped berths in upholstered tourist sleepers being furnished at a cost of only $6 each from Chicago to the Pacific Coast. Through trains leave Chicago for California at six p. m. and 10.30 p. m. daily, after arrival of trains of connecting lines from the east and south. For detailed information concerning rates, routes, etc., apply to ticket agents of connecting lines or address: H. A. Gross, G. E. P. A., 423 Broadway, New York; or T. P. Vaille, S. E. P. UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT GRANT

Making Homes Happier.

The wonderful cures that have been effected at Hot Springs, Arkansas, by its world-famed healing waters are truly miraculous. They almost require ocular evidence to be credited.

Thousands and tens of thousands of patients who, from all sections of the world, have been cured of rheumatism, gout, scrofula, paralysis, acquired or hereditary, blood poisons and all others diseases arising from an impure state or low condition of the blood, are living testimonials of its value.

If people cannot go to Hot Springs, Arkansas, they can now have this same treatment at their homes for $1 per bottle by asking their druggists for "Pura Blood," which contains the celebrated curative waters of Hot Springs, Arkansas, under grant from the United States Government. Physicians endorse "Pura Blood." Billups & Co., of 26 Cortlandt st., New York, are sole agents, and will send descriptive book free to any address.

The Roselle bowlers in The Standard League gave the Parks a hard run in the game last night, and won the first game by a margin of seventy-four pins. In the second the Parks got their bowling muscles limbered up and came out thirty-eight pins ahead. Thursday night the Roselle's will bowl the Country Club in this city and if they are lucky enough to win both games they will tie the Parks for first place. But as the Parks expect to down the Westfield's on Friday night they will still continue in first place. The scores last night were as follows:

FIRST GAME.

ROSELLES.		PARKS.
Harris	164	Brooks	161
Cook	156	Smith	128

	746		708

A mixture of bad luck and bad bowling lost the first game for the Crescent Wheelmen in the Central Journal Bowling League last night, and the team of the New Jersey Athletic Club is loudly crowing over their defeat of the leaders, but the Crescents are in the lead yet and somebody has got to hustle to leave them behind. The game last evening was a battle royal up to the seventh frame and then it was a case of hoodoo, for the pins seemed glued to the floor when the visiting wheelmen tried to bowl, and splits were the order of the day. The New Jersey boys set the pace for the first two frames and then their opponents jumped ahead and remained there through the fifth. But the pace was too hot and the wheelmen fell behind to be gradually lost in the distance while the home team floated in 122 pins ahead. Then sadly the visitors and their rooters left for home, not forgetting, however, to give three cheers for the victors. The individual scores were as follows:

CYCLING COMMENT.

The Columbia '96 wheel is on exhibition at the Eldridge bicycle warerooms.

Frank Woodruff, of Duer street, one of the machinists of the F. L. C. Martin Cycle Company, starts today for Rockaway, where he will visit the factory of the Liberty Manufacturing Company.

John Keefe, of the F. L. C. Martin Cycle Company, has been one of the most enthusiastic cyclists of Plainfield during the last year. He has been on the road a greater part of the year and estimates his mileage at over eight thousand miles. His longest ride was to Philadelphia, and return, one hundred and fifty miles.

John Keefe, of the Martin Cycle Company, Fred Shepard, of North Plainfield, and Al. Decker., of the Columbia Cycle Company, took a cross country cycling run to Springfield Sunday. They followed the old old country roads and by paths and finally reached their destination after numerous adventures.

The members of the Manhattan Bicycle Club, which held its race meet on the Crescent Oval last summer, are having a contest for the greatest mileage during the season. Captain C. P. Stanback is ahead at present with 8,475 miles. J. W. Foster, Jr., is second with 7500 miles. R. G. Betts, the advocate in an upright position, has made 2,478 miles.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh That Contain Mercury.

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces, such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

WITH ROD AND GUN.

B. R. Western and Dr. C. R. Thiers, together with several friendss, are contemplating a hunting trip tomorrow over the mountains back of North Plainfield.

While John Adleman was out hunting yesterday he discovered a rabbit asleep in the woods and he succeeded in catching him. He presented the cotton-tail to Councilman V. L. Frazee.

The first of the series of three matches between Allen Willey, of Hartford, and W. G. Clark, of Altoona, will be shot on Thursday on the Elizabeth Gun Club grounds. The second will be shot at Yardley on Friday, and the third at Dexter Park, L. I., on Saturday. Each match will be at 100 live birds, and the whole series is for $100 a side. The Elizabeth Gun Club has made elaborate preparations for the first match. In addition to the contest between the two cracks there will be miscellaneous shooting, in which many of the sportsmen in the vicinity are expected to compete.

The Boys Will Eat.

This evening the Boys' Brigade of the First Baptist church will have a supper and entertainment in the lecture room of the church, after the entertainment an exhibition drill will be given. The supper will be served at 6:30 and the entertainment will commence at 7:30.

How Col. Hadley Was Converted.

The story of how Col. H. H. Hadley, who is soon to conduct a series of evangelical services in this city, was converted, is told on the sixth page of today's Press under the head of "Was it a Miracle." It is an interesting story.

A PREVALENT DISEASE.

Not Necessarily Dangerous but May Become So.

American men and women suffer from a very general disease—dyspepsia.

Dyspepsia has many symptoms. Thin, pale people are generally dyspeptic. Hollow cheeks, bad breath, acid eructations, palpitation of the heart, hot and cold flushes, headaches, nausea and vomiting, all these are symptoms of dyspepsia.

What does dyspepsia mean? In two words, imperfect digestion. How can we remedy it? Not alone by resort to drugs. We must rest the stomach.

For this purpose we must put into it a food which is already digested and which will aid the digestion of other foods. We must take Shaker Digestive Cordial, for this is just such a preparation. It contains food which will be absorbed at once. It also contains principles which will assist the digestion of other foods, while last but not least, it contains a combination of those drugs in the cultivation of which the Shakers have been so successful, and which act by stimulating the liver and bowels.

Imperfect digestion is often caused by overwork of the digestive apparatus, too much food, food eaten too quickly, nervous, worry, etc.

The Shaker Digestive Cordial is the most successful remedy for indigestion that has ever been made. A single 10c bottle will afford relief in most cases, although this small quantity cannot be expected to effect a perfect cure.

If you find it suitable in your own case, continue its use. All druggists keep it and can supply you with an interesting descriptive pamphlet.

Nothing Like It.

Time brings many changes, but the climate of California, "The Italy of America," and the attractions of the many famous health and pleasure resorts, are the same yesterday, today and forever.

Then, too, it must be conceded that with such excellent equipment, consisting of Reclining Chair Cars, Pullman Palace Sleepers and Pullman Dining Cars, all heated by steam and lighted with Pintsch Light, the Union Pacific, "The Overland Route," is the tourists favorite. Ask your agent for tickets via this route.

THEATRICAL.

Miss Jeannie Graves, a bright, pretty and captivating soubrette, with a voice both beautiful in quality and cultivation, has introduced successfully into the new farce "Jolly Old Chums," which will be presented here Wednesday night, some very superior music, not heard outside comic operas now a-day without burlesque frills. This speaks volumes for Miss Graves.

—Crescent Division, Uniformed Rank, K. of P., will meet tomorrow evening.

—Sunday-school officers will be elected at Trinity Reformed church this evening.

—Perseverance Lodge, No. 74, K. of P., hold their regular meeting Friday evening.

—Tax Collector H. N. Spencer, of the borough, has had his sleigh repainted preparatory to the first good sleighing.

—A special meeting of the Ladies' Christian Work Society of Trinity Reformed church was held at the home of Mrs. P. M. Demarest yesterday afternoon to arrange for winter work.

—The King's Daughters of Trinity Reformed church have started a library fund with $25, which fact was announced at church on Sunday. A new library is to be purchased as soon as practicable.

Intended to Catch Your Eye.

Don't skip this paragraph because it is small. It is worth reading for it tells about The Pineola Balsam, a certain remedy for cough, tickling in the throat and the stopped-up feeling in the upper part of the chest. A simple cough may turn into something serious if let alone. It ceases to vex you and to keep you awake o'nights when you have allayed the inflammation in your throat with Ely's Pineola Balsam. The druggists sell it for 25c.

WAS IT A MIRACLE?

COLONEL H. H. HADLEY SAYS THIS CAME WITH HIS CONVERSION.

It Was Not Only a Spiritual but a Physical Miracle—How a Phenomenal Drinker and an Inveterate Smoker Was Converted—His Good Work.

[Special Correspondence.]

NEW YORK, Oct. 8.—On the evening of July 28, 1886, a man trembling on the verge of delirium tremens went into a prayer meeting at the old Jerry McAuley mission at 316 Water street, New York. It was in one of the worst neighborhoods in the city, but the man was Colonel Henry H. Hadley, a brilliant lawyer who had practiced in the supreme court of the United States, and who even then stood high at the bar, though his drinking habits had injured him grievously.

He had tried in various ways to conquer those habits. He was the organizer of the Business Men's Moderation society, which established the first free ice water stand in the city. He had "sworn off" and "taken the pledge" several times, but still he drank and drank furiously. In his last bout he had taken 53 drinks, the last six of them being brandy cocktails, and he was suffering from this when he entered the mission.

Today he is the most prominent, probably the most successful, man in the home missionary field. Since he entered the prayer meeting that night he has not taken a drink.

"My conversion," he declares positively, "was literally a miracle, not only spiritual, but physical. I believe the age of miracles is not past. Physical natural laws are often suspended or reversed by the will of God at the present day. I have known of many cases like my own, and the doctors tell me that a stomach in such a condition as mine was in must necessarily crave liquor. I do not dispute that, but I know that craving left me the instant I resolved to give myself to Jesus. And I have never felt it for a moment since."

Of his physical regeneration there is nothing more to be said. It is certain that he was a phenomenal drinker and that he drinks no more. He was an inveterate smoker, but has given up tobacco. He declares that no credit is due to him for leaving off, since no man is to be praised for not doing what he does not want to do. But the change morally is equally astonishing—he declares that he has never "thought an oath" since his conversion—and his walk since then, in the field he has chosen, is well worthy of an extended notice. It is not as a laudation of Hadley that I write, but simply to show what marvelous results may follow intelligent, well directed efforts.

COLONEL AND MRS. HENRY H. HADLEY.

Colonel Hadley believes, as so many others believe, that the drinking habit is the origin of the greater part of the evil in the world, and he directs his main efforts at that.

"We do not, though," he says, "appeal to a man's physical or to his mental nature, as the physicians do who try to cure drunkards. Neither do we try to overcome his social or emotional tendencies. All these may be changed or cured temporarily, and a relapse may follow. We believe Jesus is the only physician who can cure, and God is the only one who can pardon the old sin, and when once the grace of God supplants and removes the craving for liquor the man is safe."

It is not only his own personal experience which makes him radical on this question. He says that 44 men from his neighborhood in Perry county, O., enlisted in the army in 1861, and all contracted the drinking habit. "Thirty-nine of these are in drunkards' graves," he declares, "and one is in a madhouse because of liquor. My brother and I and two others were saved from the same fate only by being converted."

In May, 1887, he was asked to become the superintendent of a mission in Avenue A, but he hesitated some time before accepting the offer. The salary was only $50 a month, and he had a wife and six children whom he was supporting comfortably by his earnings. Some of his most devout friends were strenuous in advising him not to accept, saying that his first duty was to his family. His wife, however, encouraged him, and he himself felt drawn to the work and finally went into it.

There had been missions before, but none like his. From the first he compelled order. "It had to be quiet or a fight," he said the other day, "and as far as I was concerned I didn't care which. If a man was unruly, I put him out. If he resisted, I kicked him out. If he made more trouble, I had him arrested. Once I had 24 of them up on the island, and I used to go and talk to them up there where they could not get away."

Then he started what he called the "Win One" movement. Each man or woman who professed conversion was admonished to select some one person and devote exclusive effort to the task of bringing that one to Jesus. It was not long before that series was started and was multiplying in geometrical progression, so that no man knows what the extent of it has been in eight years.

Then he began starting other missions here and there in different cities and states as opportunity offered, and in the eight years he has established nearly 40 headquarters for what he terms the Rescue Mission work. Of these 32 are in active operation still, and at the various meetings that have been held more than 16,000 drunkards have professed to have been saved by conversion. Of these it is certain that many have fallen away, and probably not all were sincere in their professions in the first place, but that many hundreds, if not thousands, have been rescued from a terrible fate seems to be a fact beyond doubt.

His work in the Avenue A mission soon attracted the attention of others who were interested, and it was not many months before he was asked to work for St. Bartholomew's church. This is one of the wealthiest congregations in New York and is under the pastoral care of Dr. David H. Greer, the rector, who has four assistant ministers and three lay readers, of whom Colonel Hadley is now one. The church has always been noted for its mission work and its charities, and since Colonel Hadley joined its working force these have been enormously increased. It would not be correct to say that he was entitled to all the credit for this, but there is no question that he has been an important factor. He is at the head of the St. Bartholomew Rescue mission and is the chief worker in the great Parish House, which was built by Cornelius Vanderbilt and presented to the church for the advancement of just that kind of effort in which Colonel Hadley is the acknowledged leader.

So much accomplished in eight years may fairly be called success, but Colonel Hadley declares that his life work is to be devoted to even a greater work in the same line. As he sketches it, it seems almost Utopian, but he has been encouraged and backed by wealthy people in so many undertakings that it seems reasonable to expect that he will raise the money for this. In that case the results are likely to be phenomenal.

It is nothing less than building an enormous house in the city where 1,000 men can be cared for and kept constantly employed at work that will make them self supporting for a month. Their homes, their workshops and their meeting rooms for amusement and for religious services are all to be on the premises, so that for a month or so after they first renounce liquor they may be saved from temptation as far as possible.

He wants more than $100,000 to do this with, but it is likely that he will get it.

DAVID A. CURTIS.

CORN HIS HOBBY.

The Father of Glucose and His Latest Enterprise.

[Special Correspondence.]

CHICAGO, Oct. 7.—High up in the Masonic temple, Chicago's loftiest building, yesterday I met Dr. Joseph Firmenich, president of the Firmenich Manufacturing company, and a many times millionaire. He has been called the "Father of Glucose." A large, heavily built man, he has a remarkable face. It reminds one of the features of Seneca. There are the same eager eyes, with an expression of interest which is more like pain, the bushy brows and the straight aquiline nose. His beard, too, which is of a brownish gray hue and cropped close, emphasizes his likeness to the Roman philosopher.

Thirty years ago the doctor started to make glucose and grape sugar in Buffalo. He was the first manufacturer so to do in this country, but glucose had been made in Germany for 20 years previous to that time. His factory in Buffalo had a capacity of 50 bushels of corn a day. People said he was going into the thing too deeply. Last year, however, his factories turned out full three-fifths of the entire American production. Dr. Firmenich is a chemist of distinction. He said to me: "Within a week I have discovered that two very important commodities can be made from corn. These are, in addition to glucose, grape sugar, starch and cornstarch, which are all corn products. I have disposed of my manufactory at Marshalltown, Ia., which was one of the biggest in the corn country. We are going to erect either in Chicago or some town west of here the most stupendous plant which the west has ever seen, with the largest capacity in the world. I believe there are many other staple articles which can be made from corn. I purpose experimenting until I have discovered them all."

Until recently Dr. Firmenich was a heavy stockholder in the American Glucose company, one of the wealthiest trusts in existence. He owns a mammoth plant at Peoria, Ills., at present, which the trust has in vain tried to buy. More and more glucose is used every year. The consumption is something enormous. Just where the demand will cease it is hard to say, but the doctor proposes to manufacture glucose just as long as the great American public will use it. He makes tests and experiments every day. As he sat in his office surrounded by bottles, cans, cylinders, measuring glasses, etc., Dr. Firmenich looked no older than when, 20 years ago, he used to be a director in all the German savings banks of Buffalo and was hand in glove with Millard Fillmore.

ADD. VANCE.

A Siamese Theater.

Within 50 yards from the house we found a large wooden platform, covered by a roof of atap—leaves of a palm and similar to those of the cocoanut tree—and resting at about four feet distance above the ground upon strong piles that had been driven into the soft soil of the plantation which encircled the residence. One-third of the platform was partitioned off as a "greenroom," and the remaining space had been left for the orchestra, who occupied one side, for the seats of distinguished visitors on the other side and for the performance of the play in the center. The musical instruments consisted of drums, flutes and wooden staves. The last named contributed very much to the din, if not to the harmony, of the evening's entertainment when they were struck either against each other or upon the platform.

Two members of the band held books of the play, which they consulted from time to time, and when required they assumed the duties of prompter. At certain intervals the music ceased, when the prompters—a middle aged man, probably the proprietor of the "show," and a very pretty young woman—laid aside their musical instruments and delivered harangues in a shrill monotonous key. These harangues, I was given to understand, were necessary and were always looked for by the audience with much eagerness, as through them alone were divulged many points of the plot which the author had purposely or unavoidably excluded from the speeches and play of the actors.

Heard at Last.

Father O'Halloran had a telephone put into the parsonage in connection with the church and the parochial school, says the Boston Transcript. Patrick McFee, his reverence's handy man, was instructed in the use of the instrument, and it was only the next day when Pat, dusting out the church, heard the ringing of the telephone bell.

Taking down the receiver, Patrick was pleased to hear Father O'Halloran's familiar voice asking him something or other about his work. In essaying to answer, he remembered that his reverence was a long way off, and therefore he shouted into the transmitter at the top of his voice.

"I don't understand you, Patrick," said the telephone.

Pat tried again, with no better success. On his third trial, he came near splitting the telephone, but again came Father O'Halloran's voice, "I can't hear what you're saying, Patrick."

Pat had by this time lost something of his patience, and as he stood gathering breath for a fourth blast, he couldn't refrain from soliloquizing in a low tone, "Ah, may the divil fly away wid the ould fool!" But Pat dropped the telephone like a hot potato and fell to his knees in dismay when he heard Father O'Halloran's voice once again:

"Now I hear you perfectly, Patrick."

Getting Over a Cough

is easy enough with the help of Randolph's Emulsion. It's a regular step ladder we might say. You get over the cough easily and quickly. In fact, all our drugs are step ladders to help one over every kind of earthly ailment But coughs are what we particularly want to speak of today, for there is a long hard winter before us, and tne person who starts it off with a cough may never see the end of it. Therefore if a cough is what you have take Randolph's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil with phosphoric acid.

unfortunate

Cod-liver oil suggests consumption, which is almost unfortunate.

Its best use is before you fear consumption; when you begin to get thin, weak, run down; then is the prudent time to begin to take care, and the best way to take care is to supply the system with needed fat and strength. Scott's Emulsion of cod-liver oil, with hypophosphites, will bring back plumpness to those who have lost it, and make strength where raw cod-liver oil would be a burden.

A substitute only imitates the original.

Corporation Notice.

Public notice is hereby given that the Plainfield Street Railway Company, a corporation incorporated under the laws of the State of New Jersey, did, on the third day of June, A. D., Eighteen Hundred and Ninety-five, file with the Common Council of the City of Plainfield, the petition of said The Plainfield Street Railway Company, in the words and figures following, that is to say:

To the Mayor and Common Council of the City of Plainfield, N. J.

Gentlemen—The Plainfied Street Railway Company, a corporation incorporated under the laws of the State of New Jersey, authorized, to locate, consturct, maintain and operate a street railway in the City of Plainfield, Union County, New Jersey, to be operated by electricity or other motive power except steam, respectfully represents that it desires an extension of the location of its railway in the City of Plainfield, as follows:

1. From the present terminus of the road in Watchung avenue, through Watchung avenue to East Fifth street, through East Fifth street to Richmond street, through Richmond street to Putnam avenue, and through Putnam avenue to Woodland avenue, through Woodland avenue to South avenue, through South avenue to the station of the Central Railroad of N. J., at Netherwood.

2. From the present terminus of the road in Watchung avenue, through Watchung avenue to East Third street, through East Third street to Richmond street, through Richmond street to North avenue, through North avenue to the city line at the Township of Fanwood.

3. From the present terminus of the road in Front street at Grant avenue, through Front street to the City line at Dunellen.

4. From the present terminus of the road in Watchung avenue through Watchung avenue to Fourth street, and through Fourth street to Grant avenue.

And therefore respectfully petitions your Honorable Body to locate the tracks of the street railway and to consent to the extension thereof in said streets or highways, and further petitions Your Honorable Body to consent to the operation of said extension of said railway with electric motors and to the erection of the necessary poles and to the necessary stringing of the necessary wires for the operation of said extensions of electricity; the tracks to be placed in the center of the streets and to be single track with turn outs every thousand feet.

[SEAL] Yours respectfully,
J. T. FRITTS, Vice Pres.

Attest: ADRAIN RIKER, Secretary.

The character of the road intended to be constructed, operated or maintained, the motive power to be used thereon and the street or streets or other public places through which the same shall extend are those specified in said petition above quoted in full.

That upon the twelfth day of December, A. D., eighteen hundred and ninety-five, at the Common Council chamber, No. 109 Park avenue, in the city of Plainfield, New Jersey, at the hour of eight p. m., or upon such subsequent date as the hearing of said petition may be adjourned to the Common Council will consider such petition, and intend by ordinance and not otherwise to grant or by resolution to refuse permission to construct, maintain or operate such street railway as prayed for in said petition, or in their direction, to consent to the construction, maintenance or operation of such street railway upon part of the streets, highways or public places designated in such petition or notice, and refuse permission to construct, maintain or operate the said street railway upon the remainder of streets or public places.

Dated, November 26th, 1895.
By order of the Common Council.

The Whippoorwill's Call.

By AUGUSTA LARNED.

Copyright, 1894, by American Press Association.

There were beehives on the little hill behind a row of straggling currant and gooseberry bushes and backed by an aged orchard of moss grown trees. Uncle Si had been fond of his bees, and Elsie was not afraid of their stings. The old man had taught her to handle a swarm, and they would sometimes light on her hands from pure friendliness. Now Elsie went close to the hives, and when the bees came buzzing about her she whispered to them as her eyes filled with tears, "Uncle Si is dead." She had brought a scrap of black ribbon in her pocket, and she tied it to the little shed under which the hives were ranged. She felt the bees ought to know what had happened to their best friend, and had they known they, too, would have hung out a little flag of mourning. The littered farmyard was near, with its old gray barns and sheds strewn with decayed wagons and farm implements. A little lane led from a pair of bars up to the steep pasture land on the hillside, fringed with elder bushes, pride of the meadow, and wild dog roses. The evening light lay like warm gold on the smooth slope, and the dark oak trees at the top burned with sullen splendor against a climbing settlement of little pointed cedars.

The old Modley Cow and Crumple Horn had come to the bars in search of Elsie and were bawling now in the quiet air, lifting up their voices against her long delay. A red calf, with a white star in the forehead, was rubbing against her mother's baggy side and occasionally emitting a little plaint to remind Elsie that she had forgotten to bring the warm mash that was to serve for her supper. Elsie put her arm over the bar and laid it round Crumble Horn's neck, while she told the cows and the calf Buttercup that Uncle Si was dead. Uncle Si had been fond of his old cows and of all the animals on the farm, and she could but believe that these dumb creatures would grieve to know their friend had gone away never to return.

A little flock of sheep was feeding at the top of the green slope, and among them a cosset lamb Elsie had brought up by hand, getting out of bed at 5 in the morning to feed the hungry little creature that looked to her for life because its own mother had cast it off. The lamb Topsey was now as fat and round as a butter ball, with a fine fleece, like fur, and beautiful black stockings and shoes. She came now and thrust her moist black nose through the bars to be petted by her mistress, and all the little flock raced down the hill after Topsey and surrounded the young girl, creeping through the bars to come close and rub their nozzles against her apron in the hope of getting a handful of salt. She made a picture as she stood there, with the sheep and cattle around her, the wind in her hair and the evening light just touching the side of her brown cheek.

Paul Raynor had driven up to the barn door. Elsie heard the grating of wheels on the gravel, and stepping out of the barnyard she helped him to untackle the old chaise and loosen the straps of the harness. Then she led old Whitefoot into the stall and gave him his portion of oats, while Paul dragged the chaise under cover. Elsie had the deftness of a boy in all such work, and her companion accepted her services as if long used to them. When the little chores were done, he opened the door of Uncle Si's old shop, now turned into a kind of Noah's ark by the boy's passion for natural history study. Some white and gray pigeons roosted on the beams overhead, and a big snapping turtle lay torpid in an old horse trough. Two pairs of bright eyes peeped out of a rabbit hutch at the boy and girl, for they were little more in fact, though Paul Raynor towered nearly 6 feet high and had the country lad's strength and hardihood. Paul kept a pair of gray squirrels in a revolving cage and some land crabs penned up in one corner with boards, besides a little tank with a number of fishes swimming about in it and a raccoon tied up by a rope. A rude cage overhead held a bobolink, and the skin of an immense henhawk was nailed to the shop door. This was Paul's collection he had made from the neighboring woods, streams and swamps, and it was Elsie's delight to watch him at his studies and experiments. Every moment of Paul's leisure was spent in spying out the habits of animals, fishes, birds and insects.

"Look here, Elsie," said he now, pulling a small cardboard box out of his pocket, with perforations in the cover, "I've bagged a new kind of beetle, and a rare fellow I think he is. He has nippers that would almost crack a nut."

"How could you?" said Elsie reproachfully, "when you were making arrangements for Uncle Si's funeral."

A flush of shame came over Paul's handsome face. "Why, I didn't think it was any harm, Elsie," he said, with the simple frankness native to him and looking at her with his honest blue eyes that reflected every thought of his soul. "Nobody can miss poor old Uncle Si more than I do. I hadn't a mite of claim on him more than common humanity. Father was his old friend, to be sure, and after he died there in that house in the woods Uncle Si came with his horse and wagon and brought me home, and I am sure he never begrudged what I cost him in food and clothes. I guess poor Uncle Si wouldn't mind if he knew I picked up a beetle the day after he died. He always said it was a good thing for boys to study the habits of creatures that live in the fields and woods, for it keeps them out of mischief. He bought me all the books of natural history I have, my fish book, a book of birds and one on hard winged insects.

"I guess, Elsie, I have reason to mourn for Uncle Si if any one has. Don't I remember how I lived alone in that house in the woods with father when he scarcely spoke to me a whole week together? I was a little chap then, too young to understand, but I know now he was a broken spirited, discouraged man. After mother died and he lost his property he wanted to hide himself like some wounded animal that creeps away to die alone. I had no playmates, no human being to speak to. So I talked to the crows sitting in among the pines on a stump, and I believed they knew what I said to them. It was at that time I kind of invented a boy to be my friend and to go with me on tramps. I called him Melchisedec, a name I picked out of father's big Bible, and we had a dog that we owned between us called Darkness. Mel was rather a sullen boy most times, but he was a good hand to find birds' nests and to hunt out moles and field mice, and Darkness was good for woodchucks and hedgehogs and all such things. Mel and Darkness were just nothing at all but inventions of mine, but sometimes now I see that sullen, low spirited Mel dogging my heels and hear Darkness pattering along close behind me, giving a short, quick bark at sight of a squirrel on the wall, but when I came here I hadn't any need for either of them, for I found you."

Elsie had perched herself on Uncle Si's work bench and was looking fixedly before her, her pretty round chin resting in the hollow of her hand. "But have you thought how it is going to be with us and those two poor, helpless old women? We haven't any right to stay here now."

"No," said he simply, examining his beetle with a small pocket glass, "I haven't thought. Only I'd give a good deal to know what kind of a chap that Arthur Hapgood is. If he'd let me take the farm, I wouldn't care how hard I worked to keep things together, and then Aunt Prissy and Aunt Hetty could live right on here, and you would help me, Elsie, and nights we could study together just as we have always done."

"I'm afraid that's a dream," murmured Elsie.

"Not if Arthur Hapgood is the right kind of a fellow. He wouldn't surely turn those poor old women adrift."

"Suppose he isn't the right kind, Paul? I have a note from him saying he will be here on Friday, but I can't make out anything from the handwriting."

Paul looked up a little startled, as if new ideas were coming into his head.

"Has it ever seemed strange to you," Elsie went on, "that Uncle Si left no will? He wasn't very fond of his brother Job from all accounts, and they hadn't seen each other for a great many years. Job Hapgood died a rich man, so they say, and now his son Arthur is heir to the farm, and the old house, and the animals, and everything we are fond of. It doesn't seem like Uncle Si to leave things so, and I've a notion it distressed him at the very last to think of those poor old women cast adrift. They firmly believe they are to spend the rest of their days in the front room, and I can't make them understand anything about Job Hapgood or his son Arthur."

"But look here," said Paul eagerly, "if that chap Arthur Hapgood is so rich, what will this old place matter to him, Elsie?"

"People never have so much but they want more," said Elsie, with a worldly wisdom that startled Paul, "and have you thought," she went on, "that he may look upon us as strangers?"

"Strangers!" repeated Paul, kinking his thick eyebrows and frowning momentarily.

"Yes, and interlopers."

Paul began to whistle softly to himself as he prepared his beetle by killing it with a little acid. The idea that Arthur Hapgood might look upon Uncle Si's best friends—those the old man had loved and trusted for years—as strangers and interlopers was an idea his mind could not gasp.

They clasped hands like two children.

Elsie had fallen into a muse again, and in the dim light he could see the anxious look in her dark eyes. "I might go out to service," said she at last, "for I know how to cook and to do nearly all kinds of housework, or I might get a country school to keep. If I could earn enough to support poor old Aunt Prissy and Aunt Hetty, I shouldn't mind how hard I worked.

"And I would keep you!" cried Paul. "Though I am only 18, I can do the work of a full hand, and I could study nights, but," and here he paused and hung his head, "perhaps we should have to live apart, Elsie."

"Yes," said she, with the tears gathering in her eyes, "we should have to live apart, Paul." They clasped hands like two children and stood there in the gathering darkness with hearts too full for words.

CHAPTER II.

The ducks came waddling from the brook; the hens and chickens ran at sight of Elsie. There was a twinkling of legs, a flutter of feathers, a whirring and clapping of wings, for Paul's pigeons had joined the little cloud of fowls that surrounded Elsie as she stood in the farmyard the day after Uncle Si's funeral. She looked younger and more girlish than ever in her black gown.

Uncle Si had been laid away to rest in the grassy corner of the Bolton graveyard, and a few friends and neighbors had gathered out of respect to the quiet, undemonstrative man who had lived among them void of offense for over 70 years. And now it was all over. The curtains were drawn, the clock again set in motion, doors clapped; the old dog barked; the hens came scratching under the front window; the wheels of life that had paused for a time while the kind old man, the master, lay stark on his bed in the kitchen chamber were moving again to their accustomed tune.

The young man we have seen inscribing his name, Arthur Hapgood, on the hotel register was riding along the country road on a bay horse. Elsie saw him from where she stood feeding the fowls in the farmyard and knew at once who he was. She remarked how well his clothes fitted and what a firm seat he had in the saddle even before she ran forward to greet him as he was fastening his horse to the fence near a straggling row of hollyhocks. Elsie was bareheaded, and the breeze had ruffled the little errant locks about her forehead. She looked so slim and girlish the young man gave her rather an open stare of admiration.

"You are Mr. Arthur Hapgood," she said as he got down from his horse.

"We have been looking for you. I was so sorry you could not be here yesterday."

"Yes, I know," he returned unblushingly. "Poor Uncle Si! It was impossible, you see; train was late, and I did not arrive in time. Of course it made no difference to him," and he bent his eyes upon her with a familiar, patronizing smile. "And you are Elsie Ray, my little correspondent?"

"Yes, I am Elsie Ray."

"Cousins, I think," he said, switching off the dust from his trousers with his riding whip.

"Oh, no," she returned, "not at all related. I am only the child of Uncle Si's first wife's niece. But he was very good to me," she added quickly. "He never let me know the difference."

"Who wouldn't be good to you?" said Hapgood in a marked way that made Elsie color. She took the bridle of the bay horse and put it lightly over her arm. "If you will step into the house, Mr. Hapgood, I will put your horse in the barn. Paul Raynor is in the field, and Aunt Prissy and Aunt Hetty are waiting to welcome you."

"So it appears I have relatives here, after all?"

"No real kin, I am afraid," said Elsie. "They are the sisters of Uncle Si's last wife. He gave them a home and took care of them for a great many years. He always let them think it was a great privilege to have them here."

"Old?" asked Hapgood, making an interrogation point of his eyebrows.

"Yes, very old and infirm—I am afraid rather childish. Aunt Prissy has cataracts coming over both her eyes. Aunt Hetty is very hard of hearing, but they are very sensitive about these things and like to have it supposed they can see and hear as well as ever. They never forget that they were belles once, the Misses Hingham of Littlefield, and danced at one of General Lafayette's balls."

"Indeed," returned Arthur, "I am afraid I don't share my uncle's taste for old women. What a very extraordinary establishment he must have kept!"

Elsie made no response. If he meant it for a joke, she thought it was in very bad taste.

"And who is Paul Raynor?" he asked abruptly.

"Oh, he is not a relation either," returned Elsie, coloring vividly in spite of herself. "He is the son of one of Uncle Si's old friends who died poor. And uncle took Paul and partly adopted him."

"Made him a stable boy," said Arthur quickly, "and as he is away you propose to put up my horse."

"He is not a stable boy," returned Elsie, with a pretty air of dignity that amused Hapgood. "Uncle Si was very fond of him and could not have treated him better had he been his own son. Paul is a naturalist."

"Indeed?" returned Hapgood, staring more than ever. "Excuse my mistake. I hardly expected to find such remarkable people under my uncle's roof."

Elsie colored rather violently, for something in the young man's tone made her angry, though she hardly knew what to say in reply. She therefore turned and was leading the horse away to the stable.

"If you will insist on being groom, I will go with you," said Hapgood, keeping close to her side. "I would like to explore the old farm with you, and then we might look over the house together. I dare say you will have many things of interest to tell me."

Elsie stopped and hesitated and looked down at the toe of her rather shabby little shoe. "I am afraid the old ladies may feel hurt. They will think you are not showing them proper respect unless you go in to them now. They have been up expecting you since 7 o'clock and have put on their best gowns. They have seen you come from the window."

Hapgood looked as if the proposal were a bore. "If you say I must go, I will," he returned. "And, by the way, do you know what they intend to do?"

"To do?" repeated Elsie, looking startled. "They are too old and helpless to do much of anything."

"I mean what plans they have formed for the future, where they intend to live."

"They have no plans, Mr. Hapgood, and they expect to live here to the end of their days. I cannot make them understand that everything is changed, now that Uncle Si is dead."

"That is deuced unpleasant," said Arthur, frowning slightly, "but we must try to let them down easy," and he turned on his heel and entered the house.

DON CAMERON TO RETIRE.

The Announcement Caused No Surprise in Washington.

Washington, Dec. 10.—The public announcement made yesterday by Senator Cameron that he would not be a candidate under any consideration for re-election came as no surprise, as it has been generally understood that Senator Cameron intended to retire when his term expired. Senator Cameron has mailed the following letter to Samuel P. McCarroll of Harrisburg, Pa.: "I am in receipt of your letter of the 7th. You will remember that in a conversation at my home in Harrisburg just after my election to the senate I told you, as well as many other friends, that under no circumstances would I again be a candidate for re-election. Since then nothing has occurred to change my mind. Many friends from every section of the state are writing me, making inquiries as to my wishes and intentions and cordially offering their support. It is due to them that a public announcement should be made in reply to their inquiries, and I take this opportunity, through the senator from my native county, to thank you and my friends in every county of the state for their more than generous support for more than a third of a century, and to say that I have not been, am not now, and will not be a candidate for re-election to the senate of the United States. Not being in office better opportunity will be afforded me to serve those who have served me, and that I will do so there can be no doubt."

A SUICIDE'S BODY STOLEN.

Dragged by Ghouls Over the Snow, Stone Walls and Wire Fences.

Hanover, N. H., Nov. 10.—The day before Thanksgiving Joseph Murdock hanged himself to a tree near his home in Norwich, Vt. The funeral was held Saturday, the body was placed in a tomb and buried the following Monday. The relatives of the deceased visited the grave Sunday and discovered a suspicious state of affairs. Tracks in the snow showed that something was wrong, and the matter was reported to the authorities, who ordered the grave to be opened. The box and coffin were found smashed and the body was gone. Further investigation showed that the body had been dragged through the cemetery, thrown over the fence and then dragged across pastures, over stone walls and barbed wire fences until the main road was reached, one-half mile distant, where a wagon was in waiting. The people here lay the blame to the Dartmouth college medical students, but probably this is not deserved, as the school term is closed and but few medical students are in town at present.

$1,000 Reward Offered.

Norwich, Vt., Dec. 10.—The selectmen of Norwich have offered a reward of $1,000 for the arrest and conviction of the person or persons who stole the body of John Murdock and the recovery of the said body, which was recently stolen from the cemetery in that town. Thus far no clew has been found.

FAILED TO REACH TIDE WATER

Seven Loaded Canal Boats Stuck for the Winter Near Schenectady.

Albany, Dec. 10.—Seven eastbound boats failed to reach tide water and will have to lie in the canal until next season. All are in the neighborhood of Schenectady. Two of these are loaded with kindling wood, one each with oats, coal and lumber. Two vessels are sunk. One is in the lower aqueduct. It is loaded with hay. The other is at Pattersonville and is loaded with 12,000 bushels of oats, which have been sold at $1,672.

Ohio Mine Strike Probable.

Massillon, O., Dec. 10.—It is now probable that all the miners in the state will strike at an early day, the coal operators having refused to concede any of the demands made by the miners.

Gilbert Must Die.

Boston, Dec. 10.—Angus Gilbert, who killed the child, Alice Sterling, in Dorchester, April 10, must face a sentence of death. The full bench of the supreme court has overruled his exceptions.

DEADLY SNAKES!

Seven Different Deadly Poisons. A Cure and Certain Antidote.

The poison of the rattle snake is no more deadly and venomous than some that we make in our bodies.

Ptomaines are the poisons generated in the body itself and their deadly qualities are like those of strychnine, arsenic, morphine, etc.

The details of numerous murder trials and text books on Toxicology teach us these facts.

Then there are the poisons that result from imperfect digestion of our food.

From only partial oxydation of the blood elements.

From the waste and breaking down of our muscles, bones, brain and nerves.

Besides these are the disease germs of Typhus, Typhoid, Scarlet Fever, Grippe, Small Pox, Malaria, Diphtheria and the like.

The very air we breathe is full of these germs.

The water we drink teems with myriads of them.

We are beset from within and without, and as if not content with all this, we ourselves add nicotine and alcohol to the deadly list.

What is it then that prevents our sickening and dying from all these poisons?

Our kidneys.

They are the scavengers and sewers of the body.

God gave us two, so that if one kidney was injured the other could still carry on the work.

On perfect action of our kidneys depends, not only the purity of our blood, but the healthy and free action of every other organ in the body.

Once let them falter in their work, let the poisons and impurities collect and the seeds of a thousand ills spring into active growth.

Nature, the great mother healer, has a remedy for every ill to which man is heir.

The simple asparagus shoot beckoning like a finger from the bosom of the earth, holds the secret of perfect kidney health locked up in its roots and berries.

Here lies the greatest of all remedies for the kidneys when weak, sluggish or diseased.

In Dr. Hobb's Sparagus Kidney Pills this active remedy is found in all its concentration and perfection.

Their use means:

Healthy Kidneys.

Blood free from poisons and impurities.

No soil in which disease germs can grow.

No rheumatism because no uric acid.

Size of the Human Head.

A recent article in The Tribune Medicale of Paris gives some interesting facts relative to the size of the human head. It is still a disputed question whether there is a relation between the volume of the cranium and the development of the intellect, although these facts seem to point to that conclusion. Cuvier, Byron and the first Napoleon required larger hats than the average man, and their head covering, says a contemporary, would probably come down on the nose of an inmate of the Earlswood asylum. Bismarck (as also did Moltke) measures more round the crown than the Emperor William.

Inferior races have heads smaller than Europeans, the heads of negroes, Red Indians and the Cochin Chinese being particularly small, although, by way of compensation, they are particularly hard. Women have small heads; but, as has been hinted, a deal of mischief is sometimes packed in them. Men in the south have smaller heads than those in the north, mountaineers than denizens of the plains, artisans than artists. The heads of peasants grow, says the writer of the article, when their owners come to reside in towns. The head increases in volume with the ordinary mortal until the age of 45; with ecclesiastics it comes to a standstill at 25.

A Lizard One Hundred Feet Long.

One must stretch his fancy almost to the breaking point to imagine a lizard 100 feet in length, but that such creatures formerly existed in various parts of the United States there is not the least doubt. The remains of such enormous reptiles have been found in Colorado, Arizona, Oregon, Montana, South Dakota, Maryland, Virginia and the two Carolinas. They belonged to a family of extinct reptiles known to the geologists as dinosaurs, and the remains found in the marl beds of the last four states mentioned above prove that the western varieties were much the larger. Professor O. C. Marsh of Yale college found dinosaur remains in Colorado from which he restored a skeleton upward of 125 feet in length. The largest found in the eastern marl beds was less than 50 feet in length.—St. Louis Republic.

Webster's Errand.

It is remembered of the late Mr. Houghton that he was wont to tell a characteristic story of Noah Webster. Houghton was a boy in a printer's shop when an odd looking old gentleman came in one day to make him promise that he would always set up the word "center," not "centre." The dictionary man is said to have traversed New England on this errand to printers.

GROWS BETTER BY TIME.

THE FIREMEN'S FAIR PROVIDES AMUSEMENT FOR EVERY ONE.

It Is For a Worthy Set of Public Servants and Should be Well Patronized—Some of the Side Attractions Described.

Another night of festivity was held at the Columbia Cycle Academy and another good sized audience gathered there to see the dances arranged for the Firemen's Fair. The programme was somewhat different from the previous night, and the popular Firemen's Drill was not given. One night on the stage seemed to have improved the other dancers though, and there was scarcely a noticeable mistake during the entire programme. The "Perle Andalusia," danced by Miss Lizzie Day, was especially good.

After the entertainment had come to an end, the different booths were visited, while a detail of firemen cleared the floor for dancing. There was also considerable interest shown over the contest for the most popular fireman. A handsome silver trumpet goes to the one receiving the most votes, so a lively contest may be looked for before the week is over. At the grocery booth there is an immense pumpkin which goes to the one making the closest guess as to the number of beans in a jar which stands by the pumpkin. A large and handsome doll also goes to the one guessing her name.

"Thorma" is well worth a visit and her tent was well patronized. There she sits in a swing, apparently cut off at the waist, talks and answers questions, while the exhibitor passes a cane around her to show that there is no body hidden there. The illusion is certainly a very good one. Another thing that is exhibited in this tent is a magic pillory which has a very uncanny way of releasing its prisoners without being unlocked. These two illusions were under the management of Wilbur Sherwood, one of Plainfield's firemen.

Orchestra was under the direction of Prof. Guttman, while Miss Katherine Quinn acted as pianist and Miss Quinn as solo violinist. The calcium light effects were under the charge of Prof. S. H. Hawkridge, of Steven's Institute.

The grate to the large furnace came to grief yesterday and could not be replaced in time for last evening's performance, which accounted for the chilly condition of the hall. It will be all right for this evening, however, and the hall will be properly heated.

Although the attendance has been good at both performances, it is not what the firemen deserve and Plainfield people should make it a point to give their splendid fire department all their support.

Gruesome to Think Of.

A prominent borough woman, learning of the recent discovery of the skeltons on Stelle avenue, told a friend a few days ago that it brought to her mind what she believed was a correct story of the case in question. She said that when she was a small girl Priest Wooden, who was a prominent man in this vicinity at that time, told her that many years ago three men were arrested and convicted of some infamous crime. They were taken to the place on Stelle avenue and hung to the oak tree, after which they were buried near-by where the skeletons were found a few day ago. She says the story was vividly brought to her mind and she has no doubt but what it is perfectly true.

Points for Advertisers.

A small audience assembled in the Y. M. C. A. hall last evening and enjoyed the novel entertainment, "Art in Advertising," which was certainly deserving of a much larger attendance. The stereopticon was under the charge of the Plainfield Camera Club and the pictures were very enjoyable. Quite a number attended the interesting exhibition of posters and bills in the afternoon, and before the entertainment began, the entire audience visited the exhibition.

Major C. T. Picton is manager of the State Hotel, at Denison, Texas, which the traveling men say is one of the best hotels in that section. In speaking of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy Major Picton says: "I have used it myself and in my family for several years, and take pleasure in saying that I consider it an infallible cure for diarrhœa and dysentery. I always recommend it, and have frequently administered it to my guests in the hotel, and in every case it has proven itself worthy of unqualified endorsement. DEFINITE PURPOSES AND AIMS.

Rev. Dr. Ryman Talks Practically to the Young People.

Dr. Ryman, of Elizabeth, gave a talk at the Monroe Avenue chapel last evening on the subject "Men for the Times." Those who have heard this eminent speaker need not be told that the occasion was one of rare treat for all present. His talk was chiefly about the qualities that should constitute a man for the times. He said that a man should have a definite purpose and aim, and to illustrate the idea compared a bee and a butterfly. The former always made a dive for the first flower in sight, while the butterfly would ascend in the air and make numerous circles without knowing where it was going to. Some of the essential qualities spoken of were self-reliance, courage, seriousness and integrity.

There are some people who would have an injunction served on a singing bird if they could find a judge serious enough to serve it. We want to be serious, but not too much so.

Henry Clay once said that he would sooner be right than president, and that is the spirit we should all have. We want men possessing qualities that are going to make the world better instead of worse. In connection with a recent Democratic meeting a clergyman was called upon to open the exercises with prayer. He prayed that the Democrats might all hang together, with one accord, when a man in the audience exclaimed "Amen, any kind of a cord will do." Dr. Ryman closed by urging all to live in a way that would make useful men and women of each one.

Look Out for This Scamp.

Several of Plainfield's citizens have recently been victimized by a man who repairs carpet-sweepers and wringing machines. His plan is to call at houses, get the broken wring r or sweeper and repairs them in a very satisfactory manner, charging a reasonable amount for his services. In a few days after you have paid him he calls again and tells you that a small piece of the machine is either missing or needs further attention and asks permission to take the wringer or sweeper away for an hour or two. You grant his request, of course, and he takes the machine and you never see him again. P. P. Van-Arsdale, of 301 East Front street, is his latest victim and he asks The Press, the people's paper, to warn the public against this latest swindler. He wrote an exposure of the affair and asked The News to publish it, but they refused to publish his article.

John Mullins's Furniture Display.

The large stock of furniture now being displayed at the warerooms of John Mullins, of 218 and 220 Market street, Newark, N. J., is the handsomest ever offered by this well-known furniture establishment. Here one can purchase everything necessary for housekeeping, and homes can be furnished complete on the easiest terms of credit. Especial attention is called to this large and varied stock of parlor suits, chamber suits, carpets, rugs, dining-room furniture, plush chairs and rockers, fancy parlor tables, cabinets, bookcases, lamps, clocks, etc., suitable for holiday gifts; all useful as well as ornamental, and at prices that appeal to every economical buyer.

G. A. R. Officers Elected.

Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G.A.R, elected the following officers last evening to serve for the ensuing year: Commander, I. L. McVoy; senior vice-commander, F. M. Whitely; junior vice-commander, W. R. Moore; quartermaster, Andrew Cox; surgeon, Wm. Hand; chaplain, J. A. Goodwin; officer of the day, W. C. Smith, Sr.; officer of the guard, S. C. Terry, Sr.; council of administration, J. E. Stewart, Wm. Hand, Charles Graves, W. C. Smith, Sr.; delegate to department encampment, Andrew Cox, J. N. Bogart; alternates, F. M. Whitely, Christopher Harden.

Masons Elect.

The annual election of officers of Anchor Lodge, No. 149, F. and A. M., was held last evening. Those elected were: C. C. Howard, W. M.; W. A. Coddington, S. W.; J. E. McClintock, J. W.; J. E. Turrill, treasurer; T. A. Rogers, secretary; trustees, W. A. Freeman, H. R. Knox, P. A. Emmons; Masonic Hall representative, J. A. Smith; alternate to Grand Lodge, L. Dennis.

Important Matter to be Considered.

Unity Lodge, 102, K. of P. at their meeting on Tuesday night, in the Babcock building, will confer the first and second ranks on two candidates. An important matter will be considered and members are requested to be present on that occasion.

UNCERTAINTIES OF THIS LIFE.

DR. YERKES DRAWS CONSOLING THOUGHTS FOR THE AFFLICTED.

His Remarks at the Funeral Services of George C. Godown Listened to By a Large Concourse of Relatives and Friends

The funeral services of the late George C. Godown, which were held from the home of his parents, 402 Central avenue, yesterday afternoon, were exceedingly impressive and largely attended by relatives and friends. The silent form of the departed was as though but asleep, while surrounding the casket were several tributes of beautiful flowers. One, a very large pillow of flowers, bore the inscription "At Rest, U. S. M. Service." It was given by the postoffice employes and was a tribute of loving remembrance to their friend.

Postmaster Hetfield, together with the letter-carrier and clerks, attended in a body.

The service was conducted by Rev. Dr. D. J. Yerkes who read several appropriate Scripture selections, after which he spoke in part as follows:

We live in this world as we always intended to. If the present world was to be our perpetual home we could scarcely be more intent on our possessions than now.

These days of ours are but few, for man's days are but as grass. When a child dies we are inclined to think that it is premature. How easily this friend of ours has left us, but then it is very easy for death to come. Life is the commonest thing we possess and yet we wouldn't try to prove it logically. The elements of death show themselves quickly. It is a war where there is no discharge. We must meet this last battle, but while these things are all so, there are so many uncertainties. We don't know what a day may bring forth. Tomorrow may be worse or better than we think. We are all living in a vain show, but we don't know how long we may live.

It may be a cold northwest wind after a warm southwest one that will take us off. How we live and what we are should concern us. If we are going to die the death of the righteous, we surely must the life of one, and we must be ready for the crucial moment. Little did we think our friend would die so soon. We are now looking on his cold face and speaking words of comfort.

I have known him many years. He entered life's battles under great difficulties. His heart was stronger than his body, but he worked his way and had a purpose. He took his place and did his work well. He was a young man possessing strict conscientious principles and reliability, and had he been blessed with a strong body he no doubt would have been among the greatest thinkers of his time and would have stood high. He possessed sublime qualities, honesty of purpose, and his associates here present have something to remember him by. He was honored and worthy of honor. His qualities were rooted and grounded into a profound respect for God, righteousness and mercy.

May God speak to us all at this time. Speaking to the body of men present he said, one has dropped out of your ranks, and more will follow. May a Godly life engage your thoughts and teach you to seek first the Kingdom of God. The doctor closed with an affecting and consoling prayer for the bereaved parents and relatives.

The body was taken to Sandy Ridge this morning for burial. Those acting as pall-bearers in this city were A. W. Demarest, Edward Pope, John H. Tier, William Tier and the following were the bearers at Sandy Ridge: Caleb Dickinson, Judson Voorhees, Samuel Wallace and Foreman Godown.

Boys Eat and Drill.

There were thirty-two boys in attendance at the meeting of the Boys Brigade in the First Baptist church last evening. A supper was served at 6:30 and at 7:30 a short programme, consisting of whistling solos by C. M. Evans and vocal solos by L. H. Biglow, Jr., were enjoyed, after which Mr. Biglow put the boys through an exhibition drill.

Religious Workers Change About.

Mr. Mansfield, assistant of Rev. E. M. Rodman at Grace Episcopal church, has accepted a position at the Seaman's Mission in New York. Mr. Hooper, another student from the New York Theological Seminary, will take the place of Mr. Mansfield here.

Fanwood and Westfield Jurors.

The following are the jurors from Fanwood for the January term of court: Paul C. Harrison, Alexander Macauley, Wm. H. Terry, George F. Carter and James E. Johnson. The Westfield jurors are James W. Fink and Joseph C. Mulford.

HAVE NECESSARY EVIDENCE.

BOROUGH BOARD OF HEALTH READY TO STOP THE BROOK POLLUTION.

Evidence Secured by ex-Marshal William Pangborn in a Most Novel and Successful Manner—How He Accomplished It.

For the past two or three week ex-Marshal William Pangborn, of the borough, has been quietly gathering evidence for the borough Board of Health to prosecute such people as have connections with the North ave nue sewer, which has caused so much trouble by polluting Green brook One of the things which the board had to contend with in the endeavor to suppress the nuisance was to know positively who emptied sewage into the pipes.

Mr. Pangborn was employed to ferret out these facts, and has done it in a remarkably novel and successful manner. He visited every building along the line of the sewer where he knew or suspicioned had connections, and carried a bottle of alkiline, which he poured into the water closet. He then went to the outlet of the sewer and awaited until evidence of the liquid appeared.

He visited but one place at a time and never used the same colored liquid that he had operated with on the few preceding tests, thus obviating the possibility of getting two tests mixed.

He has kept a record of the places he visited, the color of the alkiline that he used and the number of minutes it took to pass from the building to the outlet of the sewer.

This evidence will be placed in Borough Counsel Reed's possession and with it he will endeavor to procure injunction against all property owners who have been found by the test to have connections with the sewer.

It is understood that they will be served next week.

WILLIAM D. HOWELLS A GUEST.

The Noted Man of Letters Attend a Reception at The Gables.

The coming and going yesterday of many guest-laden carriages before "The Gables," the spacious and beautiful home of Augustus D. Shepard at Fanwood, were the outside tokens of the second "At Home" of Mrs. A. D. Shephard and Miss Shephard, following the reception given November 25th.

Within doors, the genial hostess and charming debutante welcomed a host of friends, who echoed many pleasant greetings supplementary to the reception. Mrs. Shephard and Miss Shephard were assisted in dispensing hospitalities by Miss Meade, a sister of Mrs. Shephard, Mrs. John Doull Miller, the elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Shepard, at the chocolate table, Mrs. J. Kirtland Myers, at the tea table, and Misses Edith Smalley, Anna Miller and Emma Schoonmaker. Masses of chrysanthemums were the decorations. Among the guests, the genial face of William Dean Howells, the distinguished author, was pleasant to look upon, and his share in the chat was pleasant to hear.

FREEHILL'S HEAVY SENTENCE.

He Receives Ten Years and Must Pay a Fine of $1,000.

In court at Elizabeth this morning, Frank Freehill, who was convicted of manslaughter for murdering Officer Jewell, of Rahway, was sentenced to ten years imprisonment and to pay a fine of $1,000. This was the heaviest penalty that could be imposed. The court reviewed the case and stated that it was owing to the great efforts of counsel for the prisoner that he was saved from the death penalty. The court declared that the counsel had added laurels to their fame.

J. C. Whiting Receives a Call.

Assistant Secretary John C. Whiting, of the Y. M. C. A., has received a call to the general secretaryship of the Westfield Young Men's Christian Association. For about a year the Westfield association has been in existence, but without a general secretary. Reorganization is now in progress, and the work of the secretary will be a responsible one. The call has been accepted, and Mr. Whiting will begin his work at Westfield in a few days.

When most needed it is not unusual for your family physician to be away from home. Such was the experience of Mr. J. Y. Schenck, editor of the Caddo, Ind. Ter., Banner, when his little girl, two years of age was threatened with a severe attack of croup. He says: "My wife insisted that I go for the doctor, but as our family physician was out of town I purchased a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, which relieved her immediately. I will not be without it in the future." 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by Reynoldss' Pharmacy, Park and North avenues, T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

TALKING FOR MISSIONS.

Enthusiastic Meeting of Workers in the Borough Yesterday.

A special meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Church of the Redeemer was held in the latter church yesterday afternoon at three o'clock and was quite largely attended.

Among the speakers were Miss Emery, of New York, who spoke of the Woman's Auxiliary as a whole, and the need of every woman as a member of the church considering herself, therefore, a missionary. She urged a united offering, and stated that $56,000 was reported at the last triennial meeting held at Boston as having been raised during the past year.

Mrs. White, of Elizabeth, gave a very interesting talk on Japan and the self-sacrifice of the people in that country. She illustrated her remarks by giving incidents of the self-sacrifice among the girls of the school in Tokio.

Mrs. Williamson, of Elizabeth, spoke of the need of work among the Freedmen and of the necessity of helping them to be self-supporting. She placed the needs of the New Jersey Diocese before the members in a very impressive manner, urging them to give more liberally to the cause of Christ. She said they could easily do it, by not going to New York quite so often, paying a little less for a bonnet or dress, or attending the opera less frequent.

The remarks of the three speakers were highly instructive and attentively listened to.

At the close, Rev. Jocelyn Johnstone, who presided, made an earnest plea for a large collection with the result of securing $14.35.

The women served tea in the Sunday-school room at the close of the meeting, and the rest of the time was enjoyed in social intercourse.

THE BALANCE OF POWER.

It Comes From a Jealousy of the Eastern Nations.

Dr. James F. Riggs' third lecture of the University Extension course on the Eastern Question, was delivered last night in the chapel of the Crescent Aveuue church, before a large and deeply interested audience.

The subject of the lecture was "The Balance of Power in the Orient," and Dr. Riggs said in part as follows: The question of the balance of power comes from the jealousy of the nations; it is the quarreling of the nations that makes the whole Eastern Question.

In the west, there were three barriers to be broken through before modern civilization could be secured: The Holy Roman Empire, the power of the Popes, and the power of the Bourbon kings. In the east there were two only, viz., the power of the Turks and the power of the Isar. Europe combined her forces against the Turks in 1571, and there was a like coalition against Russia in 1853. Russia grew both by expansion and conquest. In 1708 the country was invaded by Charles XII, of Sweden, who had hitherto been successful in war against Russia. But he was disastrously defeated by Peter the Great at Pultowa, and after this time Russia steadily progressed.

In 1762 Catherine II entered St. Petersburg in solemn state as Empress. She was a remarkable woman, though utterly devoid of conscience. During her administration came the dismemberment of Poland. Imperial instinct now sought Constantinople. The way was clear for encroachments on the Ottoman Empire, Sweden and Poland had been disposed of, and the whole weight of the empire could now be hurled upon the Turks. Catherine died suddenly in 1796, so that the struggle was postponed half a century, the Crimean War occurring in 1853-56.

HOLY CROSS CHURCH OBJECTED.

They Protest Against the Church of the Redeemer Building Near Them.

The rector, wardens and vestrymen of the Church of the Redeemer a month ago applied to Bishop Scarborough and the standing committee of the diocese of New Jersey, for permission to erect a church at the junction of Willow and Myrtle avenues in North Plainfield, as no Episcopal church building can be legally erected without their consent. The petition was considered at the regular quarterly meeting on Monday and refused, for the reason that the location is too near the Church of the Holy Cross.

John Saunders, brother of Policeman Saunders, died last evening after a lingering illness from typhoid fever, at his home on Berckman street Funeral services will be held Friday from the house at 2 o'clock, and the Mt. Olive church at 2:30.

MEN LEAD IN SOCIAL IMPURITY

CAUSTIC OBSERVATIONS OF REV. A. H. LEWIS ON SOCIAL EVILS.

The Man Furnishes the Money Which Puts a Commercial Value on Evil—Ideal Fatherhood Begun in Physical Life

The following is an abstract from the address of Rev. A. H. Lewis, of this city, last evening before the Social Purity Congress at Boston on "The Sacredness of Fatherhood."

Men lead in social impurity. They furnish the money which creates the commercial power of this evil. Enough will be offered upon the altar of lust in this city tonight to build many churches and relieve thousands who are in distress. The fires of lust turn the forces which belong to pure fatherhood, to bitterness and ashes. Because of these things this theme is pertinent to the occasion, and I must speak with such plainness and earnestness as the time demands.

The world puts great price on fatherhood in horses, cattle, dogs and chickens. Many men seem to care more for such fatherhood than they do for their own divinely-ordained powers and mission. And yet these men will demand the highest standard of womanly purity when they seek a wife.

We talk of "fallen women!" There are at least three "fallen men" to every fallen woman, and they should be classed as "prostitutes" along with those whom they hire for purposes of prostitution. Every high conception of "The Sacredness of Fatherhood" cries out against such shame and stain on manhood.

It is a Divine gift by which each man may become a subordinate creaton, under God; a creator, not of animals for today, but of immortals for all time. Thus God has ordained to perpetuate the work, which he alone could begin. Man's creatorship involves body and soul; all being and all destiny. No one generation stands alone.

Ideal fatherhood, such as the dawn of the twentieth century ought to see, begins with perfected physical life. To be valuable for fatherhood, a horse must be a "magnificent animal." So must a man. This is especially true as to everything which touches that form of life we call "nervous force." Whatever impairs this unfits for fatherhood. Hence the shame and sin of bestial lust. Hence the crime of men against themselves, and their children, in the use of alcohol, tobacco, and all like poisons; the wickedness of placing the pleasures of an animal indulgence over against the demands of fatherhood. Men, have you asked why tobacco shops and saloons must abound in indecent pictures; why the cigarette which is corrupting the fountains of fatherhood in our boys sets a commercial value on lust-provoking pictures? Think of it.

Judged by the highest law, the lust-indulging man has no right to become a father. He has no right to put weights on body and soul which his innocent child must carry through weary eternities.

We talk of the glory of motherhood. Art puts the aureole upon the head of the madonna: this is well. But fatherhood has equal glory. When a pure husband knows that another heart is beating beneath the heart of his wife, that another life belonging equally to both is preparing to step into full birth, that he has thus begun to project himself into the history of all life and all time, then as never before he begins to put on the crown of manhood, and to take part with God the Everlasting in the work of creation: then the angel who writes the "vital statistics" of the universe places his name among those who have entered the sacred temple of "Fatherhood.

PROGRESSIVE WOMEN.

They Listen to an Address by a Leading Brooklyn Woman.

The regular meeting of the Study Class, carried on by the Alliance of Unitarian and Other Liberal Women, was held in the lecture rooom of All Souls church yesterday afternoon. A business session was held first. A report of the last meeting was read and then Miss Reynolds gave an account of the postal mission which she conducts. E. R. Leonard then read the religious news report.

Mrs. Charles T. Cattin, a prominent member of the Brooklyn Women's Club, was then introduced and read a paper on "Self Culture and Self Sacrifice," as typically represented by Margaret Fuller and Sister Dora. She took Margaret Fuller as an example of self culture and spoke of her as the finest example of a literary woman in America, Her history was briefly and interesting told, and her wonderful literary powers described. Sister Dora was next discussed, and the difference between her and Margaret Fuller compared to the difference between their homes, Old England and New England. Sister Dora's wonderful career of self sacrifice was described with feeling, and her dominating influence and its effects spoken of. A general informal discussion followed.

A Cold Ducking.

While skating on a little pond near Rockview avenue Saturday, Miss May Parmalee, of Plainfield avenue, broke through the ice into the water up to her waist. Her companion, Miss Katherine Dwight, of Rockview avenue, escaped with a slight wetting.

The wife of Mr. D. Robinson, a prominent lumberman of Hartwick, N. Y., was sick with rheumatism for five months. In speaking of it, Mr. Robinson says: "Chamberlain's Pain Balm is the only thing that gave her any rest from pain. For the relief of pain it cannot be beat." Many very bad cases of rheumatism have been cured by it. For sale at 50 cents per bottle by Reynolds' Pharmacy, Park and North avenues. T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

SENATE COMMITTEES

The Work of Selection Nearing Completion.

Democrats Waiting on the Republicans To Reach Some Positive Conclusion—How Many of the Important Committees Will Probably Be Filled—Old Chairmen Safe.

Washington, Dec. 11.—Both of the political committees appointed to fill the committees of the senate held a short session last evening, but reached no definite conclusions. There has been much discussion and senators begin to understand where they will land. The democrats will do nothing until the republicans reach some positive conclusion. Mr. Gorman has appointed the remaining three members of his committee by designating Messrs. Murphy of New York, White of California and Walthall of Mississippi. The complexion of the finance committee has been settled, inasmuch as the republicans concede it to the silver men. It was a silver committee last year. The membership of the committee will be enlarged from eleven to thirteen, and Mr. Platt of Connecticut added for the republicans and Mr. Daniel of Virginia for the democrats. This will maintain the political division and make no difference in the monetary views of the members. By going on this committee Mr. Platt relinquishes his right to the chairmanship of either one or two important committees to which he would be entitled and contents himself with a small committee.

Foreign Relations.

The committee on foreign relations has been adjusted, not one of the democrats being required to retire owing to the expiration of the term of service of Mr. Butler of South Carolina. This maintains the minority representation in tact. Mr. Cameron of Pennsylvania and Mr. Lodge of Massachusetts will go on this committee, and owing to the importance of the position for which he has been selected, Mr. Lodge will get a smaller chairmanship than under other conditions. He will be given the committee on immigration. The western men have received a concession in the shape of at least two additional chairmanships of important committees, dealing entirely with western matters. Mr. Dubois of Idaho is slated for public lands, and Mr. Pettigrew of South Dakota for Indian affairs. Mr. Shoup, Dubois' colleague, will go to patents, while Mr. Hansbrough of North Dakota secures a very desirable berth in the shape of the committee on library.

The Old-Time Chairmen.

Mr. Chandler, who was chairman of the committee on immigration, will take the old committee of Mr. Hale, on the census, and the Maine man, regardless of the fight made by the "young blood" in the closing hours of the last session, will be given the chairmanship of the very desirable committee on printing, the place now held by Mr Gorman. The old-time chairmen will not be disturbed, and among them are: Allison, appropriations; Aldrich, rules; Sherman, foreign relations; Morrill, finance; Hoar, judiciary. Mr. Davis, who is the ranking member on Pacific railroads and next to Mr. Platt on territories, will get the latter committee. Mr. Teller of Colorado, who gave up the chairmanship of the committee on privileges and elections when he was placed on appropriations, will take the chairmanship of the committee on claims held by Mr. Mitchell of Oregon during the last republican administration of the senate, and Mr. Mitchell will take privileges and elections. Mr. Gallinger of New Hampshire gets a place that carries with it a vast amount of labor—the committee on pensions; Mr. Hawley, chairman of military affairs; Cameron, of naval affairs; Squire, of coast defenses; Fry, of commerce; McMillan, of the District of Columbia; Cullom, of interstate commerce, and Quay, of public buildings and grounds, will doubtless be given their old places.

The Remaining Committees.

The remainder of the important committees will probably be filled as follows: Agriculture, Proctor of Vermont; fisheries, Perkins of California; post-offices and post roads, Wolcott of Colorado. Although during the last congress John F. Jones of Nevada announced his adherence to the cause of the populists and abjured his republican associates with whom he had affiliated for so many years, it is believed that he will not be molested in his claim to the chairmanship of the committee to audit and control the contingent expenses of the senate. Besides these which constitute the important committees there are nineteen other standing and selected. Of these fifteen are by courtesy given to the minority. It is believed the whole matter will be settled before the usual holiday recess is taken.

[illegible]'s Passengers Released.

[illegible], S. I., Dec. 11.—The steerage passengers of the Anchor line steamer [illegible]fornia, detained at Hoffman island for observation since Dec. 2, have been transferred to Ellis island. All are well.

To Assess Policy Holders.

Boston, Dec. 11.—The Excelsior Mutual Fire Insurance company of Boston at a meeting of its directors just held has voted to make an assessment upon its policy holders.

THE SULTAN YIELDS AT LAST.

An Irade Issued Permitting the Extra Guardships Demanded.

Constantinople, Dec. 11.—The sultan has issued an irade permitting the extra guardships demanded by the powers to come to Constantinople, and thus, after many delays and much diplomacy, the vexatious question is, it is hoped, finally settled. It is stated that the losses sustained by the missionaries at Marash by the destruction of their property during the rioting there amount to 2,400 Turkish pounds. The rumor is revived that the Armenians here are preparing to make a fresh demonstration in view of what they term the apathy of the powers in bringing about a cessation of the massacres. It is rumored that several superior military officers, including Ismet Pasha, one of the sultan's household, and Hassan Djemi Pasha, an aide-de-camp of his majesty, have fled from the city. Reports continue to arrive showing that the pillaging and burning of Armenian villages in Anatolia, especially in the vilayet of Van, is going on, despite the official declarations that order has been restored everywhere, excepting Zeitoun. The peasants are suffering terribly, and their misery is increased by the bitter cold that is now prevailing in that part of the country. Large numbers of them are wandering, without food and with scanty clothing, on the mountains seeking to escape from the Kurds, who hunt them as though they were wild beasts.

ORDERED TO RETREAT.

Italian Troops Forced To Fall Back by Abyssinians.

London, Dec. 11.—A dispatch to the Central News from Rome says that Gen. Baritieri, governor of Erythrea and commander of the Italian troops, telegraphed last evening that fully 70,000 Abyssinians have invaded the Tigre country and are besieging Makalle and Antalo. Forty thousand of the enemy are in the vicinity of Adowa. Consequently he has ordered the Italian forces at Adowa to fall back to Adigrat, where he has only 6,000 men. Upon the receipt of the foregoing dispatch the government ordered that the preparations for sending reinforcements to relieve Gen. Biratieri be rushed forward with the greatest possible dispatch. Work in making ready the sending of additional men to Africa will be carried on night and day. It has been decided that 3,000 troops and two batteries shall depart immediately. Every available transport at the dockyards has been ordered to be put in readiness to convey troops. Some warships will accompany the reinforcements to Massowah, the capital of the Italian colony. The government decided this morning to postpone until next Saturday its request that the chamber of deputies vote a credit of 5,000,000 lire to be expended in carrying on war operations in Abyssinia.

JUDGE PECKHAM'S PLANS.

He Will Continue His Duties at Albany Until the Holiday Recess.

Albany, Dec. 11.—Judge Rufus W. Peckham expects to continue his duties on the court of appeals bench until the court takes its usual holiday recess. He will go to Washington in time to sit with the United States supreme court at the opening of the January term.

C. H. Durfee Dies in Turkey.

Boston, Dec. 11.—A dispatch has been received announcing the death, from typhoid fever, of Charles H. Durfee, Williams, '95, who was instructor in mathematics at Robert college, Constantinople. The deceased was born in Newburyport in 1873, and came from a long line of well-known clergymen.

Hon. H. S. Bundy Critically Ill.

Columbus, O., Dec. 11.—A special from Jackson, O., says that Hon. H. S. Bundy, ex-congressman and father-in-law of ex-Gov. Foraker, is dangerously ill. He is nearly 70 years old and was a member of the last national house.

Verdict Against a Railroad.

Place and Date of National Republican Convention.

The Mound City After a Spiritedly Conducted Contest Secures the Prize on the Fourth Ballot—San Francisco's Gallant Fight—New York Was Not in It.

Washington, Dec. 11.—The republican national convention will be held at St. Louis on the 16th day of next June. These were the two material results of yesterday's quadrienial meeting of the republican national committee. Thus ends a contest that has been spiritedly conducted by the four cities of San Francisco, Chicago, Pittsburg and St. Louis. New York was a nominal candidate for convention honors, but her representatives did not reach the city until Monday night, too late to begin an active propaganda for the metropolis of the east. St. Louis' victory was won on a variety of causes, the principal of which was the untiring effort put forth by her representatives, who arrived Sunday last, supplemented by sound judgment, good political finesse and by the further fact that the big gains made by the Republicans of Missouri a year ago appealed strongly to the sympathies of the national committee with whom the selection lay. St. Louis had been regarded as a strong competitor from the start, but experienced observers of political affairs felt that her principal rival would be Chicago, which, curiously enough, was never seriously in the race.

California's Game Fight.

The California delegation made a game, up-hill fight. That they succeeded polling so large a vote at the start and holding it practically intact until the final ballot, furnishes the strongest proof of the good work done by her committee in the face of obstacles with which none of the other cities had to contend. The distance was against them; the time consumed in making the trip was against them; the expenses of the trip were also a factor which militated against them, and yet for three ballots they led all their competitors. Their organization was perfect; their courage superb. Pittsburg, like Chicago, was never a formidable contestant, and after two ballots, the brave showing she had made at the beginning gradually disappeared.

The Balloting.

The first ballot was taken at 4 o'clock. It was informal and was designed to test the sense of the committee. It resulted as follows: San Francisco, 20; Chicago, 8; Pittsburg, 9; St. Louis, 13; New York, 1. Total, 51. On motion of Mr. Hobart of New Jersey the city polling the smallest vote on this ballot was dropped. This eliminated New York and reduced the contest to the four cities first named. On this ballot the member from the District of Columbia voted for San Francisco. On the first regular ballot both he and the member from New York transferred their votes to St. Louis with the result that San Francisco was dropped to 19; Chicago and Pittsburg remained stationary with 8 and 9 votes respectively, while St. Louis went up to 15. During the intermission between the first and second ballots Mr. Kerens, the Missouri member of the committee, and some of the staunch adherents of the Mound city, did some effective missionary work, which was shown when the second ballot was taken. On this ballot San Francisco retained her nineteen votes, Chicago gained one from Pittsburg, Pittsburg lost four, three of the number going to St. Louis, increasing her strength to eighteen. On the third ballot Pittsburg's forces disintegrated so that the member from that state was the only person voting for the Smoky City. The four votes lost by Pittsburg on this occasion went to St. Louis, thus putting her in the lead with twenty-two votes. San Francisco and Chicago remaining stationary, with nineteen and nine votes each to their credit. It was now apparent that St. Louis was forging steadily to the front. Pittsburg dropped out of the race. On the last ballot San Francisco received fifteen votes, Chicago seven and St. Louis twenty-nine, three more than a majority.

PRETTY

AND ATTRACTIVE WOMEN.

Their Good Looks Not a Secret.

[SPECIAL TO OUR LADY READERS.]

No matter to what country she belongs, or whether she be black or white, as a woman she desires to look well.

Women know the influence of beauty on men; men rarely admire a beautiful invalid, but they do admire a woman in whom is blended good features and perfect health.

There is no secret about a woman's beauty; it all lies in the care she devotes to herself, to removing from her system all poisonous impurities, and keeping at bay those fearful female diseases.

The flashing eye, elastic step, and brilliant complexion are never companions of a womb trouble; only the distressed expression and aches, pains, blues, faintness, dizziness, bearing-down feeling, etc., keep it company.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound removes female troubles promptly, and cleanses, invigorates, and consequently beautifies, the form of woman. Women, the world over, pay homage to it, and praise its discoverer. Your druggist sells more of it than all other female medicines.

Delicate Dress Goods,
Some gowns are so dainty in the weave, so delicate in tint, that they seem to soil by being look at—one or two wearings making them unpresentable—not useless. We make a specialty of cleaning fine fabrics—the more delicate the material, the better the results. Sometimes an accident will ruin a gown, without injuring the texture. We dye them then, sometimes we get a prettier effect than the original color. Fine goods stand re-dying. The finer the material, the better the new color. We charge so little for cleaning or dyeing, that even if you are in doubt as to the results, it's worth while to experiment.

MUNICIPAL ELECTIONS

Many Surprises in the Results in Massachusetts.

Boston Elects a Democratic Mayor After a Hot Contest and Heavy Vote -- Several Cases of Illegal Voting—No License Victories in a Majority of the Cities and Towns.

Boston, Dec. 11.—With the eleven municipal elections which occurred in various parts of the state yesterday all the cities have now chosen their governing bodies for the ensuing year, except the new city of North Adams, whose election takes place next Tuesday. In nearly all instances a heavy vote was cast, and there were many surprises. In Boston a hot contest was waged between partisans of Josiah Quincy, the democratic nominee for mayor, and Edwin U. Curtis, the present republican incumbent, and the result is that Boston again falls back into the line of democratic cities by a plurality of about 4,500 for Quincy, against a plurality of 2,557 for Curtis in 1894. Several cases of illegal voting were reported here and three arrests at least are the result. One of the three men arrested not only attempted to vote upon another's name, but he had in his possession an official ballot, although he had not been inside the rail or been given a ballot by the precinct officers. The ballot commissioners consider it vitally important to ascertain where the ballot was obtained and will thoroughly investigate the case. This was the first election under Boston's new city charter, which was secured largely through the exertions of Mayor Curtis, and the mayor elected yesterday and those chosen hereafter will hold the office for two years instead of one. The board of aldermen will stand seven democrats, five republicans, a democratic gain of two. The common council will comprise 46 democrats, 29 republicans, a democratic gain of three.

No License Victories.

In Cambridge Mayor Bancroft received a warm endorsement, and was re-elected by a large plurality after an unusually warm campaign. The city, which has been without a liquor saloon for nine years, celebrated its tenth annual victory yesterday by throwing a majority of 1,503 for no license. This is more than twice its last year's majority and nearly twice the largest majority it has ever thrown. The friends of no license last night celebrated their victory by the ringing of bells and a great jubilee meeting. There was a surprise in Salem over the result of the license vote, the city's majority of 117 for license last year being changed to one of 1,035 for no license. Lynn, which had 1,500 majority for license last year, cast a majority of 874 yesterday for no license. Eugene Bessom, rep., endorsed by the A. P. A., was elected mayor over the citizens' democratic candidate. The republican ticket swept the field in Chelsea and every man except one endorsed by the A. P. A. was elected. No license carried. Mayor Courtney, dem., was re-elected in Lowell, but the government is strongly republican. License was voted by about 1,500 majority.

HARRISON WILL NOT TALK.

Nothing To Say About the Rumors of His Intended Wedding.

Indianapolis, Dec. 11.—A reporter called at Gen. Harrison's residence to ask him as to the truth of the report that he is to marry Mrs. Dimmick. Private Secretary Tibbott said the general was lying down, and could not be disturbed. "He will not answer any of your questions," said Mr. Tibbett, "nor express himself in any way upon the subject. His name has been connected in like manner during the last year or so with those of half a dozen different women, among them Mrs. Stanford and a woman at Vincennes. He would not say anything in any way to those rumors, and he will not say anything now to this one."

GORMAN DENIES IT.

Refutes the Report That He Will Not Be a Candidate.

Washington, Dec. 11.—The attention of Senator Gorman was called to a Baltimore paper yesterday, which stated that he did not propose to be a candidate for re-election to the United States senate. "Is that so?" he said. "That is the first I have heard of it." "Then there is no truth in the statement?" "No," said Mr. Gorman, "none in the world."

FOR CAMERON'S PLACE.

Three Candidates Already in the Field in Pennsylvania.

Philadelphia, Dec. 11.—Already three avowed candidates are in the field for Cameron's seat in the United States senate. Ex-Lieut.-Gov. Watres of Scranton, Attorney-Gen. Palmer of Wilkesbarre and Congressman Robinson, who represents the Sixth Pennsylvania district at Washington, have announced themselves as candidates for the senatorship.

Respite Granted McMullen.

Harrisburg, Pa., Dec. 11.—Gov. Hastings has granted a respite for sixty days for James McMullen, the Pittsburg murderer, in order that the case may be brought before the board of pardons. He was to be hanged tomorrow morning. It is stated that important testimony has been discovered.

Homeless Armenians.

Constantinople, Dec. 11.—The Armenian patriarch has informed the Italain ambassador here that he estimates the number of homeless Armenians in the six vilayets in the northeastern part of Anatolia at nearly half a million.

HAYWARD EXECUTED.

He Makes a Rambling Speech on the Gallows and Dies Game.

Minneapolis, Dec. 11.—Harry T. Hayward, who induced Claus Blixt, a janitor in his father's employ, to murder Catherine Ging on the night of Dec. 3, 1894, in order that Hayward might secure the $10,000 life insurance which the woman carried and which was made payable to him, was hanged in the county jail here this morning, the drop falling at 2:10. While on the scaffold Hayward made a rambling statement forgiving every one connected with the case. He spoke smilingly and without show of fear. His wonderful nerve did not desert him and he did not move a muscle after the drop fell. He refused all religious consolation to the last.

Confessed His Crime.

Hayward's first sign of weakening was displayed yesterday, when he sent for the sheriff and made a full confession of his guilt. He said that Blixt killed Miss Ging and that he intended to kill Blixt in such a manner that it would be considered a case of suicide. He said Blixt was too cunning and foreshadowed his intentions. He also said he had a plot to escape only a few days ago, but it also failed. At 12:30 Hayward ate his last meal, consisting of all the delicacies of the season. He ate heartily in company with several deputies and the county physician and his death watch. He made his peace with all the world and said he had forgiven everybody with the exception of three men. Those were Detective Mike Quinlan, Attorney Steven and Mike Kierce. To the surprise of all Hayward's brother Adry appeared at the jail at 10:30 and was ushered into the cell room. Two days since, Harry, before his jailer and common prisoners, cursed his brother, hurling the most stinging invectives at him. Now he received him with a kind word of greeting and motioned him to stand by as he talked. It was easy to perceive that Harry's animosity was short-lived. Shortly before midnight Hayward received the following message from Cleveland, Ohio: "Keep up your nerve. Be game to the last, old friend. (Signed) Steve Brodie." In reply Hayward wired the following: "I will do my best and hope to come out a winner. Harry T. Hayward."

ELVIN HAS RECOVERED.

He Tells Again the Story of the Butchery of His Children.

Westchester, Pa., Dec. 11.—Thomas Elvin, who killed his two children by cutting their throats with a razor at their home at Phoenixville, and who is now in jail here, has fully recovered from the effects of the injuries which he inflicted upon himself at the time. The wound in his neck has healed up, and he has regained all his strength. Elvin says he expects to be hanged for his crime. He told some new facts yesterday about the killing of his children. It was not known that he had attempted to poison them before using the razor. He mixed arsenic in the coffee and got the two young children to drink it. The poison did not act quickly enough to satisfy his murderous fancy, and he then resorted to the razor. The boy, he says, he killed first, and then turned to the little girl, who had seen her brother dispatched. The girl ran from him, but he finally chased her into a corner. She dropped on her knees, and, clasping her hands in terror, cried: "Oh, papa, don't kill me!" The murder of the girl, he says, was the most difficult, and he was compelled to make several attempts before he could draw the blade across her young throat. All this Elvin discusses coolly, as though it was some one else's crime.

BURGLAR KILLS HIMSELF.

Meets Death While Blowing Open a Safe at Five Forks, Pa.

Chambersburg, Pa., Dec. 11.—One of a gang of burglars who have been operating at various grain elevators in this county, evidently killed himself early yesterday morning by blowing open S. S. Wright's safe in his elevator at Five Forks. Neighbors heard the crash, rushed out, saw the elevator office ablaze and the form of a man lying helpless on the floor in the flames.

House Clerk's Appointments.

Washington, Dec. 11.—The following appointments to positions under the clerk of the house have been made: W. J. Browning of New Jersey, chief clerk, salary, $3,600; C. B. Brockway of New York, librarian, salary, $2,000; D. P. Horton of New York, distributing clerk, and Richard Theophilus of Pennsylvania, petition and resolution clerk, salary, $2,000 each.

John S. Davis Dead.

Philadelphia, Dec. 11.—A telegram from Kane, Pa., announces the death there from apoplexy of John S. Davis, who for twelve years has been president of the Philadelphia petroleum and stock exchange. Mr. Davis in 1888 ran unsuccessfully as a democratic candidate for city treasurer against John Bardsley, republican.

WOULD IMPEACH HIM

Ambassador Bayard Scored in the House.

Accused of Criticizing Abroad Our System of Protection and Reflecting Upon the Intelligence of the American People—Foreign Affairs Committee To Investigate.

Washington, Dec. 11.—The house is not in session to-day, adjourning last night until to-morrow. The session of the senate to-day is considering work of little general interest. Yesterday's session was nearly of two hours' duration, one half of that time being occupied by Mr. Cullom, rep., of Ill., in a speech in advocacy of the clearest assertion and most strenuous maintenance of the Monroe doctrine. The resolution on which he spoke was then referred to the committee on foreign relations. Petitions and resolutions were presented and referred: For the settlement by arbitration of controversies between railroad companies and their employes; for the prevention of colored "lynchings" in the south; for protection for the American wool-growing interests; for the suspension of the removal of "intruders" from the Cherokee country; for the abolition of tribal occupation of lands by Indians, and for the suppression of cruelties upon and massacre of Armenian subjects in Turkey.

Lively Session in the House.

A very spirited and at times exciting debate was precipitated in the house by the introduction as a question of privilege by Mr. Barrett, rep., Mass., of a resolution looking to the impeachment of Thomas F. Bayard, ambassador to Great Britian, for sentiments expressed in speeches delivered at Boston, England and Edinburgh, Scotland, and which have been widely published and commented on. The resolution recited that Mr. Bayard had been reported by the press as having delivered a speech on August 2, 1895, in which he had stated that the president of the United States stood in the midst of a turbulent and at times violent people, and that it took the strong hand of a certain man to govern them, and in a speech at Edinburgh on Nov. 12 had reflected upon the intelligence of the American people. Mr. Barrett explained his resolution and severely arraigned Mr. Bayard for his criticism of the system of protection. The resolution directs the committee on foreign affairs to ascertain if such speeches have been publicly made and if so to report to the house such action by impeachment or otherwise as shall be proper in the premises. Subsequently on motion of Mr. Cannon, rep., Ill., the words "by impeachment or otherwise," were stricken out and the resolution was adopted by a vote of 207 to 90. A somewhat similar resolution calling on the president for information as to what steps he had taken to recall Mr. Bayard was previously offered by Mr. McCall of Massachusests, but under objections, was referred to the committee on foreign affairs.

Criticized the President.

Mr. Crisp, dem., Ga., in discussing Mr. Barrett's resolution, acquitted Mr. Bayard of the charge of impropriety, and expressed the opinion that the resolution was simply the pretext to bring up the tariff question. Mr. Bayard was strongly criticized by Mr. McCall, Mr. Dingley, rep., Me., and Mr. Johnson, rep., Ind., and was defended by Messrs. Cummings, dem., N. Y., McCreary, dem., Ky., Money, dem., Miss., and Turner, dem., Ga. In closing the debate, Mr. Barrett criticized the president for being absent when an important communication was received from Great Britain on the subject of Venezuela, and hoped the vote of the house would attain a volume and importance that would be wafted down to North Carolina, where the president, he presumed, was "sulking behind a blind to bring down some timorous flying duck."

British Newspaper Comment.

London, Dec. 11.—The Chronicle today says that it regards the attack made on Ambassador Bayard in the house of representatives as part of the presidential campaign. It adds that the ambassador's speech at Edinburg was perhaps more honest and outspoken than circumspect, but it was academic rather than political. It might well have been ignored by congress. It is well known that President Cleveland and Secretary of the Treasury Carlisle share Mr. Bayard's views. Mr. Cleveland urged these views on congress, yet nobody proposed to impeach him, but a party demonstration must be made, and Mr. Bayard was the victim. The Times publishes an editorial in which it banters the congressmen who have attacked Mr. Bayard. It remarks upon the high respect in which the ambassador is held here, where, it says, it is known that he did not intend that his speeches should interfere with party contests in America.

Windfall for a Pauper.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Dec. 11.—Abram Acroyt, 70 years old, an inmate of the county poor house at Oak Summit, has been notified by a lawyer of Matteawan that an aunt of his had died in England leaving him $15,000. Acroyt was taken to Matteawan to sign papers that will make him independent the rest of his life.

A Printer Commits Suicide.

Jamestown, N. Y., Dec. 11.—Peter Peterson, a printer, committed suicide by shooting himself at the Arlington hotel yesterday afternoon. He was 25 years of age, and left a note in his room explaining that poor health was the cause.

Advertisers, Attention.

Changes of advertisements for The Daily Press must be received not later than 9:30 o'clock in the morning to ensure insertion the same day.

The wheels in the heads of the cranks at Washington are beginning to hum.

The Republican primary in the city of New York has finally become a known quantity.

The cider joints continue to guzzle forth their inebriating fluid of rotten apples and squeamy worms.

The Democrats were swept into office in Boston yesterday as easy as the Republicans were in Plainfield on the 3d inst.

Either the courts of the city of New York are dominated over by a lot of burlesque men or the newspapers of the city are monumental liars. The stories of alleged miscarriages of justice are atrocious in their injustice to innocent victims.

Without a doubt New York is the greatest convention city in the country, yet she only received one lone vote for the choice of a place for holding the national Republican convention. Mr. Roosevelt may expect to be accused for this condition of affairs. Delegates to political conclaves like to combine fun of a lurid kind with their duties as candidate-makers.

An Incident of Winter.

Everett Peck, of Myrtle avenue, took a rather chilly bath at Hyde's pond, Saturday afternoon. He was skating about when the ice gave way and he went in up to his waist.

A Stag Racket.

Arthur Barton Crane, of East Second street, will entertain some of his young men friends at a "Stag Party" on Thursday evening. During the evening steps will be taken to form a social club for the winter.

—A dance will be held at the Park Club next Saturday evening.

—Mrs. Mary O'Donnell died at her home on Liberty street last night.

—Unity Lodge, No. 102, Knights of Pythias, meet this evening to confer the first and second degrees on two candidates.

—Cards are out for a tea to be given by Mrs. William Ebbets Lowe, of 1024 Park avenue, on Thursday, December 19th.

—A meeting of the pupils of the Plainfield Business College was held yesterday afternoon to make further arrangements for the Christmas sociable.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Miss Louise Snedeker, of Grove street, is visiting friends in Brooklyn.

Rev. A. H. Lewis, of Central avenue, has returned from Fort Wayne, Indiana.

Miss Eleanor Williams, of West Seventh street, is out again after a week's illness.

Seymour Marsh, of Brooklyn, has been the guest of Gilmour Drayton, of East Ninth street.

Miss Parrott, of Columbus, Ohio, is visiting at the home of her uncle, C. P. Bull, of East Ninth street.

Charles McNabb and J. M. Smalley, of this city, attended the wedding of a friend in Brooklyn last evening.

Miss Mary A. Luckey, of East Fifth street, left yesterday for Conneticut, where she will remain for a few days.

F. K. Fish, Jr., of First place, is out today after being confined to the house for several days with a sprained ankle.

Mrs. Prescott Vail and her little daughter, of Brooklyn, are visiting Mrs. J. Wesley Johnson, of LaGrande avenue.

Miss Muriel Locke, of West Front street, is able to return to school after being confined to her room for a week with illness.

The Misses Angelina, Adele and Stella Feytel, of Newark, are guests at the home of Abner Bartlett, Jr., of Westervelt avenue.

The marriage of Miss Carey to Forest Jones, both of this city, will take place Wednesday, December 18th, in the Mt. Olive Baptist church.

Borough Tax Collector H. N. Spencer will attend the inauguration ceremonies of Governor-eleet John W. Griggs which takes place at Trenton, Tuesday, January 21st.

Miss Benedict, teacher in the first grammar grade in the High School, has returned to her duties after visiting her sister in New York State. Miss Dora Grant has been filling her place.

High School Notes.

Compositions are due from the Senior Class on Wednesday, December 18th, on the following subjects: "Masques and Their Influences Upon Elizabethan Literature," "The Story of Fradubio," "Spencer's Two Representatives of Pride," "A Comparison of the Ministers of the Prologue and the Deserted Village," "Where There's a Will There's a Way," "The Birth of Christ," "Mars," "Mebulae and the Nebular Hypothesis."

The Cicero Class are now studying the "Life of Cicero."

A petition, signed by about one hundred and thirty of the High School scholars, asking the Board of Education of the city of Plainfield that the two days after New Year's day be added to the Christmas vacation, was sent to the Board of Education yesterday. It is hoped by all the scholars that the board will consider the request of the scholars and grant the two extra days which the pupils so eagerly hope they will receive.

The committee on arrangements for the spread of the Class of '86 has been hard at work and the spread is being arranged in a very excellent manner. The Class of '96 expect to make this spread the best for many years past and if possible they will make it the finest spread which has yet been held by any class of the school. If hard work will accomplish these results there is no doubt that the class will accomplish all with the spread that they expect.

The beginning Physics Class have taken up the subject of machinery and are very much interested in their work, although some of the complicated parts seem a little puzzling to some of them.

Some of the students who were not able to get uniforms at the time when the company was uniformed have sent for suits and now they are here. These students will add very much to the good of the company, as the larger the company the better effect they will give.

Ventilator Ventilates.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—Commenting on the new plumbing ordinance, the News of Saturday recommends the appointment as inspector of some good architect or carpenter. Would it not be as well to select some good painter or slater as inspector? It would be just as consistent. It is not probable a blacksmith or shoemaker would be selected to inspect a job of carpentering or mason work. A bill which will probably pass the next Legislature will define what kind of mechanic shall inspect plumbing work hereafter.

Great Reduction in Time to California.

Once more the Northwestern Line has reduced the time of its trans-continental trains, and the journey from Chicago to California via this popular route is now made in the marvelously short time of three days. Palace drawing-room sleeping cars leave Chicago daily, and run through to San Francisco and Los Angeles, without change, and all meals en route are served in dining cars. Daily tourist sleeping car service is also maintained by this line between Chicago and San Francisco and Los Angeles, completely equipped berths in upholstered tourist sleepers being furnished at a cost of only $6 each from Chicago to the Pacific Coast. Through trains leave Chicago for California at six p. m. and 10.30 p. m. daily, after arrival of trains of connecting lines from the east and south. For detailed information concerning rates, routes, etc., apply to ticket agents of connecting lines or address: H. A. Gross, G. E. P. A., 423 Broadway, New York, or T. P. Vaille, S. E. P. John Petrie has probably bowled the highest score on the Crescent Wheelmen's alleys of any of the members this year. His highest is 225. Last year Wm. Waters bowled 254.

The Somerville five-men bowling team met the Plainfield team on the Manhattan alleys last evening and rolled two games as follows:

PLAINFIELD.

	First game.	Second game.
Willett	113	155
Hipp	117	132
Townley	130	134
VanWinkle	136	158

Schell	126	111
Gulick	140	151
	684	646

It will be noticed that each team won a game and the contests were very close. The next game will be rolled at Somerville one week from tonight.

WHIST.

The Hamilton Whist Club, of Philadelphia, recently lost the National League trophy to Baltimore, and last week the Philadelphia Whist Club team that was beaten in this city by the Parks, went to Baltimore and defeated the home team 20 to 13. It will be remembered that the Parks also defeated the Hamiltons. A very fine photograph of the cup now adorns the reception room at the Park Club, and those who won it are positive that it cannot be taken away.

Both Plainfield and North Plainfield ought to be proud of the fact that the Park Club has a whist team that can play with any team in the country and have reasonable assurances that they may win. The great four of the Park Club are great players and it takes a team with more than ordinary skill to walk away with the honors. Last evening the Elizabeth Whist and Chess team came to Plainfield and fully expected to win the beautiful State trophy, which was so temptingly brought to view, but, like all the rest, they had to be satisfied with the very excellent coffee, sandwiches and cigars provided at the close of the game. Of course the Parks will keep it and anyone who takes it away will have to be a good one. The score was thirteen to eight in favor of the Parks. The Elizabeth team consisted of Messrs. Kellogg, Toler, Martinson and Haarbleicher, while the Parks were Messrs. McCutchen, Howell, C. A. Reed and Rogers.

CYCLING COMMENT.

The Crescent Wheelmen expect to purchase a pool table and a shuffleboard for their club rooms.

E. Frank Vail has taken the agency for the Sagamore wheel for 1896. The Sagamore is manufactured by Porter & Gilmour.

No meeting of the Plainfield Bicycle Club was held last Monday night. The next meeting takes place on the second Monday in January.

The house in Hartford, Conn., in which Harriet Beecher Stowe wrote the famous "Uncle Tom's Cabin" is now located in the rear of the factory of the Hartford Bicycle Company, and is used as a storehouse.

The last issue of The Referee gives an account of the Coleman banquet at Atlanta, and the name of F. L. C. Martin, of Plainfield, as one of the guests. A photograph of the banquet hall, showing the party, is printed.

The Eldridge Bicycle Company has received one one of the '96 Columbias. The new wheel has blue rims. A shipment of about twenty-five of the '96 wheels is expected this week, and also a '96 drop frame and a double diamond tandem.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh That Contain Mercury.

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces, such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

Fred Barker, of the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company, had a severe fall yesterday afternoon from his wheel. He was rounding the corner of Watchung and North avenues when he struck a piece of ice. His wheel slipped and landed on the other side of the street, while Barker went all in a heap, cutting several gashes in his hand. Neither he nor his wheel were seriously injured, however.

WITH ROD AND GUN.

Warren and "Wren" Townley each shot a rabbit on Monday.

August Trust shot four rabbits, two squirrel and two pheasant on Friday last.

Charles Emmons shot six rabbits Monday in the neighborhood of his father's farm, West Washington Park.

The snow fall of Sunday evening was sufficient to track rabbits, and many hunters were out Monday. There was a great amount of shooting and many rabbits were killed.

BASKET BALL.

The basket ball team of the Y. M. C. A. is practicing every afternoon and evening for the match with the Trenton Y. M.C. A. Saturday evening. The Plainfield team is captained by George Proctor Smith, who filled the position of forward so excellently on the High School team at the contests at the Y. M. C. A. fair last year. He also played on the Plainfield Y.M.C.A. team against the Orange Y. M. C. A. when the latter were defeated. His experience will materially strengthen the team.

PUNTS AND KICKS.

Mrs. William Deats, of Flemington, who has been visiting her daughter, Mrs. Samuel VanArsdale, has returned to her home.

The Baptist church, of New Market, has changed their Sunday-school hour to 10 o'clock, instead of 9:30, and preaching at 11 o'clock.

Mrs. W. Hamilton, of Hackensack, who has been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Bodine, of Dunellen avenue, has returned home.

Next Saturday the eleven of this place will play a game of football with the Spartans of North Plainfield. This game will be the last one this season.

Nothing Like It.

Time brings many changes, but the climate of California, "The Italy of America," and the attractions of the many famous health and pleasure resorts, are the same yesterday, today and forever.

Tourists never will tire of speaking in praise of the soft and balmy air, the profusion of flowers, the magnificent display of fruits, the luxury of seabathing and the beautiful walks and drives.

Then, too, it must be conceded that with such excellent equipment, consisting of Reclining Chair Cars, Pullman Palace Sleepers and Pullman Dining Cars, all heated by steam and lighted with Pintsch Light, the Union Pacific, "The Overland Route," is the tourists favorite. Ask your agent for tickets via this route.

THEATRICAL.

"The Jolly Old Chums" will be Manager Daly's attraction tonight at Music Hall. The name as it implies is a farce comedy, broad in character and abounding in rollicking fun. The comedy parts are sustained by Thos. J. Grady and Budd Ross, two of the funniest comedians in this style of entertainment, and they are assisted by Miss Carrie Lamont, a charming soubrette, and Miss Lillian Stillman as the new woman up to date, making the strongest quartette of farce comedy players. Harry T. Lester, late principal comedian Corrinne Opera Co., Harry Hughes, Edna West, Jeannie Graves, Chas. O. Wallace, F. Clinton Scott, Hattie Bernard, Oretta Schemerhone and Messrs. Chase, Meyers, Williamson and Engler, making one of the largest and most expensive farce comedies on the road. All the brightest and latest new music, and everything is done to make this one of the most enjoyable entertainments of the season.

—The remains of George C. Godown were taken to Sand Hill, near Flemington, this morning on the 8:16 train for burial.

—A flagstone sidewalk is being laid on the Plummer estate on Belvidere avenue, opposite the residence of C. P. Ralli.

—J. T. Vail has sold his house at 317 Franklin place to Dr. Carmen, of Sandford avenue, who will take possession next spring.

—A dance will be given by Charles Edward Case, Frederick Seague Case and Henry Davis Bushnell on Thursday evening, December 26th, at the residence of Charles L. Case of Central avenue.

MAKES BURNS PAINLESS.

Picric Acid Solution Will Ease a Fresh Wound and Heal It.

The suffering caused by a burn upon the skin, whether small or great, is intense, as every one knows, and medical science has only been able thus far to palliate but not to remove the pain entirely. Chance led to the discovery in the Paris Charity hospital of a remedy which, it is claimed, will cause burns to cease from being painful as soon as it is applied, and which will cause the injured flesh to heal with marvelous rapidity.

One of the surgeons was in the habit of using picric acid as an antiseptic, and his hands were therefore impregnated with the solution. One day in lighting a cigarette a portion of the burning match fell upon his hand, but instead of feeling it he noticed not the slightest pain. A short time afterward, while sealing a letter, some burning wax stuck to his finger, and though it cauterized the skin he felt no sensation. This set him to thinking, and he arrived at the conclusion that the acid had, to use his own words, "acted upon the tissues and tightened them."

He began a series of experiments in treating burns with a saturated solution of picric acid. "All pain was instantly suppressed," he says in his report, "after having bathed the wound in a solution of this acid. Blisters did not form, and a cure was effected after four or five days. The only inconvenience was that the acid, which is commercially used in the manufacture of dyes, colored the skin yellow, but these stains rapidly disappeared when washed with boric acid. Picric acid, moreover, is odorless and is neither caustic, irritating nor toxic in its effects."

The cheapness of picric acid and the ease with which a proper solution of it may be prepared and kept ready have induced many of the large manufactories about Paris, whose workmen are frequently burned at their labors, to place jars about within easy reach, so that those injured may be treated with as little delay as possible.—New York World.

POTATOES AN UNHEALTHY FOOD.

The Tuber Discussed From a Literary, Scientific and Culinary Point of View.

John Gilmer Speed, Dr. Cyrus Edson, ex-president of the New York board of health, and Mrs. S. T. Rorer learnedly discuss "The Potato as a Daily Diet" in the Ladies' Home Journal, and pretty conclusively prove that the humble but popular tuber is not a healthful article of food. Mr. Speed asserts that the potato as a food is not nearly so valuable as we have very generally esteemed it to be. It is quite deficient in nitrogen, and as a sole diet is therefore unsuitable. It is hard to digest, and therefore should be partaken of very sparingly by all save those who live active lives out of doors. The potato provokes our great national ailment, dyspepsia, and the sooner the consumption of the mealy tubers begins the sooner will the dread fangs of the dyspepsia appear.

Dr. Edson, in a rejoinder to Mr. Speed, writes: I must quite agree with Mr. Speed in his condemnation of the potato. I am sorry to have to say anything against the humble tuber, but the truth, especially when it is scientific, and more especially medico scientific, must be told. It is certain no one can at all times eat the potato with the assurance that it will do him no harm. The practice of feeding potatoes to infants and young children cannot be too severely condemned. A potato diet may not kill them outright at once, but it is certain to injure their digestive organs permanently and effectually, so as to make their lives a burden to themselves and those who are brought in contact with them. Dr. Edson also contends that the potato is very deficient in nutritive qualities and has less value as an article of food than most other vegetables and cereals.

Mrs. Rorer writes: I am not a potato prohibitionist, but I firmly believe that potatoes should be served only with strongly concentrated nitrogenous food, such as roasted beef, or, for the vegetarian, with beans, peas or lentils.

How to Conduct a Literary Club.

Important points to be considered in conducting a literary club are of course the number of meetings, the length, the hour and the programme. As each club must settle for itself most of these details I will pass directly to the programme and at once say, "Don't!" Don't try to make the meetings too full; don't try to crowd into one season all that belongs to the subject. If your own country, for instance, is under consideration, do not, as one club did last winter, fancy that the Missouri compromise, nullification, the lives of Clay, Webster and Calhoun, with some mention of Edgar Allan Poe and contemporary literature, can all be considered in one afternoon. A club is not a school nor even a lyceum, and it should not attempt to be too instructive. Its very name indicates its purpose, and the more conference and general work there is the better will the purpose be served. Remember that no circle can thoroughly study a subject. Thoroughness is the prerogative of the individual.—Louise Stockton in Ladies' Home Journal.

Collection of Cigars.

Captain Mike Flaherty has what is probably the finest collection of cigars in existence. It has grown in six or seven years from a small number of queer looking cigars, chiefly obtained from Sandy Hook pilots, to its present proportions, filling three large cases. With each cigar is its history and description. There are cigars from all parts of this country, Havana, Patagonia, China, Hindustan, and he has also a large number of the specimen cigars at the World's fair at Chicago, including cigars from Mexico, Colombia, Japan and Borneo, together with a fine collection of cigarettes—roseleaf wrapped Siamese, coarse maize husk covered Mexican and South American, one packing made to resemble a pint bottle, covered with red satin, Greek and a cheap eight for a cent Japanese article. The collection is decidedly unique. Its value would be difficult to approximate, for many of its curiosities could not be duplicated.—New York Advertiser.

No Disguise.

Braggs—No. I think that one belongs to the Prince of Wales. William's motto is, "This Is My Busy Day."—Indianapolis Journal.

AN EXCITING ELECTION.

The Furore Attending the Culmination of the Blaine-Cleveland Campaign.

In New York conflicting statements given out by the great dailies inflamed the populace. The Tribune and The Mail and Express early ceased to issue bulletins, but The Herald and The World kept on showing majorities for Cleveland. The Sun office, where Associated Press dispatches favorable to Blaine alternated with The Sun's own dispatches giving the state to Cleveland, drew the vastest throngs. Six hundred men marched down Broadway shouting, "No, no, Blaine won't go!" It being suspected that Jay Gould and the Associated Press were withholding or perverting returns, a crowd demonstrated in front of the Western Union building with the yell, "Hang Jay Gould!" but policemen soon dispersed them. Some 200 men before The Tribune office burned copies of that paper. So threatening did the excitement become in Chicago that on Nov. 7 Mayor Harrison requested the papers to cease issuing bulletins. In Boston bulletins were discontinued. In Philadelphia political clubs were directed not to parade, persons blowing horns or masquerading on the streets being liable to arrest.

The Democratic managers professed apprehension lest the "fraud of 1876" should be repeated in a new guise and were determined to prevent this. The electoral commission, however, now proved to be, to the Democracy, a blessing in disguise. Its rule, "not to go behind the returns," had been made the New York law for procedure like that in hand, and as, upon a count under the most rigid scrutiny, the New York returns footed up a Cleveland plurality of 1,149 votes, post election manipulation was impossible. Including those of New York, Cleveland received 219 electoral votes to Blaine's 182. The popular vote was the largest ever cast, reaching beyond 10,000,000, of which 4,911,000 were for Cleveland, giving him a plurality over Blaine of 62,000.—From "The Plumed Knight and His Joust," by President E. Benjamin Andrews, in Scribner's.

ST. MARK'S, IN VENICE.

The Beautiful White Domed Church Is a Conspicuous Landmark.

If any single building in Venice is conspicuous not only as a beautiful but as a characteristic and unique landmark it is this white domed church. Many neighboring cities possess towers that resemble those of Venice. In fact, there are one or two others here in Venice that are so confusingly like the great campanile that we cannot reckon on its towering mass as peculiar to Venice alone. St. Mark's church is too hidden to be a prominent landmark in a general view, and the ducal palace is too simple in outline to count by itself as a noticeable feature from a distance. But from every side of approach the coupled domes of Santa Maria della Salute nobly mark the entrance to the Grand canal. It is not often that such signal success awaits the architect who conceives a general scheme so unusual and so fantastic. Still more rarely does this happen when he is bound by the dogmas and proportions of classic orders. It is true one does not find here extreme purity of detail, yet whether seen on the canal side, where, reached by a beautiful flight of steps, the church rises above a deserted little piazza, or from the side of the Giudecca, where its domes and twin towers soar above a green grove of trees, it forms a wonderful and successful composition, and its general mass is perhaps the most beautiful that any Renaissance church can offer.

Besides, as is fitting in Venice, its white walls rise visibly from the sea, and its pearly domes are reflected upon a mile or two of green waters. Venice would doubtless be beautiful if it did not thus front upon and mirror itself in these broad expanses of shining sea. But what an added charm this gives to it!—Atlantic Monthly.

Sending Medicine by Wire.

A singular alleged discovery regarding electricity, described by J. R. Buchanan in The Arena, is that it carries with it the potentiality of everything through which it passes, and consequently that any number of patients can be medicated in succession or simultaneously be given of medicine without a particle being lost, as it is solidly inclosed. "My usual method of demonstrating this," he writes, "is to place a sufficient quantity of medicine in a medical electrode tightly closed, and send an electric current through it, which, entering by one wire and leaving by another, passes through a group of students, who have joined hands, to the negative pole. In a few minutes they recognize the characteristic medical influence, some very promptly, some more slowly (not knowing what it is). I think it probable that with a continuous wire and a sufficient electro motive force a medical dose might be sent from San Francisco to New York. Certainly it would be practicable in a hospital to send a dose by wire from the laboratory to a patient in any part of the building, and even, in a properly arranged bed, to have the patient under the influence of any current prescribed without even knowing it."

Coming Down the Nile.

Some years ago an Englishman was coming down the river Nile, in Egypt, on a large boat loaded with grain, and the birds came off from every village and ate the grain piled on the deck. The Englishman asked the Egyptian captain of the boat, "Who owns this grain?" The Egyptian captain said, "I own it." Then the Englishman asked why he let the birds eat up the grain. The Egyptian asked the Englishman, "Who made the birds?" The Englishman answered, "God." The Egyptian asked whether grain was a food which God intended birds to eat. The Englishman said it was. The Egyptian said, "Can the birds sow and raise the grain for themselves?" The Englishman said, "They cannot." Then said the Egyptian: "Let them eat. God has provided enough for both them and us."—Our Dumb Animals.

Ants Protect Growing Plants.

Eben E. Rexford writes in The Ladies' Home Journal that ants do not harm plants to any great extent. Indeed they are of benefit in most instances, as they catch the insects, which, if left to themselves, would soon damage the plants greatly.

"Well, you know, almost all composers do that nowadays. You shouldn't blame me for that."—Washington Star.

Getting Over a Cough

is easy enough with the help of Randolph's Emulsion. It's a regular step ladder we might say. You get over the cough easily and quickly. In fact, all our drugs are step ladders to help one over every kind of earthly ailment But coughs are what we particularly want to speak of today, for there is a long hard winter before us, and tne person who starts it off with a cough may never see the end of it. Therefore if a cough is what you have take Randolph's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil with phosphoric acid.

The Whippoorwill's Call.

By AUGUSTA LARNED.

[Copyright, 1894, by American Press Association.]

Aunt Prissy and Aunt Hetty had put on their best black silks, with muslin inside, handkerchiefs and caps trimmed with purple satin bows and their false puffs "made out of the combings of their own hair," as they took pains to explain to their friends. They stood in the hall now to receive him with their best company manners, a courtesy such as had graced General Lafayette's ball.

"We are so glad to welcome you here," said Miss Prissy, holding out her refined, withered old hand. "We do hope you will feel quite at home. Brother Simon would have wished it, for he was very hospitable. You will remain for a long time and will make yourself entirely one of us. Brother Simon would have wished it, we are quite sure."

They ushered him into their own large, pleasant room, the farmhouse parlor Uncle Si had so long given up to their use, with its two high beds, its braided rugs and quaint furniture, and installed him in their best chair opposite the governor's portrait.

"I hope your father, Job Hapgood, was in good health when you left home," said Miss Hetty, taking out her snuff-box and tapping on it with two fingers.

"Don't you remember, sister," said Prissy in her good ear, "that Job Hapgood is dead?"

"It must have slipped my mind," said Hetty placidly. "Sister is losing her eyesight, and I am losing my memory, and so things are made even. But you know," she continued, turning courteously toward Arthur, "we never knew your father. Poor Sister Nancy was married to Simon Hapgood after your father moved west. We occupied a very different social position when we were young, and Sister Nancy we always thought, though you will excuse us for saying so, married out of her sphere. She was very different from sister and me and seemed devoid of a proper family pride. But I think Brother Simon appreciated the sacrifices she made in coming here."

"I am sure he did," put in Miss Prissy briskly. "He felt it an honor to be allied with the Hinghams. It is a fine thing to have ancestors, Mr. Arthur."

This was a point that touched young Hapgood rather keenly. He had long felt himself that it is a fine thing to have ancestors and was conscious of his own deficiency in that important particular. It had just occurred to him that he might possibly adopt the Hingham escutcheon for his own.

"Of course you have heard of Governor Hingham," continued Miss Prissy, pointing to the portrait of the old gentleman in shirt frills and tie wig over the chimney piece. "He was a very distinguished man and our great-grandfather."

"A colonial governor?" ventured Arthur, who had forgotten all about the history of the great Governor Hingham.

"Yes, a colonial governor and a Revolutionary governor as well. From being one of the most loyal servants of the crown he became one of the bitterest enemies of King George III in these colonies. He fitted out a regiment for General Washington's army at Cambridge, sir; armed and equipped it at his own cost, and from that day the Hinghams have been poor in worldly goods. But we are proud of our poverty, Mr. Hapgood. Our ancestor never asked the government to return a penny of what he had done to establish it, nor would we. Sister and I know that most of the rich people of this time are parvenus, and we are content to remain as we are, with our memories and our birth and breeding."

"You ought to tell Mr. Arthur how, in the good providence of God, the governor's life was spared to his country," said Miss Hetty.

"You tell him, sister. I know it is such a pleasure to you to relate the story, and if you make a mistake I am here to set you right."

"Well, you see," began Miss Hetty after taking a ladylike pinch of snuff and offering her box to Arthur, "some 10 years before the war the governor was a very rich man in land and owned large property in slaves. It was then legal, as you may know, in all the colonies to hold the blacks in bondage, but he was a kind, just master and had abolished the use of the paddle on his estate, a wooden instrument perforated with holes, with which the overseers were in the habit of chastising slaves. He had large farms in New Jersey."

"New York, sister," put in Miss Prissy. "Sister, your memory fails you."

"Well, it was either New York or New Jersey. What does it signify? And after he had lived there some years he made arrangements to dispose of his land in that state and remove to New England, bringing his slaves with him. But the black people were averse to leaving their old homes, and the spirit of discontent among them rose to the point of rebellion, and while the governor was engaged in disposing of his property and preparing to move east his 30 slaves formed a conspiracy and determined to kill him and his entire family."

"There were [illegible] slaves, sister. I remember perfectly there were 40."

"Well, [illegible]y. What difference does [illegible] The slaves plotted to poison the family, as I was saying, and the poison was put into the coffee one morning a few days before the governor proposed to set out on his journey, but it chanced that just as they had seated themselves at the breakfast table and while the youngest child (Roxana Hingham, she that married a Wheeler) was standing up with her hands folded to say grace there came a loud knock at the door of the room where they were seated. The governor rose hastily, no servant being by to answer the summons, and one of the brass buttons of his morning coat caught on the fringe of the tablecloth, and the entire breakfast, with all the dishes, was dragged to the floor. Of course, as you can imagine, the coffeepot was overturned. The contents ran out and made a large pool on the sanded floor. Now, it appears Madam Hingham, the governor's wife, was very fond of cats. She had four—a white, a black, a tortoise shell and a tailless Manx cat."

"Four?" put in Miss Prissy. I have always understood there were five."

"What does it matter, sister?" returned Miss Hetty, a little pettishly, "whether four or five. The cats scampered to lap up the coffee, and they all fell into horrible convulsions and died from the effects of it, and thus the plot was brought to light, and the governor and his family were saved."

Arthur Hapgood had heard quite enough to satisfy his curiosity about the old gentleman in the tie wig whose picture hung over the chimney piece. He therefore made an excuse to get out of doors and take a ramble about the farm.

The old sisters both rose and courtesied as he took his leave. "You are to make yourself quite at home," said Miss Prissy, with a gentle air of patronage. "We have told Elsie to prepare the front chamber for you with fresh water and towels and the best linen sheets, for it is our wish to entertain Brother Simon's friends exactly as he would have entertained them himself. The very best in the house is at your disposal."

Young Hapgood wandered about the house, fields, the old barns and sheds, with a sarcastic smile lightly wreathing his lips. It was very funny that he should be politely asked to make himself at home in his own house, and yet there was a spice of annoyance in it. Uncle Si, with his family of queer dependents, was proving a great puzzle to his shrewd nephew. The old man's farming was shamefully slipshod, and Arthur began to make material changes and calculations before he had been an hour on the place.

At last he came sauntering round by the back way and entered the great kitchen, where Elsie, with her sleeves rolled up and a white apron tied over her neatly fitting black gown, stood by the table kneading some loaves of bread. Her little floury, brown hands were quite charming as they twinkled up and down in the bread tray.

Hapgood came and stood by the table and watched the operation in a way that made Elsie nervous. She turned her shoulder toward him and wished with all her heart he would go away. But Arthur was not the man ever to feel himself out of place. With his hands in his pockets he stood looking critically at the girl's curly hair and the clear cut outline of her face. "It is very amusing," said he, as if speaking to himself, "that those old women should imagine they own everything on the premises."

Elsie flushed slightly with anger. It was, she felt, indelicate for Arthur Hapgood to make allusion to the property at once, as if he meant to turn them all out of doors the very first day. She saw how foolish she and Paul had been to dream for a moment that they could stay there.

"They are childish," said she slowly. "They are very old." She felt a sudden catching in her throat and determinedly choked down a sob. "You see, they don't understand things quite yet. Uncle Si was paralyzed eight months—quite helpless and unable to speak or move—or I am sure he would have made some provision for them."

Arthur stood studying the girl's emotion without feeling in the least moved by it. He only noticed that it heightened her beauty and made her quite adorable. He jingled ever so slightly the loose coins in his pocket, made a turn or two through the great kitchen, stopping to examine the tall clock in the corner that had chimed out the hour when his father was born, and came again and stood close by the stove where Elsie was now putting down the loaves to rise and covering them with a towel.

"There is no need of their knowing immediately," said he as the result of his cogitations, "at least not today. It can be broken to them gently, very gently. I shall do nothing violent, but I should think it would be a blessed release to you to be relieved of the care of two such fussy old cats. I don't suppose they can scrape up $50 between them to save their lives. By the way, I noticed there were some nice bits of old colonial furniture in their room."

"The furniture belongs to them," Elsie managed to say, for she was but a girl, impulsive and rather quick tempered, and the tone Arthur Hapgood had assumed had made her very angry. Indeed she suddenly felt that she hated him.

"Well, I wouldn't mind buying some of those pieces at a good price," he returned. "I am rather fond of antiques, and I think I know a good thing when I see it. That coat of arms," he mused as he stood looking down on her, "would have a very good effect blazoned on a stained glass window."

"Do you mean you would adopt it as your own?" said Elsie, with a sudden flush and a slight toss of the head.

"Oh, no," said he, looking at her with curious interest, "but I might get some one learned in heraldry to put in a Hapgood quartering."

Elsie did not know what he meant, but she was instinctively disgusted with the selfish egotism of this young man, who seemed to be on such excellent terms with himself, whose clothes fitted so well, who wore a handsome watch chain and ring, and who had the power of keeping perfectly cool while he stirred up all sorts of disagreeable emotions in other people. Elsie was dumb, with a dull aching at the heart. She did not think of herself or of Paul. They were young and strong, and the world was all before them, but those two helpless old women, so innocent minded and unsuspicious, with all their silly little vanities, this man, she felt sure, was capable of trundling them off to the poor-house.

She made no reply to Hapgood's speeches, marked with cheery self confidence, as if quite unaware that he was cutting into the quick of her sensibilities, but went into the pantry to skim the pans of sweet milk ranged on the neat shelves. She closed the door behind her, as if to hint that she wished to be alone, but Hapgood opened it and came strolling in with the assurance of a perfect right to go anywhere in his own house.

"I suppose you have made a search for Uncle Si's will," he said, addressing the question to Elsie's back hair as he stood looking down at the process of taking the thick yellow folded cream from off the pans.

"No," said Elsie, feeling hot and uncomfortable and wishing with all her soul that he would cease to dog her steps and go away and leave her to do her work in peace. "We have made no search. We knew there was nothing coming to us. The house is all open, and you can ransack it from top to bottom."

Arthur stood looking at her meditatively, his lips made up to whistle, though no sound came.

"I don't want you to think you are not welcome to stay here," said he at last. "You may make this your permanent home if you please, Elsie. Uncle Si was a simple old fellow, easily imposed upon and not up to modern ideas. He might have made much more out of the land if he had tried. I can't be expected to act on his plan, but as far as you are concerned there need be no change."

Elsie was uncomfortably conscious that Hapgood was studying every line of her back, though her knowledge of the world was not great. She knew instinctively that an offer of protection from an unmarried man to a girl of her age was a covert insult. "Excuse me, Mr Hapgood," she said. "I do not go with the house and the land or any of the goods and chattels. I am neither an ox nor an ass, a manservant nor a maidservant, to be included in your plan."

Hapgood gave a little superior, self satisfied laugh. That tone of independence was very pretty in a young thing like Elsie. He liked to see her toss her curly head in that defiant way. The lines of her slim waist were very tempting. She had been a little saucy and pert, and why should she not be well kissed by way of punishment? Hapgood knew no reason that could restrain him from amusing himself with little Elsie. He had just made a motion to slip his arm round the girl's waist when a shadow darkened the doorway, and Elsie, turning quickly at the risk of spattering Hapgood with cream from her skimmer, saw Paul Raynor looming up like a thundercloud crowned with his handsome, powerful head, with the abundant light hair tossed carelessly off the forehead, his big hands clinched and his eye like blue lightning.

Arthur turned, too, but with his usual deliberation, taking time to put up his single eyeglass. He measured Raynor with his glance and saw that he was the larger and brawnier fellow of the two. Paul was quivering with rage, but Elsie gave him an imploring look to keep him from laying violent hands on Hapgood.

"Oh," said the latter, looking him over, "I understand you are my uncle's hired man."

"Then you have been misinformed," said Paul, lifting his head proudly. "There was no question of wages between us."

"Oh, indeed! But I understand you carried on the farm."

"Yes, I worked, and Uncle Si paid me what he pleased," returned Paul in a tone of offensive brevity.

"And you were satisfied?"

"I was satisfied."

"Not ambitious, eh, like most American boys who have had to begin at the bottom?"

Paul made no reply. A black cloud hung over his forehead. He was trying to choke down his wrath at this fellow's studied insolence, and his hands fairly itched to lay hold of him.

"I understand you are a naturalist," Arthur went on. "Elsie here has a great opinion of your acquirements."

A blush stole over Paul's face. He was ashamed to be called by what to him was a great and sacred name. "I am merely a learner, a student," he stammered, letting his eyes drop to the floor.

"Yes," drawled Hapgood. "I saw your collection of beasts and birds and creeping things out in the old shop. A little knowledge of that kind is enough to make a fellow conceited, especially if he has not seen much of the world. It's a common observation that a chap bitten with that kind of mania will know a good deal less when he knows more. Now, you see, I have come into possession of this place, and I cannot be expected to rear up learned plowboys like my uncle, who was an unpractical, whimsical old fellow. But if you want to stay here for the present to look after the stock I am willing to give you fair wages for fair days' work. Nothing vague, you understand—nothing sentimental about me; all down in black and white."

VICTIMS OF JOHN BARLEYCORN.

A Man Arrested Who Tried To Break in The Press Office.

David McLerned and William Drake were arraigned before Judge Coddington in the city court this morning on the charge of trespassing on coal cars and stealing coal. They pleaded not guilty of throwing coal off the cars. The Judge thought the testimony was too strong and made the punishment a fine of $3 or ten days in Elizabeth jail. They took the latter.

There was one other culprit to appear before the Judge and he was a victim of too much liquor. He gave his name as David O'Connell. He was arrested by Detective Blackford on North avenue, where he was vainly trying to enter the door to the press-room of The Daily Press. He sadly pleaded guilty and took the sentence like a man. A gift of $3 to the city or a ten days visit with Sheriff Kyte was the decision of the Judge.

THE

New York Times.

THE TIMES is a newspaper for intelligent men and women who want to read all the news of the world every day. The paper has distinguishing merits of its own. It is neither sensational nor dull. It is not sour-tempered. It is not frivolous or visionary. It sees plenty of good in the world and tells about it. It tells of the bad when it must, but not unwholesomely. It prints with fullness the record of human endeavor in many fields outside of business, politics and war—in literature, religion, science, art, sports, and household matters. No paper in the country prints so many book reviews and so much book news. No paper has so complete a financial page—a daily manual for investors and officers of financial institutions. Its market reports—wool, cotton, breadstuffs, farm products, etc.—are the best in the country.

The Democracy of THE TIMES is of the old-fashioned sort—as old as Thomas Jefferson: majority rule, no bossism, no machine tyranny, the divorce of politics from private money-making, a sound currency, industrial emancipation, and every-day honesty. To promote the advance of the Democratic Party along these lines it labors with heart and conscience and all its might.

The New York Weekly Times.

The subscription price of THE NEW YORK WEEKLY TIMES is ONE DOLLAR a year THE WEEKLY TIMES is a capital newspaper. It contains all the current news condensed from the dispatches and reports of the daily edition, besides literary matter, discussions upon agricultural topics by practical farmers, full and accurate market reports of prices for farm produce, live stock, etc., and a carefully prepared weekly wool market.

Scribner's for Christmas

Frank R. Stockton has a Christmas love story, which bears a characteristic title—"The Staying Power of Sir Rohan." Its illustrations are quaint and exactly suitable. A thrilling detective story by C. E. Carryll, entitled "The River Syndicate," perhaps equalling Sherlock Holmes' best work. Illustrated.

Joel Chandler Harris' characteristic tale of a faithful slave—"The Colonel's Nigger-Dog." Other Christmas stories are, "A White Blot," by Henry VanDyke, a poetic and imaginative tale of a picture (illustrated); "Heroism of Landers," by A. S. Pier (illustrated), and "Hopper's Old Man," by R. C. V. Meyers.

Sentimental Tommy,

By J. M. Barrie.

Those who have read (and who has not?) "The Little Minister" and "A Window in Thrums" can anticipate what Mr. Barrie's "Sentimental Tommy" will be. It is to be the chief serial in Scribner's for 1896, beginning in the January number.

Two Years for $4.50.

Scribner's Magazine costs $3 a year, but new subscribers can have all the numbers for 1895 and a year's subscription for 1896 for $4.50.

Scribner's Magazine is going to be better next year ever. It is going to have new features. Its publishers are not satisfied with past successes. It purposes to more thoroughly deserve the confidence of the reading public. The History Serial—"Last Quarter Century in the United States"—will be continued. Just now it is approaching a period of absorbing interest to the present generation—the first administration of President Cleveland.

Scribner's Magazine ought to get careful consideration as a Christmas gift. The $4.50 offer ought to get double circulation.

A MOTHER GOOSE MARKET.

NOVEL SORT OF SUPPER AT THE SEVENTH-DAY BAPTIST CHURCH.

The Old Woman of Nursery Rhyme Acted Out by People in Real Life—Topped Off with a Musical and Literary Desert.

"Victuals and drink were the chief of her diet."

was the rather suggestive sign at the entrance to the refreshment room at Mother Goose Market held in the parlors of the Seventh Day Baptist church yesterday afternoon and evening. And the dainty little menus told of the delicacies which the "old woman," of Mother Goose's melodies, had for those that attended her market.

The affair was a novel one, but it proved very successful. The main room was reserved for the visitors, while the alcoves, which are partitioned off from each other by portieres, were artistically arranged as booths. The first one to the right of the front entrance was under the charge of two "Queen of Hearts," Mrs. W. M. Stillman and Mrs. Bessie Titsworth, and here candies and the wonderful "tarts" were sold. The booth was pleasingly decorated with red hangings while a large paste board heart hung over the entrance. The "Queens" were gowned in white, trimmed with numerous red hearts while each wore a crown and other signs of royalty. Numerous strings of cob-webs decorated the booth of the "Old Woman that Sweeps the Sky," where Mrs. F. A. Dunham, in appropriate costume, sold brooms, baskets and the like.

"Cinderella" was in large letters above the next booth, but the fairy god mother did not seem to have arrived yet for kitchen utensils were the chief article of sale. Miss Lucy Dunham and Miss Mineola Tomlinson occupied this booth.

Yellow hangings and immense yellow chrysanthemums blended very prettily at the flower booth of "Mistress Mary," but her contrariness seemed to have vanished from the way her many costumers were treated. Mrs. A. L. Titsworth was in charge at this booth.

"Nancy Etticote" was the name on the next booth and here Mrs. Charles Dunham, sold candies and fancy articles. And last, but by no means least, came "Simple Simon's" fishing pond. Here, standing on a high chair, was Simple Simon himself, fishing for what he could catch over the top of a screen and selling the result of his luck to the amused watchers. His costume caused roars of laughter wherever he appeared, old dirty white flannel pants and a brown dilapidated coat, while perched on the back of a head of hair fit for a foot ball game was an old brown soft hat. But the greatest part of his make up was a set of large false teeth which gave him the silliest expression imaginable as he smirked and ogled at his costomers. Dr. Frank Clawson filled the part and kept everyone in roars of laughter over his performances.

The refreshment department was under the charge of Mrs. D. E. Titsworth. Mrs. Frank Clawson and Mrs. J. G. Miller presided at the tables. The waitresses were the Misses Mabel Maxson, Lena Tomlinson, Lizzie Allis, Ida Spicer, Louise Lewis, Ruth Maxson and Edith Titsworth. Mrs. J. W. Van Sickle was chairman of the entire affair, and in the character of "Mother Goose," presided over the cashier's table on which was placed a large stuffed goose, "the goose that laid the golden egg," and one of the eggs was there also.

The programme consisted of several selections from "Mother Goose" by a chorus in costume, and some of the characters were certainly worth seeing.

Miss Grace Lewis was "Mother Goose" with long-pointed hat and gown after the fashion of the illustrations of that personage.

One of the best was Miss Maud Mosher who represented the "Old Woman That Went to Market Her Eggs for to Sell." Her old fashioned bonnet and gown, with plaid shawl, satchel and cotton umbrella, made the character a splendid one, while the green spectacles which she looked over made the costume complete. The part of "Bo Peep" was taken by Miss Ernestine Smith, who made a very good shepherdess. Miss Elizabeth Allis was a charming "Mistress Mary" and wore her "silver bells and cockle shells" all over her gay costume. The "Queen of Hearts," as represented by Miss Bessie Titsworth, was indeed charming. "Simple Simon" was in the chorus as was also his friend the "Pie Man," Sydney R. Titsworth, who made a fit companion in his white apron, large white cuffs and tall grey hat perched on the back of his head. "Little Boy Blue's" horn was tooted by Nathan Lewis whose blue bloomer costume made an amusing object. Arthur J. Spicer looked very youthful in the costume of "Little Jack Horner."

Besides the chorus singing, there was a lullaby by Miss Allis and Miss Mosher, with violin obligato by Arthur Mosher. Miss Maxson acted as accompanist.

There was a large attendance and everybody thoroughly enjoyed the novel entertainment, which reflected much credit on those in charge.

TEN YEARS OLD.

Congregational Christian Endeavor Society Soon to Celebrate Its Anniversary.

The Christian Endeavorers of the Congregational church will soon celebrate their tenth annivery. The birthday of the society is Friday, December 20th, and on that evening the anniversary exercises will be held. A religious meeting will be held at eight o'clock and Rev. J. Clement French, D. D., of Newark, State President of the Christian Endeavor Society, will deliver an address. Rev. C. L. Goodrich will give a historic sketch of the society. There will also be special music, both vocal and instrumental. A sociable will follow this service, at which a programme will be given and refreshments served. The exercises promise to be very enjoyable.

A MOUNTAIN HOTEL.

Vail and French Are Building One On Johnston's Drive.

A summer hotel is now in process of erection on Johnston's drive. It is located just above the turn in the road on the summit of the mountain and commands a very fine view. The foundations and first floor timbers have now been laid and it will be completed by spring. The hotel is a prettily designed structure with tower and large piazzas. There will be about forty bed rooms, besides spacious parlors and dining rooms.

J. T. Vail and John H. French are the owners of the new hotel and expect to open it next summer. Who will take charge is not yet decided.

Badge Banners to be Awarded.

The principal local event in Christian Endeavor circles this week will be the semi annual conference of the Union County Christian Endeavor Union, which will be held on Friday evening in the First Presbyterian church at Roselle. All the societies in the county have been invited, and the badge banners will be awarded to the society having the largest percentage of membership in attendance.

The themes for discussions and addresses are in anticipation of the special evangelistic efforts to be made in the county during the winter. There will be a short praise service to begin the conference, and an open parliament on "The Prayer Meeting—Our Meeting is in a Rut; How Shall We Get it Out?" The speaker for the evening will be Rev. Ford C. Guttman, of Newark, and his topic will be "Evangelistic Meetings; How to Conduct Them." A purpose service will close the conference.

A Point of Interest.

One of the most interesting places to visit these days is White's store. Every corner and counter in the store is filled with just the sort of Christmas presents that you want, and it is surprising the little money it takes to buy them. Two of the most attractive counters in the store are the ones that are filled with fine cups and saucers, vases, bon bon dishes, etc. There is always a crowd of eager buyers there. The toy department you will find as equally interesting.

A Ride Anyhow.

A straw ride is now being planned for Christmas week by young people of Plainfield and the borough. Should the sleighing be good a large box sleigh will be used, otherwise the party will go in a wagon of large dimensions.

They Can Afford to Dine Now.

A social meeting and dinner will be given by the coal dealers of this city on Thursday evening, December 19th, at the Union County Country Club house.

Major C. T. Picton is manager of the State Hotel, at Denison, Texas, which the traveling men say is one of the best hotels in that section. In speaking of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy Major Picton says: "I have used it myself and in my family for several years, and take pleasure in saying that I consider it an infallible cure for diarrhœa and dysentery. I always recommend it, and have frequently administered it to my guests in the hotel, and in every case it has proven itself worthy of unqualified endorsement. For sale by Reynolds' Pharmacy, Park and North avenues. T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

STEPHEN A. KROM REPLIES.

HE ANSWERS ARGUMENTS AGAINST THE INDIVIDUAL COMMUNION CUP.

He Discusses From the Point of a Church Member and Not as a Scientist—Says Dr. Johnstone Misunderstands.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—As a church member, and not as a scientist, I should like to make a few criticisms on the Rev. J. Johnstone's article published in your issue of the 10th inst.

His views seem to me to be a most curious psychological phenomenon, and a remarkable instance of superstitious survival. If I were more of a philosophical psychologist I should take great pleasure in analyzing them in detail. However, I will call attention on one or two points in his discourse.

In the first place Dr. Johnstone mistakes the issue at stake. He seems to think that it is as follows: How can we best deceive ourselves in regard to the existence of the pathogenic microbe; in other words, how far in the sand, after the manner of the ostrich, will we have to stick our heads in order to avoid using the above-mentioned organism so that we may eat and drink in the bliss of ignorance? The real issue is as follows: How can we best realize that such an organism as the pathogenic microbe really does exist, in order that we may receive an incentive to study methods of protection and extermination, so that we may eat and drink with the comfort that only comes from a true knowledge of the condition of things?

As a humble seeker after scientific truth, Dr. Johnson requests us to explain the higher average of life of the English clergy who run more chances of becoming rejected than the laymen do.

I take great pleasure in enlightening Dr. Johnson upon this worthy problem.

As Dr. Johnstone says, it is well known that the English priests possess stronger constitutions than do the laymen of the church, and that generally their health is better. That is due to the fact that they live very much easier lives than the average laymen do. They are not troubled by the thousand and one little worries which business life and other like pursuits are beset with, and which are so disasterous to the nervous system. It is claimed by neurologists that literary pursuits coupled with exercise produce the best health, and thus increase the span of life, so we would expect to find such a class of men as the English clergy to be of a more rugged nature than the rest of the community.

It is well known that a healthy constitution is the best safeguard against the inroads of the pathogenic microbe. In many cases when the priesthood has been running in the family for a long time, this natural safeguard would be greatly strengthened by heridity which always gathers force as it moves along.

Thus according to the germ theory of disease itself, these men should have a higher average of life than the rest of their fellow-men. But these English priests do not run any more chances of becoming infected than do the laymen. For instance, the consumptive or other infected person may occupy a seat in the front part of the church; in such a case it is likely that the germs of tuberculosis, which have been dropped into the cup, will be all imbibed by the laymen long before the cup gets to the priest. It is not at all probable that the persons or person who are infected will be the ones to drink just before the cup goes to the lips of the priest. We find the following in the Common Prayer Book of the Episcopal church:

"And if any of the consecrated bread and wine remain after the communion, it shall not be carried out of the church, but the minister and other communicants shall, immediately after the blessing, reverently eat and drink the same."

Thus we see that if there is too much bread and wine left for the priest to eat alone, and it must happen so quite often, he may call on some of the layman to help him. In all the above cases, we see that they share and share alike in any infection that may take place.

As I understand it, I have answered the question Dr. Johnstone so kindly raises. A great deal more can be said on this subject, so that if Dr. Johnstone would like to pursue this line of inquiry still further, I would be most happy to discuss the whole matter of susceptibility and immunity.

A Banjo Concert.

Alfred Fereland, of London, England, will give a banjo concert at the Y. M. C. A. hall in January. He will be assisted by a number of friends.

THE BIGGEST NIGHT YET.

Firemen's Fair Was Largely Attended Last Night.

The Firemen's Fair is still progressing and last evening saw the largest attendance of any of the evenings, about 1000 being present at the dances. There was still an improvement shown and the dancers are thoroughly up in their parts. The Flower dance was one of the prettiest of the evening and was the occasion for much applause. The Firemen's drill was given and attracted as much attention as before. While the dances were in progress, the spindle on one of the tanks holding the oxygen and hydrogen for the calcium broke and the light had to be discontinued. It will be ready for this evening, though. There was a large number of purchasers at the booths than before and those in charge did a flourishing business. The candy booth was especially well patronized and a crowd remained around it the greater part of the evening. "Thorma" still continued to attract many.

ELEMENTS OF SUCCESS.

Some of the Qualities Necessary for a Successful Business Career.

The students of the Plainfield Business College were favored last evening with a very instructive lecture delivered in the school room in the Babcock building by Rev. Joseph B. Graff, of Philadelphia. He has been the appointed lecturer on Business Ethics before the Spencerian College for several years. His subject was, "The Elements of Success." It was full of good suggestions and sound advice, interspersed with pleasing ancedotes and pertinent illustrations. A summary, giving the positive elements of success, is as follows:

A sound mind in a sound body; Wise and early choice of a trade or profesion; Adaptation to the trade or profession chosen; A thorough knowledge of one's trade or business pursuit; Energy in the chosen vocation; Mastering of all the details of one's business; Downright, upright hard work; Ability to see and seize opportunities; Integrity of character and conduct; Decision of purpose; Systematic methods of work: A proper valution of time and money.

An Accidental Death.

A horse was accidentally killed at Joyce's stone crusher at Dunellen yesterday. Mr. Joyce hired a horse and cart from Mr. Giddis to cart some dirt at the quarry and took them there. When backing the horse to the edge of the bank, he slipped and the horse and cart rolled down the embankment. The cart was smashed into kindling wood, while the horse was killed by by the fall.

Loan Exhibition Arranged.

G. A. Audsley, J. E. Stewart, Harold Serrell, J. Hervey Doane, George Taggart, H. H. Coward, G. Thorn and G. Harry Squires, committee from the Camera Club, met last evening and arranged for the loan art exhibition to be given for one week in February. The articles are contributed by Plainfield, New York and Baltimore people.

Foresters to Elect Officers.

Court Plainfield, No. 1144, Independent Order of Foresters, will have their annual election of officers on Friday night. Other important business which will come up for consideration makes it necessary for a large attendance of the members.

College Boys Coming.

The Brown Union Glee, Banjo and Mandolin Club will give a concert at the Y. M. C. A. hall on Saturday evening, December 28. The concert will be given under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A.

Skating at Night.

The skating season is now in full blast and Hyde's pond is crowded every afternoon with enthusiasts. Last evening quite a number glided over the glassy surface of the pond.

Another Professor.

Prof. E. A. Mapleton, professor of languages, will be added to the faculty of the Plainfield Business College next week. He will instruct in foreign languages.

When most needed it is not unusual for your family physician to be away from home. Such was the experience of Mr. J. Y. Schenck, editor of the Caddo, Ind. Ter., Banner, when his little girl, two years of age was threatened with a severe attack of croup. He says: "My wife insisted that I go for the doctor, but as our family physician was out of town I purchased a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, which relieved her immediately. I will not be without it in the future." 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by Reynoldss' Pharmacy, Park and North avenues, T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

PHILOSOPHER IN THE ROOKERY.

He Wouldn't Do Anything to Deprive Chief Grant of Bread.

The display of quilts in front of Van Emburg & Son's store in the Babcock building proved too tempting to James McGinnis yesterday afternoon, when the over indulgence in strong drink began to have its effects, and he started to arrange a bed for himself. Officer Saunders happened along and disturbed the would be sleeper's meditations by marching him to the lock-up. McGinnis' blood began to boil and he objected. His language was much stronger than he was, however. As his wandering steps were directed toward the jail he sadly remarked:

"I was a prominent member of the fourteenth ward in Brooklyn once, but I a disgrace to the ward now," and he smiled sorrowfully on the officer.

When Chief of Police Grant visited the lock-up last evening, the ex-politician begged for a drink of rum. The Chief replield that he could not grant his request, that he would loose his place if he did, and then the fourteenth ward man mournfully remarked.

"I don't want you to do that, I don't want to take the bread out of anybody's mouth. I would rather suffer," and he relapsed into silence.

This morning he appeared before Judge Codding at the city court. He understood his position and pleaded guilty, but said that he was just helping to build up the town by putting money in circulation. The Judge suggested a fine of $3 or ten days in the county jail, and the ex-New Yorker thought that the ten days would do him the most good. This morning Chief Grant took him to Elizabeth. He had been working on the sewer beds.

Results of a Plainfielder's Energy.

Bernard Lodge, No. 67 A. O. U. W., was instituted with twenty-seven charter members at Basking Ridge Tuesday evening by Grand Master Workman and Ex-Senator Moore of Phillipsburg, Grand Recorder Lippincott of Camden; Supreme Representative J. D. Diefendorf, and Grand Trustee Henry Liefke of this city. The following members of Central Lodge No. 48, A. O. U. W., of this city, were present: Past Master Workmen Charles Randolph, W. H. Brokman, Master Workman L. Spicer, O. I. K. Dunham, Clark Rogers, C. T. Rogers, Jr., Wm. Newcorn, and N. C. Mague. After the institution a sumptuous collation was served in the hotel at that place. Great credit is due N. C. Mague for his untiring efforts in organizing the lodge which gives promise of being one of the best in the state.

A Union Meeting.

Lucetta Council, No. 28, Daughters of Liberty, held a union meeting at their rooms last evening. There was a large attendance at the meeting. State Councilor H. F. Wilcox, of Long Branch, and Deputy State Councilor E. A. Yard, of Newark, were present, besides large delegations from Elizabeth and New Market. The initiating team from Lakeside Council of New Market did the work and four candidates were initiated. Three propositions were received. State Councilor Wilcox addressed the meeting and a number of the other members spoke. An elaborate collation was served after the speechmaking. The next meeting will be held on December 28th, instead of the 25th.

A Rooster's Big Liver.

Edgar S. Brokaw's son who lives in Westfield, purchased a rooster last Saturday for his Sunday dinner. The fowl weighed five pounds dressed, and when he was opened an unusually large liver was discovered.

Mr. Brokaw being curious to know the weight took it to a butcher shop and learned that it balanced the scales at 13½ ounces. It is now on exhibition in Westfield.

Where Were the Bees?

Persons who were evidently looking for sweet things entered W. S. Chase's place, 1703 West Front street, Monday night, and stole 35 pounds of honey from his hives. The thieves are known and Mr. Chase says they had better return the honey and thus prevent exposure.

A Salvation Wedding.

A marriage ceremony will be held at the Salvation army barracks on New Year's night. The happy couple who will be joined in wedlock are Archibald Low and Lieut Paule Scott Dabo. The ceremony will be performed by Brigadier R. Evans, assisted by the central staff.

A Debating Club.

A meeting of all those interested in the formation of a debating society in the Y. M. C. A., will be held at the Y. M. C. A. building on Saturday evening, December 21st.

ABOUT BOROUGH ANNEXATION

INTERVIEWS FROM THE UNION AND SOMERSET ASSEMBLYMEN.

Assemblyman-elect W. R. Codington is Personally in Favor of the Scheme, But Would Do As His Constituents Desired.

The question of the union of the borough of North Plainfield and the city of Plainfield has been under discussion for some time and a bill is to be drawn up and presented to the next session of the New Jersey Legislature providing for the union.

A Daily Aress reporter interviewed Assemblyman-elect W. R. Codington yesterday afternoon regarding his course of action should the question come up before the Legislature. When asked if he favored the union, he said:

"If the question should come up, my personal feeling in the matter would not be considered, but I should act largely in the feeling of a majority of the people throughout Union county. Personally, I am in favor of it."

"Do you think that the people of Union county want the union?" asked the reporter.

"I should think they would favor it," was the reply.

When asked what the sentiment was in North Plainfield, he said:

"I understand that there are a great many that want it in North Plainfield, but in Somerset county, outside of the borough, I think it will be opposed, as they wish to keep North Plainfield in the county."

When a Daily Press reporter saw Mr. Reed this noon, and the Assemblyman-elect said that if Plainfield should be added to Somerset county, he would favor the annexation of the city and borough, otherwise, he did not think that he should. He did't care to make any definite statements regarding the union, however, as he said that such matters needed long and careful deliberation, and he did not care to be quoted regarding that subject at present.

WILL COOL OFF IN ELIZABETH.

Two Sewer Bed Employes Take a Vacation in the County Jail.

A simple drunk, who gave his name as Patrick Cooney, an employe at the sewer beds, was arrested on Park avenue last evening by Officer Cooney and spent the night in jail. This morning in the city court he chose ten days free board in preference to paying three dollars.

William Riley was arrested by Sergeant Kiely and Officer Frederickson at the sewer beds yesterday afternoon. He had received his pay yesterday, squandered most of it on drink and came back in an ugly humor. He wanted to fight the foreman and struck one of them when the blue coats of the officers appeared on the scene and he was left in jail over night to cool down. This morning Judge Coddington gave him his choice between a fine of $5 or spending twenty days in jail. His exchequer was too low to stand the fine and he was committed to the Elizabeth jail.

Minstrel Programme Arranged.

The following members of the Crescent wheelmen met in the Babcock building and arranged for the proposed minstrel show to be given at an early date:

Charles Angleman, E. E. Runyon, Clarence Teel, T. B. King, W. N. Runyon, John Petrie, F. J. Pope, J. H. Rogers, S. P. T. Wilbur, George O. Stevens, W. E. MacClymont, William Thiers, Charles Lyman and T. U. Smith.

A programme was arranged and the various parts will now be taken up with a view to excelling if possible the show given a year ago for the Muhlenberg Hospital.

J. Parker Mason who so ably looked after the stage at that time will be asked to take charge of the coming show.

An Enjoyable Programme.

Lovers of music will miss a great treat if they do not attend the grand concert at the Y. M. C. A. Hall this evening for the benefit of the German Lutheran church. The programme will be an unusually enjoyable one and those that take part will all be experts in their lines. It will be well worth attending as no pains have been spared to make it a success.

The wife of Mr. D. Robinson, a prominent lumberman of Hartwick, N. Y., was sick with rheumatism for five months. In speaking of it, Mr. Robinson says: "Chamberlain's Pain Balm is the only thing that gave her any rest from pain. For the relief of pain it cannot be beat." Many very bad cases of rheumatism have been cured by it. For sale at 50 cents per bottle by Reynolds' Pharmacy, Park and North avenues. T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

FIRE ON A WARSHIP

Close Call for the Cruiser Cincinnati.

The Wooden Casings in Which the Fixed Ammunition Was Stored Burned Away—A Most Serious Calamity Probably Averted by the Coolness of the Officers and Crew.

Jacksonville, Fla., Dec. 12.—A special from Key West, Fla., says: Tuesday, about 2:30 p. m., smoke was discovered issuing from the coal bunkers next to the magazine on board the U. S. S. Cincinnati. The bunkers had not been opened in three months and the fire was from spontaneous combustion. When discovered the fire had so far progressed as to have the walls between the bunkers and the magazine red hot. The wooden casings in which the fixed ammunition was enclosed had been burned away. As soon as the alarm was sounded every man was at his post, the magazine was flooded, and the danger was soon over. A few moments more and the magazine would have exploded, killing every man on board and wrecking the ship. The coolness of Capt. Johnson and his officers and the discipline of the crew averted what might have been one of the most serious calamities that has ever happened on board an American man-of-war In consequence of the heavy gale no communication was had with the shore to report the accident until this morning.

PITTSBURG, MAY 27.

Place and Date of the National Prohibition Convention.

Chicago, Dec. 12.—The executive committee of the prohibition party in the United States met at the Sherman house yesterday to select the time and place for holding the national convention next year which will nominate the candidate for the presidency. Forty members, representing as many states, answered the roll call, among them being Samuel Dickie, Michigan, president; ex-Gov. St. John, Kansas; Helen M. Gougar, Indiana; Henry Clay Bascom, New York; A. A. Stevens, Pennsylvania, and Volney B. Cushing, Maine. Denver, Baltimore, Boston, Pittsburg and Cleveland were placed in nomination. The Chicago delegation withdrew from the field because it could not guarantee the payment of necessary expenses. Pittsburg was selected on the first ballot, and May 27 was the date decided on.

PRESTON EXONERATED.

Gov. Morton Dismisses the Charges Made Against Him.

Albany, Dec. 12.—Gov. Morton has dismissed the charges preferred against Charles M. Preston, state superintendent of banks, by the depositors organization of the Commercial bank of Brooklyn. Superintendent Preston's term expires in May next. He is president of the Equitable Securities company of New York city, and this company comes within the supervision of the state banking department on Jan. 1. As the law prohibits any employe of the banking department from being connected with any financial institution under the supervision of the department it is expected that Supt. Preston will resign as superintendent of banks before the end of the present month.

REMANGANAGUAS BESIEGED.

Cuban Insurgents Block the Railway at Jicotea.

Madrid, Dec. 12.—A dispatch to the Imparcial from Havana says that the insurgents derailed a freight train at Jicotea yesterday, blocking the track so that the passenger train from Santa Clara for Havana was unable to get through. The insurgents with several batteries of artillery have besieged the fort at Remanganaguas. It is reported that another filibustering expedition has landed at Cape Maysi. Maximo Gomez, the rebel leader, has arrived at Placetas.

REV. S. H. CHUBB GOES FREE.

The Charges Against the Plymouth Pastor Dismissed.

Norristown, Pa., Dec. 12.—Rev. S. H. Chubb, pastor of the United Evangelical church of Plymouth township, who was convicted in October for an alleged assault on Rachel Hiltner, a young member of his congregation, and who was subsequently granted a new trial, will never face another jury on the sensational charge, as the case has been settled by the prosecution withdrawing the charge and Mr. Chubb paying the costs.

Temperance as a University Study.

Washington, Dec. 12.—The American university has just completed an agreement with the board of counsel of the Temperance Educational association by which the latter agrees to secure and transfer to the university $250,000 on condition that there shall be started, as one of its departments, a college of scientific temperance.

Guilty of Manslaughter.

Schenectady, N. Y., Dec. 12.—Elmer Padget, who has been on trial here for the past three days for the murder of Frank Larrabee at Pattersonville on June 11 last, was last night found guilty of manslaughter in the second degree. He was sentenced to one year in the Albany penitentiary.

Heavy Sentence for Selling Grog.

Burlington, Vt., Dec. 12.—Moses Boutell, who returned Monday from a stay of 270 days in the house of correction for selling liquor, was sentenced yesterday to an added 142 days for a similar old offense.

TOO OLD TO SERVE.

Why Said Pasha Was Anxious To Leave Turkey.

London, Dec. 12.—A dispatch from Constantinople says that Said Pasha's return to his residence was contrary to the public expectance. He drove thither in the carriage of the British ambassador, accompanied by the dragoman of the British embassy. Said Pasha, in his letter to Sir Philip Currie, dwelt upon his forty-three years of public service, including five vizierates, and said that now that his health was exhausted he was unable to bear the burdens of the post that the sultan wished him to assume. His majesty had offered him a special appointment in the palace to direct important affairs of state. Unhappily his health did not allow him to do this. His purpose in going to the embassy was to escape these embarrassments and thereafter leave the country with his family. Said said that he intended to pass one night at the embassy, in which belief he wrote immediately to the grand vizier expressing the hope that his request would be favorably regarded. On the same evening the sultan sent his foreign minister and the president of the council to Sir Philip Currie and informed Said that his majesty continued to hold his former grand vizier in high favor and had entire confidence in his fidelity. While grateful to his majesty, Said was compelled to consider the intolerable intrigues of the palace and consequently felt bound to reiterate his request to leave Turkey. Despite this, the sultan on thirteen occasions sent his chamberlains and his secretary to reassure Said of his majesty's wish that he abandon his intention. The sultan, moreover, gave written assurances, for which reasons he remained five days at the embassy, despite his intention to remain only one night. But, on the one hand, his request had not met with a favorable reply, while, on the other hand, he felt obliged to attest his appreciation of the sentiments and assurances of his sovereign.

REV. DR. PULLMAN ARRESTED.

Accused of Slandering a French Actress from the Pulpit.

Bridgeport, Conn., Dec. 12.—Just before starting for the regular prayer meeting last night Rev. Dr. Joseph Pullman, pastor of the First Methodist church, was arrested in a civil suit for damages of $25,000 brought by Arthur Rehan, manager for Augustin Daly of New York, who has charge of the starring tour of Mlle. Jane May, the French pantomimist and comedienne. The allegation in the writ is that Rev. Dr. Pullman, in a sermon on Sunday, December 1, made the statement that "a low-down Parisian courtesan" had recently exhibited at the Park City theatre and made other slanderous remarks which have injured the plaintiff. The clergyman, after his arrest, went to prayer meeting, Sheriff Beck accompanying him and remaining through the services. After the meeting property bonds of $25,000 were given by fifteen members of the church and the minister was released from custody.

GREAT SHIP STRIKE OVER.

Threatened Loss of Big Contracts Forced Employers To Yield.

Glasgow, Dec. 12.—The great shipbuilding strike has been settled. The masters have agreed to grant the Clyde men a shilling a week advance immediately and another shilling advance in February. The strike has also been settled in Belfast, where the men will get a shilling advance in February. The settlement was undoubtedly brought about by the fact that both Clyde and other shipbuilding firms were in danger of losing important contracts to build foreign warships, orders for which have already been transferred to German concerns.

BUTCHERED BY APACHES.

Another Family Murdered in Arizona by the Renegade Indians.

Deming, N. M., Dec. 12.—Another murder of a family is reported from the San Simon valley in Arizona by the renegade band of Apache Indians from the San Carlos reservation, but details cannot be had. The father, mother and three children were slain on Thursday following the killing of Mr. Morrill and his daughter. The murdered family were Germans who had recently come to this section from the east for the purpose of taking up a homestead.

BARBARA AUB AGAIN.

Now She Declares Her Confession Was Not True.

New York, Dec. 12.—Barbara Aub, who confessed to Recorder Goff on Thanksgiving night that she had falsely sworn, when she testified at the trial of Walter L. S. Langerman, is said to have repudiated that confession. Her lawyer says that she now declares that she was pressed to make the confession by Miss Kellard at the Door of Hope. She further declares that her testimony at the trial was true, and that Langerman did assault her. Langerman cannot be tried again for the offense.

The President's Duck Shooting Trip.

Norfolk, Va., Dec. 12.—The storm which settled over Hatteras has abated and to-day is an ideal day for duck shooting. The plans of the president have been somewhat changed, he having decided not to leave Hatteras until to-morrow, arriving in Norfolk Saturday and reaching Washington early Monday morning.

Durrant To Die Feb. 21.

San Francisco, Dec. 12.—Judge Murphy has denied the application for a writ of probable cause in the Durrant case, and said he would sign the death warrant forthwith. The Minnie Williams case will be taken up early in January. Durrant was sentenced to be executed on February 21 next.

END OF THE COLT SUIT

Amicable Adjustment of the Trouble.

Mrs. Colt Withdraws Her Petition for Divorce—Col. Colt Says His Suit Against J. J. Van Alen Did Not Reflect Upon His Wife's Conduct in Any Way.

Providence, R. I., Dec. 12.—The Colt case was called yesterday, when Mr. Ripley, Mrs. Colt's counsel, appeared before Judge Stiness of the appellate division of the supreme court and moved for the dismissal of her petition for divorce. In Mrs. Colt's behalf, he stated that it gave him great pleasure to withdraw her petition for a separate maintenance and the charges made therein. In seconding the motion, Mr. Colwell, for Col. Colt, read the following letter addressed to him by his client: "Mrs. Colt being about to discontinue her suit against me, I desire you on my behalf to make the following statement to the court: In the action brought by me against Mr. Van Alen there was no charge made or intended to be made in any way reflecting upon Mrs. Colt, as some newspapers and individuals have construed it, or sought to construe it. I am not responsible for any such false and unjustifiable reflections, but, the suit having been so misconstrued, and not having been brought with any desire or willingness on my part to secure money damages from the defendant, I desire you to see to it that the same be discontinued forthwith and without conditions." The motions for discontinuance were then granted, the judge expressing his pleasure at the amicable conclusion arrived at. The attorneys in the case said the affair was now all over and there was nothing more to say.

HALL CAINE'S RETURN HOME.

Well Pleased with His Reception in Canada and the United States.

Liverpool, Dec. 12.—Hall Caine, the English novelist, who returned on the steamer Teutonic from his mission to the United States and Canada, relative to the copyright laws, was questioned in regard to his trip on the arrival of the vessel here. Mr. Caine expressed himself as extremely well satisfied with his reception in both the United States and the Dominion. He referred to the farewell banquet tendered to him at Ottawa, at which five ministers of the Dominion government were present, Secretary of State Montague presiding, and also spoke in appreciative terms of the hospitality shown to him by President Cleveland. In Mr. Caine's opinion, the copyright law had not appreciably affected English fiction in the United States. He said that he had seen no anti-English spirit in America, although he had found much to humble the spirit of Englishmen. He expressed a very high appreciation of the greatness of the American character.

WHITE CAPS IN WOMEN'S DRESS

A Family Shockingly Beaten Near Marietta, O.

Marietta, O., Dec. 12.—The family of Jacob F. Schaad, living near here, was whitecapped Tuesday night by three masked men dressed in women's clothes. Mrs. Schaad was dragged by the hair, struck over the head with a heavy stick, and left unconscious. Mr. Schaad and his son were beaten with clubs in a horrible manner. The daughter, in trying to aid her mother, was knocked down and seriously hurt. After the family had been taken from the house, several other persons assisted in the assault. The outrage is supposed to have been the result of a road case of long standing.

Call Extended to Rev. Dr. Shaw

Boston, Dec. 12.—The First Reformed Presbyterian church of Cambridge has extended a call to Rev. S. C. Shaw, Ph. D., to become its pastor.

Diphtheria

Less Fatal.

If the patient's strength can be maintained, and the great vital centres of the body "kept up" to the performance of their natural functions, they will thus dispel the disease germs that impregnate the entire body, and if sufficient vitality is experienced, the fatality of this dreaded disease is lessened a hundred-fold.

Bovinine

that greatest raw food, is a wonderful creator of new flesh and nerve tissue, is indispensible in the treatment of this malady, as it gives strength to the patient with the least effort on the part of the digestive organs, and in addition, being itself a germicide, it antidotes the existing microbes of the disease. The ease with which it can be taken when the lesions of the throat preclude the use of other foods, makes it an additional necessity for the sufferer's recovery.

Delicate Dress Goods,

Some gowns are so dainty in the weave, so delicate in tint, that they seem to soil by being look at—one or two wearings making them unpresentable—not useless. We make a specialty of cleaning fine fabrics—the more delicate the material, the better the results. Sometimes an accident will ruin a gown, without injuring the texture. We dye them then, sometimes we get a prettier effect than the original color. Fine goods stand re-dying. The finer the material, the better the new color. We charge so little for cleaning or dyeing, that even if you are in doubt as to the results, it's worth while to experiment.

SUNK BY THE GERMANIC

The Cumbrae Run Down Off the English Coast.

Great Excitement on Board the Ill-fated Vessel—All on Board Transferred by Belts, Ropes and Ladders to the White Star Liner's Deck—Accident Due to Fog.

Liverpool, Dec. 12.—The White Star line steamer Germanic, Capt. McKinstry, which sailed hence yesterday for New York, came into collision shortly after leaving the Mersey with the Glasgow steamer Cumbrae, inward bound for Liverpool. The Cumbrae was sunk and the Germanic's bows were stove. Fortunately the accident resulted in no loss of life. The Germanic rescued the passengers and crew of the wrecked vessel and returned to this port. A dense fog prevailed at the time of the collision. Among the passengers on the Germanic were Lord Dunraven and members of John Hare's company, including Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Hare and daughter-in-law; Hon. F. G. Curzon and wife. Mrs. Curzon is the actress Ellice Jeffreys.

Details of the Disaster.

The following particulars of the accident have been received: The Germanic left her quay under an easy head of steam. The weather at the time was very thick and every precaution was taken to avoid an accident. Two seasmen were stationed in the crow's-nest in addition to the ordinary lookout. After about eight miles of slow steaming, warning whistles being sounded meantime at short intervals, the vessel reached Crosby channel. By this time the fog had become so intense as to hide everything from view. Suddenly a whistle sounded close by and the Germanic promptly responded. It was too late, however, to avoid a collision and the White Star liner struck the Cumbrae a slanting blow between the forecastle and the forehatch. The Germanic's bow penetrated the side of the Cumbrae to a depth of fourteen feet. If the Germanic had been under more way she would doubtless have cut the smaller vessel completely in two. On the Cumbrae's decks a scene of terror ensued. There were twenty-eight passengers on the vessel, including a number of women and children, who rushed to and fro shrieking in their terror or fell on their knees and prayed aloud to be saved. On the Germanic also there was much excitement, all the passengers rushing on deck to ascertain what had happened.

All on Board Rescued.

The shock of the collision was not severe enough, however, to cause great alarm, and the excitement on the big liner soon subsided. Capt. McKinstry at once ordered sufficient way to be maintained to keep the bows of the Germanic in the hole made in the Cumbrae's side, and officers and men calmly and actively proceeded to the work of rescue. Belts, ropes and ladders were thrown upon the Cumbrae's decks, and within a minute all of the passengers and crew of the doomed vessel had either scrambled or been hauled upon the Germanic's decks. One passenger was slightly injured while being hauled on board, and a woman fell overboard, but was instantly rescued by a boat from the Germanic, which had been previously lowered. When all were safe the Germanic's engines were reversed and the vessels separated. The Cumbrae immediately lurched and began to settle. Seventeen of the Cumbrae's crew and a dozen of the Germanic's men entered a boat with the intention of boarding the Cumbrae in order to draw her fires to prevent an explosion and to try to save property. They rowed within fifty yards of the sinking vessel, when she suddenly plunged forward and went down.

The Germanic Docked.

Immediately after the collision occurred the Germanic's watertight compartments were closed and every precaution to secure the safety of the vessel was taken. After the rescue of those on board the Cumbrae an examination of the Germanic was made. It showed that twenty feet of the vessel's bows above the water line were damaged and the captain decided to return to port. Subsequently the Germanic anchored off Egremont, where the passengers of both the Germanic and Cumbrae were embarked on tugs and landed at Liverpool, where they were conveyed to hotels. The passengers of the Germanic have been given the option of proceeding for New York on the Umbria on December 14 or on the Teutonic on the 18th. A gang of men has been sent to coal and prepare the Adriatic, which is in dock, to enable her to sail to-day if necessary. Nothing has been definitely arranged. It is understood that the mails will be taken by the Umbria in any event. The Germanic was docked this morning.

"Saved from the Sea."

The Cumbrae foundered in comparatively shallow water. The passengers and crew of the wrecked vessel lost everything. Among the passengers on the Cumbrae were the members of a provincial theatrical company, who were going to Birkenhead to perform the play "Saved from the Sea."

GALE AT NANTUCKET.

Snow Falling and the Wind Blowing Fifty Miles an Hour.

Nantucket, Mass., Dec. 12.—At sunrise the easterly gale that has kept up a steady fifty-mile clip all yesterday and last night had not abated. Snow is falling, and last night was a wild one. The government telephone line has been prostrated, and the Nantucket Central railroad tracks are washed out.

MEDICAL STUDENT ARRESTED.

Accused of Complicity in the Grave Robbery at Norwich, Vt.

Hanover, N. H., Dec. 12.—Hanover is greatly excited over the arrest of a medical student under suspicion of being connected with the recent grave robbery at Norwich, Vt. J. P. Gifford of East Randolph, Vt., was taken into custody at Norwich. The evening before the robbery the Alpha Delta Phi fraternity held a banquet at Newton inn, Norwich, and Gifford, with S. D. Snow and Jack O'Donnell, acted as waiters. Their companies left for Hanover at 1:45 by team, but they started on foot. At 3 a. m. O'Donnell returned to the hotel for a team to take his companions home. A long black express wagon was given him. He was gone about an hour, and on his return the horse was quite wet. The tailboard of the carriage was down and the blanket had been used for something. After carrying his companions home, Jack returned the team and spent the night at Newton inn. The horse is a large animal, and a comparison of the hoofs with the prints in the snow is said to agree perfectly; also the width of the carriage wheels, while the trail across the snow where the dead body was dragged reveals the fact that three men participated in the robbery. Gifford denies all guilt of the crime. Another sequel to the affair is that Harriet, the eldest daughter of Mr. Murdock, about 20 years of age, on being notified of the theft of her father's body Monday, went into a swoon and at last accounts she was still unconscious. State Attorney Enright found the stolen body of Murdock in Hanover and it was again buried last night in the family lot in Norwich, Vt. The other two suspects have so far evaded the officers.

ACCUSES THE DETECTIVE.

Mrs. Howell, on Trial for Murder, Causes the Arrest of Dupignac.

Wellsboro, Pa., Dec. 12.—A sensation was caused in the Howell murder trial yesterday when it became known that Mrs. Howell had made an "information" against Dupignac, the New York detective who worked up the case against her, charging him with having made improper proposals to her in the district-attorney's office here last August. Dupignac was arrested, and promptly gave bail.

Revised Election Returns in Boston

Boston, Dec. 12.—Revised figures of the vote for school committee in Tuesday's election show the election of but two democrats. The other six members were on the republican committee of one hundred and independent woman voters' tickets. The majority in favor of license was 15,486, against 11,692 last year.

Orphan Asylum Burned.

Milwaukee, Wis., Dec. 12.—A large fire raged last night in the suburb of St. Francis. The St. Amelians orphan asylum was completely destroyed and the Catholic seminary was damaged. The wind was blowing a gale. As there was no fire apparatus, a bucket brigade was formed.

Steamers Overdue.

Halifax, Dec. 12.—The steamer Scotsman of the Dominion line, a weekly mail boat, due here last Monday, has not yet arrived. It is believed that she encountered a big storm and has laid up. The steamer Tritonia of the Donaldson line, from Glasgow, is also overdue.

Dinner to Retiring Judges.

Albany, Dec. 12.—The judges of the court of appeals will give a dinner next Thursday night at the Fort Orange club to their retiring associates, Judges Finch and Peckham. The governor has received and accepted an invitation to attend.

Raided by Dervishes.

Cairo, Dec. 12.—A band of dervishes, mounted on camels, has raided, plundered and partly burned Anendan, north of Wady Halfa. A detachment of cavalry has been sent in pursuit.

Schooner and Crew Probably Lost.

San Francisco, Dec. 12.—The bark Theobald, Captain Swan, brings news of the probable loss of the schooner Elwood with all hands

NO "CORNER" IN ROOMS

St. Louis Hotel Men Preparing for June 16.

No One Candidate Will Be Allowed To Monopolize a Hotel—Outside Orders for Accommodations Pouring In—Reed, McKinley, Alger and Allison Engage Quarters.

St. Louis, Dec. 12.—Local enthusiasm over the capture of the republican national convention has not abated. The deluge of outside orders for hotel accommodations, which began immediately upon the committees decision, still continues. So large were some of the demands that an informal meeting of hotel proprietors was held last night and a decision reached that no one candidate will be allowed to monopolize a hotel. The chief backer and friend of one of the foremost candidates for president wired an order last night reserving forty of the best rooms in a large hotel. It was learned on investigation that orders in proportion from the same source were received at other hotels. It was then decided by the hotel men that no individual should be allowed to "corner" accommodations for the purpose of entertaining convention shouters. There are ample accommodations in the principal hotels for 10,000 people, while the minor hotels and lodging houses can comfortably house seven times that number. The rates will not be raised during the convention. Apartments have been secured at the Southern hotel by Reed, McKinley and Alger, while Allison is booked at the Lindell.

Indiana for Harrison.

Anderson, Ind., Dec. 12.—Winfred T. Durbin, understood to be one of ex-President Harrison's personal representatives, left last night for St. Louis. He will contract for Indiana's delegation headquarters. Durbin said to a United Press reporter that Indiana would be for Harrison first, last and all the time, and that he was confident of the ex-president's success.

KNOCKS DOWN A PICK-POCKET.

Gov. Bradley's First Act After Taking the Oath of Office.

Frankfort, Ky., Dec. 12.—The first act of Gov. Bradley after he had taken the oath of office was to knock down a pick-pocket. Chief Justice Pryor had just finished his formula and extended his hand to the governor to congratulate him when the governor saw a pick-pocket put his hand in the chief justice's vest pocket. He landed a heavy blow in the thief's face which knocked him down, but in the crush the thief managed to escape.

THE CHOLERA IN RUSSIA.

Hundreds of Cases and 190 Deaths at Last Accounts.

St. Petersburg, Dec. 12.—In this city between Nov. 30 and Dec. 7 there were seventy-three cases of cholera and forty-six deaths from that disease. In the government of Volhynia from Nov. 17 to Nov. 23 there were 259 cases of cholera and ninety-four deaths. In the government of Kiev during the same period there were 101 cases of cholera and thirty-four deaths. In the Orel government from Nov. 3 to Nov. 30 there were 16 deaths from cholera.

No Cause of Action.

Utica, N. Y., Dec. 12.—At Herkimer the jury in the case of James W. Cramer, chief of police of Dolgeville, against the Utica Observer, an action for libel growing out of the newspaper's account of gross immoralities in Dolgeville, found a verdict of "no cause of action."

Heavy Snow Storm in Ohio.

Toledo, O., Dec. 12.—Northwestern Ohio is this morning in the grasp of the worst snowstorm of the year. Already ten inches of snow has fallen and the storm is increasing in force. All trains are behind time and traffic in the city is greatly hindered.

Found Dead in a Baltimore Hotel.

Baltimore, Dec. 12.—Charles H. Hinkel, 30 years old, of York, Pa., was found unconscious in his room in the St. Charles hotel last night and died before medical aid could reach him. An overdose of chloral and morphine caused his death. Mr. Hinkel was a lawyer.

Asleep for Five Days.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Dec. 12.—Charles R. Lee, a resident of Bloomsburg, 69 years old, became very sleepy on Saturday last and concluded to take a nap. He has been in what appears to be a perfectly natural sleep ever since that time and shows no signs of awakening.

Favors Bradley for President.

Richmond, Ky., Dec. 12.—Col. J. W. Caperton, president of the Richmond National bank of this city, will be a delegate to the republican national convention from this, the eighth, congressional district. He favors Bradley for president.

Mrs. Cleveland at the Theatre.

Washington, Dec. 12.—Mrs. Cleveland and Secretary of State Olney, with several friends, occupied a box at the National theatre last evening and greatly enjoyed the performance of Francis Wilson in his opera, "The Chieftain."

Cheese Factory Burned.

Oswego, N. Y., Dec. 12.—The Pennellville cheese factory at Pennellville, this county, was burned last night, together with 200 boxes of cheese.

Advertisers, Attention.

Changes of advertisements for The Daily Press must be received not later than 9:30 o'clock in the morning to ensure insertion the same day.

There are a few things that need reforming in Plainfield, but none half so much as the cider joints.

Barbara Aub confessed and now she retracts. She must either be insane or the most remarkable criminal the courts have dealt with in years.

Elizabeth people are going to see what effect mass meetings will have on bracing city officials up to a more rigid enforcement of the excise laws.

Some admiring friends of Dr. Parkhurst have presented him with a memorial bell. How foolish. Just as though no one would know he was around unless they heard the tinkle.

Literally speaking, the evidence which the borough Board of Health will take before the court to procure the injunctions to stop the pullution of Green brook, will be highly colored. There is where the truth of it lies.

So there are two A. P. A.'s. One is the notorious American Protective Association, which took part in the Boston election, and came out in the company of the under-dog. The other is the American Purity Alliance, that is now session in the Hub. Mr. Gerry, of this city, and his friends would do well to avoid a designation that tends to connect them with an association that is discredited in the eyes of the American people.—Evening Sun.

A PLACE TO WORSHIP IN.

A New Chapel at Mt. Pleasant to Be Built.

Today the cellar will be started for the new chapel to be built at Mt. Pleasant, about two miles from Plainfield on the road to Rahway.

The ground for the chapel has been given by Mr. D. W. DeForest, and it will be placed between his residence and the old school house, which has sheltered the Sunday School and other religious gatherings so long.

The chapel services are union in in character. Here all denominations join to raise the standard of Christ.

Many friends in Plainfield have contributed toward this enterprise, most of whom have long been interested in this out-post. C. H. Smith has furnished the plans and will superintend the building, and the committee who have the building in charge and friends who have seen the plans, wonder at so much being obtained for the price. It is expected that the chapel will be completed by spring.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

—An effort will be made to have the first and second New Jersey Brigade hold their re-union in this city next April. They number altogether about 500. The Grand Army men of this city are interesting themselves in the matter.

Great Reduction in Time to California.

Once more the Northwestern Line has reduced the time of its trans-continental trains, and the journey from Chicago to California via this popular route is now made in the marvelously short time of three days. Palace drawing-room sleeping cars leave Chicago daily, and run through to San Francisco and Los Angeles, without change, and all meals en route are served in dining cars. Daily tourist sleeping car service is also maintained by this line between Chicago and San Francisco and Los Angeles, completely equipped berths in upholstered tourist sleepers being furnished at a cost of only $6 each from Chicago to the Pacific Coast. Through trains leave Chicago for California at six p. m. and 10.30 p. m. daily, after arrival of trains of connecting lines from the east and south. For detailed information concerning rates, routes, etc., apply to ticket agents of connecting lines or address: H. A. Gross, G. E. P. A., 423 Broadway, New York, or T. P. Vaille, S. E. P. A., 112 South Fourth street, Philadelphia, Pa. tf.

The Parks go to Westfield tomorrow night.

The Cranfords and Westfields broke even on the Cranford's alleys Tuesday night.

A five man team from the Y. M. C. A., will bowl against a similar team from the Crescent Wheelmen at the alleys of the latter this evening.

A second bowling team is being organized among the Crescent Wheelmen to play the first team. A game will be arranged for the first of next week.

The Roselle bowling team will visit the Country Club alleys this evening to bowl the postponed game of Dec. 3d. If the Roselles win both games they will tie the Park club for first place.

The next game in the Central Journal Bowling League will be rolled at Elizabeth next Wednesday between the Elizabeth Athletic Club and the Cranford teams. The Crescent Wheelmen will bowl again on January 7th, at Cranford.

The Plainfield Catholic Club are great bowlers and a more exciting game has not been rolled in this city this season than the one on their alleys last evening with the Orange Valley team.

It was the second game for the home team in the Diocesian Union two ball tournament. Previous to the game they indulged in the usual practice and the way they knocked the pins gave evidence that something would have to drop in the contest. The visitors did not show up well in practice, but that was no criterion, for they had the reputation of being old-timers.

The home team started off rather poorly, and the visitors beat them on the first frame, and from that time till the eighth frame the score was close. The rooters for both sides yelled themselves hoarse until they could hardly talk, but the exciting time came in the ninth frame when the two teams tied the score, 1139. The home team then began to forge ahead, leaving their opponents in grave doubt of winning. The climax arrived, however, when Revell of the P. C. C., made three strikes on the wind up. The crowd screamed until they couldnt scream any more, and such howling, why the home team made a finish that fairly set the crowd wild. At the close it was found that the P. C. C. had won the game by fifty seven pins, and after three cheers for each side all was over.

Below will be found the score:

The Associated Cycling Clubs of New Jersey will have two road races next summer, open to all riders, at distances of ten and twenty-five miles.

GOLF.

Although golf is a game little understood by the masses in this or any other country. Is is, notwithstanding, played more generally than would at first be supposed. Reports show that the golf season has been opened in India, by matches at Singapore and Bombay.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh That Contain Mercury.

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces, such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. WINTER SPORTS.

Now that the skating season has opened in earnest, hockey becomes the popular out-of-door sport. The young athletics of the High School, who are already noted for their progressiveness, are preparing to put a team on the ice. George Proctor Smith is manager of the team, and he has begun to lookout for good players. There is ample material in the school to pick from and there promises to be one of the best teams organized that the High School has seen for a number of years. Besides Smith, there is Herbert Richardson, Sydney R. Titsworth, Wilbur F. Cornwell, Fred Squires, Volney F. Green, Raymond Carroll, William Buell and a number of other good players. Negotiations are being made with teams from Westfield, Rutgers and Stevens Preparatory schools to arrange a series of games for the winter.

BASKET BALL.

Physical Instructor MacPhie, of the Y. M. C. A., has received a challenge for a game from the basket ball team of the Paterson Y. M. C. A. The game will probably be played on Christmas night.

The Y. M. C. A. will have open house on New Year's Day, while in the evening a basket ball game has been arranged between the High School and Leal's School teams. The game will begin at 9 o'clock.

The next game for the Plainfield Y. M. C. A. basket ball championship will be played Thursday between the High School team and the Spartans. A lively game may be looked for, as both teams are very strong, but the High School boys have the advantage of experience.

Dunellen.

Miss Rupell is visiting her sister, Mrs. Walter Vliet.

The Misses Fisher are entertaining company from Newark.

Miss Irene Day, of New Market, has returned from a visit with friends at Jersey City.

Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Sutphen, of Prospect avenue, have been entertaining company from out of town.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Stites, of Mountain avenue, have been entertaining their daughter from Metuchen.

Miss Nellie Doyle, of Somerville, who has been visiting friends on North avenue, has returned home.

Harry Pennroyer, who has been visiting the family of Poole Voorhees, of Greenbrook, has returned home to Newark.

Union services were held in the Baptist church at New Market Wednesday evening, at which Rev. F. Fletcher preached.

Mr. and Mrs. Oakley, of New Brunswick, spent Sunday as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Swackhamer, of Church street.

The Baptist Sunday-school have changed their Sunday-school hour from 9:30 to 10 o'clock, and church services at eleven o'clock.

Miss Florence Maxwell, formerly of this place, has returned from her visit among friends in Pennsylvania, and is visiting her cousin in Plainfield.

Many people from Plainfield and Bound Brook are enjoying the skating on New Market pond, as the ice is over four inches thick and also very tough.

Up To Date.

In the spring the young man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of love.
And at Chrristmas times it tends to that all other things above.
And he's sure to find whate'er he need to fit his Christmas yearn
If to Collier's, 168 Park avenue, stock of novel gifts he'll take a timely turn.

Lawyer Runyon Appointed.

The Supreme Court of New York has appointed Lawyer Harry C. Runyon a commissioner to take testimony in the forgery case of J. A. Waldron against J. K. VanNest, better known as "Count" VanNest. Mr. Runyon will receive his commission in a few days.

Edward Mundy, in the employ of Mrs. Smalley at her meat market on Somerset street, cut his finger quite badly yesterday afternoon while at work in the shop. He called on Dr. Carman and had the finger dressed.

—A comedy "Breaking His Bones" will be presented at Saenger and Turner hall this evening by the young men of St. Joseph's church. A dance will be enjoyed after the play.

—The contract for building the lateral sewer in Cranford, was awarded to Fell & Costa, of Orange, their bid of $14,550.75 being the lowest. Owing to the lateness of the season, and the fact that the two main branch sewers are unfinished, but little if any work will be done on the laterals until spring.

THEATRICAL.

The picturesque gypsy maidens, Aranka, Roszika and Birike have transferred their passionate Romany love songs and wierd dances of the caravan to Proctor's Theater, 23d street, where the Flying Dillons make their life or death mid-air leaps, Les Edorardos depict with song and dance the grotesquerie of the Parsian boulevard, and other entertainers of repute keep the vaudeville wheel spinning briskly. There are Harry Crandall, the German comedian; Cora Routt, who sings piqant songs and looks as if butter would not melt in he mouth; J. Edgar Johnson, a descriptive baritone with living picture illustrations; and Elsie Adair, the dainty dancer.

Nothing Like It.

Time brings many changes, but the climate of California, "The Italy of America," and the attractions of the many famous health and pleasure resorts, are the same yesterday, today and forever.

Tourists never will tire of speaking in praise of the soft and balmy air, the profusion of flowers, the magnificent display of fruits, the luxury of seabathing and the beautiful walks and drives.

Then, too, it must be conceded that with such excellent equipment, consisting of Reclining Chair Cars, Pullman Palace Sleepers and Pullman Dining Cars, all heated by steam and lighted with Pintsch Light, the Union Pacific, "The Overland Route," is the tourists favorite. Ask your agent for tickets via this route.

PRACTICAL CO-OPERATION.

Assets of the New Jersey Building Associations.

With twenty-six building and loan associations "derelict" to the State Labor Bureau, using their previous year's data, the net assets of the 301 New Jersey associations a year in existence on October 31, 1895, amount to $38,882,000.

There were 317 associations in operation, including the "Granite State," a foreign concern, and new ones not a year in existence. Taking into consideration the delinquents, probably $39,000,000 net assets would be about the total sum.

Don't Go to New York

Lecture on Italy.

At the meeting of the Brotherhood of Holy Cross church last evening routine business was transacted, after which a social time was enjoyed and the members decided to have an illustrated lecture on "Picturesque Italy" early in January. It will be given by Rev. T. Logan Murphy. Other entertainments will be given during the winter.

—The members of the Parliamentary Club met in the Y. M. C. A. building this morning and decided to limit the membership to fifty. The matter of electing a president was laid over till the next meeting.

NEY AN AMERICAN.

A CLAIM THAT THE FAMOUS MARSHAL WAS BORN IN GEORGIA.

He Attended School In His Native Town of Sunbury, and It Was One of His Old Schoolmates Who Recognized Him as He Rode With Napoleon In Paris.

About a year ago, when I was in Camp Anderson serving as sergeant major of the Third squadron of the Fifth regiment of cavalry, the drill call was sounded and the squadron marched out on the field. The major commanding them gave the order, "Captains, take charge of your companies and drill them," and as I had nothing to do, in company with Lieutenant A. S. Way, adjutant of the squadron, I lay down on the grass in the shade of a tree and between the puffs from a fragrant Havana he told the following story as I tell it to you:

Over 100 years ago, down on the coast of Liberty county, Georgia had a city of 2,000 or 3,000 inhabitants. Situated on a high bluff amid the grand old oaks festooned with waving fringes of the Spanish moss lay old Sunbury, now naught but a pile of decayed ruins. In the distance across the harbor, where men-of-war might lay at anchor, St. Catherine's rose blue and misty, and beyond was the great void of trackless ocean. Near by was a fort with its iron mounted war dogs and pacing sentries, while over all shone the bright, warm sun of the semitropics. Here lived, loved and died the forefathers of many of Liberty's many citizens and many who oftimes sedately paced the quaint old streets now lie sleeping 'neath the waving trees of the little cemetery near by.

The town was the birthplace of many noted men, but none more so than one of the brothers Rudolph, whose name rung through the world as one of France's greatest marshals—Ney.

Born in Sunbury, of wealthy and aristocratic parents, he attended the Sunbury institute of Dr. McQuire, where into him were instilled the rudiments of the education which he afterward went to France to complete.

A few years passed and young Rudolph again visited his American home, a Frenchman in everything but birth. His manners were those of the Parisian, and the language of the French fell far more fluently from his lips than that of his native land. Sunbury, quiet and isolated, after the gay life of the French capital was too dull, and one day, as the sun was glimmering over the sound, young Rudolph left home to visit Florida, then the land of the Spaniard.

Months passed, and no word was heard of him. The months passed into years, and still the fate of the young man was unknown, but soon an incident occurred which threw much light on the subject. A native of old Sunbury visited Paris at the time Napoleon was at the zenith of his power and glory and chanced to be on the street one day when the emperor, accompanied by his magnificent train, passed. Among the followers, clad in all the panoply of war and rich materials of his high office, rode Ney, Napoleon's greatest marshal.

The gentleman from old Liberty recognized him as his old playmate, Rudolph, and starting forward exclaimed, "Why that's Rudolph!" As the familiar name in language struck the ear of Ney he quickly turned his head, but rode on with a face as immovable as a statue.

Soon an aid presented himself to the Georgian, and saluting announced that Marshal Ney wished to see the gentleman at his headquarters, and under the guidance of the officer the gentleman soon found himself alone with the man before whom armies had trembled. Ney fixed on him a keen, scrutinizing glance and in the language of the French said, "Why did you call me Rudolph on the street today?" "Because you are he," answered the American. A moment's thought and Ney asked, "How do you know I am he?" "Why, because I knew you as a boy in old Sunbury, in Georgia, where we used to play together and went to school to Dr. McQuire."

"Yes," said Ney, "I am Rudolph, but never let that name again pass your lips, for its price would be my head. To Napoleon I am a Frenchman. Rudolph never lived. Go and never breathe that name again."

Time went by, and this same gentleman visited Paris again. It was at the second capitulation, and Ney, stripped of his glory and power, lay in prison. His sentence came, and he was sentenced to die the death of a traitor by having his head severed at the block. When he heard the verdict, he asked that three requests might be granted him, and after due consideration they were allowed. They were, first, that as he had always been a soldier he might die a soldier's death; second, that he would not be shot in the face; third, that as he had commanded the most famous armies of the world so might he command the squad who were to execute him.

Two days afterward, Dec. 7, 1815, the gentleman from Sunbury was strolling in the Luxembourg when his attention was attracted by a rapidly approaching file of soldiers, carrying with them a prisoner. As they halted and the condemned took his place against the gray, blank wall he raised his head, and the American recognized the playmate of his youth, Rudolph—to the French, Ney.

Ney drew himself proudly erect, and glancing over the small crowd which had gathered recognized his old Sunbury friend and gave him a smile of recognition, then, turning to the soldiers, in a clear voice in the English language, gave the command: "Ready! Aim! Fire!" The soldiers stirred not a muscle, and then Ney gave the command in French, at which the rifles cracked.

Marshal Ney-Rudolph was no more. The soldiers rapidly returned to the city, and Ney lay on the frozen ground, face downward, with one hand above his head and his military cloak around him. So perished one of Georgia's sons, for he was one despite history's contradiction.—Albert D. Akin in Jesup Sentinel.

Russians Are Economical.

The Russian workman spends very little for food, lodging and dress as compared with the foreign artisan. Coming from the village, he is very modest in his demands. His food is very simple, but it is abundant and answers to his taste. In Moscow, for example, the board of a workman amounts to not more than 10 shillings per month.

Not So Brave.

"Dear me," said Mrs. Wickwire, looking up from her paper, "but women are getting brave nowadays!"

"Brave?" echoed Mr. Wickwire.

"Yes; here is a story about a woman who shot a mouse. She—pshaw, I read it wrong! It was only a moose!"—Indianapolis Journal.

SCOTCH SUPERSTITIONS.

Some of the Pranks the Fairies Are Believed to Have Played.

There still lingers a widespread belief in the north of Scotland that the "fair folk," or "gweed neebors," as the fairies are called, have a craving for human milk, and during the first days of convalescence a mother must be zealously guarded lest one of the "wee people" come and rob the child of its nourishment. Sometimes they succeed in carrying off a mother. Tradition tells of the wife of a farmer who was spirited to the palace of the fairies in a large cave on a remote part of the Caithness coast. Notwithstanding the kindness of the fair folk the woman pined for her home and offered as ransom the finest milk cow in her gweed man's byre. She was permitted to return to the homestead, and the cow was led to the fairy hillock. It disappeared, but later returned eel and weak. On occasions, too, the child is stolen, for have not the fairies once in every seven years to pay "the teind to hell?" They then endeavor to sacrifice a human babe rather than one of their own number.

A north country fisher had a fine child. One evening a beggar woman entered the hut and went up to the cradle to gaze into the eyes of the babe. From that time good health left it, a strange look came into its face, and the mother was troubled. An old man begging for food passed that way. When he caught sight of the child, he cried: "That's nae a bairn. It's an image, and the gweed folk has stoun his speerit." Thereupon he set to work to recall the fisher's bairn. A peat fire was heaped high on the hearth and a black hen held over it at such a distance that it was singed and not killed. After some struggling the hen escaped up the lum. A few moments elapsed, and then the parents were gladdened by the sight of a happy expression once more on the child's face. It throve from that day forward.—Scottish Review.

Unknown Macedonia.

Macedonia is practically as unknown to the general public as the great Unshapen Land in which dwelt the three Gray sisters who helped Perseus on his errand of death. Even the well informed politician who could comfortably pick his way through central Africa is very often unable to tell the difference between a Pomak and a Zinzar, a Yooryk and an Arnaut or to say whether they are fruits, implements or peoples. Not only is the geography of the country a highly complicated and unsatisfactory study, seeing that nearly every district, river, lake and town is known by at least two wholly different names, the one Turkish and the other Slavonian, Greek or Albanian, both of which are occasionally omitted from the few maps we possess, but the ethnography is more bewildering than a Chinese puzzle, and no man born of woman can ever hope to solve the problems it offers in a way that will satisfy the peoples of eastern Europe. In spite of a railway net of about 600 miles, communications with the interior are not merely primitive and painful, but highly dangerous. It is practically impossible to visit any of the outlying and many of the main districts without an escort of Turkish zaptiehs, and sometimes even a few Arnaut cutthroats, as a homeopathic precaution over and above. There are places in Macedonia, especially in the country between the river Vardar, on the one side, and the Drin and Morava on the other, which have been untrodden by European feet since the days when warlike Samuel was king, about 900 years ago.—Contemporary Review.

A Freak of Nature.

The most wonderful piece of natural sculpture in the world may be seen by any visitor to the Cape Verde islands. This specimen of natural art work is without doubt the most colossal and marvelous freak known to the geologists and geographers. San Vicente is the principal town of the islands. As the ship enters the harbor of the above named place one sees a bold ridge of dark volcanic rocks lying in the distance. The crest of this ridge forms an exact likeness of Washington, the figure lying apparently face upward, as if in sleep. The large, bold features, the backward wave of the hair, the rotund form of the massive shoulders, and even the frills on his colonial shirt are reproduced on a scale of such magnitude and grandeur as to be absolutely startling. The fidelity of the outline is such that the freakish forms assumed by the stalactites and stalagmites in the well known natural caverns are not suitable comparisons.

This strange natural monument to the greatest of American heroes is the first object to meet the gaze of the observing sightseer as he approaches the Cape Verde islands. With the boundless ocean for its background and the tropical sky overhanging it, it is no flight of the imagination when we say that the freak forms a tableau of overpowering magnificence.—St. Louis Republic.

Cultivating Bacteria.

To the uninstructed mind it may smack of absurdity to say that at no distant day the bacteria of butter and cheese will be cultivated as we now cultivate other commercial products. A writer on this subject says: "The fermentation of cream and of cheese is already as much of an art as the fermentation of malt in the manufacture of beer. In the curing of tobacco the same activity is discovered, and the day is not far distant when commerce in high bred tobacco bacteria will be an established fact. In short, we may look forward to the day when the bacteria active in agriculture will be carefully cultivated and the bacterial herd book will be found along with those of the Jersey cow and the Norman horse." On a par with this is the sterilization of products, which process is necessary before the thoroughbred bacteria is introduced.—New York Ledger.

Just the Night.

Young Husband (who meets his wife in the street)—Jennie, dear, I know you have been silently grieved and pained a long time on account of my absence from home at the club every evening. I am going to turn over a new leaf, and I am going to begin tonight.

Young Wife—Oh, Edwin, you don't know how happy you've made me! Brother Jack wants me to go to the theater with him tonight, and you can take care of the baby. So goodby.—Boston Courier.

Her Dilemma.

Young Matron—Why so pensive, dear?

Angelina—I'm desperate! Will adores me in pale pink, while Max says I'm an angel in blue. I can't have but one gown, so you see my whole future depends on the color I select. It is sending me crazy!—London Tit-Bits.

Imp once meant a child. Shakespeare, speaking of the children in the tower, calls them imps. Jeremy Taylor, in one of his sermons, speaks of "the beautiful imps that sang hosannas to the Saviour in the temple."

Mr. J. T. Ashby Says His Improved Homoepathic Remedies Are Worth More Than the Whole Medical Faculty.

James T. Ashby, Petersburg, Va., says "An aged friend of mine had rheumatism for many years, and could get to his place of business only by the aid of a cane. He had tried various remedies and numerous doctors without benefit. He finally bought a 25c. bottle of MUNYON'S RHEUMATISM CURE. Three days afterward I saw him without his cane, and inquired how he came to be walking without his crutch. His answer was to take out the half bottle of MUNYON'S RHEUMATISM CURE still remaining, with the remark that he 'would not give the rest of these pellets for the whole medical faculty.' As for my own case, I suffered for years with a torpid liver. Colomel and other strong drugs only gave relief for a few days. One bottle of MUNYON'S LIVER CURE acted like magic. I consider myself entirely free from my old malarial trouble, feel spry and active, with no pains in the back, as formerly, and, above all, I am cured of awful sore boils, which had tormented me for four years as the result of the sluggish liver.

The Whippoorwill's Call.

By AUGUSTA LARNED.

[Copyright, 1894, by American Press Association.]

Paul muttered a very bad word deep down in his throat, one of the few he had ever used. "Keep your dirty money," he cried. "If you offered it to me, I would throw it back in your face." And he rushed out of the kitchen with head lowered like a young bull and banged the door behind him so that it shook the whole house.

"Keep your dirty money," he cried.

"Why, the fellow is jealous, as I live," laughed Arthur, with exasperating pleasantness. "It's a very bad attack of the green eyed monster. Rather a low lived fellow, I should say, little Elsie, foul of mouth and violent. I think we are well rid of him." It tickled Hapgood delightfully to think he had made the fellow furious by his little attentions to Elsie. He saw the girl's distress of mind plainly enough and how she would have rushed after Paul to the barn had she found a chance, but he was adroit to prevent such an escapade. He kept her constantly engaged in conversation, or at least he talked most brilliantly while Elsie remained dumb. There was dinner to get, and Miss Prissy rang her bell just then to summon Elsie for the purpose of sending an important message to Mr. Hapgood. The sisters presented their compliments to Arthur and begged him to do them the honor to take a dish of tea with them that afternoon at 4 o'clock. Hapgood accepted the invitation in the same polite terms, but still he remained close to Elsie's side while she cooked the dinner, preparing vegetables and broiling meat. She felt she was being watched as a cat watches a mouse, and at last her nerves gave way. She approached the young man, with her face in a crimson glow, and holding a long handled iron spoon.

"Mr. Hapgood," said she firmly, "do go out and take a stroll around the place or take a seat in the sitting room and amuse yourself with a book. You will find Uncle Si's library in there. I can't cook while people are looking on, and you will oblige me."

"My dear Elsie," he said in his bland, cheering way, "I am just in love with this old kitchen, and you would be too cruel and unkind to drive me away. I am a bit of an antiquarian, as I told you, and those old smoke stained beams, the uneven floor, the settle in the chimney nook, the old crane and pothooks, the high clock in the corner, the oak dresser and the braided mats are delightful, all in a perfectly harmonious tone. I shall preserve them just as they are when I remodel the house. And that room where the ancient ladies live is of a fine old colonial style. With a few alterations it will make a pretty library. The other portions of the house will of course have to be torn down."

Every word of this speech seemed to stick a sharp needle into Elsie's heart. She was very angry and would gladly have thrown the long handled spoon at Arthur Hapgood's nicely brushed head.

"Well," she said spitefully, "if you will stay here when I have requested you to go away, your dinner will not be fit to eat."

"I will risk the dinner, Elsie," he said, looking at her with arch tenderness.

CHAPTER III.

Elsie rang the dinner bell from the back porch vigorously, but Paul was deaf to the sound. He was sitting in a state of desperate gloom among his turtles and rabbits and squirrels, while the light came in furtively through the one small window curtained with cobwebs and touched his bowed head. Though the tame bobolink sang sweetly in his cage and a white pigeon flew down from the beams overhead and perched on his shoulder, their friend and lover could not be consoled. He sat crouched on Uncle Si's old workbench, with his knees drawn up and his head bowed on his hands, staring vigorously at nothing.

Paul was like a careless child who had always lived in a happy dream among kind and friendly people and was awakened by a rude shake of the shoulder to face those terrible things called the realities of life. He was a simple fellow, with a sunny nature, strong and gentle, with the immense capacity for patient work with which all with a bent for the natural sciences seem endowed, slow to anger, but when his wrath was once aroused it flashed out like fire.

His hatred for Uncle Si's heir sprang partly from an instinctive perception of Hapgood's character and partly from a horribly jealous pang that shot through him for the first time and told how dear Elsie was to his heart. He had been always loving his playmate and friend, the clever little student who sat by his side the long winter evenings, drinking in all that he could teach her, with her bright, eager eyes fixed on his face, her head close to his, so nimble of wit, so teachable and good. As Uncle Si grew old and helpless they had shared together the work of the house, and the stable, and the farm. Elsie had proved as handy as a boy, willing, cheery little Elsie, and until this moment Paul had never known he loved her. It came upon him now almost as a sense of great misfortune. He did not reason; he only felt with the stinging smart of pain and trouble. Arthur Hapgood, it was plain to poor Paul, was his rival. How could any man know Elsie and not love her? And would Elsie be caught by this stranger's attractions, his fine clothes and white hands and smooth, worldly ways? How could he struggle against him, a poor, penniless, homeless fellow, with only a little knowledge in his head and infinite love and wrath in his heart?

He knew all the ways of the woods and the habits of the birds and animals that inhabited them. He could live like a fox in its hole. He cared not what he ate or where he slept, but the thought of leaving Elsie in Arthur's power was maddening to Paul.

If he could use his fist on the complacent Hapgood and tumble those fine clothes in the dirt, his generous young soul would be satisfied. It was thus sunk in the depths of despair that Elsie found the strong young fellow as she pushed open the door of the old shop with a dinner plate in her hand and admitted a broad streak of daylight. She put the plate down close beside him on the bench, and a tame squirrel that had been cuddling up inside Paul's sleeve jumped on the bench and began to smell about the bread and meat. Paul did not look up, but pushed away the food with his hand.

"I don't want anything," said he gloomily. "A morsel of that fellow's bread would choke me."

"Don't you see," said Elsie severely, drawing herself up with girlish dignity, "that you are making it a great deal harder for me? You should not think only of yourself, Paul, at such a time as this."

"As if I do," said he, raising his head quickly, with a red cloud over his forehead, and looking at her with half averted eyes. "I'll do anything you ask," he added humbly, "but be friends with him. If I could once feel my fist against his ribs, 'twould be more to me than a fortune. But if you like him, Elsie," he went on, spying on her, "I'll go slink off to the old house in Upham Range, where dad and I used to live alone with old Mel and Darkness, and leave you in peace. I won't hurt him if you tell me not to."

"No, you must not hurt him," said Elsie very decidedly. "You must let him alone, or you will get yourself into trouble. You are a ridiculous, unreasonable boy, and you ought to be ashamed of yourself."

Paul rather liked her scolding, but he glanced at her suspiciously after glowering darkly at the ground. His bright blue eyes were almost black under the knit brows.

"I can't keep my hands off him, Elsie, if he keeps dogging you about and looking at you as he does. I thought when I came in and found you together in the pantry he was going to—to kiss you."

"As if he would have dared," cried Elsie, with her eyes flaming. "He would have got a skimmerful of cream right in his face. He must learn to keep his distance, or I shall burn him with a hot iron or throw some scalding water over him."

The cloud began to clear off Paul's face.

"You mean to stay here, Elsie?"

"How can I go away just now, Paul? I have the calves and lambs and fowls unfed. I should hear them crying for me in the night wherever I might be. I think poor Uncle Si would be restless in the grave, and then old Aunt Prissy and Aunt Hetty. I must stay and wait on them as long as they need me. I know by what he says it won't be long before he turns them adrift, for he talks of pulling down a part of the old house."

Paul fell into another fit of the sulks as he chewed away on a bit of straw. "I can't see," said he at last, "how so good a man as Uncle Si was could make such a mess of things. It's wicked to help people as he did while he lived and then leave them without even a roof over their heads. I suppose that fellow will have the face to set the old women out on the road. Haven't they any folks of their own, Elsie, that you ever heard of?"

"No," said she, shaking her curly head mournfully. "They're the last of the Hinghams. There was a nephew, I believe, but he was a good for naught and ran away to South America or somewhere. They never speak of him because he tarnished the family glory. Oh, Paul," she cried impulsively, "I am young and strong. How I wish I could make a shelter for their poor old heads with my arms!"

Paul sprang to her and took her two little brown hands in his and looked into her eyes. "We might do it together," he said. "Say that we shall never, never part. Promise me, Elsie." He put his arm around her and drew her very close—the dark curly head, the rosy, blushing face. Elsie felt him kissing her hair before she knew what had happened, and then she broke away, panting and frightened like some wild creature that has been caught and held for a moment, and rushed back to the house in a glow of agitated, blissful confusion.

Arthur Hapgood was wandering about the kitchen rubbing his white hands and chuckling over the absurdities of those old women with whom he had just taken tea. Miss Prissy had put on black silk mitts to do honor to the occasion and had carefully sugared her visitor's cup, while Miss Hetty exhibited the governor's silver shoe buckles, his tortoise shell snuffbox, prettily mounted in gold, and a bundle of time stained love letters penned by the great man to his first wife, Miss Hepzibah Forbes. She had even in her complacency allowed Arthur to read the epistle in which the governor in stately terms had offered his hand and heart to Miss Hepzibah, signing himself, "Yours without prejudice, Josiah Underwood Hingham." These precious relics strewed the beautiful old table of polished mahogany, with an inlaying of white wood. The old ladies were so happy to show them to an appreciative stranger they bobbed their heads, while the bows on their caps quivered, contradicted and corrected each other and grew delightfully animated. It was their opinion that Mr. Arthur Hapgood was a young man of excellent manners and disposition, who knew how to honor birth and breeding. How could they suspect he was laughing in his sleeve, indifferent to the confusion and pain his presence had created in that house?

Arthur was quite at his ease. If Uncle Si had thought best to provide for the future of those helpless old creatures who were living in a fool's paradise, he would have done so before the palsy made him impotent. They had no claim on his special consideration. Such a view of the case would have appeared absurdly sentimental to him. Young Raynor had acted like a jealous idiot and had therefore cut himself off from sympathy. It was manifestly none of Arthur's business what became of Raynor, whether he starved or begged along the road. That ill conditioned young fellow had shown his crudity and bad manners, but Arthur thought it more than probable that he might yet be willing to come and eat humble pie and take meekly the place he had thrown away as his underling. Arthur knew that Elsie would prove a powerful loadstone to the bumptious Paul, and he promised himself considerable amusement out of this state of things. Not that Arthur intended to be brutal in playing his little game. He was determined, on the whole, to make such arrangements as would demonstrate his generosity.

"Well," said he, rubbing his hands confidently, as if Elsie shared all his sentiments about Paul, "has that sulky fellow come to terms yet? I wouldn't go coaxing him up if I were in your place, Elsie. He isn't worth it. If he doesn't mean to go to work, let him get away as soon as possible. He has been brought up here by an overindulgent old man, has had his living and schooling for nothing, and now I suppose he is angry because the place was not left to him. He has made you think he is a genius with his rubbishing natural history and to regard him with exaggerated respect."

"What do you know about natural history?" Elsie asked, eying him with cool disdain.

"What do I know?" spluttered Arthur, who actually knew nothing at all. "Why, of course, Elsie, a fellow who has taken a university degree must know more than a young hayseed like that, who, I don't suppose, has ever been more than 10 miles away from this farm."

Elsie had brought out the churn. Into it she poured a pan of thick golden cream. "But what do you know about natural history?" she persisted in asking, keeping her eyes fixed on Arthur's face.

He laughed scornfully. "I wouldn't, if I were you, spunk up in favor of that fellow," said he. "He isn't worth it. I know enough of natural history to perceive that you are a very pretty little witch, and that is all I need to know."

"Take care," said Elsie as she set the churn in motion. "You had better keep your distance, or I shall splash you all over." And she gave the churn handle a vigorous twirl that sent a big blot of cream on Arthur's sleeve.

He wiped it away with a show of annoyance, for he regarded his person as sacred.

"I have concluded to ride in and spend the night at Littlefield," he said after a moment's reflection, "as I have some affairs to attend to relative to administering on my uncle's estate. I mean to inquire at the bank as to what ready money he had and his registered stocks and bonds, if any exist. I must look up his legal adviser and find out if there are any outstanding debts or accounts. He must have had some means of keeping such a large colony of dependents other than this rather unproductive farm. Have you ever noticed anything in the way of a strongbox about the premises?"

"I never have seen any such thing about," said Elsie coldly. "The house is yours, and you are free to search for yourself."

"You need not be quite so curt, Elsie. I did not suppose you had concealed any of my uncle's effects, but I am not so sure about that fellow Raynor. By the way, I wish you would tell him, if he does not intend to make himself useful, he had better get out of here and take his four footed beasts and fowls of the air along with him. I shall look out for a competent man to carry on the farm, and he will not be needed."

"I will not tell him," cried Elsie, facing round, her eyes flashing fire and half choked with pain and wrath.

"Why, Elsie," said Arthur, looking at her with one of his cool, penetrating, smiling glances, "it can't be you care for that fellow." And he went out and saddled his horse and rode away to the town.

A QUEEN WHO CHEWS.

Not Tutti Frutti Gum, but Large Chunks of Plug Tobacco.

Madagascar is a curious mixture. The queen is a Christian, but she chews tobacco and spits in a silver vase. Her husband is very proud of a French Legion of Honor decoration, which he wears night and day, but if any native should happen to express a favorable opinion of the French in his presence that native would very suddenly be wafted into eternity. The queen has a fine big Bible, plentifully emblazoned in gilt, at her side at all times, but she orders the execution of an enemy like any other woman orders her breakfast.

The queen is seldom without a large chunk of tobacco in her mouth, and as she sets the style in Madagascar all of the court ladies, not to be outdone in the matter of fashion, also have large chunks of tobacco in their mouths. At a royal function where all the ladies are chewing tobacco industriously an American lady might be shocked. But the Madagascar ladies regard it as a rare accomplishment, and the society buds there are taught to chew with the same care that American parents teach their girls to dance or play upon the piano. It is one of the polite arts there, and a lady who does not chew is as badly handicapped socially as a woman here who eats with her knife.

The queen is called Ranavalona III. Her features cannot be called delicate, and in complexion she is pretty dark, much darker than most of her subjects. Her figure is above medium height. She dresses in European garments and upon state occasions wears a robe of red velvet and a crown of gold. Her usual residence is not the enormous three story palace, Moja Kamiadana, built for Ranavalona I by a French architect, but a stone mansion hard by called the Masandro, arranged in good taste and with proper regard to comfort.

Her husband is something of a Napoleon. He is small and lean and rich. His wavy hair bespeaks his humble origin. Under an air of good fellowship he conceals extreme energy, an iron will and much keenness of intellect. Withal he is an able politician. He lives in the palace of Zanovola, called the Silver House because when it was built for Prince Rakoto, son of a former queen, the prince caused it to be studded with silver nails and furnished with silver locks.—Washington Post.

ALL ARE WITHOUT FINGERS.

Singular Deformity Among the Members of an English Family.

In a Lincolnshire village in England lives a family who suffer under the curious deformity of being fingerless. This peculiarity does not appear to be one of those freaks of nature which may appear in one individual and not be transmitted to the next generation. From what can be learned, the singularity has existed in the family so far as history or tradition extends, and there seems at present no signs of its dying out, as the grandchildren are as devoid of fingers as their grandsire.

The hands of this remarkable family present the appearance of having had the fingers amputated or chopped off roughly and unevenly below the second joint, leaving a short stump. There is no nail or hard substance, and were it not for the absence of anything like a cicatrix a casual observer would conclude that the defect was due to an accident, but, as though nature had attempted to compensate for the absence of fingers, the thumbs are abnormally large and strong.

The family are in other respects fully endowed by nature and do not appear to suffer the disadvantages the absence of fingers might be expected to entail. One of the daughters, aged 20, can write, sew, knit and is in every way as dexterous and accomplished as other girls of her age and station. When asked if she "did not find it awkward to be fingerless," she replied:

"No! If you had never had fingers, you would not know you needed them."

The only drawback that seems to be occasioned is the curiosity the absence of fingers evoked from strangers.—Pearson's Weekly.

The Reason.

"Here's your money, dolt. Now tell me why your scoundrelly master wrote me 18 letters about that contemptible sum?" said an exasperated debtor.

"I'm sure, sir, I can't tell, sir; but if you'll excuse me, sir, I think it were because 17 letters didn't fetch it!"—London Answers.

Demorest's Magazine Free

And what a magazine it is! For 1895 it will be more brilliant than ever before. New management, new ideas. Each copy contains an exquisite reproduction in colors of some celebrated picture by a famous artist, worthy to adorn the walls of the most refined home. It is affirmed that DEMOREST'S is the only complete Family Magazine published combining all of the most excellent points of its contemporaries, besides having inimitable features of its own. DEMOREST'S is actually a Dozen Magazines in one.

It is a Digest of Current Events and Ideas for the busy man or woman, a Review and a Store house of Interest for all. Wives, mothers, sisters and daughters can find exactly what they need to amuse and instruct them, also practical helps in every department of domestic and social life, including the furnishing and ornamenting of the home, embroidery, brica-brac, artistic and fancy work of all kinds, etc., etc., and suggestions and advice regarding the well-being and dressing of their own persons.

The scope of the articles for 1895 and 1896 will cover the whole country and its varied interests, and the articles will be profusely illustrated with the finest engravings, and, in addition, it will publish the best and purest fiction. THE
New York Times.

THE TIMES is a newspaper for intelligent men and women who want to read all the news of the world every day. The paper has distinguishing merits of its own. It is neither sensational nor dull. It is not sour-tempered. It is not frivolous or visionary. It sees plenty of good in the world an tells about it. It tells of the bad when it must, but not unwholesomely. It prints with fullness the record of human endeavor in many fields outside of business, politics and war—in literature, religion, science, art, sports, and household matters. No paper in the country prints so many book reviews and so much book news. No paper has so complete a financial page—a daily manual for investors and officers of financial institutions. Its market reports—wool, cotton, breadstuffs, farm products, etc.—are the best in the country.

The Democracy of THE TIMES is of the old-fashioned sort—as old as Thomas Jefferson; majority rule, no bossism, no machine tyranny, the divorce of politics from private money-making, a sound currency, industrial emancipation, and every-day honesty. To promote the advance of the Democratic Party along these lines it labors with heart and conscience and all its might.

Scribner's for Christmas

Frank R. Stockton has a Christmas love story, which bears a characteristic title—"The Staying Power of Sir Rohan." Its illustrations are quaint and exactly suitable. A thrilling detective story by C. E. Carryll, entitled "The River Syndicate," perhaps equalling Sherlock Holmes' best work. Illustrated.

Joel Chandler Harris' characteristic tale of a faithful slave—"The Colonel's Nigger-Dog." Other Christmas stories are, "A White Blot," by Henry VanDyke, a poetic and imaginative tale of a picture (illustrated); "Heroism of Landers," by A. S. Pier (illustrated), and "Hopper's Old Man," by R. C. V. Meyers.

Sentimental Tommy,

By J. M. Barrie.

Those who have read (and who has not?) "The Little Minister" and "A Window in Thrums" can anticipate what Mr. Barrie's "Sentimental Tommy" will be. It is to be the chief serial in Scribner's for 1895, beginning in the January number.

Two Years for $4.50.

Scribner's Magazine costs $3 a year, but new subscribers can have all the numbers for 1895 and a year's subscription for 18 6 for $4.50.

Scribner's Magazine is going to be better next year ever. It is going to have new features. Its publishers are not satisfied with past successes. It purposes to more thoroughly deserve the confidence of the reading public. The History Serial—"Last Quarter Century in the United States"—will be continued. Just now it is approaching a period of absorbing interest to the present generation—the first administration of President Cleveland.

Scribner's Magazine ought to get careful consideration as a Christmas gift. The $4.50 offer ought to get double circulation.

MORE CHANGES SUGGESTED.

THE BOARD OF TRADE DISCUSS THE PLUMBERS ORDINANCE.

Recommended That Plumbers Not Only Register, But Also Furnish Bonds for $500.—They Want the Fee Elminated.

A meeting of the Board of Trade was held last evening in their rooms. The attendance was rather slim. The meeting was called to order by President Elias R. Pope, and A. J. Gavett was appointed secretary in the absence of that officer.

After waiting some time to allow the interested parties to arrive, the committee to recommend changes in the plumbing ordinance, made its report through its chairman, A. J. Gavett.

The first change was an addition to section one of the plumbing ordinance providing that every plumber, when beginning work, should give a bond of $500 besides registering.

A motion made by J. B. Coward was carried, recommending that the registration fee of $3 be omitted.

According to the ordinance no privy, vault or cesspool can be conconstructed in the city without permission from the Board of Health; the committee suggested that after the word "cesspool" should be inserted 'in the area bounded by Berckman street, Webster place, Watchung avenue, Ninth street, Plainfield avenue and Green brook."

In the next section the committee recommended that tunneling be allowed with the permission of the board, but that iron pipe must be used. There were several other minor changes also suggested.

The committee thought that the wording in sections seven and eleven should be changed to make the meaning plainer. In the last named section Architect Charles H. Smith suggested that the vertical soil and waste pipes be increased two inches through and above the roof, instead of in no case being under four inches in diameter.

The Board recommended the change. The committee also added to this section the recommendation that any feature more than fifteen feet away from the main pipe must have another ventilating pipe. The committee was of the opinion that it was not necessary that every trap should have a special vent pipe, but that every trap that is liable to syphonage, should be of a kind that cannot have its seal broken by syphonage.

Section twenty-one was amended to confirm with section eleven.

Section twenty-five, which provides that water-closets must never be placed in an unventilated room or compartment, and that in every case the room must be open to the outer air or ventilated by means of an air-shaft, and that water-closets will not be permittted in cellars, except under special permit, caused considerable discussion. It was the opinion of those present that this section was needless, as it is the duty of the Board of Health to see that all plumbing work be done in a proper manner. It was recommended that this section be stricken out.

The wording of several of the other sections were changed, but the sense remained materially the same.

The committee was then authorized to make the corrections to the ordinance and transmit it to the Board of Health, as the suggestion of the Board of Trade.

Ran Over a Hoop.

A number of small boys have been spending their afternoons in coasting down the hill in the rear of the freight house on their wheels. Wednesday one of them ran over an iron hoop and was thrown from his wheel, injuring his kneecap. A hack from Hedden's stable took the lad to his home on East Fifth street.

A Fine Painting.

A handsome oil painting by Frank Keck, one of the leading artists of Trenton, is now on exhibition in Garret Q. Packer's window. It is a rural scene and includes several sheep and cattle.

Major C. T. Picton is manager of the State Hotel, at Denison, Texas, which the traveling men say is one of the best hotels in that section. In speaking of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy Major Picton says: "I have used it myself and in my family for several years, and take pleasure in saying that I consider it an infallible cure for diarrhœa and dysentery. I always recommend it, and have frequently administered it to my guests in the hotel, and in every case it has proven itself worthy of unqualified endorsement. For sale by Reynolds' Pharmacy, Park and North avenues. T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

PLEASURE AT A TRIFLING EXPENSE.

Birthday Social Successfully Carried Out at Trinity Church.

One of the most novel and interesting methods of raising money is to arrange a birthday social and the one given by the Trinity Reformed church Sunday-school last evening, was no exception to the rule, for everyone of the 300 persons present passed a most delightful evening and at a trifling expense. Miss Mabel Wilson, Mrs. J. C. VanDyke and J. H. VanWinkle were the committee, and they provided each member of the Sunday-school with a small silk bag, into which they were to place a sufficient amount of money to correspond with their age, and the scheme was most successfully carried out. E. E. Anthony presided and called the roll of the months of the year, beginning with January and ending with December.

In response to the roll-call the young ladies of the school read appropriate selections. As this was done those present whose birthdays occurred in the several months walked to the front and deposited their little bag of money.

Those who read the selections and the amount received from each month was as follows: January, Miss Sadie Holmes, $2.82; February, Miss Holmes, $2.92; March, Miss Martie Anthony, $3.34; April, Miss Cora Huff, $1.41; May, Miss May Sheppard, $1.67; June, Miss Laura Wyckoff, $4.26; July, Miss Bessie Martin, $3.44; August, Miss Laura Holder, $3.60; Sepember, Miss Mabel Wilson, $4.31; October, Miss Eva Dunavan, $2.98; November, Miss Olive Wyckoff, $2.97; December, Miss Minnie Wiman, $2.31; from other sources, $7.52 was received. At the conclusion Mr. Anthony was called up stairs, but soon returned carrying a long white envelope. When opened it was found to contain fifteen bags, which were sent by the employes of The Daily Press office. While the money was being counted excellent refreshments were served, and a genuine social time was enjoyed.

It was announced at the close that $42.55 had been received and several persons were yet to be heard from.

TAMPERED WITH WINDOWS.

A Netherwood Woman Frightened by a Night Prowler.

A few nights ago Mrs. Edward Willis, of Netherwood, had an exciting experience that frightened her considerably. Her husband was called away from the house a short distance, leaving her alone. He told her if anything happened she could call him by shooting his revolver off. Mr. Willis had not been absent very long when she heard someone trying the doors and windows in an attempt to enter the house.

After repeated efforts and a failure to effect an entrance the person went away, but Mrs. Willis was frightened so that she could not use the revolver. When her husband returned she related her experience. He took a lantern and started a search about the house and barn. When he reached the latter he found a big, burly negro inside, about half asleep. He brought the man to his senses and asked him what he was doing there. He replied by saying that he couldn't get in the house, so he did the next best thing. Mr. Willis gave the man something to remember him by, and it's safe to say he will not return.

Editorial Visitation.

James S. Wight, editor of The Perth Amboy Chronicle, accompanied by Wilbur Laroe, one of the owners of the paper, called at The Press office yesterday afternoon and witnessed the printing of the edition. They also visited the Scott Press Works, with a view of purchasing a larger press to print their popular semi-weekly. The citizens of Perth Amboy should rally to the support of so excellent a paper as The Chronicle now is.

Results! Results!

A small open-faced silver watch of value was lost Wednesday by Miss Langhorn, daughter of F. C. Langhorn the photographer. A little later an ad appeared in the Daily Press. P. S. Skillman, of 1326, Watchung avenue, who is a Press reader, found the watch and returned it yesterday morning.

This is only one of many similar cases, and proves the value of the Daily Press as an advertising medium.

Engagement Announced.

The engagement of Charles Hamilton Frost, eldest son of Councilman Frost, to Marian Gertrude Hemming, of Drummondville, Quebec, is announced. The marriage will take place on January 23d.

STARTED RIGHT THIS TIME.

THE STREET RAILWAY ORDINANCE PROPERLY AMENDED.

The Suggestions of Mayor Gilbert Complied With and the Ordinance Will be Enacted as Soon as Possible.

With the temperature of the chamber of the City Council at 60 the city fathers were unable to transact the business on hand with any degree of comfort, last evening.

Councilmen Erickson, Dumont, Frost, Ginna, Bird and Moore, were present when President See called the meeting to order, and Councilman Fisk came in later.

After the previous minutes were read and approved, the regular order of business was suspended on Mr. Fisk's motion for the purpose of considering the street railway matter. There was no one present to offer any objections, and the clerk read the application of the Street Railway Company asking for a franchise.

Mr. Fisk then moved that section 2 be stricken out, which is from Watchung avenue to East Third street, from East Third street to Richmond street, from Richmond street to North avenue, and from North avenue to the city line at Fanwood. It was so ordered.

He then introduced the new ordinance, which was placed on first and second readings and ordered engrossed and duly advertised.

The customary batch of election bills were then presented, and after being audited were ordered paid.

A communication from Chief T. O. Doane, of the Board of Engineers, recommended that Albert Wilson be suspended from Engine Co., No. 2, for non-payment of dues. It was so ordered.

Mr. Dumont offered a resolution which was adopted, that $1,000 be borrowed in anticipation of taxes for the general fund.

Mr. Fisk then gave notice requesting that President See call a special meeting for Monday evening, December 30th, fer the purpose of acting on the street railway ordinance. A resolution was offered by Mr. Frost that the Sewer Committee be authorized to give notice to property owners not to connect with the sewer mains until the former was prepared to have them do so. The resolution was adopted as was also another one by Mr. Frost, authorizing the same committee to secure necessary surveys and maps for the use of the city in connection with making assessments on property owners. The same not to exceed $500 in cost.

Mr. Moore then called up the ordinance to license inns and taverns, and on his motion had it placed on second reading. Mr. Fisk then moved that it be engrossed and advertised, which was so ordered.

Mr. Fisk then moved that when the council adjourned it be to meet on Monday evening, December 30th. Council then adjourned.

THE AUDIENCE KNEW IT FIRST.

Will J. Irvin Called to Recite After the Audience Was Told He Would.

While the dances at the Firemen's Fair last evening were by far the best of any during the week, the people did not turn out as they should, and a rather small audience was the result. The firemen of Plainfield have always been faithful to their duties, and they deserve the hearty support of every Plainfielder, for who can tell when their strong hand and quick judgement will be needed.

There were two surprises, one for the audience and the other for Will J. Irvin, stage director of the "Tim the Tinker" company, who was present. It was announced that Mr. Irvin would give a recitation and then Mr. Irvin was informed of the fact. He was eqeal to the occasion, however, and gave the poem, "Flash," a firemen's story in a manner that delighted all his hearers. Mr. Irvin will speak again tonight.

Addressed the Students.

Rev. S. P. Simpson, of Watchung avenue, has been spending a week at St. Steven's College, Annandale, Pa., as the guest of Rev. Dr. Malcomb, professor of history and Greek. Rev. Mr. Simpson visited the recitation rooms and made an address to the students. On last Thursday evening Dr. Malcomb gave a tea in honor of his guest which was attended by the entire faculty of the college and a very pleasant evening was spent.

Meat Market Changes Hands.

The meat market at 94 Somerset street, belonging to the estate of D. I. Smalley, and conducted by Mrs. D. I. Smalley, has been purchased by Messrs. David, Newton and Albert Smalley, the North avenue butchers. They take possession January 1st.

TWO CULPRITS TAKE LEG BAIL

WANTED FOR STEALING A PAIR OF HORSE CLIPPERS.

They Were on Their Way to Court and Tarried for a Drink, After Which They Departed for Parts Unknown.

Two colored men of this city are now fleeing from the powerful hand of the law and are hiding in fear and trembling of the bluecoats. The cause of all the trouble is a pair of horse clippers which were stolen from Daniel S. Roberts' livery stable some ttme ago. Mr. Roberts has been on the lookout for his property and heard that a colored individual named David Hupper had suddenly come into possession of a pair of clippers. Hupper has been arrested several times, once on the charge of running a gambling den, and at other times on various charges. Mr. Roberts felt inclined to suspect Hupper, especially as he had learned that another negro named Will Marsh was trying to sell them at Pope's stable for him.

Mr. Roberts went to Justice Mosher yesterday and swore out a warrant for the arrest of Hupper. Sergeant Kiely served it and brought the offender before Justice Mosher, who paroled him to appear this morning at nine o'clock.

This morning Chief of Police Grant strolled into Jim Babbitt's place on East Front street and found March and Hupper there. He reminded Hupper of his promise to appear and ordered March to appear also, which he said he would do. The two colored men started for the court, but the thoughts of a trial seemed to affect their nerves, and they remarked that they wanted a glass of something "hot" before going to Mosher's office. They went into Findley's on East Second street while Chief Grant, who had accompanied them thus far, connued on his way. When the two colored men came out of the saloon there were none of the dreaded officers in sight. They looked about and then ran as if the foul fiend himself were at their heals. They have not been seen since.

It is thought by some that they have left town but if they remain it will not be long before they feel the iron grip of a representative of the law, for they are too well known to escape observation long.

Last evening after Hupper's arrest, a remarkable thing happened. The clippers put in a sudden appearance. They were given to Mr. Roberts by James Babbit who received them from a colored man named Johnson, who in turn received them from Hupper.

DESERVED BETTER PATRONAGE.

Excellent Musical Programme for the German Lutheran Church.

An excellent programme at the concert for the benefit of the German Lutheran church, held at Y. M. C. A. hall last evening, was greatly enjoyed by those that attended and the entertainment was of a kind that deserved more patronage than it received. There was a fair attendance. The numbers were all well rendered, especially the contralto solos of Miss Annie Hardenburgh. Miss Mary A. Luckey in her recitation, "Drunkard's Story," deserved the hearty applause that she received. The baritone solo of H. J. Martin was also greatly enjoyed, as was the vocal trio. The instrumental pieces were all of the highest class and the listeners showed their appreciation of them by their long and hearty applause.

Those taking part in the concert were: The Zampa Orchestra, of New York, Miss Annie P. Hardenbergh, Mrs. D. E. Titsworth, Miss Randolph, D. E. Titsworth, Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Korff, William Fox, Horace J. Martin and Miss Mary A. Lukkey.

The Two Vans Big Ad.

Joy for the person who starts out for Christmas shopping is what the big ad of the Two Vans in today's Press contains. These merchants know how to buy successfully, and the customers get the benefit direct. The ad speaks for itself. Read it through.

The male choir of the Y. M. C. A. had a rehearsal in the building last evening.

When most needed it is not unusual for your family physician to be away from home. Such was the experience of Mr. J. Y. Schenck, editor of the Caddo, Ind. Ter., Banner, when his little girl, two years of age was threatened with a severe attack of croup. He says: "My wife insisted that I go for the doctor, but as our family physician was out of town I purchased a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, which relieved her immediately. I will not be without it in the future." 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by Reynoldss' Pharmacy, Park and North avenues, T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

MR. VOEHL WANTS A DIVORCE.

He and His Wife Cannot Live Happily Together.

The domestic infelicity which has so long dominated the household of George Voehl has finally come to a climax. Mr. Voehl and his wife will part. Their parting will be a legal one if the courts consider Mr. Voehl's claims favorably.

Yesterday, divorce papers were served on Mrs. Voehl by Deputy Sheriff Amos Moffett. Reed & Coddington represent Mr. Voehl in the action. The couple have not lived happily together for some time, and it was only a short time ago that Mrs. Voehl left home and was gone for several days, which was the cause of considerable gossip at the time. They have two small children.

BURLESQUE ON THE KIRMESS.

That Will Be the Feature of the Wheelmen's Minstrel Show.

Plainfield is going to have a minstrel show next month, a genuine minstrel show, with blackened faces, jokes, songs and all the delights of that kind of an entertainment. The Crescent Wheelmen are the pushers of this show and expect to hold it in Music Hall. Charles Lyman will be the interlocutor. The end men will be James H. Rogers and William N. Runyon, tambos, and Clarence E. Teel and George O. Stevens, bones. There will be twenty-five in the cherus. The programme will include solos by Elmer E. Runyon, Wm. Thiers and Arthur Freeman, topical songs by George O. Stevens and William N. Runyon, besides a score of other attractions. The last two humorous young men will come together in a special duo in part second. A feature of the performance will be a burlesque Kirmess. Eugene Rose, of the Lyceum Theatre, New York, will furnish the music.

A CLEAN HEART THE REQUISITE.

The Dominant Quality Necessary for Evangelistic Work.

A very earnest company of young people from the Christian Endeavor societies and Epworth Leagues of Plainfield gathered last night in the Monroe Avenue chapel to attend the second union meeting held in preparation for the evangelistic work of the winter.

The meeting was led by John Praed, while Miss Lottie Beekman acted as pianist. The subject of the evening was the 23d verse of the 139th Psalm: "Search me, O God, and know my heart; try me, and know my thoughts."

After the singing of several hymns, a prayer by Rev. Cornelius Schenck, and a few words from the leader, the meeting was thrown open to all, and a very interesting and helpful hour followed.

The chief thought emphasized was that in order to lead others to Christ, a Christian must cleanse his heart of everything that could stand between him and Christ's using him in any way He might choose. Testimonies were given, telling how one or another had been shown that certain practices of theirs were wrong, and how God had used them since they had put the wrong things out of their lives.

Rev. Mr. O'Donnell offered the closing prayer and pronounced the benediction, after which the strangers were warmly greeted by the young people of the church; and as the company separated they went to their homes feeling more strongly than ever the tie that binds together the Christian young people of Plainfield.

Central Lodge Officers.

The following officers were elected at the meeting of Central Lodge, No. 48, A. O. U. W., last evening:

Past Master Workman, L. J. Spicer; Master Workman, G. W. Gray; Foreman, C. T. Rogers; Overseer, A. J. Stiglitz; Recorder, N. C. Mague; Financer, Wm. Newcorn; Receiver, W. H. Brokaw; Guide, J. R. Dunham; Inside Watchman, C. Rogers, Jr.; Outside Watchman, G. W. Clark; Trustee, three years, W. A. Westphal; Representative Grand Lodge, C. H. Randolph; Alternate, L. J. Spicer; Medical Examiners, Drs. O. L. Jenkins of this city and W. Nelson, of New Market.

Past Master Smith, Ed. Mosher and G. W. Clark were appointed a committee to prepare a collation when the officers elect are installed, January 9, at which time the Grand Lodge officers will be present

Park Club Festivities.

The house committee of the Park Club has arranged for an informal entertainment to be given at the club house on Wednesday evening, December 18th. It will consist of music and recitations by the members.

A LOOP FROM THE LEHIGH.

BETTER RAILROAD FACILITIES PROJECTED FOR PLAINFIELD.

Councilman Frost at the Head of a Movement to Have the Lehigh Valley Railroad Build a Branch to This City.

Councilman George H. Frost is the prime factor in a movement to give Plainfield better and cheaper railroad facilities. For some time he has been considering the practicability of the Lehigh Valley railroad building a loop from the main line to this city.

He submitted the proposition to Superintendent Donnelly, of the Lehigh road, and that official regarded the proposition in a very favorable manner, though any activity looking to the building of this branch will depend on what evidence of support Plainfielders themselves evince. It is projected to have the loop leave the main line at South Plainfield, and after tapping this city circle back to the main line by the way of Oak Tree.

Mr. Frost told a Press reporter that the consummation of this movement would mean a reduction of almost one-half in freight rates and also a considerable cut in the price of excursion and trip tickets.

The proposition is now being considered by the Lehigh Valley railroad officials.

STUDENTS OF THESPIS.

Amateur Theatrical Presentation by Borough Young People.

"Breaking His Bonds" was the name of a four-act comedy presented by the North Plainfield Dramatic Company in Saengerbund Hall last evening, and an audience that filled the hall was present to enjoy it.

Music was furnished by Miss Kittie Quinn on the piano and Miss Alice Quinn on the violin.

The play was admirably given and abounded in many points that pleased all. Each one took their part well and gave additional honors to the presentation. Of course there was the usual love story, the ever-present villian, and many suitors for the ha d of the fair one. It is manifestly unfair to give any criticism in detail of those who took part for all deserve great credit in their efforts to furnish an evening of enjoyment. After the play dancing was enjoyed, music for which was furnished by Prof. O'Reilly.

The following is the cast of characters in the play:

Howard Lelar, an unwilling victim. J. E. Bailey
Edgar Deem, who forges the bonds. Fred J. Huff
Dr. Hatfield, the family physician. D. A. Begley
Argy Tompkins, not such a fool as he looks. A. E. Kenney
Horatio Snooks, actor, author, clerk and suitor for Kitty's hand..... T. A. Neely Micky Burns, with a claim on Kitty's hand. G. P. Kiely
Lenore Lelar, who breaks the bonds. Miss May Hughes
May Ketcham, the dude's chaperone. Miss Etta M. Blatz
Kitty, uncertain, coy and hard to please. Nelly Begley

AN ENGLISH TEA.

Happy Events for Juvenile Students at Misses Scribner's and Newton's.

An English tea was given yesterday afternoon to the members of the kindergarten and primary department of Misses. Scribner and Newton's school by Miss Lyon and Miss Helwig, two of the teachers. The children were entertained with French songs by some of the primary department, while a number of the children who took part in the Kirmess wore their costumes and gave the dances. Those in costume were the Misses Dora Fleming, Marjorie Fleming, Mary Finch, Rosa Woltmann, Eleanor Waring, Margaret Lowe, Helen Stevens and Elsie Goddard and Pendleton Rogers. Tea and chocolate was served at five o'clock, when some of the parents came in to see how the children were enjoying themselves. About fifty children were present, and all spent a very pleasant afternoon. Miss Morgan acted as accompanist.

A Coal Train Wrecked.

A loaded east-bound coal train broke in two at Westfield this morning and several cars were derailed, blocking tracks numbers one and three for part of the morning. No one was injured.

The wife of Mr. D. Robinson, a prominent lumberman of Hartwick, N. Y., was sick with rheumatism for five months. In speaking of it, Mr. Robinson says: "Chamberlain's Pain Balm is the only thing that gave her any rest from pain. For the relief of pain it cannot be beat." Many very bad cases of rheumatism have been cured by it. For sale at 50 cents per bottle by Reynolds' Pharmacy, Park and North avenues. T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

IS HARRISON TO WED?

Rumor Persistently Avers That He Is.

Known To Be Very Friendly with Mrs. Dimmick—Much in Each Other's Society Lately—The Lady a Favorite at the White House—Accomplished and Pretty.

New York, Dec. 13.—Rumor still persistently declares that ex-President Harrison is engaged to marry Mrs. Mary Scott Dimmick, and that the announcement of the engagement will not be long delayed. Last summer Mrs. Dimmick, with Mrs. McKee and the McKee children, made up the party that accompanied General Harrison to Old Forge, in the Adirondacks. Reports of the devotion of the ex-president to his late wife's niece were weekly telegraphed by the correspondents stationed there. On his return from the mountains General Harrison passed two weeks in this city. Day after day, when he was reported to be in consultation with politicians interested in renominating him for the presidency, he spent with Mrs. Dimmick at the residence of a mutual friend, in East 38th street.

Went to the Opera Together.

On a number of occasions the two went to the opera or theatre together, and several drives were taken in Central park. Again, on coming here to address the board of foreign missions, Gen. Harrison remained here for a week, and was almost constantly in the society of Mrs. Dimmick. A few days after his return to Indianapolis a message was received in this city renewing in more positive language than before the declaration that a marriage engagement existed between the two. A friend who seemed to speak with some authority said to a reporter: "If Gen. Harrison will say nothing, how can you expect Mrs. Dimmick or any of her intimates to talk about such a delicate matter?" This same friend admitted that Mrs. Dimmick daily received from Indianapolis a letter in the handwriting of the ex-president. It is now rumored that Gen. Harrison is making preparations to spend the holidays in the metropolis.

An Accomplished Woman.

Mrs. Dimmick is the daughter of the late Mrs. Harrison's favorite sister. Her mother died a few days before the inauguration of the president in 1889. Bereft of her husband a short time before, Mrs. Dimmick was besought by Mrs. Harrison to become her companion at the White House. This she finally consented to become, and after Mrs. Harrison had been laid to rest and the period of official mourning had ended Mrs. Dimmick shared with Mrs. McKee the duties of aiding the president to entertain his official guests. Every one who met and knew her well loved Mrs. Dimmick, and she soon became a favorite. Mrs. Dimmick is not quite 40 years old. She is hardly above the medium stature, has a plump and pretty figure, brown eyes and brown hair, and is accomplished in all the arts which make a refined woman attractive.

OVERDUE STEAMER ARRIVES.

The Scotsman Reports Encountering Gales and a Blizzard at Sea.

Halifax, N. S., Dec. 13.—The overdue mail steamer Scotsman of the Dominion line arrived here last evening after an eventful voyage of twelve days. Capt. Maddox of the Scotsman says that in all his experience at sea he never encountered such rough weather as he did on this trip. Almost from the time he left the coast of Ireland he encountered a series of gales of the hurricane order, nearly always from the westward. Yesterday morning the Scotsman struck a blizzard. The wind blew so hard and the snow was so thick that the crew could not see half the length of the vessel. The seas were simply tremendous. One struck the vessel on the stern and smashed in the door, ruining most of the ship's stores. The Scotsman brought 150 passengers. Capt. Maddox says he did not see any other steamer, in fact did not see enough of anything to take a sight for eight days, so thick was the weather.

Head-on Collision.

Williamsport, Pa., Dec. 13.—By a head on collision on the Buffalo & Susquehanna railroad at Cherry Springs, Potter county, last night, five trainmen were injured, one, Engineer Fisk, probably fatally. The regular passenger train collided with a special on a curve. Both engines were wrecked.

Turkish Troops Attack Christians.

Athens, Dec. 13.—A strong detachment of Turkish troops on Tuesday attacked the positions occupied by the Christians at Vyse, on the island of Crete. The troops lost thirty-five killed and wounded, while the loss of the Christians was six. Outside of Vyse the island is tranquil.

The Storm at Nantucket.

Nantucket, Mass., Dec. 13.—The terrific storm of the past two days has done considerable damage and deprived Nantucket of mails since Tuesday. One thousand miles of wind have passed during the last twenty-four hours.

Spanish Officials Resign.

Madrid, Dec. 13.—The ministers of justice and public works, against whom the recent demonstration was mainly directed, have resigned.

Campos Leaves for Matanzas.

Paris, Dec. 13.—A dispatch received here from Havana says that Captain-General Campos has started suddenly for Matanzas.

DOINGS IN THE SENATE

Efforts To Lighten the Work of the Finance Committee.

Senator Quay's Plan To Amend the Rules for the Organization of a New Committee—Senator Peffer Talks About the Extravagance of Congressional Funerals.

Washington, Dec. 13.—The report is circulated about the capitol that Senator Quay is going to try to procure an amendment to the senate rules for the organization of a new committee, to be known by the same title as the committee on coinage, weights and measures in the house, and to have jurisdiction of the same subjects. This would relieve the committee on finance of a part of the burden which now rests upon it; for at present it does the work of three house committees—coinage, banking and ways and means. It deals with tariff matters as well as all sorts of currency bills and resolutions. If its work were split up, as proposed, the committees would be able to act in a certain sense as a check upon each other, and in the distribution of committee places all sides of the money controversy would get an equal chance for hearing. In view of the attempt of the western men from new states to dominate the senate, it is probable that such a proposal as Mr. Quay is reported to have in mind would be supported by the sound-money element. Senator Quay is not in his place, and there is no means of verifying the story.

Congressional Funerals.

Senator Peffer, pop., Kas., made a short speech in the senate yesterday on the subject of congressional funerals. Before he became a senator, he said, he had read in the newspapers about the cost of these affairs, which were not only the cause of extravagant outlay, but partook of a festive rather than a mournful character, entirely out of keeping with the sentiment supposed to be uppermost in the minds of the dead man's associates. After his entrance into the senate he was appointed one of a committee of honor to attend the corpse of Senator Plumb to his late home in Kansas. That expedition, although less expensive in many ways than such affairs commonly are, cost the government $3,000, the value of an average American farm. Mr. Peffer then branched off into a general assault upon the extravagance of the senate in the use of its contingent fund. The house is not in session to-day, having adjourned last evening until Monday next.

INJURIES TO THE GERMANIC.

Considerably Damaged in the Collision with the Cumbrae.

London, Dec. 13.—As soon as the Germanic was docked an inspection was made to ascertain the full extent of the damage she had sustained in her collision with the ill-fated coasting steamer Cumbrae. It was found that her forepeak had been ripped open, and that a number of her bow plates had been torn out of their fastenings and lost, they either having fallen when the Germanic started to back out of the Cumbrae or immediately afterward. Other of her forward plates were rolled back as though they were paper. The gap in the bow of the steamer extends vertically fourteen feet and lengthwise twenty feet. A portion of the sunken Cumbrae, known to sailors as a rolling chock, was found firmly embedded in the Germanic's bow.

University Day at Atlanta.

Atlanta, Ga., Dec. 13.—Dec. 28 is the day set apart for the Sigma Alpa Epsilon fraternity at the exposition, and about sixty colleges and universities will be represented, including Harvard, Cornell, university of Pennsylvania, university of California, university of Texas, university of Virginia, university of Georgia, and Vanderbilt university.

Blue Laws in Earnest.

Huntington, W. Va., Dec. 13.—Chief Turner instructed the police force last night to arrest all persons found on the streets after 11 o'clock at night and make them give an account of themselves. There are a great many suspicious persons in the city, and this action is taken to run them out of town.

Died in Antwerp Hospital.

Philadelphia, Dec. 13.—News has been received in this city of the death in a hospital at Antwerp yesterday of inflammation of the brain of Capt. W. H. Townsend, of the International Navigation company's steamship Pennsylvania. Capt. Townsend's home was in this city.

Ex-Postmaster Arraigned.

Elmira, N. Y., Dec. 13.—Lewis M. Wheeler, ex-postmaster at Park Station, was arraigned before United States Commissioner Bentley at Horseheads yesterday afternoon, charged with embezzling government funds. He was held to the grand jury at Albany.

Secretary Carlisle's Report.

Washington, Dec. 13.—The present intention of Secretary Carlisle is not to send in his report until next Monday. The sessions of congress are now very uncertain, and it would not do to give the report to the public until it had been formally presented to congress.

New Trial for Pollard Murderers.

Richmond, Va., Dec. 13.—The supreme court of appeals has granted new trials in the cases of Pokey Barnes, Mary Abernathy and Solomon Marable, who were convicted of the murder of Mrs. Pollard in Lanensburg county.

EXPOSITION ON WATER

A Scheme To Display American Goods Abroad.

A Number of Ships To Be Built and Fitted Up with Products of the United States Only and To Be Steamed to All the Ports of the Globe.

Cincinnati, Dec. 13.—Mayor Caldwell has received a letter from what is known as the American Expedition association, with headquarters in New York city. The communication is a personal one from E. A. Keeling, secretary of the association, and states that the object of the expedition is to introduce the wares and goods of the United States in every country on the globe. A number of what are to be known as "expedition ships" are being built in New York city. As soon as a ship is completed, it will be fitted up with products of the United States only. When the fleet is ready it will be headed by a palatial yacht, to be called the "Palace of Neptune," on which will be as passengers all governors, mayors and presidents of commercial or social bodies who can go. Thus fitted out and equipped, the fleet, which is intended to be an exposition on water, like those of Philadelphia, Chicago and Atlanta, as near as possible, will steam to all the countries of the globe, including those in South America, Asia and Africa, as well as Europe. The gigantic scheme is to introduce the products of the United States in every nation of the earth. Mayor Caldwell is very much interested in the project and will agitate the advisibility of Cincinnati sending delegates with the expedition.

NOT FILIBUSTERS.

The Men Arrested at Inagua Acquitted by a Jury.

Nassau, N. P., Dec. 13.—The twenty-one men who were arrested on October 19 at Inagua, one of the Bahamas, on the charge of violating the foreign enlistment act, it being held that they were Cuban filibusters, have been acquitted. The jury was out only ten minutes. The men were passengers on the Clyde line steamer Delaware, plying between New York and Haytien ports, Inagua being one of her regular calling ports. The British gunboat Partridge was lying at Inagua and when her commander learned that the twenty-one men who had been landed from the Delaware were armed he had them taken on board his ship by a file of marines and brought them here for trial. The men claimed that they were laborers and had no intention of proceeding to Cuba. The men made a formal protest against their arrest before the United States consular agent at Inagua.

TROOPS FOR ABYSSINIA.

Italian Soldiers Cheered as They Embark for the War.

Rome, Dec. 13.—Much patriotic enthusiasm is shown in all the towns from which troops have been ordered to proceed to reinforce the Italian army in Erythrea. As the troops start for the ports where they will embark on transports the populations of the towns turn out and cheer them and bid them Godspeed.

Durrant To Remain in Jail.

San Francisco, Dec. 13.—Theodore Durrant will remain, for a time at least, at the county jail. Judge Murphy has granted him a stay of execution for twenty days, in order to allow his attorneys to prepare a bill of exceptions. The judge said that unless every effort should be made to comply with his request the order granting the stay would be vacated.

Denied Use of the Mails.

Washington, Dec. 13.—The post-office authorities have denied the privileges of the mails to the American Home Journal and The Fireside, conducted at Bridgewater, Conn., by C. B. Thompson, who advertised offers of articles for stated sums, but failed to send them upon receipt of the money.

A St. Louis Priest Killed.

St. Louis, Dec. 13.—Rev. Father Cosgrove, a Catholic priest, aged 35 years, died at Mullanphy hospital last night, as a result of being run over by a locomotive in the yards at Eleventh street yesterday morning. The railway officials believe that the man threw himself under the engine.

Turret Plates for New War Ships.

Bethlehem, Pa., Dec. 13.—Turret plates and sighting hoods and accessories, weighing forty-three tons, for the United States cruisers Oregon and Brooklyn, in course of construction at San Francisco and Philadelphia, have just been shipped by the Bethlehem Iron company.

New York Court of Appeals.

Albany, Dec. 13.—The court of appeals will abridge its present term by one week, taking a recess over the holidays to-day. This is done in order to allow Judge Peckham and Judge Finch an opportunity to finish up the work before them by the closing of the term.

Dinner to Justice-Elect Dunwell.

Rochester, N. Y., Dec. 13.—A complimentary banquet was tendered supreme court justice-elect James M. Dunwell at Lyons last night in honor of his recent elevation to the bench.

Women's Suffrage Rejected.

Melbourne, Dec. 13.—The legislative council has rejected the women's suffrage bill.

A PREVALENT DISEASE.

Not Necessarily Dangerous but May Become So.

American men and women suffer from a very general disease—dyspepsia.

Dyspepsia has many symptoms. Thin, pale people are generally dyspeptic. Hollow cheeks, bad breath, acid eructations, palpitation of the heart, hot and cold flushes, headaches, nausea and vomiting, all these are symptoms of dyspepsia.

What does dyspepsia mean? In two words, imperfect digestion. How can we remedy it? Not alone by resort to drugs. We must rest the stomach.

For this purpose we must put into it a food which is already digested and which will aid the digestion of other foods. We must take Shaker Digestive Cordial, for this is just such a preparation. It contains food which will be absorbed at once. It also contains principles which will assist the digestion of other foods, while last but not least, it contains a combination of those drugs in the cultivation of which the Shakers have been so successful, and which act by stimulating the liver and bowels.

Imperfect digestion is often caused by overwork of the digestive apparatus, too much food, food eaten too quickly, nervous, worry, etc.

The Shaker Digestive Cordial is the most successful remedy for indigestion that has ever been made. A single 10c bottle will afford relief in most cases, although this small quantity cannot be expected to effect a perfect cure.

If you find it suitable in your own case, continue its use. All druggists keep it and can supply you with an interesting descriptive pamphlet.

Delicate Dress Goods,
Some gowns are so dainty in the weave, so delicate in tint, that they seem to soil by being look at—one or two wearings making them unpresentable—not useless. We make a specialty of cleaning fine fabrics—the more delicate the material, the better the results. Sometimes an accident will ruin a gown, without injuring the texture. We dye them then, sometimes we get a prettier effect than the original color. Fine goods stand re-dying. The finer the material, the better the new color. We charge so little for cleaning or dyeing, that even if you are in doubt as to the results, it's worth while to experiment.

DEATH OF THURMAN

The Ex-Senator Expires at Columbus, O.

Never Recovered from the Injuries He Received by a Fall Some Time Ago—Career and Public Service of "The Old Roman," as He Was Often Called.

Columbus, O., Dec. 13.—Ex-Senator Thurman died at his residence here at 1:30 yesterday afternoon, of the general debility of old age, ending in collapse. Since his fall about a month ago he had been apparently in his usual health, but to the experienced eye of his physician it was plain that his powers were rapidly failing. On his eighty-second birthday, Nov. 13, he was able to dictate a letter to the Thurman club of this city in reply to resolutions of sympathy with him in his sufferings resulting from the fall. Wednesday morning he was sitting in his library reading when he began to complain of feeling ill and shortly became much worse. In the afternoon Judge Thurman lost consciousness and never fully recovered it again. Death came peacefully and painlessly. It seemed that he passed from sleep into death. At the bedside were Mrs. Governor McCormack of New York and Allen W. Thurman and members of his family. His other child, Mary Thurman, is in California.

ALLEN GRANBERRY THURMAN.

Career and Public Service of the Late Jurist and Politican.

Allen Granberry Thurman, representative in congress, chief justice of Ohio, United States senator, democratic candidate for vice-president, called "the Old Roman" by his many friends, was born at Lynchburg, Va., the oldest of a family of twelve children, on November 13, 1813. He was descended from Nathaniel Thurman, who came to America with William Penn, and was the oldest son of Pleasant Thurman, a Methodist itinerant preacher, who, moving from Virginia to Chillicothe, O., in 1819, became a burgess and a justice of the peace. Young Allen, named after his mother's family, was educated at the local academy, and at the age of 14 was teaching school in a village three miles from Chillicothe. He prepared himself for the bar, first in the office of his maternal relative, William Allen, later a representative in congress and United States senator, and afterwards in the office of Judge Swayne, later a justice of the supreme court of the United States. Well grounded in the common and statute law by such eminent jurists, before he was 21 Mr. Thurman had become known as a promising public speaker. In the Polk-Clay campaign of 1844 he was elected to congress, taking his seat in December, 1845, on the same day that Simon Cameron began his career in the senate. The Ohioan's ability as a lawyer won him a place on the judiciary committee of the house. Declining a renomination, Mr. Thurman resumed the practice of law in Ohio. In 1851 he was elected a justice of the supreme court of the state, the following year succeeding to the chief justiceship. The salary proving inadequate to the needs of his family he went back to his practice at the expiration of the term, moving to Columbus. Mr. Thurman was now heard in the courts and now on the political platform.

Nominated for Governor.

He was nominated for governor of Ohio by the democrats in 1867, but was defeated by Rutherford B. Hayes by a plurality of 3,000 after an exciting campaign. For his gallant services the legislature, which had been carried by the democrats, sent him to the United States senate, where among his colleagues were Stockton of New Jersey and Bayard of Delaware. Senator Thurman early forged to the front as a leader, battling for the "reconstructed" Georgia legislature, which the republicans finally succeeded in having declared invalid. During the contest Mr. Thurman remained at his post in the senate for five days and nights. He was re-elected in 1873 after a memorable campaign, which also resulted in the election as governor of Ohio of his old law preceptor, William Allen. Mr. Blaine, in his "Twenty Years in Congress," thus wrote of Thurman: "His rank in the senate was established from the day he took his seat. He was an admirably disciplined debater, was fair in his methods of statement, logical in his argument, honest in his conclusions. He had no tricks in discourse, no catch phrases to secure attention, but was always direct and manly." So great an authority as Senator Conkling was wont to sound Mr. Thurman whenever a difficult problem of law was to be elucidated. In financial debates the Ohio senator was heard with respect, and he took a leading part in shaping legislation affecting Chinese immigration and the Pacific railroads. The bill providing for the payment of the companies' debt to the government bore his name, and, with with the aid of George F. Edmunds, he pushed it to passage, confounding a powerful lobby.

President Pro Tem of the Senate.

In the 46th congress Mr. Thurman was chosen president pro tem of the senate. He retired in March, 1881, when James A. Garfield, who, in 1880, had been elected to succeed him, was sworn in as president. One of the first acts of the new executive was to name Allen G. Thurman of Ohio as one of the three American delegates to the international monetary conference of 1881. Previously, in the democratic national convention of 1880, Mr. Thurman had been named as Ohio's choice for president, and in 1884 as a candidate he received 88 votes on the first ballot. Four years later he was nominated for vice-president on the Cleveland ticket, and although then 77 years of age he made two speeches in the campaign, one of the emblems of which was "The Old Roman's" famous bandana handkerchief. Mr. Thurman had lived quietly at his home in Columbus since his defeat in 1888, spending whole days in his library, and often his nights, for he had no regular hour of retiring, and at sunrise was often found with a book in his hand. He read French in the original with facility and was a fair Latin scholar. His wife, a Miss Mary Dun of Ohio, to whom he was always devoted, died about six years ago. One son, Allen W. Thurman, a lawyer and democratic leader, of Columbus, survives him.

Regret in Washington.

Washington, Dec. 13.—In many of the executive departments, where Judge Thurman had many personal friends, general regret was expressed at his death. Attorney General Harmon said: "Allen G. Thurman was one of the purest and ablest men that Ohio has ever produced. He early distinguished himself as one of the first judges." Secretary Carlisle said: "My personal acquaintance with Judge Thurman began many years ago, and as long as he continued to take an active part in public affairs our relations were quite close and intimate. He was a great lawyer, a just judge and one of the most able and patriotic legislators I have ever known in congress." Vice-President Stevenson said: "I am deeply grieved to learn of the death of Judge Thurman. I am confident this country has known few abler statesmen. He has been one of the recognized leaders of the democratic party during the lifetime of the present generation. His death will be universally regretted by men of all parties."

Proclamation by Gov. McKinley.

Columbus, O., Dec. 13.—Gov. McKinley has issued a proclamation on the death of Allen G. Thurman, and has ordered the flags on the state buildings to be displayed at half mast until after the obsequies.

QUAY NOT A CANDIDATE.

Would Not Accept the Presidential Nomination on a Gold Plate.

Philadelphia, Dec. 13.—Recently stories have been set afloat, mainly from Washington, connecting Senator Quay's name with the republican nomination for the presidency. Mr. Quay was asked about the reported combine to nominate him and he replied: "I would not take it on gold plate." When questioned for his reasons, he quickly replied "The first is, that I am not fit for it, and the second is that I could not live thirty days in the office. My only ambition is to take a rest and enjoy life after I complete my duties." "Does this mean that you will not seek a re-election to the senatorship?" "That," answered he, "depends on circumstances." In reply to queries as to a current story to the effect that he would be in the next cabinet, Senator Quay said: "There is not a word of truth in it."

DUNRAVEN IN LONDON.

He Will Make a New Arrangement About the Yacht Race Inquiry.

London, Dec. 13.—Lord Dunraven, who was a passenger on the White Star line steamer Germanic, which ran into and sank the steamer Cumbrae and was compelled to put back to Liverpool, has returned to London. The Liverpool correspondent of the Central News says that Lord Dunraven will make a new arrangement with the New York Yacht club relative to his presence at the inquiry into the charges made by him against the Defender syndicate.

A NEW SWISS PRESIDENT.

Election of the Former Vice-President, Adrien Lachenal.

Berne, Dec. 13.—M. Adrien Lachenal, who was vice-president for 1895, has been elected president of the republic for 1896. He is a radical in politics, and his home is in Geneva. M. Deucher Thurgau has been elected vice-president of the republic for 1896.

All the Bodies Recovered.

Brewsters, N. Y., Dec. 13.—The thirteenth body recovered from the pit of the Tillie Foster mine was raised to the surface yesterday, after having been buried under tons of rocks for two weeks. It was that of Rafael Petito, an Italian, and he leaves a widow and four children. This completes the death roll.

Suicide of a Drummer.

Scranton, Pa., Dec. 13.—E. J. Duffy, a traveling salesman representing the Berry Bros., a Philadelphia varnish firm, and who claimed residence at Philadelphia, committed suicide in his room last night at the Westminster hotel by swallowing a large quantity of laudanum.

Big Haul of Counterfeiters.

Washington, Dec. 13.—A big haul of counterfeiters and counterfeit coin is reported from Pittsburg, Pa., by secret service officers. Six men and $440 in coin were captured. It is known as the Goodman gang and is said to have come from Philadelphia.

For Assaulting an Editor.

Huntington, W. Va., Dec. 13.—The jury trying John Bingham, the pugilist, for an assault upon City Editor Yowell of the Times, returned a verdict of felony. The other men charged with conspiring to kill the editor will now be placed on trial.

Howell Murder Case.

Wellsboro, Pa., Dec. 13.—The Howell murder case will go to the jury some time this afternoon.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh That Contain Mercury.

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces, such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

Nothing Like It.

Time brings many changes, but the climate of California, "The Italy of America," and the attractions of the many famous health and pleasure resorts, are the same yesterday, today and forever.

Tourists never will tire of speaking in praise of the soft and balmy air, the profusion of flowers, the magnificent display of fruits, the luxury of seabathing and the beautiful walks and drives.

Then, too, it must be conceded that with such excellent equipment, consisting of Reclining Chair Cars, Pullman Palace Sleepers and Pullman Dining Cars, all heated by steam and lighted with Pintsch Light, the Union Pacific, "The Overland Route," is the tourists favorite. Ask your agent for tickets via this route.

Great Reduction in Time to California.

Once more the Northwestern Line has reduced the time of its trans-continental trains, and the journey from Chicago to California via this popular route is now made in the marvelously short time of three days. Palace drawing-room sleeping cars leave Chicago daily, and run through to San Francisco and Los Angeles, without change, and all meals en route are served in dining cars. Daily tourist sleeping car service is also maintained by this line between Chicago and San Francisco and Los Angeles, completely equipped berths in upholstered tourist sleepers being furnished at a cost of only $6 each from Chicago to the Pacific Coast. Through trains leave Chicago for California at six p. m. and 10.30 p. m. daily, after arrival of trains of connecting lines from the east and south. For detailed information concerning rates, routes, etc., apply to ticket agents of connecting lines or address: H. A. Gross, G. E. P. A., 423 Broadway, New York, or T. P. Vaille, S. E. P. Advertisers, Attention.

Changes of advertisements for The Daily Press must be received not later than 9:30 o'clock in the morning to ensure insertion the same day.

Tomorrow The Daily Press will consist of twelve pages.

The street railway extension is on the home stretch again. There is hope that it won't run afoul of anything.

Harry Hayward had the distinction of being one of the few murderers to avowedly stay wicked until he was hanged.—Newark News.

The American people lose a representative citizen and the Democratic party a faithful member in the death of ex-Senator Thurman, "the Old Roman."

It seems to be a part of the tribulations of the bachelor or widower politician—that is, a big one—to hear at frequent intervals that he is about to take a better-half. It must be annoying because love and politics don't mix with any degree of success. General Harrison is now undergoing the experience.

Next to The Daily Press itself there is no more welcome visitor into the homes and business places of Plainfielders than The Daily Press calendar, which is distributed annually throughout the city during the latter part of the holidays. The calendar for the year 1896 will be the prettiest and most artistic and appropriate that has ever been presented to Daily Press readers.

FASTER SPEED, GREATER SAFETY.

Great Improvements by the Central Railroad at Elizabeth.

The enterprising and up-to date management of the Central Railroad of New Jersey, have about completed the improvements of their road bed just east of the passenger station at Elizabeth, upon which they have been at work for several months past.

This important and costly improvement consists in raising the grade of all their tracks for nearly a mile, to a height sufficient to cross over all the streets, five of which are spanned by plate girder bridges with a pavement passing beneath, which is the full width of the street. One street has been closed to team travel, but a subway provided for foot travel. From Lorraine station to East Twenty first street, Bayonne, a distance of nearly seven miles there is but one grade crossing left, which is at Elizabethport, and that is one which is seldom used. This work included raising the grade of all the tracks in the freight yard, together with the platforms and the large brick freight house, which was done without interfering with the regular work in the yards and offices.

As a result of this improvement the citizens of Elizabeth will be free to cross the line of tracks without danger, and the railroad company will gain increased safety and speed.

TOLD IN PATHETIC WORDS.

Two Lone Western Girls Write of Their Tribulations.

The following pathetic letters tell their own story. They were written by twin sisters about twelve years of age, the only children of their mother, and she is worse than widowed, for the husband and father has deserted wife and children in their time of need.

Dear Florence:—I received your letter a long time ago and was glad to get it.

We thank agin for the nice things you sent us. I do not know mamma would have got along without the niee coat kindly sent her and all the other things thay have all come in useful for mama does not have any mony to buy our clothes. our papa went away to get work and we do not know where he is and mama wrote to the place where he went and the letter came back and she wrote to other places where she thought he might be and he is not there and she cried so hard for she thought something had happened to him and so for three years we got along the best we could. but it is so hard for her to get along for she is not strong and people do not take painting lessons. now mama thinks papa is dead.

uncle Fred has a little calf and lots of little chickens.

I received the St Nicholas and thank you very much for it I like to read the stores in it very much.

BASKET BALL.

A challenge has been received from the basket ball team of the Brooklyn Y. M. C. A. by Physical Director MacPhie, of the Y. M. C. A., for a game at Brooklyn on Tuesday night. The challenge has been accepted. A return game will be played on a Tuesday in January.

Lovers of basket ball may be assured of a lively game tomorrow evening when the team from the Trenton Y. M. C. A. comes here to contest with the local team. Although this is the first regular game Plainfield's boys have played, practice games have been held every day and the players will put up an up-to-date game. Ample provisions will be made for the audience, and chairs will be placed around the running track for the benefit of the fairer sex and their escorts. The makeup of the two teams is as follows:

Plainfield Y. M. C. A.		Trenton Y. M. C. A.
Geo. P. Smith, Capt.	Right forward	Cooker
Raymond Carroll	Left forward	Bratton
Joseph Koechli	Right wing	Cook
Burt Wyckoff	Centre	W. Clayton
Henry Jessup	Left wing	Buckley
C. B. Egan	Right guard	S. Clayton
W. Littell or G. Pike	Left guard	Bates

The officials will be:

Umpire, M. Biley, of Trenton Y. M. C. A.
Referee, Victor Christofferson, of Plainfield Y. M. C. A.

WITH ROD AND GUN.

A Christmas day shoot will take place on the Climax Club grounds between William Terry and John Benner. The match will be twenty-five live birds at $25 a side. There will be sweepstakes before and after the match.

Members of the Independent Scheutzen Corps met at Hyde's Grove yesterday afternoon and enjoyed some sweepstake shooting. Messrs. Adams, Williams and VanDyke divided first money, and Messrs. J. A. Blatz, Henry Haurand and Fred Hui tied for second money. There will be sweepstake shooting next Thursday at the same place.

CYCLING COMMENT.

Bearings, the cycling magazine, contains a very handsome picture in this month's issue of the noted cycle dealers of the country seated at the banquet table at Atlanta, where R. L. Coleman was the host. F. L. C. Martin, of this city, was one of the guests.

WINTER SPORTS.

The Spartan L. and A. S. is organizing a hockey team.

The High School hockey team will meet for practice on the New Brooklyn pond Saturday morning at half-past nine.

WHIST.

The Park Club has received challenges from Orange and Montclair for the State whist trophy. One match will probably be played during Christmas week.

Evils of the Cigarette.

Upon the assurance that Anti-Cigarette Leagues would be organized in our schools, the W. C. T. U., hoping to lessen temptation for any and all boys who might sign the pledge, addressed to the City Council a petition asking for the enforcement of the State law relative to the sale of cigarettes and tobacco to minors.

Scores of signatures were cheerfully given, frequently emphasized by the remark that the petition should be opposed to the manufacture of cigarettes and the debasing pictures which are invariably circulated with them.

The existing State law reads:

Sec. 1. "That hereafter no person or persons in this State shall knowingly sell any cigarette or cigarettes, or tobacco in any of its forms, to any minor under the age of sixteen years.

Sec. 2. That if any person or persons in this State shall violate the provisions of this act, he, she or they, shall be liable to a penalty of twenty dollars for each and every such offence." This was made to satisfy the W. C. T. U.'s and anxious mothers, with the fact that such a law rests upon the statute books. Then to ensure the dealer against prosecution, the law further reads: "Such penalty to be sued for by and in the name of the parent or guardian of such minor," etc.

Parents and guardians of the better class seldom know that the boy is smoking, until the habit is confirmed, leading him downward physically, mentally and morally; the discovery of which is too horrifying to admit the thought of public disgrace and a possible object to reform in the boy, by a effort to bring to justice the real offender who sold the vile compound in defiance of the law.

The petition was so inadequate to the occasion that it has been withdrawn.

The State, to be consistent, should be the guardian of her boys. If, as boys or men, they commit crimes against society she imposes the penalty. If they are impoverished, she takes them into her alms-houses. If insane, they are gently restrained and every effort put forth to restore them to the pleasures and duties of citizenship. She levies a tax on their property. In times of emergency she demands their services in the army and the navy. Yet, while the cigarette is the known highway to crime and poverty and insanity, and unfits its victims for efficient service with brain or muscle, on land or on sea, this same State does not prohibit its sale to uninformed and unwarned boys; for fear of unjust interference with the private affairs of a citizen who deals in them, and has a vote. Scotch Plains.

The regular meeting of Fanwood Council, 744, Royal Arcanum, was held in its rooms at Scotch Plains on Tuesday evening last. On that occasion they were visited by Supreme Orator Charlock, Grand Orator Nolte and Grand Secretary Alberts, who in turn entertained the Council with addresses in the interest of the growth of the order. The meeting, which was also the one regularly appointed for the election of officers for the ensuing year, was well attended, and considerable interest was manifested in their selection, with the following result: Regent, F. W. Quereau; Vice-regent, H. L. Hall; Orator, A. H. Strong; Past Regent, W. E. Collins; Secretary, N. Dunn; Collector, Rev. J. H. Parks, D. D.; Treasurer, F. W. Westcott, M. D.; Chaplain, Rev. J. S. Corporation Notice.

Notice is hereby given that the following Ordinance has been introduced before the Common Council, read the second time and ordered engrossed preparatory to its third reading, and that it is the intention of the Council to adopt the same.

J. T. MacMURRAY, City Clerk.

Plainfield, N. J., Dec. 12, 1895.

AN ORDINANCE

locating the tracks of the extension of the Plainfield Street Railway Company, and regulating the construction and operation of the same, and also concerning the compensation to be paid by said Plainfield Street Railway Company to the City of Plainfield.

The inhabitants of the City of Plainfield by their Common Council do enact as follows:

Sec. 1. That the tracks of the extension of the Plainfield Street Railway Company's railway be and are hereby located in the following streets, roads and alleys of the city of Plainfield:

Route 1. From the present terminus of the road in Watchung ave through Watchung ave to East Fifth street, through East Fifth street to Richmond street, through Richmond street to Putnam avenue, and through Putnam avenue to Woodland avenue, through Woodland avenue to South avenue, through South avenue to the station of the Central Railroad of New Jersey, at Netherwood. Also from Watchung ave., through 4th street to Grant ave

Route 2. From the present terminus of the road in Front street at Grant avenue to the city line at Dunellen.

And in those portions of said streets, roads and alleys marked out and shown on map filed in the office of the city clerk of said city entitled "Map showing location of tracks, turn-outs and poles for proposed extension of Plainfield Street Railway, No. 2, and signed by John T. Fritts, Vice-President, dated, Sept 1895," to which reference is made and the same hereby made a part of this ordinance; and the said company is hereby given the right to construct, maintain and operate its extension to its street railway in said portions of said streets, roads and alleys under and subject to certain restrictions and regulations hereinafter specified or referred to; the same being such restrictions and regulations as the common council hereby deem requisite for the public interests, as well as subject to such further reasonable regulations as may be hereafter enacted by said common council. A detailed plan of construction shall be filed with the City Clerk by said company, and be approved by said Common Council before any work is done under the permission herein granted.

Sec. 2. That the said company shall construct, maintain and operate a single track railway for said extension, to be laid upon the middle line of the street, except on Watchung avenue; between North avenue and East 4th street, and shall construct the tracks, switches, turnouts and poles in the manner and at the points and places indicated for the same on said map.

The poles shall be constructed and set and the wires strung thereon in the same manner as the poles are constructed and set in the ground, and wires strung on poles on the line of street railways now operated in the city of Plainfield by the Plainfield Street Railway Company.

Sec. 3. That said company shall keep in repair to the satisfaction of the Committee on Streets, the paving or other surface materials of the portion of streets, roads and bridges occupied by its tracks, and in addition shall so keep in repair eighteen inches on each side of the portion of said streets, roads and bridges occupied by its tracks. In case of double tracks, or switches or turnouts, the expression "occupied by its tracks" shall be construed to mean all space in the street between the outermost rails. In case the city shall at any time determine to pave or repave any street or section of a street, the said company shall forthwith repave any portion of said street or section of street which may be occupied by the company's tracks and for eighteen inches beyond, with same material and in same manner, and shall do so at the company's expense under the supervision of the street commissioner. If said company shall at any time fail to comply with any of the requirements of this section, the work or repairs hereinabove specified may be done or made by or under the direction of said committee on streets, and to their satisfaction, and the expense thereof shall on demand be paid by said company to said city; provided that the said committee on streets or a majority of them shall give at least ten days notice in writing of the intention to do such work or make such repair, said notice to be served upon any officer or employe of said company who may be found at their office or depot.

Sec. 4. The said company and its officers, servants, agents or employes shall not, nor shall any or either of them be allowed to shovel, throw or place any snow, ice or slush alongside the said track or tracks, in any street or streets, in such manner as to obstruct other public travel therein; but, when removing said snow, ice or slush from said track or tracks, the said company or its officers, servants agents or employes shall cause the same to be immediately levelled between said track or tracks and the gutter lines on each side thereof unless the fall of snow shall have been too heavy to make it practicable to level the same as aforesaid; in which latter case the said company shall pay its pro rata of the expense of the removal of said snow. Upon violation of any of the provisions of this section, there shall be incurred a penalty of ten dollars for every city block on which any such violation shall take place, but said penalty shall not aggregate more than one hundred dollars in any one day; said penalties to be paid to the city by the said company or by any of its said officers, agents or employees so offending for each and every offence.

Sec. 5. That the rights and privileges intended to be given by this ordinance to said company are subject to all limitations, provisions, terms and conditions set forth and contained in sections 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 13, 14, 16, 17 and 18 of the ordinance of the city, entitled, "An ordinance locating the tracks of the Plainfield Street Railway Company and regulating the construction and operation of the same and granting permission to said company to use electric motors as the propelling power of its cars", approved April 27, 1891, to the same extent and with the same effect as if said sections were re-enacted in full as a part of this ordinance.

Sec 6. That the guage of the tracks of the said company to be hereafter laid shall be four feet eight and one-half inches, and the other tracks of said company already laid may be made of the same guage. That all the cars of the said company shall be similar to those now in use by it or such as shall be approved by the common council of said city. They shall be lighted by electricity, and properly heated in winter. Said company shall use upon its cars the Climax or other noiseless gearing and equip said cars with proper bells or gongs, and said cars shall be run at a speed of not more than ten miles an hour. No salt shall be used by said company on any part of its tracks.

For violation of any of the conditions of this section there shall be incurred a penalty of ten dollars for each offence and ten dollars additional for every day that such violation shall continue not exceeding one hundred dollars on any one conviction.

Sec. 7. That said company shall on or before the first day of March, 1896, equip each street railway car by it operated or run within the city of Plainfield, with fenders of the most approved pattern, to be approved by the Mayor of the city, and so attached to the car as best to protect from injury persons or vehicles using the streets or riding on the said cars; that after said last mentioned date no street railway car, the motive power of which is electricity, shall be operated or run upon any of the streets of said city, unless such car is equipped with fenders as above required, and in case any such car is operated or run contrary hereto the said company and every person or persons who shall either as president, manager, conductor, motorman or otherwise be engaged in so operating or running any such car shall be deemed to have violated this section and on conviction shall forfeit and pay fifty dollars for each day during which such violation shall continue, not exceeding one hundred dollars for any one conviction.

Sec. 8. The said company shall build or construct its extensions in the order specified in Sec. 1 and if the said company shall fail to build or construct the lines mentioned in route 1 of this ordinance with turnouts and switches in the manner aforesaid, and put the same into complete operation for the transportation of passengers within nine months after the passage of this ordinance, and if the said company shall fail to build or construct the lines mentioned in route 2 of this ordinance with turnouts and switches in the manner aforesaid, and put the same into complete operation for the transportation of passengers within twelve months after the passage of this ordinance; or shall afterwards fail or neglect to operate the same as aforesaid, all the rights, powers and privileges and every one of them of said company, their successors or assigns, under and by virtue of this supplemental ordinance, shall thereupon cease and determine, and this ordinance shall be null and void so far as the grant of any such right, power and privilege to said company is concerned, and in either of such cases the common council expressly reserves the right to cause the said railroad or any part or parts thereof, so constructed, to be removed from said street or streets, or any of them, and to sell and dispose of the materials thereof by public auction, and, after paying all the expenses of such removal and sale and of repairing the said street or streets, and of restoring the same nearly as possible to its or their original condition, to pay the balance of the proceeds of such sale to the said company, or its successors or assigns, provided, that no notice of such sale shall be required to be given, other than an advertisement, signed by the city clerk, and published in any one or more newspapers printed and published in said city.

The time during which the said company shall be delayed in the prosecution of its work or in the operation of its road or in any section thereof by injunction or other legal proceedings in the courts of New Jersey, or the federal courts in New Jersey, shall not be included within the nine and twelve months within which the said extensions are to be constructed and put into complete operation.

Sec 9. The said company shall for each and every mile of street occupied by its tracks laid already or that shall hereafter be laid by said Company, whether under the provisions of the ordinance hereinabove referred to, approved April 27, 1891, or the amendment thereof approved May 4, 1892, or under the ordinance entitled "An Ordinance authorizing the Plainfield Street Railway Company to extend the location of its tracks", approved Oct. 4, 1892, or under this ordinance, or under any other ordinance, and also for every mile of street occupied by tracks that may be owned or operated or that may be hereafter owned or operated by said company within the limits of the city of Plainfield, pay or cause to be paid to the collector of taxes of said city for the use of the said city, the following sums, to wit: For the year beginning Jan. 1, 1896, fifty dollars a mile; for the year beginning Jan. 1, 1897, seventy-five dollars a mile; for the year beginning Jan. 1, 1898, seventy-five dollars a mile; for the year beginning Jan 1, 1899, one hundred dollars a mile; for the year beginning Jan. 1, 1900, one hundred dollars, a mile; for the year beginning Jan. 1, 1901, one hundred and twenty-five dollars a mile, for each and every mile of track; said payments to be made each and every year on or before the last day of each year.

For the years succeeding that beginning 1901 the said company shall pay at the same rate as for the year 1901, provided that when the gross receipts in any one year from the entire system within the city of Plainfield and the borough of North Plainfield shall equal or exceed eighty thousand dollars, then for that year and annually thereafter, the said company shall pay annually to said city collector for the use of said city five per cent. of the gross earnings of said company, and said gross earnings shall be construed to include all earnings of said company and full proportion on all earnings on through traffic to be calculated according to the proportion between the entire length of the journey and the number of miles travelled within the limits of the city of Plainfield or the borough of North Plainfield or both as the case may be. That to enable the city to ascertain from time to time the amount of gross earnings of said company the books of the company shall be open to inspection by the finance committee of the common council or such other person or persons as the common council for that purpose shall designate.

The payment provided for in this section shall be in lieu of all license fees for cars, whether provided for in prior ordinances or not.

Sec. 10. That the tracks and cars of said company shall be used for the carrying of passengers only; that no freight shall be carried by said company or over its tracks, and that no luggage other than hand luggage actually carried by passengers shall be carried or allowed upon the cars of said company or any other cars passing over said tracks. Nothing herein contained, however, shall prevent the company from carrying the U.S. mail. That cars shall not be run in trains of more than two cars over any of the tracks of said company, and that all cars shall stop upon being signalled by any foot passenger at any street corner past which said tracks are or shall be laid and passengers shall be freely allowed to board said cars or alight therefrom at any street corners, and said company shall cause the cars to come to a full stop and sound the gong or bell immediately before turning any curve on road now constructed or to be constructed. Any violation of any of the provisions of this section by said company or any of its employes shall be subject to a penalty of twenty dollars fine for each and every offence.

Sec. 11. That in case the said company shall lease its tracks or any section of the same, or sell, or assign its franchises, or attempt so to do, said company shall cause to be inserted in any such lease, deed, bill of sale, assignment or other transfer, a stipulation and agreement and condition that the same is made subject to the provisions of this ordinance and that the lessee, vendee, assignee or other person to whom such lease, conveyance, assignment or transfer may be made or attempted to be made in accepting the same agrees to be bound thereby and to conform thereto, and will in turn insert a clause similar to that required by this section in case of any lease, conveyance, assignment or transfer thereof to be made, so that no persons or corporations shall acquire any rights in the premises except subject to the same terms and conditions as herein provided.

Sec. 12. That said company upon the final adoption of this ordinance and before exercising any of the rights and privileges granted hereby, shall as a condition precedent file with the city clerk of the city of Plainfield a contract to be executed by said company and duly approved by the corporation counsel, wherein said company covenant and agree with the inhabitants of the city of Plainfield, to abide by and perform all the matters and things herein, on the part of said company required to be observed, kept and performed; that it will, at any and all times hereafter, fully indemnify and protect the city of Plainfield of and from any and all suits, actions and proceedings that may be brought and maintained, or sought to be brought and maintained, by any person or corporation for, on account of or by reason of, the adoption or maintenance by said company, its successors or assigns, of said electric system aforesaid, or the construction or maintenance of said electric system or anything connected therewith, or any act of omission or commission by said company, its successors or assigns or any of its agents or servants, at any time or times, and shall whenever requested by said city, fully defend any and every such action, suit or proceeding.

Sec. 13. That said company shall also at the same time herein above specified for filing said contract, file a bond to the city in the sum of twenty thousand dollars to be approved as to form by the common council and corporation counsel of said city, conditioned for the full and faithful keeping, observance and performance of the terms and conditions in this ordinance contained, on the part of this company to be kept, observed and performed. And in case the conditions or terms upon which said company is granted permission to locate its tracks and maintain and operate its road or any of the terms or conditions of the said contract are violated, the city reserves the right to revoke the permission herein granted, to remove the tracks of the said company and all the constructions made in the streets of the city by said company, its successors or assigns.

Sec. 14. The company shall file with the city clerk, within thirty days next after the passage of this ordinance, their acceprance, under their corporate seal and signed by their president, of the terms and provisions, restrictions, and regulations hereof, and every one of them, and, in default thereof, it shall be understood and held that they decline to accept the same, and thereupon all rights, powers and privileges, to them granted thereby, shall forever cease and be at an end, in the same manner and with the same effect as if this ordinance had never been passed.
